Read Is Candidate

The following is a statement of candidacy.

"I, Ben Read am announcing for re-election to the Warren School Board position 5.

"I am a 25 year resident of the district. I have two children who have graduated from Warren High School and have one son and one daughter presently attending Warren schools.

"My foremost concern is for the children of the Warren School District. The students need a quality education, but at the same time the taxpayers need to know that their money and interests are being properly taken care of. The school board must act responsibly in dealin with all problems, both educational and financially, in order to provide for each and every student.

"Our schools are in a period of very changing times and I feel that my past experience on the board can help me deal with the complex issues facing our schools. Our public school, like any other business, can always improve. The Warren School District has some problems but it also has many positive aspects. By working together we can provide our children with the education they are entitled to.

"Your vote and support on May 5 will be appreciated."

Ben Read

Adams In Race

The following is a statement of candidacy.

"I, Larry Adams, would like to announce my candidacy for re-election to the Spurger School District Board of Trustees, Position #1.

"I am employed by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company with 17 years experience as an installer/repairman. My wife, Kay, and I, have lived in the Spurger School District for 14 years. We are the parents of three children who attend Spurger Schools. I have been involved with Little League and Litte Dribblers in the Spurger area for several years, and am currently coach of the Senior League Baseball Team

"I have served on the Spurger School Board for two years. I believe that the student's best interest should always be first and foremost in any decision made by the School Board. In spite of the changes mandated by the state, most of which are not funded, I feel that our district is one we can be proud of. I believe we provide a high quality education for the children in this school district because of the dedicated staff of teachers and administrators in the Spurger School system.

"I would like to continue to serve on the Spurger School Board and ask for your support and vote on May 5."

Larry Adams

Woodville Elementary Receives Trees

The Woodville City Tree Board, with assistance from the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, the Texas Forestry Service, Champion International, and Kirby/L.P. hosted an Arbor Day celebration in Woodville. Arbor Day began in Nebraska in 1872. Many states since then have celebrated Arbor Day at different times. This year, Arbor Day in Texas was celebrated on April 27. In honor of Arbor Day, two types of trees, the green ash and the yellow poplar, were given to the elementary students and staff to plant. Bob Armentrout, Tyler County Extension Agent, personally presented the trees with a note about Arbor Day and instruction for planting. This experience for elementary students stimulated much interest in trees and their environmental function. Planting trees to replenish air for human basic needs is an activity promoting the children's participation in the community - "Clean and Green" project. This is just one of the activities planned for the elementary students in meeting objectives as stated in a sequential curriculum covering the behavioral aspects of waste management.

'The Miracle Of Megan'

ODYSSEY BEGINS-Megan Elaine Hatton, 7 lbs., 12 oz. full term baby was born March 5, 1990, at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Beaumont, Tx. Megan was born with premature underdeveloped lungs.

Everyday in Warren, I pass a neat little tan aluminum siding house with dark brown trim. One day early in March a large artistically done cardboard sign attached to the banister caught my eye.. I slowed my car and read, "It's a girl! Megan Elaine--7 lbs. 12 oz."

I thought how very special this baby must be to this family.

Several days later, a small sign appeared on the front porch wall. And a few days later a neatly tied yellow ribbon graced the trunk of the tree between the driveway and the front porch. Several days following this, ribbons, bows, and other arrangements fluttered from every tree in the yard and one from the pillar on the front porch. Week later a large sign, "Welcome Home Hattons. Love the Bethel Youth Group" joined the others.

My curiosity got the best of me. I had to know about this special baby and the special family it belonged to. Little did I know, at the time, how very special and how very blessed was this baby, the family and all involved in the drama.

This courageous baby was fighting for its life and help was reaching it in every way possible from the skills of the medical profession to the prayers, the thoughts and yes, the acts of love in the form of making and hanging signs to the tying of yellow ribbons in the trees and on the baby's home. This baby just had to come home. And it did--miraculously healthy!

Megan Elaine Hatton daughter of Robby and Daphane Hatton was born March 5, 1990 at 7:51 a.m. at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Beaumont, Texas a seven pound 12 ounce baby being full term baby delivered by Cesarean section. Reason for the Cesarean section: The Hatton's first child, Ashley age two years and 10 months, had been a baby in distress and was delivered in this manner.

Minutes after Megan's birth, the doctor in charge realized something was wrong. Megan was gasping for breath. She was taken immediately to the hospital's Neonatal Intensive Care Unit where the Neonatal I.C.U. staff thought she would be all right. They thought she just had fluid on her lungs. However at 1:00 p.m., the doctors told Robby and Daphne that Megan had not improved. Her vital signs were all right but she was still gasping for air. Chest X-rays revealed no fluid on her lungs. She had stiff lungs--underdeveloped lungs that just were not working. The doctors described Megan's lungs as those of a six week or earlier premature baby.

One of Megan's attendants was her aunt, Robby's sister, Susie Tarver, a respiratory therapist, who works in the Neonatal I.C.U. at St. Elizabeth's. Never did Susie dream that one day she would be trying desperately to pull her own niece through.

According to all of Megan's doctors, Megan is a text book case. She is the first full term baby, this size, to be born with premature lungs.

At 10:00 p.m., the doctors advised Robby to send Megan to Hermann Hospital in Houston as Megan's condition was deteriorating and Hermann Hospital had more advanced equipment.

Robby didn't hesitate. He told the doctors, "Send her!"

There was a thread of hope: Megan had a strong heart--but her lung condition grew worse by the hour.

At 5:00 a.m. on March 6, a Hermann Hospital overland ambulance arrived with a special team of a male paramedic and a female M.D., both specialists in this field. Airlifting Megan would have been impossible due to inclement weather. The Hermann staff advised against the airlift as it would have been bumpy, hampering Megan's chances of survival even further.

The St. Elizabeth doctors and the team from Hermann didn't think Megan would survive the trip. Robby had not realized this and Daphne had never seen her baby. The young mother lay in her hospital room recovering from surgery.

The Herman M.D. had with her a little one step camera and, while in the Emergency Room, prior to their 6:00 a.m. departure, she asked Robby if he would like for her to take a picture of Megan. In the event Megan did not survive the trip, he and Daphne would have a photo to remember her by. He said, "Yes." She snapped two photos and gave them to Robby.

Immediately prior to Megan's departure, Daphne was wheeled down to the Neonatal I.C.U. where she saw her infant daughter in the travelling incubator. It was at this point that Robby and Daphne realized this may be the last time they would see Megan.

The Rev. Larry Shine, pastor of Bethel Baptist Church in Warren, where Robby and Daphne attend church, was at the Neonatal I.C.U. as was Wilburn Hatton, Robby's Dad. The senior Hatton led the group in prayer for strength for Megan's welfare. Following his prayer for Megan, Hatton prayed again. Robby realized, through his Dad's prayer, that they were at the point the doctors had done everything they could do. He and Daphne and the entire group wanted God to take charge because as Robby said, "That's where miracles take charge."

Robby said of his Dad, "He's not a preacher. He's one of the strongest Christians in the role model for a Christian Daddy and husband and a pillar of strength through all of this."

by

Patsy Duke

Robby drew strength from his Dad just talking to him--seeing him and because of his Dad's faith in God--father and son trading scriptures in time of crisis.

At 9:30 a.m., the Hermann team called. They were in Houston and Megan was stabilized. A great relief came over the young parents.

For awhile Rev. Shine stayed at St. Elizabeth's with Robby and Daphne, then drove Robby to Houston.

At the Hermann Neonatal I.C.U., a doctor met Robby and told him they had done all they could do. Megan again had begun to deteriorate.

This was the first time Robby had heard of the Extra Corporeal Membrane Oxygenation (ECMO) system. "Three years ago," doctors told Robby, "ECMO was not in use in this part of the country. This option was simply not available."

