WORK STRATEGY--Clean up crew foremen strategize during cleanup operations following a 15-car Southern Pacific Train derailment which occurred at 4 a.m. Monday. Huge dozers and crains were employed to get the several hundred yards of track repaired with service resuming on the Southern Pacific Line by 10 p.m. Monday night.

Train Derails Monday

Persons in the Warren Community were awakened to what Postmaster floyd Innman called "Bombs going off" at 4 p.m. Monday morning when a 119 car Southern Pacific train derailed, spilling 15 box cars and two engines in accordian fashion alongside the track.

The accident, according to Southern Pacific officials, is being blamed on defective track in the area, which is near the Hwy 69 underpass.

Workmen from a Beaumont emergency wrecking crew were on the job quickly, hoisting the mangled boxcars off the railroad bed so that service could be restored to the route quickly.

According to Ron Clifton, the Terminal Superintendent in Beaumont, the track was repaired and service resumed by 10 p.m. the following evening.

The train, which was carrying Baroid cement, steel pipe and feed, contained no hazardous commodities, Clifton said.

Extent of the damage to the Railroad is estimated to be several hundred thousand dollars.

Of the four men on the train at the time of the accident none were hurt. Engineer of the train was J.D. Dicks.

Clifton said work crews will return shortly with a work train to haul in the demolished box cars.

Area traffic was disrupted only on FM 1946 as students were on their way to Warren High School Monday morning.

CLEAN—UP CREW--Workmen from a Beaumont Emergency Wrecking Crew are shown cutting the twisted rail which resulted when a 119 car train derailed in the vicinity of Black Creek several hundred yards southwest of the Warren underpass. Fifteen box cars folded up like an accordian, dumping bags of oil well cement in the railway roadbed. Officials of Southern Pacific blame the accident on a defective rail. Two engines were also off the track as a result of the incident. No one was hurt.

by Alan Miller

As Mr. Ronald Reagan puts his transition team in motion to take over the reins of government in January, a lot of Republicans who were at each others' throats in the primaries not too many months ago are now real buddy-buddy.

The Bush-Connally-Baker-Kemp, etc. team is perceived as working together to get their program off and running.

Yet, it has been twenty-six years since the GOP controlled either house of Congress. The first thing they're going to have to do is print up guide maps so they can find their way to the executive—washrooms, and learn to ride—in the back seat of limosines while someone else does the driving.

No more carrying sack lunches to work, and sitting below the salt. This time, in the Senate at least, it is sweep away the Democrat staff people, bring in some new bright young folks, and get things moving.

But, we've got news for those Republican newcomers to power. They will be walking into a potential ambush with every move they make. If they think for a minute that the Democrats will give up this power-base they have enjoyed for decades, they're sadly misinformed.

And the poor GOP has been sitting on the back benches for so long they will probably be like a teenager with a new Ferrari. He knows it's a great car with lots of speed and maneuverability, but can he really drive it?

And the first tentative appointments being put forth by the Reagan team are bringing all the special interest Republicans to the spotlight glare, as they urge Reagan to remember who put him in office. From the Moral—Majority—to—the—Teamsters Union he is getting probably more information than he needs to know on any subject you want to mention.

Half the heads of state in Europe are waiting in the wings to hand him their "gimme" list for the next four years, most of them discarding the rocks they had been throwing in his direction during the primary campaign.

Meanwhile, Japan keeps unloading Datsuns, Toyotas, Hondas and the like and Detroit keeps shutting down assembly lines. Ford appears in serious financial shape, and losses in-the-billions by the American automotive industry is compounded as 200,000 auto workers are still pounding the pavement.

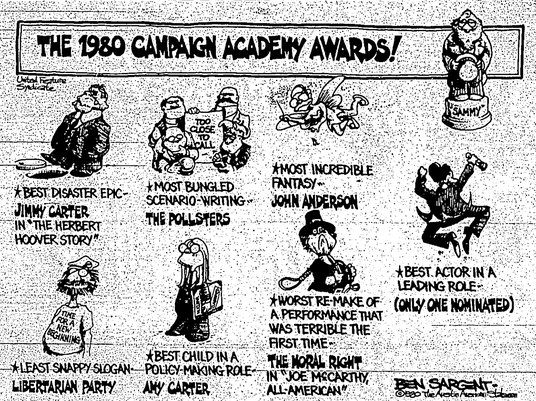
Iraq keeps beating up on Iran, and the latter still holds U. S. citizens hostages.

And as cynical as the American voter seems to be today, the incoming President will be lucky to have time to hang up his Stetson before the wolves come baying at the door asking why the economy hasn't turned for the better, and there's a chicken in every pot.

For the Republicans the euphoria of winning the election should be classified as past history. Now it's time to produce on the promises made during the campaign.

But from the look of some of the retreads appearing on the scene from previous administrations, they should realize that those perceptions didn't work a bit better than those proposed by the Democrats in recent elections.

We need a new look at where we are, and where we want to go. Without that and more of the same business as usual in Washington, the American electorate may make another explosive judgement that none of us would like.



State Capital Highlights

AUSTIN—If you're a Texan who survived the 1980 onslaught of campaigns and elections, then hold on to your hat; you may have to go through another one soon.

Texas U.S. Senator John Tower, a Republican, is the latest subject of possible political scenarios which abounded at the Capitol last week. Tower, a strong Reagan backer, is said to be high on the President-elect's list of names for U.S. Secretary of Defense.

If Tower were tapped for that job, leaving a vacancy in the Senate, a special election would be held within 90 days of Tower's resignation from Congress. With that possibility in mind, several politicians are already jockeying for the inside track.

Should Tower resign, the man pulling the strings in the first act will be Gov. Bill Clements. Clements will have the power to immediately appoint someone to Tower's seat, and then call for the special election.

Obviously, whoever occupies Tower's old seat will enjoy some election benefits for an incumbent, even a 90-day incumbent.

