'Still reaching for the clouds'

By Donnie Wayne Gulley

"It looks like I'm going to live to walk another day," James Harris told the Tyler County Booster in its Wednesday, Sept. 21, 1994 edition.

Harris, 74 years old at the time, had experienced complications while flying his 'Dragonfly' over Tyler County on Sunday, Sept. 18, 1994. He was forced to land his "trusty Dragonfly" that served faithfully for ten and a half years, into a bed of trees near Boy Scout Camp Urland just south of Woodville.

His plane came to rest atop an oak tree, 60 feet in the air, supported by a limb that was "no more than four inches in diameter."

Harris spent the night in that tree with two broken legs. The breaks were right above the ankles.

SKYS THE LIMIT-- For James Harris, of Ivanhoe, who landed the "dragonfly" experimental aircraft in some trees south of Woodville last year and came away with two broken legs. Harris has already started building another experimental aircraft called "Firebird" and plans to be flying soon. (Photo by Donnie Wayne Gulley.)

Harris had taken off from the Tyler County Airport at 11 a.m. that Sunday (the 18th) and was rescued 24 hours later after a search was initiated by Sheriff Gary Hennigan.

Hennigan notified the U. S. Department of Customs jets with special heat seeking equipment to assist in the search, but that was unsuccessful.

The nighttime search had to be called off.

The following morning, attorney Walter Umphrey of Hillister provided the search party with a helicopter, and after a while, finally spotted the downed Dragonfly.

The rescue team consisted of Sheriff Deputies Sam Bible and Otis Wigley, Texas Department of Public Safety Trooper Bobby Risech, attachments from the Woodville Volunteer Fire Department, Trans Star EMS Services, and a Med-Link helicopter.

And now, almost a year later, Harris works diligently in the garage beside his home. No, he doesn't limp, and no he doesn't use a cane. In fact, "the legs are in good shape," Harris says with a smile. "Very little damage, there's a little numbness in the right foot. I was lucky, I could've lost them."

You may wonder why Harris works in a hot garage day after day, after all, he's retired. Why not just relax and do some traveling or something?

Harris says he plans to do some traveling soon, but it's not going to be in his RV!

"This is the left wing frame of what is soon to be part of a 'Firestar'," he says, pointing toward a frame of steel tubing that has been precisely constructed.

Last year's experience wasn't enough to clip the wings of this flier! Today he is constructing yet another aircraft to be completed in 9-10 months. "The 'Dragonfly' took me seven years to build," says Harris.

And working in the garage isn't really that bad, "with that little ol' air conditioner I can keep it nice and cool in here," Harris gleams.

Harris is no newcomer to flying. He served during World War II as a flight engineer, before that he had taken lessons in flying. He earned his pilot's license in 1952 and bought his first aircraft (a Cessna 170) in 1957.

He is not the only one in his family who enjoys to fly though. "I have two sons that are also pilots," Harris says proudly.

"The 'Firestar' will be built as an experimental aircraft. It's much lighter than the 'Dragonfly', Harris adds. If you've ever wondered about how aircraft are built, just ask James. "It's wild," he laughs. "All kinds of homework."

It's exciting to know that after last year's incident, James has healed and is still reaching for the clouds. And no doubt when his 'Firestar' is ready to go airborne, for Harris the sky's the limit!

TDCJ empties county jail backlog ahead of schedule

AUSTIN — Texas Department of Criminal Justice officials announced Tuesday that thanks to the largest prison expansion program in the history of the free world, the backlog of state prisoners in county jails has been wiped out ahead of the Sept. 1 deadline set four years ago by the Legislature.

TDCJ executive director James A. Collins said that the backlog was eliminated by TDCJ taking more than 20,000 new inmates into its expansion units since June 1.

The backlog in its worst days saw more than 30,000 state prisoners held in often overcrowded county jails. It resulted in parole rates reaching 75 percent and in lawsuits which have cost the state $650 million in fines and payments to counties for housing state prisoners.

Criminal Justice Board chairman Allan Polunsky of San Antonio said that "Texans can be proud of TDCJ's accomplishment in completing the expansion program on time and within budget, even though we need not be proud to live in a society which requires 145,000 prison beds."

"It is no secret that five or six years ago the criminal justice system was broken. But today, at least for the time being, it has been fixed," Polunsky said. "The word should go out that those who choose to commit criminal acts can expect to be incarcerated for a long time."

"We have restored integrity to the system because the criminal element can no longer endanger society with impunity from meaningful punishment," he said.

Collins said that TDCJ had a population of 127,000 when the last inmate was checked in from the counties earlier this week. The system's capacity was 130,864.

Construction will be completed by the end of the year on the final 14,000 beds in the expansion program but TDCJ officials have announced that those units will not be opened until needed throughout the next year.

Collins pointed out that the $1.5 billion expansion program has been completed "at about half the national average prison construction cost."

Texas State Prison capacity has changed throughout the years as follows: 1971 - 15,418; 1980 - 28,543; 1985 - 37,320; 1990 - 49,157; 1992 - 55,234; 1993 - 69,054; March 1994 - 77,457; December 1994 - 99,215; May 1995 - 117,202; August 1995 - 130,864; and January 1996 - 145,000.

Wilson announces $1.7 million HUD award for Burke Center

LUFKIN — U. S. Rep. Charlie Wilson has announced the awarding of a $1.7 million Housing and Urban Development grant to the Burke Center to provide housing assistance to mentally ill and homeless East Texans.

The $1.7 million grant was part of a nearly $1 billion grant announced by HUD Secretary Henry Cisneros that will fund more than 800 projects across the country.

The Burke Center will use the funds to establish permanent housing and ensure there is a system of services and supports which enables people with mental illness to be successful in the living situation of their choice. The Burke Center's Housing Task Force has worked to establish an assisted living residence at Fairweather Lodge in Nacogdoches and a treatment/training residence at Alpha House in Lufkin. To ensure there is no duplication of any other housing initiatives in the region, the Burke Center's Housing Task Force is working with the Deep East Texas Council of Governments' Housing Department.

"This funding will go a long way to helping homeless mothers and children in crisis," Wilson said. "And too, it will support other agencies' efforts to move homeless people off the streets to self-sufficient lives in permanent housing."

"This is yet another testament to the good works of the Burke Center and of course to Anna Belle and Ward Burke who have given of themselves tirelessly so that others might have a better life," Wilson said.

At the Village

By Dottie Johnson

Blacksmiths, Spinners & Weavers and the last of our doctors

Tell us about the Blacksmiths, we asked. We're always talking about the Dulcimers and their sweet, sweet music and the Spinners and Weavers and their months of planning for their Sheep to Shawl demonstrations at the Harvest Festival.

But they are just two of the three extremely active organizations that give so much to the Village and the community.

The third one is the East Texas Blacksmith Affiliance, which was formed at the Village, has grown by leaps and bounds under the Village umbrella and gives so much to our visitors in the way of demonstrations, education and yes, entertainment.

So, let's hear from the blacksmiths.

Between members and guests there were 35 blacksmithing participants in attendance at last Saturday's meeting, including four teenage boys and one teenage girl. There is a growing interest in this art form among the young, and there were a number in the "just looking" audience that swelled last Saturday's audience.

The day started as usual at 9 a.m. at the Village Forge (in a shop in the ETBA built themselves). It was going strong until the smithys were virtually swept out the gates at the Village's 5 p.m. closing time.

Now that's dedication, especially when you consider the fact that blacksmithing isn't one of the coolest of outdoor sports for August.

Wizard for the day was Tom Lundquist, who spent the morning demonstrating the forging of tongs and the afternoon showing how to use those tongs in making knife blades.

At their September 9 meeting, to which any and all interested blacksmiths are invited, there will be open forging for those in attendance, which will be minus 10 of our finest ETBA members.

Where those 10 will be off to is the Sid Richardson Ranch near Bridgeport for Hammerfest '95, the annual fall workshop of the North Texas Blacksmith Association. Guest demonstrators will be Hershel and Frank House of Woodbury, Kentucky, who are regarded as two of the finest and most highly recognized blacksmith-gunsmiths in the country. Their grandfather was the gunsmith written about in Foxfire Five, one of the dozen or so books detailing pioneer skills, taken from live interviews with the artisans themselves.

Sheep to Shawl ready to go

But where there's news, there's news, and the Spinners and Weavers have quite a bit.

Saturday before last, Georgia Collins and Martha Hanlon got together at Martha's Jasper home and dyed half of the wool they had sheared during Wool Days, making sure they had enough for all the preliminary steps to their Sheep to Shawl demonstration. Georgia and Guild president Irene Hamel will split the carding chores to get enough yarn ready for the spinners and enough left over to warp the loom and get the weft ready for weaving.

Sounds complicated, doesn't it, but that's the way these folks talk and work, and word of their expertise is spreading throughout the south.

Proof of this is in the fact that the Heritage Village Spinners and Weavers Guild has been invited to Vermilionville, Louisiana, on August 25 and 26, to participate in their celebration of Textiles Month.

According to Georgia and Jesse Collins who, with Martha and Gary Hanlon, will represent our Village group, Vermilionville is a Folk Life Center much like ours with a Living History Museum and Village that portrays the culture of the Cajun and Creole people who settled there more than 200 years ago. The accent is distinctly French in flavor.

Situated between Petite Bayou and Bayou Vermilion, Vermilion was the original name of what is now Lafayette, Louisiana. Unlike our Village, it is totally supported by the state under the Louisiana Endowment of the Humanities, an affiliate of the National Endowment.

The Textile Month celebration is running throughout the month. Admission is $3 for adults, $6.50 for seniors, $5 for students and free for children under six.