Megan was the 36th baby to go through it and the first full term baby ever to go through it. Her survival chances on the ECMO system, the doctors told Robby were 80 percent. Without it 0 percent.

"If a baby on the machine doesn't respond by the 10th day," they told him, "it will not respond." ECMO in laymen's terms: two tubes are inserted into the baby's veins at the neck and go to the heart. One tube carries blood into the baby's heart. The other carries blood out. The machine purifies the oxygen hen sends it back to the baby. "The process," the doctors told Robby, "does the work of the heart and gives the lungs a chance to develop."

"What it amounts to," Robby said, "is they put the baby back into the womb until the lungs can develop."

Megan was immediately airlifted to John Sealy-University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston. Before take off, the Hermann doctors told Robby (and Daphne by phone) that Megan might not make the trip, but that she was fighting for everything she could. St. Elizabeth's doctors and those in Hermann told Robby and Daphne, "It's in God's hands." They told the parents that nothing could be done for Megan in flight except to be there with her and hope.

That night Robby went back to St. Elizabeth's to be with Daphne. The worried family had been up all day Monday, Monday night and all day Tuesday. They were exhausted.

Tuesday night Bethel Baptist Church in Warren was going into Revival. One of Robby's and Daphne's friends from the church called to see if they needed anything. Daphne replied, "We need rest--all of us!"

Word was taken back to the Revival and the congregation prayed.

"Everyone in the family, wherever they were--in Beaumont, Warren, Friendswood--all slept soundly," Daphne said, "and waked rested," Robby added. "We were ready to go to war! That little girl had been fighting all the time and we had to be strong for her."

Early Wednesday morning, Robby drove to Galveston accompanied by his Dad, his brother, Ricky Hatton and Robby's brother-in-law, John Tarver.

Robby walded into the John Sealy U.T.M.B. Neonatal I.C.U. and there lying on the table was Megan with the machine hooked up to her.

Robby said, "When I first saw Megan, I didn't see the machine. There were angels around the table. At that point, I was not scared," he said, "I knew God was with her."

"I did not see an angel there," Robby said, "but I sensed their presence."

Robby later related his experience to the ECMO doctors:

On March 9, Daphne went to see Megan. Visits were limited to five minutes at a time.

"After I saw my baby," Daphne said, "I knew she would be O.K.!"

Megan had 25 specialist assigned to her. "Everybody who worked on her was on the ECMO team," Daphne said.

"IV's, monitors, tubes, and wires were attached to Megan's neck, her arms, legs, her head and a respirator completely filled her mouth. She was crying hard," Daphne said, "but no sound was coming out of her mouth."

Twenty four hours a day two nurses worked over her constantly.

"One tended the ECMO machine," Daphne said. "The other administered medicine and dealt with catheters."

Robby and Daphne said the nurses were busy every minute.

Late Friday night Megan pulled out the ECMO tubes and beginning Saturday at 3:00a.m., for two hours, she underwent surgery to reattach them.

The ECMO doctors explained that the machine was designed for very premature babies. Megan was a full term baby and physically stronger than any who had previously been on the machine. Megan was then put under heavier sedation.

Sunday at midnight the ECMO machine went out and had to be replaced.

After these two setbacks were hurdled, every day Megan's condition improved--slowly but steadily. The doctors told the baby's parents they considered this miraculous because most babies go up and down."

On March 12, en rounte to Galveston, Robby and Daphne picked up Ashley who had been staying in Beaumont with Robby's sister and brother-in-law, Susie and John Tarver and their children, Seth and Zane, ages five and two.

In Baytown, the family stopped to eat and to call the Galveston hospital for an update on Megan's condition.

They were told by one of the ECMO team that Megan had been taken off the machine for 15 minutes but she had been put back on it because they didn't like the way she responded.

Robby and Daphne drove to John Sealy-U.T.M.B. in Galveston, but Ashley spent the night with Daphne's parents, Ed and Audrey Chamrad, who live in Friendswood near NASA.

When Robby and Daphne arrived at the Neonatal I.C.U., the ECMO was gone. Megan was lying there--breathing!

"The doctors determined that Megan needed to be off the machine," Robby said, "and at that point, she began to improve drastically."

Megan spent the first three and one half weeks of her life in hospitals. She was two weeks old when her big sister, Ashley, was taken to see her.

On Thursday March 29, Robby and Daphne brought Megan home.

On Sunday they took her to church and dedicated her.

Tears came to Robby's and Daphne's eyes as they related the event. Following the service, the congregation held a reception in the Fellowship Hall--a surprise pounding party and "money tree."

"The Bethel Revival began the evening of March 5," Daphne said "the day Megan was born."

During the entire revival, everyone prayed for her. One of Daphne's and Robby's friends told them, "It was the strongest revival I've ever been in. Everybody was praying for Megan and seeing how God was touching the family--and the entire community."

"Special prayers were being said for Megan in Warren, Beaumont, Kountze, Silsbee, Port Arthur, Woodville--and those are just the churches we know about!" Daphne said.

"The day Megan was born," Daphne said, "a lady from Bethel Church who I didn't even know, stayed with me all day. Every time I woke up, she was beside my bed holding my hand. And the night Megan was shipped to Houston, my nurse was a tower to strength."

Prayer chains and Prayer groups in Dallas and the entire east side of Texas prayed for Megan.

"Through their prayers," Daphne said, "and God's mercy, Robby added, "we have our baby back."

Robby and Daphne expressed the desire to thank everyone for their prayers and their acts of kindness.

Robby is Head Baseball Coach and Assistant Football Coach at Warren High School. Until three years ago when Ashley was born, Daphne was the school's Computer Science teacher. It was at this time the Hattons decided to change Daphne's career to that of full time mother.

"Every day during Megan's crisis," Robby said, "the school published updates on Megan's condition. Cards poured into our family, giving us moral support."

"We couldn't have picked a better town to live in," Daphne said. "I feel closer to the entire community. They provided for our every need."

The three signs and the yellow ribbons that attracted my attention:

Robby's Dad made the first sign the day Megan was born as a means of communicating to family and friends that the new leaf on the family tree had arrived. He thought this would be a unique announcement and would save numerous telephone calls.

The small sign on the front porch was made by Bethel's "Mother's Day Out" group and contained the names of all the four and five year olds that Daphne and her helpers keep each week when they give other mothers "A Day Out".

The "Welcome Home Hattons" sign was made by the Bethel Youth Group the day the family arrived home with Megan.

The yellow ribbons--remember the old Tony Orlando song "Tie a Yellow Ribbon Round The Old Oak Tree"? Robby's brother, Ricky, tied all these as a positive gesture toward Megan's hoped for health and her return.

Robby was calm and deliberate as he related the story. The words tumbled from Daphne's lips as she held her healthy baby, patted its back and told of the emotional pain and triumph the entire communities had gone through.

Ashley played with her toys on the floor, secure in her family and oblivious to the miracles that had taken place except for the fact she now has the baby sister that, for two long weeks, she only heard about.