AN ELECTABLE APPOINTEE

Clements will have to choose wisely, for Democrats are still strong in Texas and are likely to send a strong champion from their ranks to take over the long-coveted seat held by John Tower. Tower won re-election by the slimmest of margins two years ago over Bob Krueger, evidence enough that Texas Democrats can get more excited by that race than by supporting Jimmy Carter.

Any candidate who gets into the fray must have several assets immediately: name identification, high voter preference, campaign experience and personal money. Ninety days is not much time to raise money or learn trial and error.

To compete, therefore, needs to choose someone who would run strong even without the advantage of a short incumbency, and several names have come to the fore.

Speaker Reports

By Bill Clayton

AUSTIN—At the conclusion of the 66th legislative session, I appointed an interim committee, the Select Committee on State Employee Productivity, to determine where changes could be made to improve the effectiveness and productivity of state employees. Needless to say, such an assignment was not an easy task. Findings and recommendations have recently been made by the committee in its final report.

As expected, one of the major concerns expressed involves pay incentives for state employees. The committee believes the Legislative Budget Board should adopt an emergency pay increase of at least 5.1 percent effective February 1, 1981 with additional increases for the 1982 fiscal year of at least 13.6 percent and 10.2 percent for the 1983 fiscal year.

Testimony before the committee has indicated one of the greatest handicaps to increased productivity is the absence of a true pay-for-merit system. It appears that this deficiency has also contributed to an increase of low morale and dissatisfaction with state employment. The committee recommends that the merit pay portion of the Appropriations Bill be rewritten to reflect mandatory documentation of performance before the granting of merit raises. These raises, the committee feels, should be 3.4 percent of an employee's salary and funds should be appropriated by the Legislature based on an amount equal to 1.7 percent of each employee's salary.

The results of an Employee Attitude Survey showed a lack of uniform personnel procedures among agencies creates a strong barrier to performance and productivity. Therefore, the committee recommends an orientation program for new state employees to help alleviate some of this problem. Such a program calls for new employees to be furnished the following information: 1) a list of all laws and policies affecting employment with the state; 2) an accurate job description including a detailed analysis of all tasks involved in the position; 3) performance evaluation and grievance policy procedures; 4) training programs available for upward mobility; 5) a reduction in force policy; 6) a benefits brochure listing all state benefits; and 7) a list of any special policies singular to an agency.

Two other recommendations made by the committee concern job posting and accrued sick leave. The Texas Employment Commission should be required to expand their job posting to include all commission offices in the state so that all citizens and state employees will have easy access to this information, according to the committee. Secondly, the committee feels that productivity would be increased by paying a state employee for that portion of accrued sick leave up to 336 hours upon bonafide retirement.

One additional request made is for an on-going mechanism to be created to continue with this project. The specific recommendation is that a 15-member committee, to be called the Joint Special Committee on State Government Productivity, be appointed by the Governor, Lieutenant Governor and the Speaker of the House. If established, the group would delve even further into the issue of state employee productivity and report its finding to the 68th Legislature when it convenes in January 1983.

The recommendations made by the Select Committee on State Employee Productivity will be presented to the members of the 67th Legislature in hopes of finding new and innovative ways to increase state employee productivity.

AUSTIN — NOW CASTING for spring catalog, all sizes of both female and male models needed. Involves travel with all expenses paid. 454-8931.
MODELS
NEW FACES NEEDED
For assignment in fashion and TV part-time. M/F. For appointment and free model evaluation. Call 454-8931.

These two advertisements are representative of those placed by a Dallas based company known as Artists' Management Inc. (AMI) in the classified sections of newspapers in over twenty cities throughout the country. AMI ran a temporary placement service for aspiring models until it shut down operations shortly after my Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division filed suit against it under the Texas Consumer Protection Act in June of this year.

Thousands of consumers responded to these and other such advertisements over the last two years; attended interviews with AMI's local talent coordinators, and paid AMI approximately $100 to become models. Relatively few applicants were turned away since most could qualify in at least one of AMI's categories: fashion, motion media, print modeling, promotional modeling and type casting. Further, in order to qualify, the applicant was expected to score well on a test prepared by the company which included questions like "Do you seriously want to be a professional model?" and "Do you smile readily, and is that smile genuine?" Needless to say, experts in the modeling field reviewed this questionnaire at our request and concluded that it was virtually worthless as an indicator of whether a consumer had a realistic chance for success in modeling.

An agreed final judgment and permanent injunction was entered against AMI and its principals. Without admitting liability, defendants agreed to be permanently enjoined and restrained from (1) misrepresenting the availability of modeling assignments to consumers; (2) misrepresenting the number of advertisers who regularly use models employed by defendants; (3) misrepresenting the qualifications and training of defendants' employees; and (4) misrepresenting the services provided by defendants to consumers, among other provisions.

By agreement, Judge Hugh Snodgrass in Dallas also ordered defendants to pay $400,000.00 in restitution to be distributed to consumers throughout the county, as collected, by our Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division. The Division has collected $10,000 of this amount thus far and will distribute it, on a percentage basis, to all AMI consumers who have filed complaints with the Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division at P.O. Box 12548, Austin, Texas 78711, phone: (512) 475-3288. The Division has already received over 150 complaints from consumers across the county.

Also by agreement, AMI was ordered to pay the maximum civil penalty of $10,000 to the State of Texas and one of the principals was ordered to pay another $5,000 as a civil penalty to the State.

The lesson to be learned from this important case is that consumers are well advised to research carefully any company that promises success for a small investment. Our experts tell us that few consumers can expect to become successful models simply by paying $100.00 to an unknown company in the modeling industry.

If you have questions about any modeling service or wish to file a complaint concerning any company that makes appealing but unreasonable claims contact the Better Business Bureau and Attorney General's Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division in your area.

Check Credit Bureaus

AUSTIN—As the holiday season approaches, many consumers consider purchasing larger gifts on credit. In making the decision to extend credit, Texas merchants rely heavily on credit bureaus, which sometimes are sponsored by the retail merchants in the community and sometimes are independently run. The function of credit bureaus is to act as an independent third party, performing the task of gathering information from businesses with whom the consumer has traded, and making that information available to other creditors.