Harvest Festival

Meanwhile, the Guild says they are just about ready for the Harvest Festival, which is a reminder for us to remind everyone that we WILL need those dried corn husks and dried corn for our decorations and our corn shelling demonstrations for the young ones - that we WILL need some of those jellies and jams you put up this summer for the Heritage Society COUNTRY STORE - that we WILL need volunteers to help in this most important function of our Village life.

A visit with Bryan Martin

It was a long time a-coming.

I had an appointment to do an oral history with Bryan Martin two or three years ago, when something happened to put it on hold.

What stirred him to call was his feeling that we had missed Dr. Cruse in our writings about early Tyler County doctors. Actually, we had written what we could find about both Dr. Cruses, which wasn't as much as there should have been, to be sure.

As it turned out, we didn't spend much time talking about the late doctors since the invitation to drive out was extended to Marjorie Schultz and me. He wanted us to see some of the old documents he had concerning the land where he lives high up off FM 1746.

It was a delightful visit with Bryan and Lou Martin, who don't get out much anymore but have the minds and the memories to offset their lack of mobility.

Born in Shelby County in 1909, Bryan moved to Tyler County with his parents, his three brothers, Noah, Parlie and Ernest, his three sisters, Vallye, Tempie and Ernie, Ernest's twin. He and Lou were married 62 years ago in the middle of the Rockland Bridge, meeting their friend Brother Nash of San Augustine half-way.

The big surprise was finding out that Lou (Lucille Richardson) grew up in the Cherokee community. She lived there until she was 13, when the family moved to Woodville so she could go to high school. They lived on the corner of Elm Street (now MLK) and Gardner Streets. "That's where we courted," Bryan told us. He also told us that Gardner Street ran right down to where the Chapmans lived. "That was Dr. W. P. Chapman," he told us. "Did you find out anything about him for your doctor's exhibit?"

I hadn't, although his name was included in the listings more than once.

Dear Editor:

With over 60 people responding to the call to help clean up Spurger last Saturday, there is no way to thank individuals, but you know who you are and so do your neighbors.

To all who cleaned up their own yards, to all who volunteered to help others, to everyone who mowed and picked up trash, a great big THANK YOU from the people of Spurger. We're going to do it again on September 23, so get prepared.

'Are Dems abandoning sinking party boat?'

Dear Editor:

Have you taken note of the number of Democrats bailing out of the Democratic party? Amazing, is it not, how quickly these particular warm blooded critters recognized the sinking of their political ship and began to abandon it soon after the elections last fall. Which only goes to prove they are survivalist, if nothing else.

There have been two lawmakers in the House and two in the Senate to make the move to the GOP, with more likely to follow. The most recent was Rep. Billy Tauzin of Kenner, Louisiana. The eight-time elected conservative Democrat said of the change, "You know it is time to move when you don't want your own leadership to come back into power." Welcome aboard, Mr. Tauzin, you have seen the light.

All this party jumping, however, is cause to wonder what might happen should the unthinkable occur and power shift back to the liberals. Would this same group of folks experience another change of heart and be blown about by whatever political wind that seems stronger at the time?

What has changed within the Democratic party to cause long entrenched members to desert? Certainly not the liberal view of the world, as evidenced by the Democratic stance taken in the recent Waco hearings. A political party is not a group from which one can decompartmentalize portions of its ideology, in health clubs. A political party is made up of people who claim to share the same philosophies in government and life. Have these people, then, changed their beliefs as well as their political alliance?

I don't know about you, but I find that I cannot readily trust someone who switches allegiances so easily. Remember Ross Perot and his on again, off again, Presidential bid in 1992? He lost much of the voter support he had won by appearing to be indecisive.

One thing I do know: these Washington fat cats have been in power too long, 41 years, and it was time for a change in the old guard. After so long a period as the political force, the liberal Democratic party had lost touch with mainstream Americans, many of whom have been holding down two jobs to support their families in the face of governmental regulation and taxation seemingly designed to destroy the family unity that is the very backbone of our nation.

It would be historically accurate to say no nation can long survive which imposes an unjust burden of taxation upon its citizens, while continually funding governmental waste and corruption through a myriad of federal giveaway programs.

The answer is quite simple: government must function within a budget, just as you and I must do. We cannot spend money we don't have and neither should government be allowed to do so.

If this means down-sizing and cutting money allocated to those programs and agencies which have traditionally supported those individuals who will not work and refuse to be responsible for themselves, then so be it.

I am not advocating taking governmental assistance from those who have a genuine need for help. Only those people, able to work and better themselves, who refuse to try. I firmly believe a person, able of mind and body, that refuses work, should not eat.

Liberals have a history of support for the tax-and-spend bureaucracy which has been allowed to prevail on Capitol Hill far too long. The voting public is slowly waking up to the goings on in Washington and as public opinion continues to shift in favor of the GOP promise of change, I suspect even more Democrats will jump ship to grasp at a spoke on the wheel of the conservative bandwagon.

Only time will tell whether the GOP is up to the job entrusted to them in November 1994. We, as concerned voters, must maintain a watchful eye on Washington to see that our expectations are carried out.

'Call for help'

Dear Editor:

I imagine you have heard by now that we have lost our director at the Nutrition Center.

We were advised to have our books audited, which we have done.

The audit revealed bills unpaid in the amount of $20,000 among other discrepancies. We had been told that our bills were current or nearly so.

Our bank account at this time is almost totally depleted and we have no more funds coming from the government until matters are corrected. In other words, we are in serious financial trouble.

I know that none of us want to lose this Center.

We are serving about 200 meals a day. About 100 of those go to homebound people.

Some of you have indicated a desire to help. We need that now, and quickly.

If you can help, please give your contributions to Doris Elliot when you pay for your meal, or mail your check to Tyler County Nutrition Center, P. O. Box 455, Woodville, TX 75979. Contributions are tax deductible.

Thank you in advance for your contributions. Sincerely,

J. T. Riley, Board Member

An open letter to Woodville ISD patrons

Dear Editor:

Last week, we received notice from the Texas Education Agency (TEA) that Woodville High School would be considered "low performing" because of its 6.4% dropout rate.

This dropout rate calculation is in error, and we have submitted our appeal to TEA this week.

The error is linked to our successful community dropout recovery program. We have utilized grant money to fund a program to recruit young adults from the Tyler County community to render school and to complete their diplomas or GEDs, and some of these students have been mistakenly counted against Woodville High School's dropout rate. We are appealing to TEA to make the necessary corrections in our student data to rectify this error. We think our dropout recovery program is an excellent program, and we are very proud of the individuals who have now completed their high school education.

Again, I want to emphasize that the low performing label applies only to the dropout rate and not to the academic program. Woodville High School's academic scores are very high and are above the state averages in all areas. We feel we have an outstanding academic program which prepares students for further education and transition into the job market. Our high school is one of approximately 200 high schools nationwide recognized as a mentor in the High Schools That Work program, and our students are able to take courses for college credit and serve in apprenticeships while completing their education at Woodville High School. Academic and athletic competition has produced many successes for our students, and we feel our extracurricular programs are outstanding. Our school facility is one of the finest in the state, and we are proud of their professional accomplishments.

As we await the results of the appeal, we ask for your support and assistance in getting correct information to our school community.

Carol Moffett
Superintendent, Woodville ISD

Local landowner experiences

A part of the Texas A&M University system
By Keith Hawkins

An absentee landowner from Roxton recently wanted to sell timber off of his 38 acre tract. He also has a cabin for weekend use. One of his major concerns was minimizing site disturbance and erosion problems caused by logging. His reasoning was that he would still have to pay the same property taxes if his soil washed away. Therefore, he wanted to keep his soil and receive the most benefits he could from it.

The most effective way a landowner can protect his property from logging damage is to use forestry Best Management Practices or BMPs. BMPs are designed to protect water quality from erosion and sedimentation, but they can also reduce logging damage and unsightliness.

One example of a BMP is having streamside management zones or SMZs. An SMZ is tree cover left beside streams and ponds. The tree stand acts as a filter before runoff reaches the water. A proper SMZ allows a landowner to harvest up to half of his trees. If more than 50 percent is cut, then the SMZ loses its effectiveness.

A landowner near Warren asked a logger to leave trees next to his stream, but the logger cut up to the stream banks. Another landowner still had equipment ruts eight years after the timbering was finished. Still another landowner whose property is near Dam B found deep gullies due to poor logging.

To avoid logging abuses, a landowner needs to specify BMPs in the timber sale contract. The Texas Forest Service has free technical guidelines that can fit into a pickup glove box or into a sale contract. If the logger fails to comply with BMP guidelines, then the landowner can assess a stiff penalty as outlined in the timber sale contract.

Fortunately, there are conscientious loggers. Later this year the TFS will have a lift of BMP-certified loggers. These loggers have learned about proper BMPs through logger training sessions. A good timber sale contract should require the logger to have BMP training before he cuts the first tree.

Effective BMP's will solve most problems related to logging damage. To learn more about BMPs, call the TFS at 283-3785 and request a free copy of Texas BMPs for Silviculture.

Not too big

By Darby Kethan

"You're too big, Grandy," said two year old Lauren when I told her I was going swimming with her in our small pool. Well . . . I wasn't, and we did! I already knew that the galvanized stock tank we use for a kid's swimming pool was fun for "kids" my size and smaller. We taught lots of kids to swim in that small body of water simply by allowing them lots of playing time and by playing along with them.

That tank - 6' across by 30" deep - is a wonderful and inexpensive investment for a lifetime swimming pool for kids. All the early skills for learning to swim can be achieved even in less water than it holds. Blowing bubbles, learning to put eyes and ears under water, picking up objects off the bottom, jellyfish and starfish floats, even back floating . . . there is plenty of water for all of these activities. And, of course, plenty of water for danger, also, so use great care to supervise constantly any children in the pool . . . and to place it in an area where no unsupervised children can get to it!