NOTICE OF FILING OF PETITION AND STATEMENT OF INTENT FOR A CHANGE IN WHOLESALE ELECTRIC SERVICE RATES

Sam Rayburn G&T Electric Cooperative, Inc. ("SRG&T"), on the 16th day of March, 1990, and pursuant to Section 43 (a) of the Public Utility Regulatory Act (Article 1446c, V.A.C.S.), filed a "Petition for Authority and Statement of Intent to Change Rates". Copies of the proposed revised tariffs and schedules, supporting testimony and other pertinent data, may be inspected at the office of SRG&T, located at 2905 Westward Drive, Nacogdoches, Texas 75961, and the offices of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. The filing has been assigned Docket #9447. SRG&T seeks a permanent rate adjustment to the wholesale rates charged to its member cooperatives, Houston County Electric Cooperative, Jasper-Newton Electric Cooperative, and Sam Houston Electric Cooperative. The rate adjustment will result in an increase over adjusted test year revenues of $4,935,550 or 11.5%. However, the rate adjustment will maintain power costs at current levels. SRG&T's permanent rate change request is related to changes in the cost of service resulting from a purchase of a 7% undivided ownership share in the Big Cajun No.II, Unit 1 (Cajun Unit) coal generating unit. This unit will be jointly owned with Cajun Electric Power Cooperative, Inc. (CEPCO). The permanent rates are proposed to become effective 35 days after filing. However, the rates are proposed to be implemented on the same day that SRG&T closes on the purchase of the Cajun Unit. The closing is currently scheduled for May 29, 1990. At the present time, SRG&T is purchasing an equivalent amount of capacity and energy from CEPCO (Firm Power Purchase) and the costs of the purchase are being recovered through existing rates through the purchased power cost recovery mechanism. When SRG&T generates more of its power requirements, it substitutes the power it is generating for the power that previously had been purchased from other utilities and paid for through a purchased power cost recovery provision. The reduction in purchased power costs is automatically flowed through the purchased power cost recovery provision, but the equivalent costs associated with the ownership and operation and maintenance of the Cajun Unit are not flowed through or recovered. For this reason, SRG&T needs rate adjustment effective as described above. SRG&T has also proposed adjustments to its economic development Contract Load Growth (CLG) rate. These proposed changes in the economic development rate are a result of changes in the terms and conditions between SRG&T and a wholesale power supplier. Generally, the proposed incentive rate is slightly lower than the present incentive rate and the availability of rate is proposed to be liberalized. The proposed change in permanent rates results in no change in the cost of power to its members on a mills/kWh or cents/kWh basis when compared to the revenues under present rates that includes a continuation of the present CEPCO Firm Power Purchase. Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene or participate, or for further information, should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by call the Public Utility Commission's Consumer Affairs Division at (512)458-0223 or (512)458-0227, or (512)458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf. Inquiries concerning this Notice should be directed to Sam Rayburn G&T Electric Cooperative, Inc., Post Office Box 631623, Nacogdoches, Texas 75963, or by tedlephoning (409)560-9532. WOODVILLE-TYLER COUNTY AMBULANCE

MEMBERS, THIS MAKES GOOD SENSE!

WOODVILLE TYLER COUNTY AMBULANCE is in the midst of their annual membership drive this month. It is only once a year that we have the opportunity to apply for this membership.

It just makes good sense to enroll for just $35.00 per year per family, before the May 31st deadline. Thoses who are non-members will have to pay the regular charges when the service is used, which averages around $200.00 per call.

With a paid membership you and your family are entitled to total emergency or transfer ambulance services within the local areas for one year.

That means to and from Tyler County, then to Beaumont, Lufkin, Livingston, Jasper or Silsbee hospitals.

Of course, all ambulance trips must be a medical necessity.

WOODVILLE TYLER COUNTY AMBULANCE is owned by Bill and Diana Cloyd who reside here in Woodville. We're just home type people who want to run a dependable service that is also an affordable service.

The excellence of WTCA has been attested to by many of the people they have aerved, including the many who credit the company with saving their lives or the lives of the ones they love.

This is achieved through their membership program.

Without their broad-based support from area subscribers throughout Tyler County, it just would not be possible.

Due to poor economy, people just cannot afford the high cost of ambulance service. And, many insurance company policies have poor coverage on charges for ambulance service.

That is why membership program was set up. It makes ambulance service affordable for you and at the same time gives us the budget we need to continue at our present rate of operation.

I also understand that this membership permits WOODVILLE-TYLER COUNTY AMBULANCE to collect directly from any third party agency whatever benefits may be available at no charge to me, and that this membership is non-refundable and non-transferable. This is not an insurance policy.

Local Kids To Present Quilt To President And Mrs. Bush

For the third year in a row, Mildred White, teacher of Texas History at Woodville Middle School, will take a group of her students to Washington D.C. the first week of June.

There they will tour the historic city along with students from all over the county who annually coverge on the nation's capitol to get a head start on the American History they will study in high school.

Exciting as this is for these Tyler County youngsters, many of whom have never been out of Texas much less flown on an airplane, this year's trip is going to be one none of them will ever forget.

Nor will Mildred, for with them they will carry a very precious cargo which they will present to President and Mrs. Bush during a special reception and tour at the White House. Arrangements for the occasion were made by Woodville's Don Forse, a personal friend of the Bushes.

The gift Mildred and her group will present to the Bushes is a queen size quilt, each square of which has been embroidered with a Texas Wildflower, the name of the flower and the name of the student or other person who embroidered it. Mary Ann Sheffield of Spurger, a member of the Board of Directors of the Tyler County Heritage Society, is quilting the piece and will add her name to the back, when it is finished. What a thrill for all concerned.

Those who remember the beautiful Texas Wildflower quilt Mildred's students made a few years ago which won many honors in local and regional fairs, will know what a treasure this gift is.

Accompanying Mildred and her students on the trip will be her daughter, Laurie White, and Laurie's roommate, JUDGE HONORED—Diboll ISD students visiting Heritage Village last week to listen to some of Judge T.E. Phillips tales of the West also helped him celebrate his 88th birthday with a surprise cake and song.

Diboll Kids Help Judge Celebrate

By Dottie Johnson

The Official Magistrate of Heritage Village, Judge T.E. Phillips, had a surprise last week when 200 schoolchildren from Diboll showed up to sing Happy Birthday to him.

The venerable Judge, complete with tophat, thought he was just going to be asked to tell the kids one of his wild west tales about the Border Patrol in the 1930's. He loves children and always comes out for these special tours to tell a tale or two.

There he was in his tall black hat, ready to greet the children, who came in through the big gate. And there they were, 200 of them, surprising him with a rousing rendition of Happy Birthday as Ofeira presented him with a huge birthday cake in celebration of his 88th birthday the day before. And, yes, he was truly surprised. The Judge's wife, Bobbie, was on hand and helped us serve cake to all the kids along with refreshing glasses of orangeade, donated by our good neighbors over at McDonalds. Thanks much, folks.

All in all in was a great day and everyone seemed to have a good time. And like the good host he is, Don Crain moved the youngsters in groups through the Pickett House to enjoy a hearty noon meal of fried chicken and the works.

A number of teachers talked about wanting to return for special events at the Village, such as our historic outdoor drama in June and the Harvest Festival in October. And one teacher mentioned that her group had just finished studying Texas History. "Next year, I'm going to bring them here first," she said.

All of which brings us back full circle to what we keeping repeating. Heritage Village Museum is an education that we have the privilege of sharing with folks from all over the state, all over the world, and we should all be proud.

And, once more about the Judge, let's give him some special kudos too for being such a great ambassador for the Village. This man travels to school and church and special groups all around the county to tell them about some of his experiences. Just the other night, he went down to Wildwood to talk to a Senior Citizens group about his counter espionage days during World War II.

As usual, he captivated his audience

TWO HUNDRED STRONG—Diboll kids flooded into the Village last week.

and left them wanting more. And you know what he told them? The same thing he always tells his audience before he leaves. "If you want to know more, come to Heritage Village Museum."

Marjorie Gets Credit

With Heritage Village manager Marjorie Schultz gone these past two weeks on a well deserved vacation, it gives me the opportunity to pass some special kudos her way. They come from Howard Rosser, Executive Director of the East Texas Tourism Association in Longview.

Marjorie was on a panel during the recent ETTA Tourist Conference in Marshall which was attended by Tour Directors from a wide area. In expressing his thanks, Howard wrote "Your role was played to perfection. You added much to the professional knowledge of our attendees as you addressed the role of the museum director in the group travel industry."

And, of course, we all know that is one of the things Marjorie does best: telling the story of Heritage Village Museum and Tyler County and all they have to offer in the way of historic tourism.