In the past, there have been reports of abuses by some unscrupulous or careless keepers of credit records. To remedy such abuses Congress enacted the Fair Credit Reporting Act, which sets standards for proper operation of credit bureaus and firms which perform credit record checks.

Let's assume a merchant denies you the right to be given the name and address of the credit bureau which prepared a report that resulted in the denial of credit or an increase in the cost of credit or insurance. You also have the right to be informed of the "nature and substance" of the information in your credit file although you need not physically be given your file. This information must be given to you free of charge if you were denied credit, but a small fee can be charged if you are simply curious about the contents of your file. Furthermore, you can take someone along when examining your credit record and the credit bureau is required to tell you the names and addresses of anyone who received a report over the past six months, or over the past two years in the case of employers who received the credit information.

Attend Conference

Drs. W.S. Nichols and Raymond O. Fowler of Woodville and Colmesneil recently attended a two-day seminar in College Station in conjunction with the Texas brucellosis program. It was co-sponsored by the Texas animal Health Commission, Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas Veterinary Medical Association.

Dr. Nichols and Fowler are now certified to work with livestock producers in accordance with the fee-base regulations of the Texas brucellosis program.

Brucellosis is a highly contagious disease of livestock, centering in the reproductive organs. It causes abortions, weakened calves, loss of milk and sterility.

Subjects taught during the short course included a detailed study of brucellosis, reduced dosage of Strain 19 vaccine, and regulations in conjunction with the Texas program.

"Veterinarians such as Drs. Nichols and Fowler are now quite knowledgeable about the Texas brucellosis program, and are qualified to assist livestock producers with this disease," Dr. Frank Mann, TVMA president, Wharton, said.

"The accredited veterinarian is a cornerstone of the Texas brucellosis program," said Dr. John Holcombe of Austin, TAHC Executive Director.

Revised regulations have been in effect since July. Elements of the Texas program include a multi-area plan, reduced dose of Strain 19 vaccine.

When Adult Children Move Back Home

COLLEGE STATION -- When children move home, set up clear "ground rules" to make the transition easier, advises a family resource management specialist, Nancy Granovsky.

"Even written lists or mini-contracts can go a long way in helping families adjust to these household changes," she says.

Mrs. Granovsky is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Three age groups seem most likely to make a move: Young adults or teenagers, 40-45-year-old singles (many of whom are recently divorced or legally separated) and those 70 years or older.

Rising rents and utility bills, high property taxes and the high cost of household maintenance are blamed for this trend.

Many young adults feel the economic pinch as they try to manage on minimal starting salaries.

Families unaccustomed to having their children at home could experience conflict unless certain mutually agreed upon ground rules about home management are established, she cautions.

PEOPLE SCHEDULES

Accommodate different work/schedules so that living patterns and needs of all family members are respected. Retain independence with mutual respect for other people's time demands.

MEALS

Establish an equitable system for shopping, food preparation and clean-up. Decide how many meals will include the entire family.

HOUSEHOLD EXPENSES

Decide what financial support adult children will contribute to household expenses. Some household expenses will increase as a result of additional members.

OBITUARIES

HOLY BIBLE

The GOOD BOOK

I BELIEVE IN THE CHURCH, THE CHURCH IN EVERYTHING

The Church in God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

America in its early days depended on the "GOOD BOOK" for its guide in ethics, worship, and pursuit of freedom. These early gains are now in danger of falling and we need to turn all America once again to God and His word. America can be strong only when each individual looks to God for strength.

Mike Creech, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Creech, is taking flying lessons. Monday he did his solo cross-country test flight from Beaumont to Dallas. Then he will receive his flight license.

Home from college was Janice Pittman of Angelina of Lufkin and Kandi Hanley from Tamara of Beaumont.

Sympathy is sent to the family of Ann Waller, who was once a resident of Colmesneil, who passed away Friday in San Antonio and buried Monday in Conroe.

So glad to see Gray Ragan and stepdaughter Kim Green up and about after a stay in the hospital from a car-train wreck.

BASKETBALL NEWS

In their first game of the season, the Lady Bulldogs travelled to Tarkington Saturday, Nov. 15. The Varsity won by a large margin, 68-33. JV lost by only a few shots.

In the varsity game three seniors led in the scoring with 16 points each. They were: Gloria Spann and Janice and Janette McNeal. Gloria Spann had 7 offensive rebounds and Sonya Collins had 5 defensive rebounds. The Lady Bulldogs played a tremendous game with 23 steals.

SENIOR CORNER

Bonnie Sue Howard is a senior at CHS. Her birthday is January 25, 1963. She was born in Woodville, Texas.

Bonnie has several hobbies. She enjoys horseback riding and swimming when the weather is right. Working with young children seems to be her favorite pasttime.

"I like it. I wouldn't go anywhere else," was Bonnie's reply when asked how she liked CHS. The main reason for that statement was because she really likes coming to school and being with her friends.

Bonnie plans to get a job at a department store selling clothes after she finishes school. Her ultimate goal in life is to be a good wife and to be a pleasant asset to other people in her life.

Activities in which Bonnie has participated during her years in high school are as follows:

FHA - 4 years
FHA president - 2 years
Track - 2 years
Class officer - 1 year
Beta Club - 2 years
Homecoming duchess - 2 years
Student aide - 4 years
Annual Staff - 2 years
Co-editor - 1 year
One Act Play - 2 years

Also a senior at CHS, Lisa Marie Lewis was born on July 31, 1963 in Houston, Texas. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Neil Lewis.

Lisa has participated in several activities while at CHS: FHA three years, Beta Club three years, class officer one year, Homecoming duchess one year, UIL three years, One Act Play state qualifier, and student aid three years.

Lisa likes several things, but her most famous pasttime is finding ways to get out of Mr. Mahaffey's study hall. When she is not doing that she can always find something to argue with Coach Stewart about.