Water play and water activities are great ways for kids to build muscles, to learn to swim and to build social skills. Even Lauren made up a game for us to play, by her rules, of course, which is perfectly OK with me. There's a direct link between children making up and playing games by rules and their functioning in society as adults who follow and make rules. Getting along with peers by deciding what games to play and how the rules will be helps children become adults who can get along while making the same kinds of decisions. Children understand rules and games differently than adults. Young children have little sense of competition and will often volunteer to help others at the expense of "winning" themselves. Allowing them to make rules and play with others means they discover for themselves . . . which is really the only way we all learn . . . just what works and what doesn't. I remember how we found out that pouting isn't an effective problem solving tool . . . our friend would get her dolls and go home when things didn't suit her. We missed her, but not so much as to stop our play . . . and later, when she returned, we told her so. Better to talk it out!

What I enjoyed as we swam in our "private pool" was watching Lauren discover water as a place for fun and for skill building. She learned she could float with her feet sticking out of the water, that she could put her head all the way back in the water, and that if she splashed me, I would splash her back. She obviously loves the water just as I do. What Lauren helped me discover was just how much relaxing even this small pool of water can be. Set under leafy, green branches, it is just the size for refreshing, even for big people.

'More semantics'

By David Rust

What's this? More semantics? Come on, you are probably saying, let's get real.

Folks, don't sell short. Semantics is real. This semi-obscure word might be defined as the science of communications via language. And without that, we are right back to pre-Stone Age.

What brought this on was a squib in the Beaumont Enterprise's "Today in History" feature. On July 16th, 1964, Barry Goldwater was nominated for President by the GOP. Accepting, he made the fateful statement that got Lyndon Johnson elected: ". . . Extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice - moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue." Now I ask you, do you see anything amiss with that? The passage of time has taken the sting out of those words, but some of us remember that the context that year had been labeled (by the Democrats) a choice between moderates [Democrats] and extremists [Goldwater]. And "moderate" sounds safer, now doesn't it?

I liked Barry G. He was a fighter pilot, and if any other qualification be needed, a forthright and honest politician. The words he used in his acceptance speech could not be faulted on rational grounds. But the thing whose impact he misjudged was the subconscious emotional weight those words were bound to be given by his enemies.

I well remember a televised interview with Nelson Rockefeller a few days later, probably at the Democratic convention. Rockefeller, as you may remember, was a mealy-mouthed rich kid who thought he might like to be President himself. Asked about Goldwater's speech, he took on an expression like swallowing a bad oyster. He repeated the awful words more or less, and then with horrified distaste said something like "Shocking!" (which translates "Totally gross" in '90's teenese). Neither he nor any other Democrat opposed the sense of Barry's words, not publicly anyhow. But their covert implication of maniacal irresponsibility was swallowed whole by enough voters to put LBJ into office. It is idle speculation to nurse the what-ifs, of course. Whether Goldwater would have handled the Viet Nam war better than LBJ did, we'll never know (but he could hardly have done worse). My point here is that he would most likely have been elected in 1964 but for an unfortunate lapse in his use of semantics.

Sometimes good semantics takes liberties with good grammar. Remember when I told you that grammar must be the servant of communications, i.e., semantics? One of the more drastic examples I know of comes from Confederate General Nathan B. Forrest. No, it's not "Git thar fustest with the mostest", which he did not say. He was relatively unlettered, but not that unlettered. However, there is in my family a copy of a letter endorsed by him.

Written by a captain under his command, this beautifully scripted, elegantly phrased missive filled two pages, requesting a special leave from the fighting front. Diagonally across the first page, Forrest had scrawled "I tol you twict, goddammit, No!"

A little closer to contemporary, there was the incident during the Battle of the Bulge, in Europe in December of 1944. The all-out German assault, protected from Allied air power by atrocious weather, had steamrolled the American forces rearward. A contingent of troops commanded by General Anthony McAuliffe had been surrounded, and were in a seemingly desperate plight. At this stage the German commander sent word offering surrender terms to the American forces. McAuliffe's reply may not have been good communications to the Germans (though I expect they got the message). But it was magnificent semantics to his own forces. He said, "Tell them, Nuts!"

Or as Ephraim Gluehocker once remarked, "It ain't too smart to go bear huntin' with a fly swatter."

Shalom . . .

Area teacher completes NASA workshop

KENNEDY SPACE CENTER — Harriett Langston, a teacher at Warren Elementary School, recently completed a two-week NASA Education Workshop for Elementary School Teachers (NEWEST) workshop at John F. Kennedy Space Center. Langston was among 23 specially selected master educators attending the workshop June 18-30.

Langston was selected for the program by a committee made up from members of the co-sponsoring organizations, which are NASA, The National Science Teachers Association, the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and the International Technology Educators Association.

This joint program provides an in-depth opportunity for elementary school teachers to learn more about space science and technology. While at KSC, they work directly with space agency engineers and scientists. NEWEST is also designed to inform teachers about NASA's educational programs and materials.

While at the space center, the NEWEST group viewed KSC Space Shuttle processing and launch facilities. They also got a close look at the specialized laboratories and operational areas where NASA space technology is developed. Some of these areas included the materials testing, chemistry and biomedical research labs. The space technology segment also included briefings by NASA engineers and scientists about KSC's space-related biomedical and biological programs., future space missions and how satellites aid in weather forecasting, geological research and navigation on Earth.

Educational resources segments of the workshop included hands-on work at KSC's Exploration Station, job shadowing of NASA executives for space science career development and work in the Educators Resource Library.

To learn how wildlife co-exists with the space program, the NEWEST teachers studied the ecology of Cape Canaveral National Seashore just north of KSC and the Merritt Island National Wildlife Refuge within the boundaries of the 140,000 acre space center. A special session on one ecosystem in the local environment was provided during this part of the workshop, including a midnight trip to watch sea turtles lay their eggs on the seashore beach.

There was also time for a bit of fun while learning the chemistry and physics of a rocket launch. The NEWEST group members first built their own model solid motor rockets and then launched them in a nearby field.

From Deb, Chris and Vicki

Now I have, thanks to their suggestion that I call Rena Mae Chapman of Spurger, who turned me over to the family genealogist, her sister-in-law Robbie Chapman Hargis of San Antonio.

There were two Dr. Chapmans, I discovered, both of whom received their doctorates from the University of Tennessee in Memphis.

First there was our informant's grandfather Dr. William Payne Chapman, born in Atlanta, Georgia, in 1837. He died in 1905 and is buried in Magnolia Cemetery next to his wife, Dora Cecelia Swearingen. It was in the latter part of the 1870s before Dr. Chapman and his family came to Tyler County. The only Chapman in the 1870 Census was a 16 year old James Chapman working as a farm laborer for J. J. Swearingen, which starts to sound like family.

In the 1880 Census we find Dr. William P., wife Dora and five of their seven children: John William, who also became a doctor (b. 1862 in Georgia), Mary Chapman (Simmons), Lee Jackson, Harriet (Wright) and James Judson, the last three born in Texas, presumably in Beaumont. The last two children were Robert Payne Chapman b. 1882 (the father of our informant) and LeClere Chapman, both of whom must have been born in Tyler County.

According to his granddaughter, Dr. William P. Chapman's practice was primarily in Woodville. His home was, as the Martins told us, at the south end of Gardner Street. Her uncle, Dr. John William Chapman, practiced mainly in Spurger, where many members of the Chapman family settled and still live.

Of particular interest to me as a Spurgerite myself was to learn that the children's play yard at the Spurger Methodist Church, which was built by her nephew Joe Chapman, was dedicated to his "Aunt Robbie" with whom I had such a delightful visit on Sunday afternoon.

Armed Forces exhibit next

And so the Drs. Chapman end our trip down medical history, as Aloha Freeland and her committee get ready to mount a brand new exhibit saluting our men in uniform, from the American Revolution (we hope) through Viet Nam and Desert Storm.

Although Aloha has been collecting histories and memorabilia from her own family and that of her friends, she needs more, lots more.

If you have artifacts, histories, letters, uniforms, pictures, what-have-you about your men in uniform, please share them with Aloha and her committee through donation or loan.

This exhibit which should be open on Friday, September 1, will remain in place through November, when it's time to do our Christmas thing.

1995 is already passing us by. Don't miss a single interesting minute of the Village and what's happening there.

Dr. Cruse Melvin interim dean of College of Arts and Sciences at Lamar

BEAUMONT — Dr. Cruse Melvin, professor of physics, will assume the duties of interim dean of the Lamar University College of Arts and Sciences on Aug. 12, announced Dr. William Cafe, executive vice president for academic affairs.

Melvin is taking the post vacated by Dr. Kendall Blanchard, who resigned to take the position of vice chancellor for academic affairs at the University of Tennessee at Martin effective with the fall semester.

Melvin came to Lamar in the fall of 1986. A native of Woodville, Melvin earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from Stephen F. Austin State University and his doctorate from Tulane University.

He has served as chair of the physics department and on numerous university committees. He is a member of the American Association of Physics Teachers, the International Solar Energy Society and Sigma Pi Sigma science society.

He is married and has two sons.

Blanchard spent four years as dean of Arts and Sciences at Lamar. UT-Martin is a member of the University of Tennessee.

"I was attracted to the Tennessee position for several reasons," Blanchard said. "I spent 15 years in Tennessee in the State Board of Regents system. I have family in Tennessee."

"Much has been accomplished here at Lamar. New programs have been developed, faculty research has continued to bring money and visibility to the university. Lamar remains an outstanding comprehensive university and one of Southeast Texas's greatest assets.