And, while we're passing out the kudos, enough can't be said about the beautiful way Ofeira Gazzaway handled the 200 kids and teachers from Diboll who toured the Village last week. Ofeira had everything lined up and scheduled to perfection with plenty of volunteer docents to take groups of 20 about the Village in such a way that everybody got to see and hear without running into the next group.

From every adult, who accompanied the children, the word was pretty much the same. "I've never seen anything so beautifully organized," was what we heard over and over, and Ofeira can take the credit for putting it together.

Docents doing the Village bit were Peggy Burton, Mary Ann Sheffield, Iris Widenfeld, Aloha Freeland, Mark Greer, Jack Whitmeyher, Keelin Parker and yours truly, while Christine Sanders took group after group hiking down the Big Woods Nature Trails. On hand to show the fifth grade students how it was done in the olden days were Herb Fouts in the Blacksmith Shop, Ewell Woods at his usual stand splitting shingles, Helen Delcambre showing her 'Apple Darlin' Dolls' and June Reid, painting dogwoods.

Logs At Village

The Crosby family log structures from Spurger, which we wrote about recently, are now a pile of logs resting at Heritage Village Museum, thanks to the efforts of Wade Wardlaw, Johnny Tucker and J.J. Brown, who dismantled the buildings in record time and hauled them to the Village, ready to be put back together.

Anyone want to give it a try?

Reunion At Village

Doris Harris of Houston brought her six best friends to the Village last weekend for their annual reunion and what a time they had.

Doris and her group have been friends since 1933, when they started first grade at Park Place Elementary School in Houston. When they graduated from Milby High School in 1945, they vowed never to lose touch with one another and they haven't. Every year during the end of April, they get together for a long a weekend and a lot of talk.

As hostess this year, Doris invited the group to spend their weekend at her log home on Lake Livingston. Their special treat was a trip to Heritage Village for a tour and lunch at the Pickett House.

Why only a weekend? we asked. We'd lose our voices, if we stayed together any longer, Doris replied.

P.I. Hunter—Early Educational Influence

Of all the dedicated teachers who have made their mark on the children of Tyler County since they were first listed in the census of 1850, there are a few who have become legendary.

One of those teachers was P.I. Hunter, about whom Phebe Armstrong wrote in "From The Forks of Turkey Creek." She called him an 'educator' in the finest sense of the word. "He was brilliant," she wrote, "almost to the point of genius– driving himself and everbody else and completely dedicated to improving the quality of education and the Woodville Schools."

Phebe was in the 7th grade, when she took her first English class under P.I. Hunter, who was also Superintendent of Schools. Later, in high school, the became his secretary as well as his student. In her book, Phebe quoted her father as saying "the history of any town is the story of the people who have lived there." And so it was with Mr. Hunter. He was a character of sorts. But he taught her well.

However, Woodville was not Mr. Hunter's first stop in Tyler County. According to Idia McClain, who taught at Spurger for 44 of her 50 teaching years, P.I. Hunter came to Spurger in 1892 to take charge of a one-room school. He was probably the only teacher in the county to have a degree at that time, she said. According to Phebe, he had a Master's degree from the University of North Carolina and at one time was offered a chair in English at Stephen F. Austin.

It is interesting to note that in 1895, Mr. Hunter was paid $35 a month for a five month term. In 1897, when the Spurger School opened for only four months, he received $75.

As Miss McClain wrote in "Spurger Area 1839-1976," published by the Beech Creek Home Demonstration Club, "in the span of time that Professor Hunter was director, the Spurger School was considered the best in the territory. Students from many places came to Spurger for part of their education." Most of those who did so came to the Sumner Normal School to prepare for their state examination for a teachers certificate.

P.I. Hunter was one of the first teachers in this area who made a specialty of training students for this examination, which was taken over a two day period. The twelve subjects required in the examination for an elementary certificate were Arithmetic, Reading, United States History, Spelling, School Management, Descriptive Geography, School Law, the Constitution, Physiology and Hygiene, Writing, Texas History and English Grammar. A prospective teacher was also required to pass two of the following optional subjects: Agriculture, Elementary Composition, Music or Drawing.

To get a second class High School Certificate, Higher English Composition, Psychology and Civil Government were added to the required list with four options from a list of seven. They were Plane Geometry, Algebra, Botany, Ancient History, Modern History, Physical Geography and American Literature.

By the time Idia McClain went to school to Professor Hunter, the Spurger School had two rooms, one of which housed the fifth and sixth grades with Hunter as their teacher.

Moving On To Woodville

Mr. Eastman was the Superintendent of Schools in Woodville before Professor Hunter came along. As Phebe Armstrong wrote, "most didn't know a change was coming until they saw Mr. Eastman showing Mr. Hunter about the school. When they heard the two spouting Latin at each other, they knew something was about to happen. And they knew the new superintendent wasn't gong to be any pushover."

"While he could frighten kids out of their skins, when he waggled his ears at them, he could be as gentle as a mother when he was explaining something difficult to a child who was really trying to learn."

The year was 1920, 28 years after he had come to Tyler County. His first goal in Woodville was to get the school accredited. Once that was accomplished, he worked at consolitating all the rural schools in his district. That was done in 1926.

Phebe Armstrong graduated from high school in 1927 and went on to the University of Texas, where one of her favorite P.I. Hunter memories ocurred. She was in an American Literature class taught by a Dr. Payne, who had authored the textbook they used. When assigned a piece of poetry to scan, Phebe did it the way she had learned from Mr. Hunter rather than the way Dr. Payne had shown them. After giving her an A, much to the consternation of a fellow student who had followed his teachings to a T, Dr. Payne asked Phebe to teach him how to do it "Mr. Hunter's way." And she did.

"Mr. Hunter was a perfectionist," Phebe Armstrong wrote, "and he demanded perfection of others. If he didn't like the way a text book was written, he dictated his own. Notebooks were filled with his lessons that always made more sense. Those who stuck it out to the end had a diploma to be proud of. And those who went on to college would soon learn that there wasn't much they would study there that they hadn't already heard about from P.I. Hunter.

Roping Turkeys On Horseback

by T. E. Phillips

EDITOR's NOTE: T. E. Phillips's career with the U. S. Border Patrol spanned the years of World War II. Often, during our conversations, he has mentioned that during that period he was engaged in counter-espionage for the United States Government. As fascinating as his Border Patrol stories are, we wanted to know about this other part of his early career. In the following, he gives us the first taste of those times.

I have always loved horses, but I've only owned two in my life.

The first horse I had any contact with was an old dun mare named Molly. I don't know where my dad got her or why he kept her. She was so old and sway backed she was completely useless for farm work.

At that time, something over 80 years ago, we lived on the old Livingston Highway, just west of Little Turkey Creek. In fact, the creek was the eastern boundary of our place. As I remember, we had some 375 acres under fence. Some of that acreage included the land now occupied by Heritage Village Museum where I spend a great deal of time greeting visitors and telling them about my days in the Border Patrol.

Across the highway in front of our house there was a field of about 20 acres with a rail fence around it. We had our corn and black eyed pea farm there.

My dad's main interest was hog raising. Several were kept in pens, but the ones raised for meat were allowed to run loose and fatten on acorns and beech mast. My part of the work was to ride Molly after she had been loaded with four sacks of corn to feed the hogs that were loose. We made the trip about once a week. Usually, the hogs stayed near the same place, the biggest bunch south of the highway on Little Cypress Creek.

All of our hogs were ear marked. Our mark was a crop and an under bit in the right ear. While the hogs were eating the corn, I would ride Molly through them and look for any that were not ear marked. We always had "Ring" with us. He was a good hog dog. If I found a hog without the ear mark, it was usually marked when we left.

Another of my jobs at this young age was to ride the mile or so into Woodville after the mail. At that time, the Post Office was located in the small wooden building that now houses the Mann Furniture Sleep Shop, right across from Sullivan's Hardware.