Her plans after graduation are to attend Stephen F. Austin State University and study High School education. Lisa's ultimate goal in life is to teach school and have a happy family.

It's that time of year again! Thanksgiving is here and Christmas is on its way. Now is the time for love to spread to every corner of the earth to everyone. In fact, that is the way it should be all of the time.

This is the time to enjoy the ones closest to you and to take every opportunity to get to know them and appreciate them. Remember, loving a person is easy when that love is returned but the real test of love comes when one can love despite what might be the response. Happy Thanksgiving!

Eagles Nest

By GEORGANNE FAULKNER

Have you ever heard of that saying, "We won the battles, but lost the war"? That's exactly what happened to us. After defeating Kountz, Corrigan, Kirbyville, Newton, Diboll, Hemphill, and Center we progressed to a three-way tie for district champion. On the flip of a coin we were chosen over San Augustine and Newton to represent District 19-AAA in bi-district playoffs Friday night. All those victories did us no good. Our confidence was worthless. We lost. Hamshire-Fannett won, 16-7. We went down fighting, but who will remember tomorrow?

We will. That is what matters most. Our pride in ourselves and in our school will always shine through our defeats.

There was enough spirit last week to motivate any team to victory. Of course, unfortunately, that isn't enough. Most of the excitement was thanks to Coach Barnes. After every period his class would gather in the hall to yell cheers and chants. Needless to say, Coach Barnes' Biology classes received the spirit stick.

Like they say, "We won the battles, but lost the war". They also say, "It's not whether you win or lose, it's how you play the game".

Bulldogs Shut out Italy 21-0 In Major Victory

The Colmesneil Bulldogs continued to steamroll their way to a possible state championship Friday as they used their underdog position to outsmart the oddsmakers and defeat their bi-district opponent Italy, shutting them out for the first time this year by a score of 21-0.

Motivated by leading scorer Mike Marshall, the Dogs scored first on the last play of the first quarter when Marshall scampered 90 yards on a trap play up the middle. Marshall hit the line, then cut to the right and "outlegged the other team", but not before one defender ended up with the runner's shoe.

Darren Bean added the extra point, bringing the first quarter score to 7-0.

Second quarter action saw late season comer Kip Howard return a 42 yard punt which set up another scoring drive from the Bulldog 28 yard line. Marshall finally took the ball in from the five yard line with the Bean point after kick good.

The final scoring play of the game came before the halftime when Bulldog Charles Edwards intercepted a pass at the Colmesneil five yard line and ran 95 yards for the game-winning score.

Colmesneil earned 254 yards rushing while the reported powerhouse Italy team was held to only 123 yards.

Marshall ran 131 yards in 11 carries.

Colmesneil will meet Valleyview, a team located 10 miles south of Gainesville, at a neutral Malakoff field located 8 miles from Athens. That location was agreed to by both schools after some discussion about the possibility of a Corsicana contest location.

According to Coach Bill Hunter, Valleyview "Has everything that a coach would want in a team . . . size, speed, balance . . . super quarterback."

According to Hunter, quarterback Alan Kassey, a junior, was third in the State Hurdle Championships last year.

Hunter said, "We'll have to be at our best."

The Colmesneil coach said the Valleyview team had scored a season total of 368 points and had 88 points scored against them.

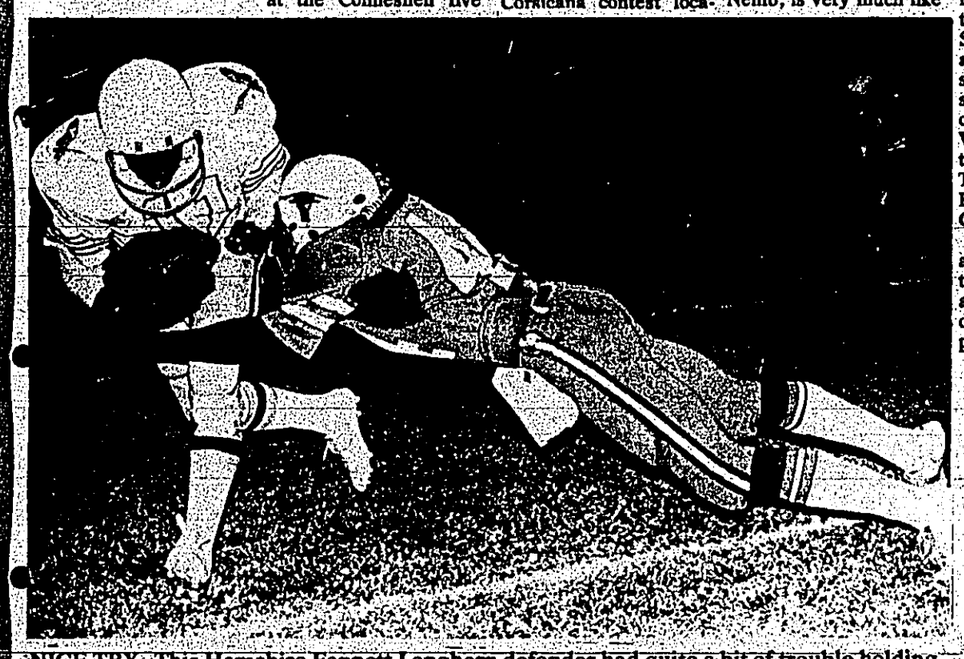
Hunter said the Malakoff field is located 150 miles from Colmesneil and gave the following directions for fans to get to the game: take Hwy 69 north to Jacksonville, then Hwy 175 west to Hwy 31 at Athens to the Corsicana fork. Malakoff is 8 miles from Athens. The Malakoff field is very similar to the Woodville 3-A stadium, Hunter said.

Should Colmesneil defeat the Valleyview team in the quarterfinal match, they will then meet the winner of the Falls City and LaPryor matchup. These two teams represent the Southwest Texas region and the Valley. Other state contenders for the state semifinal contests could include either Valley or Klondike from the Panhandle and West Texas or Meridian and Rankin representing Central and West Texas.