"As Lamar faces the next few years now as part of the Texas State University System, the College of Arts and Sciences will continue to play a central role in the institution. Dr. Melvin is a dedicated and capable administrator and teacher, both qualities desired for his new position," Blanchard concluded.

State Senator Drew Nixon, (R.), of Carthage

Senator Nixon named 'Leader of Excellence'

AUSTIN — Senator Drew Nixon [R-Carthage] was honored this month at a Houston luncheon sponsored by the Free Market Foundation, and was chosen as a "1995 Leader of Excellence" based on an objective calculation of how he voted on 97 recorded votes in the Senate during the recent legislative session. The votes used to determine "Leaders of Excellence" covered economic, governmental, educational and social issues.

"I'm honored that the Free Market Foundation has chosen my record as an example of conservative values," Nixon said.

"As an accountant and a small businessman, I understand the difficulties of coping with the burdensome regulations of state government," said Nixon. "Throughout the legislative session, I remained consistent to my conservative principles, which call for more individual freedom and the reduction of the size of our government."

Nixon was one of only two Southeast Texas Senators to win the Leader of Excellence Award.

"Whenever the opportunity arose to vote on legislation, the most important factor on my mind was doing what is right for the people of Texas," Nixon said.

Nixon's Senate attendance record 100%, voting record 99.86%

AUSTIN — Senator Drew Nixon [R-Carthage] received notification from the State Senate last month that his attendance record was a perfect 100 percent and his voting record was a near perfect 99.86 percent.

"I'm very proud of my attendance and voting records," said Nixon. "Since my service in the State Senate began, I've been working very hard to do what is right for the people of Texas."

The Senate convened a total of 83 times during the 74th session, and Senator Nixon was present for all of them, which reflects a perfect 100 percent attendance record. During debate and the consideration of legislation, the Senate voted on pending issues and other legislation 2,919 times. Senator Nixon voted 2,915 times, which reflects a near perfect 99.86 percent voting record.

"My record illustrates my dedication and commitment to those I represent," said Nixon. "I came to Austin to represent them, and my percentages show that I've been doing just that."

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT-- New Woodville Eagle Head Football Coach Ty Quick goes over a play with Allen Adam (L.) and Charlie McCullough (R.) last week during workouts. Numbers up in first week of football workouts

COUNTY — Three of the four county high school football teams had an increase of players out for first week workouts over the same period last year.

Woodville had 110 players, including 30 varsity, 33 junior varsity and 47 freshmen.

Warren was up 10 players over last year with 63, including 21 freshmen.

The county's class A schools, Colmesneil and Chester had 33 and 27 respectively. Colmesneil was down three from last year, while Chester was up seven.

Woodville coach Ty Quick said that he was impressed with his players during the hot workouts, especially their attitude. He also was pleased with the number of freshmen who showed up for the workouts, citing that much of the credit needed to be directed toward coach David Stallcup.

The workouts for Woodville included a 3-4:40 session for freshman and a 4:45-7:00 session for the varsity Wednesday through Friday. Saturday the varsity was back at it from 9:30 until noon.

"It was hot, but everyone hung in," smiled Quick. "I am tickled with their attitude."

The Eagles will continue to work out and host two scrimmage games. Their first will be against Hamshire-Fannett on August 25, and the second will be held September 1 against Livingston.

At Warren Mickey Mixon and his staff said that they had a "great week." Warren practiced from 8-11 and from 3-5:30 on Wednesday with a lunch and team meeting in between. Thursday and Friday they held workouts from 8-12.

The Warriors will return 15 lettermen this season, including six offensive and seven defensive starters. One player missing from the scrimmages this week was Troy Jones, a 6-2, 230 tackle. Mixon says that Jones might have moved.

Warren will scrimmage Huntington at home on August 25 and travel to West Sabine for another scrimmage outing September 1.

Coach Steve Park and his staff at Chester are hoping for one more player to come out for football. If and when that happens, the Yellowjackets will be able to field a junior varsity team.

Park wants 28 players so he can carry 16 on the varsity and 12 on the junior varsity. The 27 out so far for football is an increase of seven over last year. Park attributes the increase to new students at Chester.

The Yellowjackets did lose a couple of players who moved away, including defensive back Jesse Sneed and lineman Jeremy Byrom.

Chester worked out from 2:30-4:40 Wednesday through Friday of last week. Park noted that the players came into opening practice sessions in better shape this year than last.

Scrimmage sessions for Chester include a road outing at Lovelady on August 25 and a home scrimmage against Concordia Lutheran on September 1.

All-Star game holds special memories for Lamberth

FORT WORTH---For Josh Lamberth, the McDonald's All-Star Basketball Game will forever hold a special memory when he looks back on his high school basketball days.

The recent Woodville grad was one of 24 players selected from across the state to play in the annual game held last week at Daniel Myer Coliseum on the campus of Texas Christian University. And although Lamberth did not score any points or make any spectacular plays, he did represent his school and community in a very positive way.

"The experience was great," emphasized Lamberth. "It was one of the better experiences I've had in basketball."

Lamberth arrived at T.C.U. on a Thursday and practiced with the rest of the all-stars for three days. While there he made many new friends and learned from his new teammates and coaching staff.

"The coaching staff made it real easy," he added. "They were the nicest guys."

The Woodville all-star says that it didn't take long for all the new players to start working together. Part of the reason, he said, was because he and several players began to play cards. Once that happened, everybody began to play and got to know each other better.

"I felt like we had been a team for a long time," he noted.

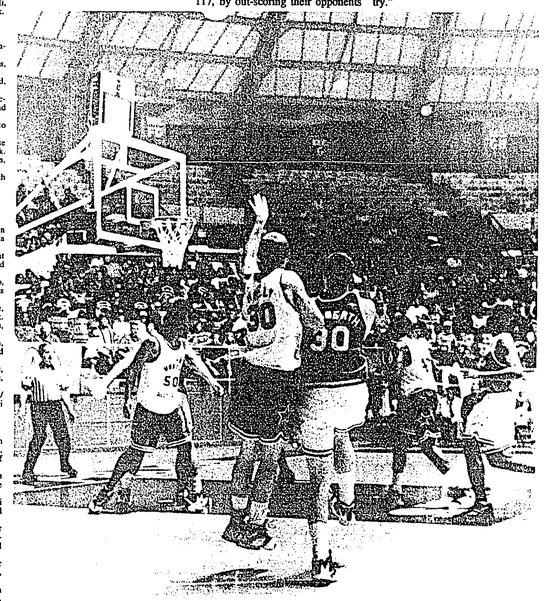
Over 5,000 watched Lamberth and the rest of the all-stars play a down-to-the-wire game Monday evening. The North finally edged the South, 118-117, by out-scoring their opponents 44-24 in the last quarter.

Lamberth played 11 minutes in the game. He shot three times, two from behind the three point line, and didn't connect. He did pull down a couple of rebounds and was whistled for two fouls.

Said his dad and high school coach, John Lamberth, "Josh started inside, but they eventually moved him to the outside. There was pretty good competition up there."

With the experience and memories behind him, the younger Lamberth now moves on to start college at Louisiana Tech next week. Although he received an academic scholarship, he has also decided to take a chance as a "walk-on" at the Monroe school.

"The coach says that there is an opening," says Lamberth, "so I'll give it a try."



BOMBS AWAY — Woodville's Josh Lamberth gets ready to fire off a three pointer in last week's McDonald's All-Star Basketball Game in Fort Worth. Lamberth and his teammates lost to the North, 118-117, at Daniel Myers Coliseum on the campus of Texas Christian University. He will now move on to Louisiana Tech on an academic scholarship. He also plans to attempt to play basketball at the college as a walk on.

Tracy Byrd Concert/tourney

The lucky angler who catches the overall big bass of the two day tournament will claim the Grand Prize of a fully rigged 1996 Nitro 20-foot bass boat/tandem-axle trailer, powered by 200 HP Mercury XRI outboard and 12/24 Mercury Trolling motor - total value: $23,000.

The public is also invited to attend the two day event to enjoy the tournament activities which will also involve a special "Get Hooked on Fishing, Not Drugs", children's event. The public will also become eligible for the "free" drawing of a 1995 Sun Tracker Fishin' Barge 21 with custom trailer and 25 HP Mercury outboard valued at $10,000. Entry to the tournament site if "free" to the public, but the fishing tournament entry fee will cost each contestant $75 per day or $125 for both days. Entry fee includes a small $10 voluntary donation for each day fished which will benefit the March of Dimes Foundation.

Although Tracy Byrd and friends are expected to attend the tournament, the main Country Music Concert is scheduled to be held at the Civic Center in Beaumont at 8 p.m. on Oct. 22, where Byrd is presently scheduled to appear with "friends", Tracy Lawrence and Neal McCoy. The winner of the "Big Bass Splash" will receive their "Grand Prize" on stage with Tracy Byrd at the Concert. Concert tickets will be $15 - reserved seats only.

This dual Tournament/Concert event is expected to raise over $100,000 for the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation, as well as provide a major influx of tourists from across the nation.

For information on Tracy Byrd's Celebrity Big Bass Splash, contact American Fishing Tournament, Inc., P. O. Drawer 131, Sam Rayburn, TX 75951, (800) 909-8751; or Tracy Byrd Country Music Concert, Ritter/Carter Management, 8245 Gladys Suite 201, Beaumont, TX 77706, (409) 866-7510.

NOTICE

To reduce the risk of excavation damage to underground gas pipelines, the leading cause of pipeline accidents, the Materials Transportation Bureau of the U.S. Department of Transportation requires all natural gas system operators to establish and carry out a damage prevention program. This requirement is enforced by the Railroad Commission of Texas.