I couldn't use a bridle when I went to the Post Office as Molly would rake a bridle off and head for home. Instead I used a long rope. That way I could go into the post office and get to the window without turning her loose. Once I got the mail, all I had to do was go back out on the porch, slip onto Molly's back and go home.

I will never forget Molly. I must have been about five years old when I started riding her. She had a long mane I could hold on to as I climbed up on her back and she would put her head down so I could put the rope over it. I didn't really need a bridle as she usually went where she wanted. I don't ever remember Molly being in a hurry.

Horses On The Border

My second contact with horses came about after I entered the U. S. Border Patrol.

In the Patrol, we used to go to the ranches and ride with the cowboys, looking for signs of aliens or smugglers. It was an established custom that if I did not ride with the cowboys and help them work cattle in the morning, they wouldn't ride to the chuck-wagon with me. So I always helped them out. In the afternoon I would ride to the windmills and scout for signs of illegal activity.

In those days, there was plenty of deer and turkey on the ranches. Nearly every time I worked with the cowboys they would run a big buck by me and want me to rope it. Although I would chase the deer, I never did try to rope one. I was afraid I couldn't get the rope off after I caught it.

One day a cowboy came into camp with a turkey he had caught with his rope. He told me turkeys would get in the sand dunes and cover themselves up, leaving only their heads out. They did this, he said, to kill ticks and fleas. After checking it out, I decided I wanted to try roping one, so whenever the cowboys found a bunch of turkeys in the sand, they'd come get me and watch me try to rope one.

Now, a turkey has to run a short distance before it can fly, so I figured that with a fast horse, one could ride up close to the turkey and before it could get out of the sand and take off, you could be on top of it. After several tries I finally got the horse right in among the turkeys. Trouble was there was a turkey right under the horse's belly, and the horse didn't like that one bit. After I got up off the ground, I decided I'd never try to rope a turkey again.

The cowboys had a lot of fun with me, but they taught me how to ride a horse and how to care for it.

Never A Foreman

One time my Senior Patrol Inspector took me on a three or four day trip to the Armstrong Ranch to scout the country. The ranch is about twenty miles north of Raymondville, surrounded by King Ranch. We arrived in the afternoon at one of the small ranch houses where the cowboys were working and living. After supper, they entertained us with a lot of cowboy tales, all in Spanish, which I really enjoyed.

The next morning I rode out to some windmills scouting for signs and returned in time for dinner. All that afternoon, the ranch foreman had me trying to rope a post in the yard. My horse was a real good cow pony and when I threw my rope the horse would stop. One time I got interested in trying to turn and throw the rope behind me. Well, I threw the rope all right, and the horse stopped, but I didn't.

After seeing that, the forman told me he had a special job for me. The next morning, after the cowboys had been given their assignements, the foreman told me to go to the corral and pick out a horse for the day. There were twenty or more horses there, and as I entered the corral with my rope, I watched the two cowboys, who had been sent with me, to see how they thught their horses. I had only walked a few steps inside the gate, when a beautiful big bay with a blaze face and two white stocking legs came up to me. He wanted to be petted. So I put my rope over his head and led him out of the corral just as the foreman and my Senior came out. No one told me I had selected the foreman's personal horse, at least not until after the foreman had given me his saddle and helped me put it on. Then he told me that since I had his horse I could take his place on the work detail.

The two cowboys and I rode about four miles to a spot where a big brahma bull had decided to change pastures. He had jumped the fence, catching one of his hind legs in the top wire. His leg was really bad. He couldn't run very fast and then only for a short distance. By the time we got there he was ready to fight. The cowboys told me to ride up as close to the bull as I could and turn my horse's head away from the bull. When the bull charged, I was to turn and rope the bull and let the horse outrun him. I didn't do any good at that because my rope wasn't long enough, so the cowboys roped him by the horns. Then I was able to get close enough to rope his hind foot.

We threw the bull and tied him to fix his wound. It was infected and badly swollen. We put something that looked like black paint on his leg after the wound had been cleaned. The medicine was to keep the blow flies off.

The cowboys then told me to untie the bull. By the time I eased my rope off and he was able to get up, that was one mad bull. Right then I decided, if the cowboys wanted their rope they could get it themselves. I never worked at being a ranch foreman again.

My Last Horse

After I was shot the last time, Bobbie and I decided to retire from the Border Patrol. We lived in Falfurrias at the time, which was in the middle of ranch country. Next to the King Ranch, one of the largest was the Garcia Ranch, owned by Elegio Garcia. I was standing next to Elegio, when his 96th oil well was brought in. He had more money than he knew what to do with. Beautiful cattle, large fishing lakes and some of the best race horses in Texas.

The morning after the doctor had pronounced me dead, Elegio was on his knees by my bed, holding my hand, waiting for me to wake up. He came as soon as he heard what the doctor had said and had been in my hosptial room most of the night praying for me. I remember him saying, "Felipe, if you just get well, you can have any horse on the ranch." I had always wanted a pretty horse, so of course I had to get well. The little mare I selected was named Chula. Another rancher gave Bobbie a little paint mare. The King Ranch even gave me a hand made saddle and bridle.

Unfortunately, that last bullet, which hit me in the right side in almost the same spot as an earlier bullet, made it impossible for me to ever ride a horse again.

Summer Rose Care Is Theme Of McFaddin-Ward Talk

BEAUMONT— During the McFaddin-Ward House's first garden session of the year, Kenny Sanderfer, who maintains the museum's rose gardens, will show home rose enthusiasts how to care for their plants during the difficult summer months when blooms, disease and insect problems are equally plentiful.

"Summer Rose Care" is scheduled for Monday, May 7, at 1 p.m. at the Visitor Center at Third and Calder. The garden session will consist of a brief slide lecture followed by a walk-around demonstration and discussion period in the rose garden.

Sanderfer will discuss disease and pest identification, control and prevention, the proper use of chemicals, summer pruning methods and proper fertilizing and watering practices.

The garden session is open to the public, and no admission fee is charged. Reservations are requested and may be made by calling 832-2134.

The Early Caddos—East Texas Mound Builders

By Anne Garner

When the early American settlers east of the Mississippi River came across thousands of huge man-made earthen humps, some forming shapes of humans or animals and others flat-topped, no one would believe the eastern Indians had crafted the stupendous mounds.

Myths grew that a great "Mound Builders" culture had preceded the Red Man's arrival in the New World. Speculations said survivors of submerged Atlantis or wandering Egyptians or Phoenicians had constructed the mounds.

Archeologists have revealed the true story, and it is as fascinating as the myths. For over 2,500 years—approximately 1,000 B.C. to 1,500 A.D.—sophisticated North American Indians, ancestors of the Creeks, Cherokees, Natchez, and Caddos, lived in thriving metropolises with populations up to 30,000. They raised mounds that rivaled Mexico's pyramids, and established a network of trade that extended from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic Ocean to the Rocky Mountains.

Mound Builders formed part of a culture that circled the Caribbean. These Mound Builders migrated to the North American east coast probably seaborne, rather than overland through Texas, according to Indian historian W. W. Newcomb, Jr. From the coast of the Gulf of Mexico, the Indians spread throughout the Mississippi River Valley.

Population increases and the need for trade probably pushed Caddo Indians into Texas over a period of several centuries, beginning as early as 200 A.D. They established the most southwestern ceremonial center of the Mound Builders known, and lived on the western fringes of the forest area of the Southern U.S.

Indians had inhabited Texas for some 11,000 years before the Caddos arrived. Paleoindians, nomadic hunters and gatherers, preceded the Caddos in East Texas about 9,000 B.C. to 6,000 B.C. Nothing much remains from their culture except projectile points and small tools. The Archaic Indian culture, which followed, flourished in East Texas from about 6,000 B.C. to 200 B.C. Archaic Indians used more advanced weapons, dart throwers called atlatls, to hurl their darts with more force and accuracy than the Paleoindian hand-held spears.