Hunter said he's got a lot of confidence that the team's goind to win and added that, "Our defense has scored 36 points this year."

ROUNDHOUSE RUN--Kelvin Brazil is shown turning the corner at Friday's Bi-district game against Hamshire Fannett. The Eagles were eliminated from further competition as the Longhorns won the game 16-7.



NICE TRY--This Hamshire Fannett Longhorn defender had quite a bit of trouble holding onto Kyle Brazil in Friday game action in the Bi-district playoff at Beaumont Forest Park Stadium. The Eagles lost their bid for further action this season as the Longhorns were victorious by a score of 16-7.

Eagles Lose Bi-district

The Woodville Eagles ended their bi-district play Friday night after a 16-7 loss to Hamshire Fannett which demonstrated a hard tackling and ball control game that earned them the right to advance against West this Friday when they will meet at Conroe at 8 p.m.

Coach Melvin Houston credited the entire team with a "Good season" and called it all a "Good team effort."

The Eagles outrushed the Hamshire Fannet Longhorns by a total of 327 yards to the Longhorn total of 247. The Eagles put together a 165 yard passing attack but couldn't put their running game together to go ahead of the Hamshire Fannett team.

Both the Eagles and the Longhorns scored on the second quarter but the Longhorns added a 3 point field goal and continued with a 10-7 lead till they scored again in the fourth quarter, ending the game with a 16-7 score.

Woodville managed to earn 16 first downs while the Longhorns put together only 13 first downs.

Woodville Ladies Stop Chester

The Woodville Lady Eagles basketball team won its second game of the season Thursday night as the Eagles dropped the Chester girls, 59-44.

Allison Morse led Woodville with 16 points, Val Jackson added 14, Shelley Cooley and Carolyn Nix made 12 each for the Eagles.

Woodville will take their 2-0 record against Colmesneil Monday night and will travel to Newton on Tuesday night.

Bulldog Ladies Take 2nd Win

The Colmesneil Lady Bulldogs took their second win in as many outings Thursday night by defeating Goodrich 80-60. The Bulldogs took the lead early as the first quarter ended with the score 26-9. Halftime saw the Bulldogs holding the lead 42-28. As third quarter play came to a close the score stood 64-42. Nine of the ten Lady Bulldogs scored with leading scorers Janette McNeal 22 points, Carolyn McKinney 18 points, Gloria Spann had 14 points and Janice McNeal picked up ten. Gloria Spann was leading rebounder for the Dogs as she pulled down 14 rebounds.

E. Garrett was high scorer for the Hornets with 24 points followed by L. Smith who had 15.

The JV Bulldogs fell to the Hornets 32-12.

The Lady Bulldogs will travel to Woodville Monday night to play the Eagles at 6 p.m. with the JV playing the first game.

The District Awards Banquet is sponsored by Texas Farm Products and Texas Power and Light Company.

Recipients of the Gold Star Award must have demonstrated outstanding leadership development. Additionally, they must have successfully completed a project related to Agriculture, Home Economics or Personal Development, according to Liz Arnold, County Agent.

Susan's accomplishments included Poultry, Beef, Foods and Nutrition and Pat's included Foods and Nutrition, Leadership and Soil Judging.

Accompanying the local winners to the Awards Banquet will be Clinton Currie, Liz Arnold, Mrs. Jackie Gardner, and Mrs. Pat Thomason.

Drive 55 Over Holidays

Texas Safety Association's executive director, George Gustafson, today reminded Texans to "drive 55" this Thanksgiving in order to significantly lower their changes of having a fatal accident.

He also pointed out various economic benefits of the 55 mph speed limit.

Gustafson emphasized that the risk of a fatal accident at 55 mph is only 1 in 33, while at 70 mph the chance is 50-50, or 1 in 2.

Last year in Texas, 4,229 persons died in traffic accidents, according to Texas Department of Public Safety statistics. Approximately one fourth, or 1,040, of the fatalities resulted from accidents involving speeding.

Gustafson indicated that by slowing down to 55, Texans have saved an average of 700 lives each year since the 55 mph speed limit went into effect. "Furthermore, on a national level, the 55 mph speed limit has been described as the single most effective means of saving lives ever implemented by the government, even when compared with the massive polio immunizations of the 1960s," he said.

In addition to the safety advantages of driving 55, Gustafson also commented on the financial benefits of the slower speed. For example, it saves gasoline.

Don't Take Drugs For Granted

Most Americans believe they shouldn't have to put up with inconvenience from a stuffy nose to heartburn so they take pills for everything.

That's the opinion of James O. Allen Jr., a pharmacist with the Food and Drug Division of the Texas Department of Health.

"I think we have grown to take drugs too much for granted," he said. "Even television bombards us daily about products that are supposed to eliminate every conceivable kind of pain and suffering."

In 1977, Americans spent $8.5 billion for prescription drugs, for an average of six prescriptions for each individual. On over-the-counter medications, we used another $3.8 billion to alleviate our health problems, according to the National Center for Health Statistics.

About eight years ago when he was a practicing pharmacist before joining the Texas Department of Health, Allen says the most widely prescribed drug was propoxyphene, a pain killing drug better known as Darvon or Darvocet.

"Darvon's widespread availability led to overuse and abuse. When taken with alcohol, this drug has a synergistic effect as a depressant," Allen said.

The Federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) had to come out and warn patients not to take the drug with alcohol.

Also, it was reported that Secretary of Health and Human Services Joseph A. Califano Jr. considered banning Darvon entirely as an "imminent hazard," but instead, asked the FDA to increase the restrictions on its usage.

Allen says the most widely prescribed types of medications now are the tranquilizers. "I would say tranquilizers are taken for everything from a bad day at the office to shooting a high golf score," said Allen.

Recently, the FDA required drug manufacturers to send physicians a written warning about Valium and other tranquilizers in its class. The warning states that these drugs are not supposed to help people cope with everyday stress.

Federal officials say that such drugs as Valium and Librium should be used only in psychotherapy or to help relieve the anxiety caused by cancer, heart disease, ulcers and other serious health problems.