The City of Woodville has a Damage Prevention Program. If you plan excavations in any public alley, street or other right-of-way, we urge you to call 409/283-2234 during normal working hours (8 a.m. to 5 p.m. - Monday through Friday) you will be told whether there are gas pipelines where you plan your excavations. This information may also be obtained by coming by City Hall, located at 113 North Charlton Street. If there are gas mains or services where you plan to dig, their location will be marked with yellow stake flags with "GAS LINE" printed on the 2 in. x 3 in. plastic flag. Asphalt or concrete paving will be marked with yellow spray paint. There is no charge for this service.

PLEASE CALL BEFORE YOU DIG. THE LIFE YOU SAVE COULD BE YOUR OWN. 32-2b

We have 10,000 Southeast Texas employees working to save you up to 49% on your next monthly phone bill.

With a little bit of help, now you can save money on every one-plus, direct-dialed call within your 1+SAVER℠ regional calling area (shown at left). Choose between two money-saving options: select Option A and get 60 minutes of regional calling for $10.80 a month. Additional minutes are just 17¢ each. Or, for just $3.00 a month, Option B saves you 15% on regional calls all day and all night, for total savings as high as 49% over weekday rates on evening and weekend calling. Here's Hope Crusade

LIVINGSTON — On August 20 through 23, Polk County churches will present the Here's Hope Crusade nightly at 7 p.m. in Lion Stadium.

The crusade, which has involved virtually all of the churches of Polk County, will feature Michael Gott, an international evangelist who grew up in Livingston, Texas to become a world traveler. He spends four to six months each year outside the United States, much of the time in countries formerly referred to as the Communistic Bloc-Russia, Poland, Romania, Czechoslovakia, etc.

Gott is a communicator of the message of Christ-an evangelist. He feels that encounters with people in typical non-Christian settings is an essential part of his mission. He sits with world leaders and newsmakers to listen and share. He is driven with a desire to fulfill the command of Jesus: "Go into all the world."

Regarding his view of present world events, Gott says, "These are exciting days to be alive. As an adherent of Biblical Christianity, I see God moving amid world events. The cataclysmic turmoil of our time involves not only a great challenge, but also a great opportunity for evangelism.

"As we go into the world, we must be both unquestionably rooted in the unchanging Gospel and realistically related to a changing world. We must dare to demonstrate God's love in action to a world searching for lasting values."

Although Gott was reared in Livingston, and his family roots are in Texas, he has been educated in England as well as the U.S. He is an avid student of news events as well as the Bible. "I try preaching with a Bible in one hand and the newspaper in the other. I seek to apply the Bible to today's problems," Gott said recently.

With the separation of church and state still an explosive issue, Gott nevertheless gets into schools to speak of his experiences with world youth. He has over 1,000 speaking engagements annually.

'Still reaching for the clouds'

By Donnie Wayne Gulley

"It looks like I'm going to live to walk another day," James Harris told the Tyler County Booster in its Wednesday, Sept. 21, 1994 edition.

Harris, 74 years old at the time, had experienced complications while flying his 'Dragonfly' over Tyler County on Sunday, Sept. 18, 1994. He was forced to land his "trusty Dragonfly" that served faithfully for ten and a half years, into a bed of trees near Boy Scout Camp Urland just south of Woodville.

His plane came to rest atop an oak tree, 60 feet in the air, supported by a limb that was "no more than four inches in diameter."

Harris spent the night in that tree with two broken legs. The breaks were right above the ankles.

Harris had taken off from the Tyler County Airport at 11 a.m. that Sunday (the 18th) and was rescued 24 hours later after a search was initiated by Sheriff Gary Hennigan.

Hennigan notified the U. S. Department of Customs jets with special heat seeking equipment to assist in the search, but that was unsuccessful.

The nighttime search had to be called off.

The following morning, attorney Walter Umphrey of Hillister provided the search party with a helicopter, and after a while, finally spotted the downed Dragonfly.

The rescue team consisted of Sheriff Deputies Sam Bible and Otis Wigley, Texas Department of Public Safety Trooper Bobby Risch, attachments from the Woodville Volunteer Fire Department, Trans Star EMS Services, and a Med-Link helicopter.

And now, almost a year later, Harris works diligently in the garage beside his home. No, he doesn't limp, and no he doesn't use a cane. In fact, "the legs are in good shape," Harris says with a smile. "Very little damage, there's a little numbness in the right foot. I was lucky, I could've lost them."

You may wonder why Harris works in a hot garage day after day, after all, he's retired. Why not just relax and do some traveling or something!

Harris says he plans to do some traveling soon, but it's not going to be in his RV!

"This is the left wing frame of what is soon to be part of a 'Firestar'," he says, pointing toward a frame of steel tubing that has been precisely constructed.

Last year's experience wasn't enough to clip the wings of this flier! Today he is constructing yet another aircraft to be completed in 9-10 months. "The 'Dragonfly' took me seven years to build," says Harris.

And working in the garage isn't really that bad, "with that little ol' air conditioner I can keep it nice and cool in here," Harris gleams.

Harris is no newcomer to flying. He served during World War II as a flight engineer, before that he had taken lessons in flying. He earned his pilot's license in 1952 and bought his first aircraft (a Cessna 170) in 1957.

He is not the only one in his family who enjoys to fly though. "I have two sons that are also pilots," Harris says proudly.

"The 'Firestar' will be built as an experimental aircraft. It's much lighter than the 'Dragonfly', Harris adds. If you've ever wondered about how aircraft are built, just ask James. "It's wild," he laughs. "All kinds of homework."

It's exciting to know that after last year's incident, James has healed and is still reaching for the clouds. And no doubt when his 'Firestar' is ready to go airborne, for Harris the sky's the limit!

SKYS THE LIMIT -- For James Harris, of Ivanhoe, who landed the "dragonfly" experimental aircraft in some trees south of Woodville last year and came away with two broken legs. Harris has already started building another experimental aircraft called "Firebird" and plans to be flying soon. (Photo by Donnie Wayne Gulley.)

TDCJ empties county jail backlog ahead of schedule

AUSTIN — Texas Department of Criminal Justice officials announced Tuesday that thanks to the largest prison expansion program in the history of the free world, the backlog of state prisoners in county jails has been wiped out ahead of the Sept. 1 deadline set four years ago by the Legislature.

TDCJ executive director James A. Collins said that the backlog was eliminated by TDCJ taking more than 20,000 new inmates into its expansion units since June 1.

The backlog in its worst days saw more than 30,000 state prisoners held in often overcrowded county jails. It resulted in parole rates reaching 75 percent and in lawsuits which have cost the state $650 million in fines and payments to counties for housing state prisoners.

Criminal Justice Board chairman Allan Polunsky of San Antonio said that "Texans can be proud of TDCJ's accomplishment in completing the expansion program on time and within budget, even though we need not be proud to live in a society which requires 145,000 prison beds."

"It is no secret that five or six years ago the criminal justice system was broken. But today, at least for the time being, it has been fixed," Polunsky said. "The word should go out that those who choose to commit criminal acts can expect to be incarcerated for a long time."

"We have restored integrity to the system because the criminal element can no longer endanger society with impunity from meaningful punishment," he said.

Collins said that TDCJ had a population of 127,000 when the last inmate was checked in from the counties earlier this week. The system's capacity was 130,864.

Construction will be completed by the end of the year on the final 14,000 beds in the expansion program but TDCJ officials have announced that those units will not be opened until needed throughout the next year.

Collins pointed out that the $1.5 billion expansion program has been completed "at about half the national average prison construction cost."

Texas State Prison capacity has changed throughout the years as follows: 1971 - 15,418; 1980 - 28,543; 1985 - 37,320; 1990 - 49,157; 1992 - 55,234; 1993 - 69,054; March 1994 - 77,457; December 1994 - 90,215; May 1995 - 117,202; August 1995 - 130,864; and January 1996 - 145,000.

Wilson announces $1.7 million HUD award for Burke Center

LUFKIN — U. S. Rep. Charlie Wilson has announced the awarding of a $1.7 million Housing and Urban Development grant to the Burke Center to provide housing assistance to mentally ill and homeless East Texans.

The $1.7 million grant was part of a nearly $1 billion grant announced by HUD Secretary Henry Cisneros that will fund more than 800 projects across the country.

The Burke Center will use the funds to establish permanent housing and ensure there is a system of services and supports which enables people with mental illness to be successful in the living situation of their choice. The Burke Center's Housing Task Force has worked to establish an assisted living residence at Fairweather Lodge in Nacogdoches and a treatment/training residence at Alpha House in Lufkin. To ensure there is no duplication of any other housing initiatives in the region, the Burke Center's Housing Task Force is working with the Deep East Texas Council of Governments' Housing Department.

"This funding will go a long way to helping homeless mothers and children in crisis," Wilson said. "And too, it will support other agencies' efforts to move homeless people off the streets to self-sufficient lives in permanent housing."

"This is yet another testament to the good works of the Burke Center and of course to Anna Belle and Ward Burke who have given of themselves tirelessly so that others might have a better life," Wilson said.

At the Village

By Dottie Johnson

Blacksmiths, Spinners & Weavers and the last of our doctors

Tell us about the Blacksmiths, we asked. We're always talking about the Dulcimers and their sweet, sweet music and the Spinners and Weavers and their months of planning for their Sheep to Shawl demonstrations at the Harvest Festival.

But they are just two of the three extremely active organizations that give so much to the Village and the community.

The third one is the East Texas Blacksmith Alliance, which was formed at the Village, has grown by leaps and bounds under the Village umbrella and gives so much to our visitors in the way of demonstrations, education and yes, entertainment.

So, let's hear from the blacksmiths.

Between members and guests there were 35 blacksmithing participants in attendance at last Saturday's meeting, including four teenage boys and one teenage girl. There is a growing interest in this art form among the young, and there were a number in the "just looking" audience that swelled last Saturday's audience.