Revolutionary ideas and practices from advanced eastern cultures began to come to Texas with early Caddo migrants who wandered into the state during several centuries after 200 A.D., opening the Late Prehistoric Period of Indian history. Corn farming, pottery manufacturing, and the use of the bow and arrow changed East Texas Indians from roving hunters and gatherers to agriculturists and village dwellers.

When the Early Caddos settled in the Neches River valley, they brought other practices common to Mound Builders of the East. They continued their tradition of living in large family dwellings in permanent villages and their conspicuous custom of building large ceremonial centers and temple mounds just as their ancestors had done.

Although the size of the mounds varies, building them assuredly required prodigious labor. In order to afford the luxury of constructing them, the society had to possess sufficient wealth and a secure food supply that allowed time for people to work on the mounds. The Indians also had to have a well-developed political system that could persuade its people to build such structures and direct them in the construction.

Archeologists have divided the eleven centuries of Caddoan culture into three major periods: Early Caddo [700-1300], Late Caddo [1300-1700], and Historic Caddo [1700-1850 A.D.].

East Texas Caddos belonged to a confederacy of Caddoan Indians in an area encompassing eastern Oklahoma, western Arkansas, northwestern Louisiana, and northeastern Texas. No one knows for certain how the Caddos descended from Mound Builders in the Mississippi River valley, but archeological evidence indicates that the East Texas Indians were greatly influenced by the eastern culture.

When the Caddos moved into the river valleys of East Texas, they found sandy loam soil ideal for growing crops. Abundant wild game and wild plants from the forests supplemented their food supply from farming. Springs, creeks, and nearby rivers furnished water and fish.

Using their vast trade networks, Early Caddos swapped foodstuffs and exotic goods crafted by their expert artisans for high quality stone materials which they did not have in the area. They used the raw material to make tools and weapons.

War seems to have had no significant role in Early Caddoan life. The lack of defensive fortifications indicates that the Early Caddos had five or six centuries of relative peace.

At least two classes existed in Early Caddoan culture. An "elite" ruling class controlled the functions of government and conducted religious ceremonies. A "common" or lower class produced most of the food and supplied the labor force to build mounds and temples. Some evidence suggests a small class of specialized craftsmen existed.

At Caddoan Mounds State Park near Alto, Texas, archeologists have unearthed a village that was probably typical of those scattered throughout the piney woods. The site contains two distinct areas, an "inner" village and an "outer" village. The inner village consists of two temple mounds and a burial mound. The elite class lived on and around the temple mounds. The outer village included scattered dwellings, shaded work areas, and farming plots of the common class.

Early Caddos in this village lived in round beehive-shaped houses with thatched walls and roofs. The thatch kept them cool in summer and warm in winter.

Population peaked and influence of the Caddos on the Indian cultures around them was greatest about 1100 A.D. Estimates of population are only guesswork, but it must have been considerable since mound building required a sizeable number of people.

Mounds symbolized the authority of the elite political and religious leaders. Excavations of the state park village suggest some of the ceremonial buildings were deliberately destroyed by fire and then rebuilt on top of fresh layers of dirt on the same mound. A "perpetual fire," like those common to historic groups in the 17th and 18th centuries, probably burned in one temple area.

Over a period of 400 to 500 years, the mounds rose higher and higher. Earth was mounded over burial mounds again and again to provide space for more interments. Indians carried dirt in 30 to 40-pound basketloads from quarries to building sites.

Early Caddos seemed to have had an obsessive preoccupation with honoring their dead. Exquisite artifacts found in burial mounds appear to have been included as offerings to the dead in an afterlife. Pits containing more than one person suggest sacrifice of family members or servants was a ceremonial practice among Early Caddos. Burial mounds probably were reserved for the elite class.

Success for the Caddos came partly from their ability to adapt to forest living. Their main crop, corn, grew well in East Texas soil as did beans and squash. Trees from the surrounding forests became frameworks of their dwellings and temples. They split native cane for making baskets and mats or bundled it for thatch roofs. The Indians made animals' hides into clothing. They cut leather into strips or used grapevines and young pine roots to lash together thatch. Numerous plants growing nearby were used as medicine. Bone was transformed into tools or personal jewelry such as hairpins.

Little organic material has survived from these early forest dwellers, but stone artifacts and pieces of very fine

Professor Crow—Tutor To Genius

As Heritage Village Museum dedicates the Month of May to Children, it is only natural that we look to Tyler County schools and some of the teachers who sent the children of yesteryear on the path to fame and fortune.

One such teacher was Proessor Frank Crow, about whom very little is known other than he was the teacher under whom John Henry Kirby studied.

It was Bronson Cooper who saw the potential in the future timber baron and urged him to leave the farm at Peach Tree and attend the professor's school in Woodville.

But what about Crow, who is said to have introduced Kirby not only to books but also Lelia Stewart, the fellow student who would later become his wife?

For that information we went to Phebe Young Armstrong, whose large home on Nellius Street in Woodville was once the home of Professor Crow and his family, who used it as a boarding house for his out-of-town students.

According to Mrs. Armstrong, the first record of Frank Crow in Tyler County was found in the 1870 Census, in which he was listed as an 18 year old laborer, living with his widowed mother, S.A.M6 Crow, and five siblings.

In 1929, Mrs. Armstrong tells us, John Henry Kirby threw a gala three-day party at Peach Tree Village to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Professor Crow class he was in. Each of his guests received a little booklet in which the professor was quoted as saying, "I only had a chance to attend a little two month school in the summer. There I learned to read, write and spell and how to set an example for the other boys in the school, as my big sister was the teacher. She would say 'you must be a model to help me bring the others up to the high mark I have set for you."

As for himself, Kirby wrote "during this period of my history, at the age of about 15 years, the Great Teacher came into my life and brushed away the cobwebs from my vision and showed me how to reach out and strive for the needed equipment for useful service."

Phebe Armstrong also tells us that her home was originally meant to be a school. In 1860 S.B. McAllister had it built for his daughter, Lucy McAllister Booth, who wanted to start a Female Academy in Woodville. Lucy died in 1862, before the school was opened, and the house was sold and used as a boarding house.

It was about 1874 that the Crow family, who had been living on a farm in the Campground area, purchased the home, and the Professor opened his school on Bluff Street with no more formal education than that which he described 50 years later. But then, as Mrs. Armstrong tells it, he was a teacher born, not made, an inspiration to his students.

By 1888, things were changing in Tyler County. There was no longer any need for private schools. Reconstruction had pretty much devastated the area, plunging even many well-to-do families into poverty.

And so the Crows pulled up stakes and made ready to move to Coryell County in Central Texas. In March, 1888, S.A.M. Crow and several of her children, including Frank, signed over the house on Nellius to E.G. Guisendorff and his wife, Aplice Sims Guisendorff, the sister of Phebe Armstrong's mother. In 1919, Phebe's father, who always regretted not having attended Profesor Crow's school, purchased the home for his large family.

It is said that John Henry Kirby arranged for the Crow family to move and helped Professor Crow get established in his new environment. Outside of that, no one seems to know, says Phebe, although at least one Crow brother, Martin Roselius "Sealy" Crow remained in Tyler County and became a highly respected teacher.

Big Thicket Offers Unforgetable Experience

A visit to the Big Thicket of Southeast Texas is an unforgetable experience no one traveling in Texas should miss.

A wooded area famous for its impenetrable vastness, the Big Thicket offers a luxuriance and variety of vegetation found nowhere else in the world, the result of its deep, porous, moisture-bearing, sandy-clay soil that has created a biological crossroads.

In the Big Thicket the flora and fauna of the arid Southwest meet and mingle with that of the moist Eastern Woodlands. Plants from the Arctic zone live along with tropical species.

and durable pottery typical of the period remain. Potters rolled moist clay between their palms and coiled the strips to form distinctively handsome vessels and then decorated them with intricate geometric designs. Their special firing process produced a peculiar dark gray or chocolate brown glaze on the pottery.