Tranquilizers were blamed for 1,550 deaths and suicides during 1978, one federal study reports. These drugs are not only habit forming, but are very dangerous when mixed with alcohol.

Since the taking of drugs is such a complex matter, patients should select a pharmacist with the same care in which they select a physician.

"Centralize all purchases in a single pharmacy that maintains patient records and provides personal consultations," advised Dr. James T. Doluisio, dean of the College of Pharmacy at the University of Texas.

"If two physicians give you prescriptions, you want the pharmacist to be able to tell you if the drugs are the same, or if you will have a bad reaction by taking them at the same time."

Patients should expect the same kind of advice from pharmacists about over-the-counter drugs, Dr. Doluisio added, and should be told about possible side effects of all prescriptions.

Pharmacists who maintain patient records generally ask first-time customers for a complete prescription history, similar to forms filled out in hospitals.

"A growing number of pharmacies maintain patient records," he said, "and if it costs a little extra money, it's well worth it."

There are a few general rules that apply to taking all medications. "Don't use old drugs," says Allen. "Even over-the-counter products shouldn't be kept as long as a year."

Keep drugs in a cool, dry place. "Moisture makes many medications lose strength or disintegrate, so the bathroom cabinet may be too damp or warm. A refrigerator is not the right place for drugs, except for the few that must be kept cold. The best temperature for most drugs is between 58 and 68 degrees Fahrenheit (15 to 18 Celsius)," he said.

Venison Sausage Is Tasty

By LIZ ARNOLD
County Extension Agent

Venison sausage may be made from a variety of recipes using a variety of seasonings.

Try different recipes until you find the one you and your family likes, or get deer sausage from a processing plant and prepare and taste it.

If they make a variety of flavors you may be able to select one from these processes that you will like.

Remember—not all sausage is the same.

However, here are some recipes you may want to try.

FRESH BREAKFAST SAUSAGE

25 pounds lean deer meat
25 pounds very fresh regular pork trimmings (50 percent lean, 50 percent fat)
1 pound salt
1½ to 2 ounces ground sage
1½ to 2 ounces black pepper
½ ounce red pepper (if desired)
5 ounces sugar
(For Small Quantities)
2 pounds wild game meat
2 pounds regular pork trimmings
2 teaspoons salt
4 teaspoons ground sage
2 teaspoons ground black pepper
¼-½ teaspoon red pepper (if desired)
1 teaspoon sugar

Regrind through a plate with ¼-holes.

If a ½-inch plate is not available, sprinkle seasoning on top of trimmings, thoroughly mix and grind once through a plate with ¼-inch holes.

If sausage is to be stuffed, do this immediately for best results. Stuff into natural hog casings, plastic bags or muslin bags (any cloth bag made from strong cloth that has been washed several times can be used).

Natural hog casings can be obtained from meat markets, local meat processing plants or stores. Soak them in warm, salty water for about 1 hour or until they are pliable.

If bulk sausage is to be served soon after making, ¼ cup of water may be added to about 4 pounds of sausage.

Knead with hands until sausage becomes sticky.

CURED AND SMOKED SAUSAGE (COUNTRY STYLE)

37½ pounds of deer
12½ pounds of very fresh pork
1 pound salt
1 ounce saltpeter (potassium nitrate—obtainable at drug store).
2 ounces black pepper
½ ounce ground cloves (or ½ ounce ground mutmeg (if desired)
¼ ounce garlic powder (if desired)

Hang or place on racks to cure and dry for 24 to 48 hours at a temperature of 38 to 40 degrees F.

Birth Order Can Affect Successes

However, birth order does not box children into categories and expected successes or failures, she points out.

Miss Taylor is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Nevertheless, children do tend to display certain characteristics according to birth order.

FIRSTBORN, ONLY CHILD

At first glance, it seems that firstborn and only children have the enviable position in the family, Miss Taylor says.

They are usually joyously welcomed and have undivided attention of parents.

Firstborn are also the group that is expected to become the achievers in the family—a goal some may or may not be able to fulfill.

Consequently, firstborn children are the group that seek psychological help most often because of pressures to succeed.

Only children are usually achievement oriented but do not lose their center-stage position with parents to other children in the family.

MIDDLE CHILDREN

They learn to compete for attention from both parents and other siblings, thus developing extraordinary skills in handling others.

The major drawback in being a middle child is that he may never be adequately recognized nor rewarded for personal or family accomplishments.

YOUNGEST

The youngest child is seldom expected to become the achiever, so the family loves him just for himself, she explains.

He is never threatened by other children displacing him as the darling in the family.

PARENTAL TREATMENT

Because of the uniqueness of each child, parents should treat each child in special ways that are appropriate for that individual, Miss Taylor advises.

No one birth order position seems to be better or worse than any other.

It's not whether a child is born first or last, rather it's what the child and parents do to highlight the advantages and lessen the disadvantages of the child's family position that is fact, its life processes, she adds.

TCDA To Use CETA

AUSTIN -- Programs to involve business and industry in providing job and training opportunities in over 100 Texas counties are meeting with success because they respond to local needs, according to the Texas Department of Community Affairs (TDCA).

This fall TDCA began a major effort to reach the business community over a wide territory of the state through the Private Sector Initiative Program created by the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

Elusive Whitetail Offers Myths

AUSTIN--The opening of deer hunting season in Texas always rekindles a number of myths and folklore about the elusive whitetail.

One long-standing myth is not only misleading but also detrimental to good deer management in the state, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologist Donnie Harmel.

"Many hunters and landowners have held to the opinion that a spike buck (a buck with single antlers protruding through the skin but without prongs or forks) is simply a young animal which will grow into a trophy-sized buck if given another year or two of growing time," Harmel said.

This long-standing tradition of over-protection of spikes is damaging, Harmel said, because recent studies at the Kerr Wildlife Management Area in Kerr County have conclusively shown that spikes are nutritionally and genetically inferior to bucks which have forked antlers in their first year.