The day started as usual at 9 a.m. at the Village Forge (in a shop in the ETBA built themselves). It was going strong until the smithys were virtually swept out the gates at the Village's 5 p.m. closing time.

Now that's dedication, especially when you consider the fact that blacksmithing isn't one of the coolest of outdoor sports for August.

Wizard for the day was Tom Lundquist, who spent the morning demonstrating the forging of tongs and the afternoon showing how to use those tongs in making knife blades.

At their September 9 meeting, to which any and all interested blacksmiths are invited, there will be open forging for those in attendance, which will be minus 10 of our finest ETBA members.

Where those 10 will be off to is the Sid Richardson Ranch near Bridgeport for Hammerfest '95, the annual fall workshop of the North Texas Blacksmith Association. Guest demonstrators will be Hershel and Frank House of Woodbury, Kentucky, who are regarded as two of the finest and most highly recognized blacksmith-gunsmiths in the country. Their grandfather was the gunsmith written about in Foxfire Five, one of the dozen or so books detailing pioneer skills, taken from live interviews with the artisans themselves.

Sheep to Shawl ready to go

But where there's news, there's news, and the Spinners and Weavers have quite a bit.

Saturday before last, Georgia Collins and Martha Hanlon got together at Martha's Jasper home and dyed half of the wool they had sheared during Wool Days, making sure they had enough for all the preliminary steps to their Sheep to Shawl demonstration. Georgia and Guild president Irene Hamel will split the carding chores to get enough yarn ready for the spinners and enough left over to warp the loom and get the weft ready for weaving.

Sounds complicated, doesn't it, but that's the way these folks talk and work, and word of their expertise is spreading throughout the south.

Proof of this is in the fact that the Heritage Village Spinners and Weavers Guild has been invited to Vermilionville, Louisiana, on August 25 and 26, to participate in their celebration of Textiles Month.

According to Georgia and Jesse Collins who, with Martha and Gary Hanlon, will represent our Village group, Vermilionville is a Folk Life Center much like ours with a Living History Museum and Village that portrays the culture of the Cajun and Creole people who settled there more than 200 years ago. The accent is distinctly French in flavor.

Situated between Petite Bayou and Bayou Vermilion, Vermilion was the original name of what is now Lafayette, Louisiana. Unlike our Village, it is totally supported by the state under the Louisiana Endowment of the Humanities, an affiliate of the National Endowment.

The Textile Month celebration is running throughout the month. Admission is $3 for adults, $6.50 for seniors, $5 for students and free for children under six.

Harvest Festival

Meanwhile, the Guild says they are just about ready for the Harvest Festival, which is a reminder for us to remind everyone that we WILL need those dried corn stalks and dried corn for our decorations and our corn shelling demonstrations for the young ones - that we WILL need some of those jellies and jams you put up this summer for the Heritage Society COUNTRY STORE - that we WILL need volunteers to help in this most important function of our Village life.

A visit with Bryan Martin

It was a long time a-coming.

I had an appointment to do an oral history with Bryan Martin two or three years ago, when something happened to put it on hold.

What stirred him to call was his feeling that we had missed Dr. Cruse in our writings about early Tyler County doctors. Actually, we had written what we could find about both Dr. Cruses, which wasn't as much as there should have been, to be sure.

As it turned out, we didn't spend much time talking about the late doctors since the invitation to drive out was extended to Marjorie Schultz and me. He wanted us to see some of the old documents he had concerning the land where he lives high up off FM 1746.

It was a delightful visit with Bryan and Lou Martin, who don't get out much anymore but have the minds and the memories to offset their lack of mobility.

Born in Shelby County in 1909, Bryan moved to Tyler County with his parents, his three brothers, Noah, Parlie and Ernest, his three sisters, Vallye, Tempie and Ernie, Ernest's twin. He and Lou were married 62 years ago in the middle of the Rockland Bridge, meeting their friend Brother Nash of San Augustine half-way.

The big surprise was finding out that Lou (Lucille Richardson) grew up in the Cherokee community. She lived there until she was 13, when the family moved to Woodville so she could go to high school. They lived on the corner of Elm Street (now MLK) and Gardner Streets. "That's where we courted," Bryan told us. He also told us that Gardner Street ran right down to where the Chapmans lived. "That was Dr. W. P. Chapman," he told us. "Did you find out anything about him for your doctor's exhibit?"

I hadn't, although his name was included in the listings more than once.

Dear Editor:

With over 60 people responding to the call to help clean up Spurger last Saturday, there is no way to thank individuals, but you know who you are and so do your neighbors.

To all who cleaned up their own yards, to all who volunteered to help others, to everyone who mowed and picked up trash, a great big THANK YOU from the people of Spurger. We're going to do it again on September 23, so get prepared.

'Are Dems abandoning sinking party boat?'

Dear Editor:

Have you taken note of the number of Democrats bailing out of the Democratic party? Amazing, is it not, how quickly these particular warm blooded critters recognized the sinking of their political ship and began to abandon it soon after the elections last fall. Which only goes to prove they are survivalist, if nothing else.

There have been two lawmakers in the House and two in the Senate to make the move to the GOP, with more likely to follow. The most recent was Rep. Billy Tauzin of Kenner, Louisiana. The eight-time elected conservative Democrat said of the change, "You know it is time to move when you don't want your own leadership to come back into power." Welcome aboard, Mr. Tauzin, you have seen the light.

All this party jumping, however, is cause to wonder what might happen should the unthinkable occur and power shift back to the liberals. Would this same group of folks experience another change of heart and be blown about by whatever political wind that seems stronger at the time?

What has changed within the Democratic party to cause long entrenched members to desert? Certainly not the liberal view of the world, as evidenced by the Democratic stance taken in the recent Waco hearings. A political party is not a group from which one can drop membership as casually as changing health clubs. A political party is made up of people who claim to share the same philosophies in government and life. Have these people, then, changed their beliefs as well as their political alliance?

I don't know about you, but I find that I cannot readily trust someone who switches allegiance so easily. Remember Ross Perot and his on again, off again, Presidential bid in 1992? He lost much of the voter support he had won by appearing to be indecisive.

One thing I do know: these Washington fat cats have been in power too long, 41 years, and it was time for a change in the old guard. After so long a period as the political force, the liberal Democratic party had lost touch with mainstream Americans, many of whom have been holding down two jobs to support their families in the face of governmental regulation and taxation seemingly designed to destroy the family unity that is the very backbone of any nation.

It would be historically accurate to say no nation can long survive which imposes an unjust burden of taxation upon its citizens, while continually funding governmental waste and corruption through a myriad of federal giveaway programs.

The answer is quite simple: government must function within a budget, just as you and I must do. We cannot spend money we don't have and neither should government be allowed to do so.

If this means down-sizing and cutting money allocated to those programs and agencies which have traditionally supported those individuals who will not work and refuse to be responsible for themselves, then so be it.

I am not advocating taking governmental assistance from those who have a genuine need for help. Only those people, able to work and better themselves, who refuse to try. I firmly believe a person, able of mind and body, that refuses work, should not eat.

Liberals have a history of support for the tax-and-spend bureaucracy which has been allowed to prevail on Capitol Hill far too long. The voting public is slowly waking up to the goings on in Washington and as public opinion continues to shift in favor of the GOP promise of change, I suspect even more Democrats will jump ship to grasp at a spoke on the wheel of the conservative bandwagon.

Only time will tell whether the GOP is up to the job entrusted to them in November 1994. We, as concerned voters, must maintain a watchful eye on Washington to see that our expectations are carried out.

'Call for help'

Dear Editor:

I imagine you have heard by now that we have lost our director at the Nutrition Center.

We were advised to have our books audited, which we have done.

The audit revealed bills unpaid in the amount of $20,000 among other discrepancies. We had been told that our bills were current or nearly so.

Our bank account at this time is almost totally depleted and we have no more funds coming from the government until matters are corrected. In other words, we are in serious financial trouble.

I know that none of us wants to lose this Center.

We are serving about 200 meals a day. About 100 of those go to homebound people.

Some of you have indicated a desire to help. We need that now, and quickly.

If you can help, please give your contributions to Doris Elliot when you pay for your meal, or mail your check to Tyler County Nutrition Center, P. O. Box 455, Woodville, TX 75979. Contributions are tax deductible.

Thank you in advance for your contributions. Sincerely,

J. T. Riley, Board Member

An open letter to Woodville ISD patrons

Dear Editor:

Last week, we received notice from the Texas Education Agency (TEA) that Woodville High School would be considered "low performing" because of its 6.4% dropout rate.

This dropout rate calculation is in error, and we have submitted our appeal to TEA this week.

The error is linked to our successful community dropout recovery program. We have utilized grant funds to fund a program to recruit young adults from the Tyler County community to reenter school and to complete their diplomas or GEDs, and some of these students have been mistakenly counted against Woodville High School's dropout rate. We are appealing to TEA to make the necessary corrections in our student data to rectify this error. We think our dropout recovery program is an excellent program, and we are very proud of the individuals who have now completed their high school education.

Again, I want to emphasize that the low performing label applies only to the dropout rate and not to the academic program. Woodville High School's academic scores are very high and are above the state averages in all areas. We feel we have an outstanding academic program which prepares students for further education and transition into the job market. Our high school is one of approximately 200 high schools nationwide recognized as a mentor in the High Schools That Work program, and our students are able to take courses for college credit and serve in apprenticeships while completing their education at Woodville High School. Academic and athletic competition has produced many successes for our students, and we feel our extracurricular programs are outstanding. Our school facility is one of the finest in the state, and we are proud of their professional accomplishments.