Stone objects such as effigy pipes, axe heads, and earspools were imports and may have come from the Red River or Mississippi River valleys. Some artifacts resemble those found in Florida and Illinois. Marine shell from the Gulf Coast and copper from the Great Lakes region illustrate the broad extent of prehistoric trade networks among these Indians. The Early Caddos' influence maintained by trade waned after 1100 A.D.

By 1300 A.D. East Texas Mound Builders' culture was in decline. Ceremonial centers became smaller, although Late Caddos continued to build mounds. Often no burial mounds were constructed. Late Caddos ceased to participate in the far-reaching exchange network; therefore, no good quality stone was available to them. Trade became more localized, although they still traded to the west.

Many characteristics of the older culture remained among the Late Caddos. A social hierarchy still existed but functioned on a more localized scale. The French and Spanish described loose confederacies, possibly remnants of the old order. The Indians continued to grow crops and live in beehive-shaped houses. They still used pottery vessel forms of the earlier culture, but Late Caddo wares did not exhibit the fine artistic designs of Early Caddo vessels. Daily routines in the villages showed a lack of wealth and the absence of rich ceremonialism of the Early Caddos.

Reasons for the decline and eventual abandonment of Early Caddoan villages are not clear. Archeologists agree that the bonding power of the elite class diminished as outlying groups became economically self-sufficient and less dependent on cultural centers in religious and political matters.

Whatever the causes, by about 1300 A.D. Early Caddos were abandoning their villages in East Texas. Their exit from an area seemed planned and orderly. Residents of the village at Caddoan Mounds State Park capped their mounds with a final thin layer of soil before their departure.

Early Caddos left behind a cultural heritage that would remain in East Texas until their descendants were forced to leave in the mid-19th century.

Life And Times Of Eppie Blewett Quicksall

EDITOR'S NOTE: Last month, Manie Whitmeyher's delightful tales of her family in Tyler County took us up to the time when the Quicksall family moved from Doucette to "the hog farm" on Turkey Creek, where we find Savannah still helping out.

Savannah still came to wash for my mother and, since there was no running water at the farm, she washed by choice at the creek. She had her wash pot down there, also the tubs, and she kept a little coffee pot hanging on a bush so she could have her coffee break.

Mother always said the thing she missed most about not having electricity at the hog farm was her electric fan in the summer. On hot summer afternoons she and little Eppie would go take their baths in the creek.

In 1920 when election time rolled around, the roads were impassable, a not uncommon occurrence in Tyler County at the time. Neither Model T nor buggy could get through, but Pat Neff was running for governor. Daddy had met Pat at Masonic Lodge Conclaves and admired him greatly. He said "I'm not going to lose my vote for Pat Neff; I'll walk the railroad track to Woodville." My mother replied, "Well, if you're going to walk, I'll walk with you." It was probably her first time to vote, since the Woman's Suffrage Amendment had become law in August, 1920. Women were allowed to vote in the primaries in Texas that summer.

A highlight of the "hog farm days" was the trip to the hog auction in Kansas City. Eppie and my mother accompanied Daddy and of course they went by rail. I often heard of the beauties of the Muelebach Hotel, especially its dining room.

While eating there, Eppie saw two elegantly dressed ladies puffing on cigarettes, the first time she had ever seen women smoke. She said, quite loudly, as children will in a public place, "Look Honey, those ladies are smoking." (We called our mother "Honey".) Everybody in the dining room turned and looked, the "ladies" directed looks of pure venom at the detestable child, my mother wanted to slip under the table and never come out, and Daddy was very amused. He said it served the"ladies" right.

The trip home was rather nightmarish because Eppie had come down with whooping cough. My mother said she guessed Eppie spread whooping cough all the way to Kansas City and back, but there wasn't anything to do but put her on the train and bring her home. When they got back, they found that all the children in Doucette had whooping cough, Eppie had been to play with the Ogden children before she left, and that was where she got it.

My mother never learned to drive a car, but she used to drive the buggy into Mr. Fain's store in Doucette to buy groceries. One day she had an order of tobacco; one can of Prince Albert for Charlie Butler, one can of Prince Albert and a tin Tinsley chewing tobacco for Daddy, one package of Brown Mule for the black man who worked on the place, and snuff for Savannah. Mr. Fain said, "oooh Mrs. Quicksall, aren't you ashamed, a nice lady like you, using all that tobacco. Tch! Tch! How terrible!" He never let her forget that order.

One day when Savannah was cleaning the house, my mother heard her coughing and spitting something awful, so she hurried into the bedroom. "Savannah, are you all right? What's the matter?" "Oh, Mrs. Quicksall, I'm out of snuff, so I was just going to steal a little of Mr. Quicksall's tobacco, and ——." My mother laughed till the tears came; Daddy had filled an empty Prince Albert can with little tiny fish hooks and had it sittin on the mantel.

I'll skip over the tragedy of the hog farm "going bust"; it's told of in Phebe Armstrong's book. My mother said "we all cried when we had to leave the hog farm." My father never recovered financially.

When the Butlers and Quicksalls were waiting for the train in Woodville as they were leaving Tyler County forever, Daddy noticed a strange odor coming from the Butler's trunk. He kept sniffing and decided it had to be whiskey. Prohibition was the law of the land at this time. Daddy stood it as long as he could, then he sidled up to Charlie Butler and whispered, "Charlie, where'd you get it?" "Get what?" "That whiskey in your trunk" "What are you talking about? There's no whiskey in my trunk. Where'd you think I'd get it?" "That's what I want to know." Charlie sniffed the trunk and demanded of his wife what in tarnation she had in there. "Why, that's just my 'cast calce to make bread with." "Women, you'll get us all arrested for bootlegging!"

In closing, I'll add that the land my husband Jack and I live on borders what was the Long Bell timber "front" at the time my parents lived up here. When Daddy came out to the front he rode in the logging train with the intrepid Pitt Sims as engineer. I met Pitt at Miss Annie Belle Causey's funeral, and he laughed at how he used to scare Daddy the way he drove that train. He said Daddy would hang on and yell "My Lord Pitt, you go as fast as the Southern Pacific." I've often wondered what Daddy would say if he knew we lived next door to the "front."

7. PAWN SHOP: Old-time mechanical money banks in the window and other treasures.

8. TEXAS LANNAN FACTORY: The traditional triangle, which rang across pioneer lands both as an alarm and a chow time "come 'n get it," is made here for sale at Heritage Village and around the world.

9.-POST OFFICE: Willie Reinhardt was the last postmaster of the Pluck Post Office, once located near Corrigan. Of special interest is the Spencerian script on the wall, a common style in the old days.