This means that hunters have been protecting the bucks which will perpetuate the characteristic of small antlers and body size in the herd, Harmel said.

The Kerr study involved six years of controlled breeding programs which showed that spike bucks produce a high percentage of spike offspring through several generations, even with optimum nutrition.

"For a long time it was assumed that nutrition was the only factor in producing spike bucks," Harmel observed, "but now we can see that while nutrition is the underlying cause, genetics also play an important role in perpetuating the presence of undersized, spike-antlered bucks in a herd."

Even in the face of these findings, spike bucks still are protected by law in some Texas counties. Spikes are protected in counties not under the department's regulatory authority (game laws set by the Legislature), and in five counties whose commissioners' courts voted to disapprove department recommendations to remove deferential protection from spike bucks. The are Kerr, Kendall, Comal, Medina and Real.

Harmel said the continued protection of spike bucks can be compared to removing the best bulls from a herd of cattle, leaving the genetically inferior bulls to perpetuate the herd.

"I would advise hunters and landowners to harvest spike bucks in counties where they may legally be taken, especially in areas where healthy, trophy-type bucks are in short supply," Harmel said. "This would put some venison in the freezer, and also be beneficial to the deer herd."

Chain Saw Is Dangerous Power Tool

COLLEGE STATION -- Buzzing sounds of chain saws at work fill the air this time of year -- sounds that can signal impending danger.

"A chain saw is one of the most potentially dangerous power tools on the market today," points out Dr. Gary Nelson, safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "Individuals using lightweight chain saws for trimming trees, cutting firewood or clearing land should be aware of hazards associated with their use."

Each year some 23,000 persons require hospital emergency room treatment for chain saw injuries, Nelson points out. Two of every three chain saw injuries to operators and bystanders are caused by inadvertent direct contact with the chain saw blade due to a failure to follow recommended operating procedures.

Chain saw accidents occur in many different ways. For instance, an operator may reach across or hold work too near the moving saw. Or he may lose control of the saw through loss of footing, sudden turns, climbing above ground level, shifting of the saw's weight while cutting at or above waist level, or through chain saw "kickback."

"Kickbacks can occur when something touches the top of the saw blade, causing the saw to jump or kick back at the operator," explains Nelson. "Kickbacks may also occur when the chain is misfitted or loose, when a cut is started too slowly, or when the blade nose strikes another object."

In addition, if the bumper at the rear end of the blade is not against the wood being cut, the chain riding across the wood may jerk the saw forward and out of the operator's hands.

According to the engineer, protective equipment is important to safe operation of a chain saw. He suggests protecting the eyes, head, ears, feet and hands from injury by wearing protective eyewear, a bump cap, heavy shoes and light, non-slip gloves. Ear protectors are also a good investment for prolonged use of a chain saw.

Another key step in chain saw safety is to keep the saw in good working order," emphasizes Nelson. "This includes sharp saw teeth, chain tension, proper lubrication and a properly tuned engine."

As a minimum precaution, study and understand the owner's manual before making the first cut, add the engineer.

Fires Can Be Beneficial

For more than a century, fire has been used for beneficial purposes.

Indians discovered that it improved hunting and access to the forest. Farmers used fire to help clear brush and grasses prior to cultivating. Ranchers burned pastures annually to produce better forage for grazing. Often these planned fires got out-of-hand causing more damage than good.

Burning spring pastures, crop rubble, dead brush, and accumulated trash are still annual traditions in rural Texas. These practices also are the cause of 60 percent of reported wildfires in Texas. Fire is still used in the forests, but in a more scientific manner than the Indians did.

Foresters call it "prescribed burning." According to the Texas Forest Service, it's an art and a science like other forest management techniques. The official definition is: "Fire applied in a skillful manner, under exacting conditions of weather, to fuel of the forest, in a definite place, for a specific purpose."

Environmental conditions -- temperature, wind speed, relative humidity and fuel moisture -- must be just right. If only one condition is wrong, a beneficial fire can become a destructive wildfire.

Used correctly, professional foresters claim it's one of the most effective and inexpensive forest management tools available to improve the growth and potential of a forested area.

A prescribed fire reduces the hazard of potential wildfire by eliminating the build-up of forest fuels (leaves, grasses, branches and brush). It also controls undesirable hardwoods and brush that compete with high-value pine trees for nutrients, moisture and sunlight.

Fire also is used to prepare a site for tree planting or for natural reforestation. Compared with mechanical clearing, fire is cheaper and less damaging to the environment. Fire is a tool for managing wildlife habitat. Prescribed and done under the right conditions and administered by trained specialists, fire can increase the growth

Hunters' Alert To Fire Danger

State forestry personnel are concerned about the number of hunters who will be in the woods during deer season.

According to Bruce Miles, acting director of the Texas Forest Service, large numbers of hunters in the woods create potential problems for service fire-fighting personnel.

"While fire danger levels are not extremely high the combination of drying vegetation and large numbers of people in the woods will create a very real hazard," Miles said. "The forested areas are still suffering from the drought this fall.

Chilly mornings may prompt hunters to build campfires and warming fires which, if abandoned in the excitement of the hunt, could spread rapidly out of control. Smoking materials carelessly disposed could also start wildfires.

"Since the Texas Forest Service crews are responsible for fighting wildfires in the forest regions of East Texas, anything that increases the chance of a wildfire concerns us," Miles said.

"We hope hunters have a successful hunt, but urge them to be extremely careful with fire—and firearms."

CONTEST WINNER--Mrs. R.M. Melancon of Spurger was the lucky winner of The Tyler County Booster Pigskin Pick Football Contest. Clean Up TV

During the past few months a massive nation wide "Clean Up Television" Campaign has been initiated by thousands of churches from every state in the Union and is now spreading rapidly across the nation. Every morality decent person is doing their part to take part.

This effort is based upon the conclusion that something simply must be done to curb the alarming increase in sex immorality and sexual perversion now being staged on television.