As we await the results of the appeal, we ask for your support and assistance in getting correct information to our school community.

Carol Moffett
Superintendent, Woodville ISD

Not too big

By Darby Kethan

"You're too big, Grandy," said two year old Lauren when I told her I was going swimming with her in our small pool. Well . . . I wasn't, and we did! I already knew that the galvanized stock tank we use for a kid's swimming pool was fun for "kids" my size and smaller. We taught lots of kids to swim in that small body of water simply by allowing them lots of playing time and by playing along with them.

That tank - 6' across by 30" deep - is a wonderful and inexpensive investment for a lifetime swimming pool for kids. All the early skills for learning to swim can be achieved even in less water than it holds. Blowing bubbles, learning to put eyes and ears under water, picking up objects off the bottom, jellyfish and starfish floats, even back floating . . . there is plenty of water for all of these activities. And, of course, plenty of water for danger, also, so use great care to supervise constantly any children in the pool . . . and to place it in an area where no unsupervised children can get to it!

Water play and water activities are great ways for kids to build muscles, to learn to swim and to build social skills. Even Lauren made up a game for us to play, by her rules, of course, which is perfectly OK with me. There's a direct link between children making up and playing games by rules and their functioning in society as adults who follow and make rules. Getting along with peers by deciding what games to play and how the rules will be helps children become adults who can get along while making the same kinds of decisions. Children understand rules and games differently than adults. Young children have little sense of competition and will often volunteer to help others at the expense of "winning" themselves. Allowing them to make rules and play with others means they discover for themselves . . . which is really the only way we all learn . . . just what works and what doesn't. I remember how we found out that pouting isn't an effective problem solving tool . . . our friend would get her dolls and go home when things didn't suit her. We missed her, but not so much as to stop our play . . . and later, when she returned, we told her so. Better to talk it out!

What I enjoyed as we swam in our "private pool" was watching Lauren discover water as a place for fun and for skill building. She learned she could float with her feet sticking out of the water, that she could put her head all the way back in the water, and that if she splashed me, I would splash her back. She obviously loves the water just as I do. What Lauren helped me discover was just how much relaxing even this small pool of water can be. Set under leafy, green branches, it is just the place for refreshing, even for big people.

Local landowner experiences

A part of the Texas A&M University system

By Keith Hawkins

An absentee landowner from Houston recently wanted to sell timber on his 38 acre tract. He also has a cabin for weekend use. One of his major concerns was minimizing site disturbance and erosion problems caused by logging. His reasoning was that he would still have to pay the same property taxes if his soil washed away. Therefore, he wanted to keep his soil and receive the most benefits he could from it.

The most effective way a landowner can protect his property from logging damage is to use forestry Best Management Practices or BMPs. BMPs are designed to protect water quality from erosion and sedimentation, but they can also reduce logging damage and unsightliness.

One example of a BMP is having streamside management zones or SMZs. An SMZ is tree cover left beside streams and ponds. The tree stand acts as a filter before runoff reaches the water. A proper SMZ allows a landowner to harvest up to half of his trees. If more than 50 percent is cut, then the SMZ loses its effectiveness.

A landowner near Warren asked a logger to leave trees next to his stream, but the logger cut up to the stream banks. Another landowner still had equipment ruts eight years after the timbering was finished. Still another landowner whose property is near Dam B found deep gullies due to poor logging.

To avoid logging abuses, a landowner needs to specify BMPs in the timber sale contract. The Texas Forest Service has free technical guidelines that can fit into a pickup glove box or into a sale contract. If the logger fails to comply with BMP guidelines, then the landowner can assess a stiff penalty as outlined in the timber sale contract.

Fortunately, there are conscientious loggers. Later this year the TFS will have a lift of BMP-certified loggers. These loggers have learned about proper BMPs through logger training sessions. A good timber sale contract should require the logger to have BMP training before he cuts the first tree.

Effective BMP's will solve most problems related to logging damage. To learn more about BMPs, call the TFS at 283-3785 and request a free copy of Texas BMPs for Silviculture.

PROfessions 'More semantics'

By David Rust

What's this? More semantics? Come on, you are probably saying, let's get real.

Folks, don't sell short. Semantics is real. This semi-obscure word might be defined as the science of communications via language. And without that, we are right back to pre-Stone Age.

What brought this on was a squib in the Beaumont Enterprise's "Today in History" feature. On July 16th, 1964, Barry Goldwater was nominated for President by the GOP. Accepting, he made the famous statement that got Lyndon Johnson elected: ". . . Extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice - moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue." Now I ask you, do you see anything amiss with that? The passage of time has taken the sting out of those words, but some of us remember that the contest that year had been labeled (by the Democrats) a choice between moderates [Democrats] and extremists [Goldwater]. And "moderate" sounds safer, now doesn't it?

I liked Barry G. He was a fighter pilot, and if any other qualification be needed, a forthright and honest politician. The words he used in his acceptance speech could not be faulted on rational grounds. But the thing whose impact he misjudged was the subconscious emotional weight those words were to be given by his enemies.

I well remember a televised interview with Nelson Rockefeller a few days later, probably at the Democratic convention. Rockefeller, as you may remember, was a mealy-mouthed rich kid who thought he might like to be President himself. Asked about Goldwater's speech, he took on an expression like swallowing a bad oyster. He repeated the awful words more or less, and then with horrified distaste said something like "Shocking!" (which translates "Totally gross" in '90's teenese). Neither he nor any other Democrat opposed the sense of Barry's words, not publicly anyhow. But their covert implication of maniacal irresponsibility was swallowed whole by enough voters to put LBJ into office.

It is idle speculation to nurse the what-if's, of course. Whether Goldwater would have handled the Viet Nam war better than LBJ did, we'll never know (but he could hardly have done any worse). My point here is that he would most likely have been elected in 1964 but for an unfortunate lapse in his use of semantics.

Sometimes good semantics takes liberties with good grammar. Remember when I told you that grammar must be the servant of communications, i.e., semantics? One of the more drastic examples I know of comes from Confederate General Nathan B. Forrest. No, it's not "Git thar fustest with the mostest", which he did not say. He was relatively unlettered, but not that unlettered. However, there is in my family a copy of a letter endorsed by him.

Written by a captain under his command, this beautifully scripted, elegantly phrased missive filled two pages, requesting a special leave from the fighting front. Diagonally across the first page, Forrest had scrawled "I tol you twict, goddammit, No!"

A little closer to contemporary, there was the incident during the Battle of the Bulge, in Europe in December of 1944. The all-out German assault, protected from Allied air power by atrocious weather, had steamrolled the American forces rearward. A contingent of troops commanded by General Anthony McAuliffe had been surrounded, and were in a seemingly desperate plight. At this stage the German commander sent word offering surrender terms to the American forces. McAuliffe's reply may not have been good communications to the Germans (though I expect they got the message). But it was magnificent semantics to his own forces. He said, "Tell them, Nuts!"

Or as Ephraim Guehocker once remarked, "I ain't too smart to go bear huntin' with a fly swatter."

Shalom . . .

Area teacher completes NASA workshop

KENNEDY SPACE CENTER — Harriett Langston, a teacher at Warren Elementary School, recently completed a two-week NASA Education Workshop for Elementary School Teachers (NEWEST) workshop at John F. Kennedy Space Center. Langston was among 23 specially selected master educators attending the workshop June 18-30.

Langston was selected for the program by a committee made up from members of the co-sponsoring organizations, which are NASA, The National Science Teachers Association, the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and the International Technology Educators Association.

This joint program provides an in-depth opportunity for elementary school teachers to learn more about space science and technology. While at KSC, they work directly with space agency engineers and scientists. NEWEST is also designed to inform teachers about NASA's educational programs and materials.

While at the space center, the NEWEST group viewed KSC Space Shuttle processing and launch facilities. They also got a close look at the specialized laboratories and operational areas where NASA space technology is developed. Some of these areas included the materials testing, chemistry and biomedical research labs. The space technology segment also included briefings by NASA engineers and scientists about KSC's space-related biomedical and biological programs., future space missions and how satellites aid in weather forecasting, geological research and navigation on Earth.

Educational resources segments of the workshop included hands-on work at KSC's Exploration Station, job shadowing of NASA executives for space science career development and work in the Educators Resource Library.

To learn how wildlife co-exists with the space program, the NEWEST teachers studied the ecology of Cape Canaveral National Seashore just north of KSC and the Merritt Island National Wildlife Refuge within the boundaries of the 140,000 acre space center. A special session on one ecosystem in the local environment was provided during this part of the workshop, including a midnight trip to watch sea turtles lay their eggs on the seashore beach.

There was also time for a bit of fun while learning the chemistry and physics of a rocket launch. The NEWEST group members first built their own model solid motor rockets and then launched them in a nearby field.

Now I have, thanks to their suggestion that I call Rena Mae Chapman of Spurger, who turned me over to the family genealogist, her sister-in-law Robbie Chapman Hargis of San Antonio.

There were two Dr. Chapmans, I discovered, both of whom received their doctorates from the University of Tennessee in Memphis.

First there was our informant's grandfather Dr. William Payne Chapman, born in Atlanta, Georgia, in 1837. He died in 1905 and is buried in Magnolia Cemetery next to his wife, Dora Cecelia Swearingen. It was in the latter part of the 1870s before Dr. Chapman and his family came to Tyler County. The only Chapman in the 1870 Census was a 16 year old James Chapman working as a farm laborer for J. J. Swearingen, which starts to sound like family.

In the 1880 Census we find Dr. William P., wife Dora and five of their seven children: John William, who also became a doctor (b. 1862 in Georgia), Mary Chapman (Simmons), Lee Jackson, Harriet (Wright) and James Judson, the last three born in Texas, presumably in Beaumont. The last two children were Robert Payne Chapman b. 1882 (the father of our informant) and LeClere Chapman, both of whom must have been born in Tyler County.