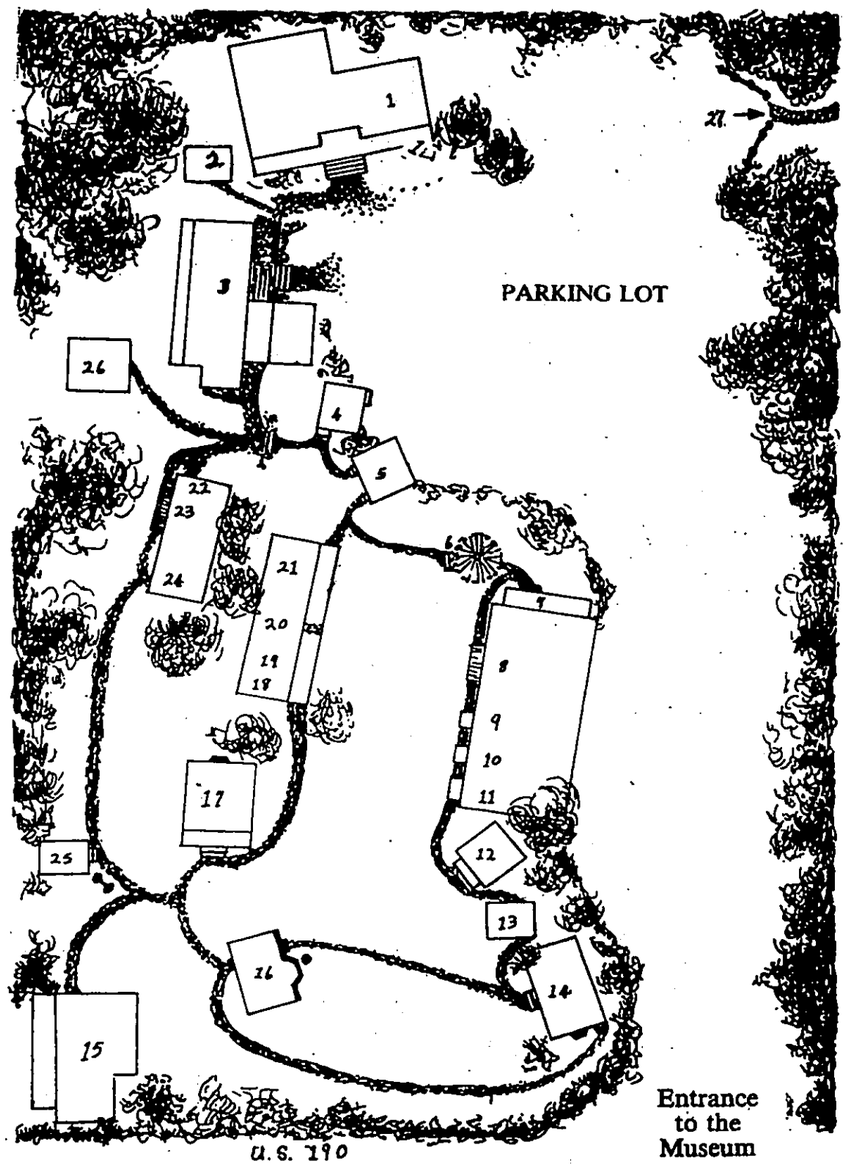
10.-BARBER SHOP: In this 100 year old Barber Shop, you had your choice of two chairs, which could be laid back and revolved, but not raised and lowered. And you could take a bath in the 1836 copper tub, which once belonged to a Jefferson, Texas, blacksmith.

11.-SHERIFF'S OFFICE AND JAIL: Every town had one.

12.-BLACKSMITH SHOP: In use in Colmesneil in the late 1800s, this shop is now the home of the East Texas Blacksmiths Alliance. Village Blacksmiths fire up the forge most weekends to delight visitors as they make decorative items to sell in the Museum Store.

13.-WAGON SHED, CANE GRINDER, SYRUP MILL: Behind the shed, a cane grinder and syrup mill bring back sweet memories. Horses or mules were used to turn the grinders through which sugar cane was squeezed before the slow process of cooking the cane juice to produce a delectable syrup. In the shed, you'll see a wagon used for freight between Woodville and Beaumont, and a buggy, donated by late Gov. Allan Shivers, a famous Woodville son.

14.-TOLAR CABIN: Built by Robert Tolar for his bride in 1866 and donated by his ancestors, the cabin, where family members prepared meals for all comers into the 1950s, was moved intact from near Hillister. It was awarded a medallion of the Texas Historical Commission.



OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK - 9 A.M. TO 5 P.M.

15.-BIG HOUSE: Treasures galore were once displayed in this building, which housed the original Village entrance and shop. It is now used for storage, but plans are under way to replace it with a temperature controlled facility for delicate textiles and treasured old documents.

16.-RAILROAD STATION: Materials for this depot came from the 1890 station in Hillister. The loop hanging on the wall held the Order Stick, which the station master would hold out to a passing train. So orders, information and outgoing mail could be picked up without the train slowing.

17.-Z.C.COLLIER STORE: Much of the original materials and furnishings are included in the reconstruction this general store, built in Town Bluff 1863 by Zacharia Cowart Collier. No visitor to the Village should miss this fine collection of interesting 19th century items.

18.-COTTON GIN: This machinery was used to re-gin old mattresses, once an important local industry.

19.-APOTHECARY: In an old time drug store, only prescriptions and home remedy materials were sold. The prescription counter is from a drug store in Rockland, which is now nearly a ghost town but was once the thriving terminus of the railroad from Beaumont.

20.-PHYSICIANS OFFICE: This typical doctor's office of the late 19th century is a composite collection of many, including Dr. John Shivers of Woodville and Dr. N. E. Laidacker of China.

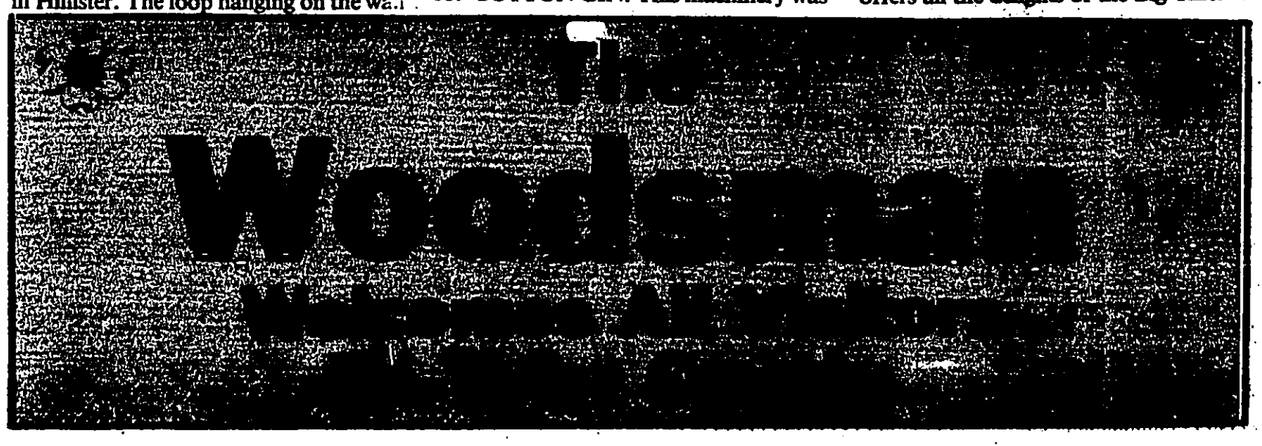
21.-CHAIR FACTORY: Dallas Miller operated this chair factory in Burkeville until 1964. Miller, considered to be the best chair maker in this part of the country, was also a genius in fabricating the machinery he needed to make those chairs. To be noted are the lathe on which he turned the legs, the hole puncher for his hides and drying racks for his chair backs.

22.-MUSIC SHOP: Musical history memorabilia from the collection of Bubba Voss of Orange has been increased to include old sheet music donated by Fred Bennett of Woodville. Don't miss the early phonograph display.

23.-SEAMSTRESS SHOP: Recreation of an 1875-85 Shop, which was, in its day, a genteel way for a lady to earn a living. A delightful look into the past world of fashion, this shop has many original items used over 100 years ago, in addition to a variety of dresses and hats, created especially by Martha Stark and Joseph Gerrietts after much research into the period.

24.-LEATHER SHOP: Saddles, boots and shoes were made here.

25.-LITTLE RED SCHOOLHOUSE: This typical one-room school house is where all grades were taught by one teacher. Older students were pressed inot service to help the younger ones. The plantation bell outside was used to call the students to class.

26.-CANTILEVERED LOG BARN: This 140 year old log barn once belonged to the family of famous East Texan John Henry Kirby at Peach Tree Village near Chester. It was moved log by log to Heritage Village, where it has been rebuilt by Village volunteers.


27.-THE BIG WOODS: This 11.5 acres of woods and hiking trails, adjacent to the original Heritage Village properties, offers all the delights of the Big Thicket.