The purpose of the Campaign is not to take programs off the air, but to prove that they have demonstrated that they are no longer sensitive to decency and response without even our young people. Specifically, companies are being asked to refrain to sponsor programs which depict scenes of adultery, sexual perversion, or sexual or which treat immorality in a jaunty or otherwise favorable light. Congress is also being expressed regarding excessive violence and profanity.

The Campaign has attracted great attention. Within only the months over 8,000 churches and nearly half a million people from a wide variety of backgrounds have already definitely agreed to take part and the list is growing daily. The total potential number is beyond the imagination.

Almost all of the companies who sponsor offensive material depend heavily upon millions of decent people to buy their products. Our money is their used by these companies to sponsor programs of a sensitive and very mature character. The fact that millions of God fearing decent people care no about such immoral productions is therefore of sheer nonsense.

All that is needed to be effective is for all of us nation wide to massively refuse to buy the products of the same specific sponsors at the same time they are creating a graphic nationwide realization that we are opposed to such immoral broadcasting. This is clearly not censorship but simply responsible action since companies remain free to sponsor any programs they choose. We are simply complaining our own money.

If you are concerned about the future of our young people, here's how you can help: fill in the blanks below to request enough literature to give one to each adult and teenager in your family, as well as to all of your friends and church acquaintances.

If you attend any of our meetings, record permission to give a copy to every person present. These forms are provided free by participating churches. Do not be concerned about the number you will actually use. It is our earnest desire to spark an enthusiasm which will result in hundreds of thousands of others are moving in the same direction. You help is urgently needed.

SOLVING THE GARBAGE CAN PROBLEM?

Keeping flies and other savings from opening garbage cans is a problem for many of us. Cannon flaging the cans is another. The illustrations show an effective way of safeguarding the cans.

When you fit the hinged frame, the chain carries the flap shape. You could set up this arrangement either at an outdoor site where cans are regularly stored or as part of an enclosure near the curb side pickup site. It is faster than a pin, properly, you, middle, tendency, the incident with a bit of camouflage. A short length of fence matching the regular fence and parallel to it. A fence section of forty inches will take two cans. Place it twenty-four inches from the main fence, either in front or behind it. If you have no fence in front, consider planting a short hedge near the curb to hide your cans while they're awaiting pickup.

Levingston Lands $45 Million Contract

Ed Paden, President of Levingston Shipbuilding Company of Orange, Texas has announced plans to build a second Levingston Class 111-C jack-up drilling rig for Noble Drilling Corporation of Ardmore, Oklahoma. Noble Drilling, a leading domestic drilling contracting firm formed in 1921, is a wholly owned subsidiary of Noble Affiliates, Inc. In addition to the two new jack-ups on order with Levingston, Noble owns seven (7) platform rigs, three (3) shallow water mobile rigs, three (3) inland rigs and thirty four (34) land rigs.

Overall dimensions of the triangular-shaped rig are 200' x 186' x 23'. The 414' long four-chord square-truss legs allow the vessel to drill in water depths of 300' and to a maximum well depth of 25,000 feet.

Design criteria of the cantilevered unit make it capable of operating under the harshest weather conditions. The unnamed jack-up will be able to withstand winds of up to 109 knots and seas of 50 feet. Accommodations will be provided for a crew of [illegible]

"This is the fifth in a series of jack-up rigs to be built at Levingston. They provide further continuity in our plan to equally divide yard efforts between conventional shipbuilding and offshore projects. We at Levingston are optimistic about additional offshore business as well as continuation of our successful bulk carrier program," said Paden.

The approximate cost of this rig is $45 million. Completion is scheduled for December, 1982.

BAGS A BUCK--Wanda Clamon of Woodville is shown with her nine point buck she brought down on Nov. 21. The deer had a rack spread of 18 inches.

OP-TIMISTIC FISHING--Bernice and E.L. Rawls got lucky when they hooked this 41 pound oppalousas catfish on Nov. 20 in the Neches River near Hollyfork. The Rawls' also caught a similar but larger OP when they landed a 48 pounder on Nov. 18. The second fish they caught was caught with no bait on the hook. The couple landed 110 pounds in three days' time.

Buy A Texas Grown Christmas Tree

"While the supply of Texas Christmas trees is still short, more and more of them are coming on the market," points out James W. Chandler of Overton, area forester with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "Some 30,000 should be ready for market this year," he predicts.

"There are some 225 Christmas tree growers in Texas at present with about 1,350 acres in production. At 900 to 1,000 trees per acre, that's more than a million trees," he says.

Most trees are being grown in East Texas and are Virginia pines, notes Chandler. A few tree farms are also being established in central and western areas with the variety Pinus eldarica which is more tempered to drought conditions.

According to the forester, many trees were lost to drought this past summer, even when intensive management was carried out.

"Christmas tree plantations need plenty of care and management," emphasizes Chandler. "Trees usually reach market size in three to five years and may be sold wholesale to civic groups and other retail outlets or on a choose-and-cut basis."

Texas-grown Christmas trees offer a lot of advantages over those shipped in from the Great Lake States and the Pacific Northwest, says the forester. These advantages are mainly freshness, fragrance and novelty. Most trees shipped to Texas have to be cut about two months earlier while Texas trees can be cut only a short time before being offered for sale.

"Some 5 million Christmas trees are sold in Texas each year," says Chandler. "This represents more than $50 million in sales. As Texas production increases, Texas-grown trees will take a larger portion of these sales."

LU Receives Grant

BEAUMONT — A $103,000 federal grant has been awarded to Lamar University's special services program to aid a maximum of 300 economically and educationally disadvantaged students.

The program will concentrate on providing laboratory service in mini-courses and practice areas; mathematic courses; tutoring service; and academic load control.

The mathematic courses will be designed to address basic math skills beyond current remedial math programs at Lamar; the tutoring service will provide required assistance in specific problem areas; the academic load control project is designed to insure students from becoming inundated with courses that require skills not yet required; and laboratory service will include reading to help diagnose problems and improve the ability to a competitive level.