According to his granddaughter, Dr. William P. Chapman's practice was primarily in Woodville. His home was, as the Martins told us, at the south end of Gardner Street. Her uncle, Dr. John William Chapman, practiced mainly in Spurger, where many members of the Chapman family settled and still live.

Of particular interest to me as a Spurgerite myself was to learn that the children's play yard at the Spurger Methodist Church, which was built by her nephew Joe Chapman, was dedicated to his "Aunt Robbie" with whom I had such a delightful visit on Sunday afternoon.

Armed Forces exhibit next

And so the Drs. Chapman end our trip down medical history, as Aloha Freeland and her committee get ready to mount a brand new exhibit saluting our men in uniform, from the American Revolution (we hope) through Viet Nam and Desert Storm.

Although Aloha has been collecting histories and memorabilia from her own family and that of her friends, she needs more, lots more.

If you have artifacts, histories, letters, uniforms, pictures, what-have-you about your men in uniform, please share them with Aloha and her committee through donation or loan.

This exhibit which should be open on Friday, September 1, will remain in place through November, when it's time to do our Christmas thing.

1995 is already passing us by. Don't miss a single interesting minute of the Village and what's happening there.

DAYS GONE BY --The experimental plane shown in the backgroundcalled a "Dragonfly" is the one which crashed last year landing atop a clump of trees south of Woodville. Pilot James Harris, of Ivanhoe ,said "it was skill that brought me down safely..I worked hard all the way down."

Dr. Cruse Melvin interim dean of College of Arts and Sciences at Lamar

BEAUMONT — Dr. Cruse Melvin, professor of physics, will assume the duties of interim dean of the Lamar University College of Arts and Sciences on Aug. 15, announced Dr. William Cale, executive vice president for academic affairs.

Melvin is taking the post vacated by Dr. Kendall Blanchard who resigned to take the position of vice chancellor for academic affairs at the University of Tennessee at Martin effective with the fall semester.

Melvin came to Lamar in the fall of 1986. A native of Austin, Melvin earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from Stephen F. Austin State University and his doctorate from Tulane University.

He has served chair of the physics department and on numerous university committees. He is a member of the American Association of Physics Teachers, the International Solar Energy Society and Sigma Pi Sigma science society.

He is married and has two sons.

Blanchard spent four years as dean of Arts and Sciences at Lamar. UT-Martin is a member of the University of Tennessee.

"I was attracted to the Tennessee position for several reasons," Blanchard said. "I spent 15 years in Tennessee in the State Board of Regents system. I have family in Tennessee.

"Much has been accomplished here at Lamar. New programs have been developed, faculty research has continued to bring money and visibility to the university. Lamar remains an outstanding comprehensive university and one of Southeast Texas' greatest assets.

"As Lamar faces the next few years now as part of the Texas State University System, the College of Arts and Sciences will continue to play a central role in the institution. Dr. Melvin is a dedicated and capable administrator and teacher, both qualities desired for his new position," Blanchard concluded.

State Senator Drew Nixon, (R.), of Carthage

Senator Nixon named 'Leader of Excellence'

AUSTIN — Senator Drew Nixon [R-Carthage] was honored this month at a Houston luncheon sponsored by the Free Market Foundation, and was chosen as a "1995 Leader of Excellence" based on an objective calculation of how he voted on 97 recorded votes in the Senate during the recent legislative session. The votes used to determine "Leaders of Excellence" covered economic, governmental, educational and social issues.

"I'm honored that the Free Market Foundation has chosen my record as an example of conservative values," Nixon said.

"As an accountant and a small businessman, I understand the difficulties of coping with the burdensome regulations of state government," said Nixon. "Throughout the legislative session, I remained consistent to my conservative principles, which call for more individual freedom and the reduction of the size of our government."

Nixon was one of only two Southeast Texas Senators to win the Leader of Excellence Award.

"Whenever the opportunity arose to vote on legislation, the most important factor on my mind was doing what is right for the people of Texas," Nixon said.

Nixon's Senate attendance record 100%, voting record 99.86%

AUSTIN — Senator Drew Nixon [R-Carthage] received notification from the State Senate last month that his attendance record was a perfect 100 percent and his voting record was a near perfect 99.86 percent.

"I'm very proud of my attendance and voting records," said Nixon. "Since my service in the State Senate began, I've been working very hard to do what is right for the people of Texas."

The Senate convened a total of 83 times during the 74th session, and Senator Nixon was present for all of them, which reflects a perfect 100 percent attendance record. During debate and the consideration of legislation, the Senate voted on pending issues and other legislation 2,919 times. Senator Nixon voted 2,915 times, which reflects a near perfect 99.86 percent voting record.

"My record illustrates my dedication and commitment to those I represent," said Nixon. "I came to Austin to represent them, and my percentages show that I've been doing just that."

Numbers up in first week of football workouts

COUNTY — Three of the four county high school football teams had an increase of players out for first week workouts over the same period last year.

Woodville had 110 players, including 30 varsity, 33 junior varsity and 47 freshmen.

Warren was up 10 players over last year with 63, including 21 freshmen.

The county's class A schools, Colmesneil and Chester had 33 and 27 respectively. Colmesneil was down three from last year, while Chester was up seven.

Woodville coach Ty Quick said that he was impressed with his players during the hot workouts, especially their attitude. He also was pleased with the number of freshmen who showed up for the workouts, citing that much of the credit needed to be directed toward coach David Stallcup.

The workouts for Woodville included a 3-4:40 session for freshman and a 4:45-7:00 session for the varsity Wednesday through Friday. Saturday the varsity was back at it from 9:30 until noon.

"It was hot, but everyone hung in," smiled Quick. "I am tickled with their attitude."

The Eagles will continue to work out and host two scrimmage games. Their first will be against Hamshire- Fannet on August 25, and the second will be held September 1 against Livingston.

At Warren Mickey Mixon and his staff said that they had a "great week." Warren practiced from 8-11 and from 3-5:30 on Wednesday with a lunch and team meeting in between. Thursday and Friday they held workouts from 8-12.

The Warriors will return 15 lettermen this season, including six offensive and seven defensive starters. One player missing from the scrimmages this week was Troy Jones, a 6-2, 230 tackle. Mixon says that Jones might have moved.

Warren will scrimmage Huntington at home on August 25 and travel to West Sabine for another scrimmage outing September 1.

Coach Steve Park and his staff at Chester are hoping for one more player to come out for football. If and when that happens, the Yellowjackets will be able to field a junior varsity team.

Park wants 28 players so he can carry 16 on the varsity and 12 on the junior varsity. The 27 out so far for football is an increase of seven over last year. Park attributes the increase to new students at Chester.

The Yellowjackets did lose a couple of players who moved away, including defensive back Jesse Sneed and lineman Jeremy Byrom.

Chester worked out from 2:30-4:40 Wednesday through Friday of last week. Park noted that the players came into opening practice sessions in better shape this year than last.

Scrimmage sessions for Chester include a road outing at Lovelady on August 25 and a home scrimmage against Concordia Lutheran on September 1.

All-Star game holds special memories for Lamberth

FORT WORTH — For Josh Lamberth, the McDonald's All-Star Basketball Game will forever hold a special memory when he looks back on his high school basketball days.

The recent Woodville grad was one of 24 players selected from across the state to play in the annual game held last week at Daniel Myer Coliseum on the campus of Texas Christian University. And although Lamberth did not score any points or make any spectacular plays, he did represent his school and community in a very positive way.

"The experience was great," emphasized Lamberth. "It was one of the better experiences I've had in basketball."

Lamberth arrived at T.C.U. on a Thursday and practiced with the rest of the all-stars for three days. While there he made many new friends and learned from his new teammates and coaching staff.

"The coaching staff made it real easy," he added. "They were the nicest guys."

The Woodville all-star says that it didn't take long for all the new players to start working together. Part of the reason, he said, was because he and several players began to play cards. Once that happened, everybody began to play and got to know each other better.

"I felt like we had been a team for a long time," he noted.

Over 5,000 watched Lamberth and the rest of the all-stars play a down-to-the-wire game Monday evening. The North finally edged the South, 118-117, by out-scoring their opponents 44-24 in the last quarter.

Lamberth played 11 minutes in the game. He shot three times, two from behind the three point line, and didn't connect. He did pull down a couple of rebounds and was whistled for two fouls.

Said his dad and high school coach, John Lamberth, "Josh started inside, but they eventually moved him to the outside. There was pretty good competition up there."

With the experience and memories behind him, the younger Lamberth now moves on to start college at Louisiana Tech next week. Although he received an academic scholarship, he has also decided to take a chance as a "walk-on" at the Monroe school.

"The coach says that there is an opening," says Lamberth, "so I'll give it a try."

BOMBS AWAY — Woodville's Josh Lamberth gets ready to fire off a three pointer in last week's McDonald's All-Star Basketball Game in Fort Worth. Lamberth and his teammates lost to the North, 118-117, at Daniel Myers Colseum on the campus of Texas Christian University. He will now move on to Louisiana Tech on an academic scholarship. He also plans to attempt to play basketball at the college as a walk on.

Tracy Byrd concert/ tournament to benefit March of Dimes

SAM RAYBURN — Inflyght Public Relations of Nashville, TN and Inter/Cartel Management of Beaumont have teamed up to officially announce the dates for the upcoming major event which is expected to raise funds for the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation as well as provide a major tourism attraction for the East Texas Lakes Area.

Country artist, Tracy Byrd, and "Friends" will be coordinating a two part entertainment package which will provide a "Major" fishing tournament to be held on the scenic shores of Lake Sam Rayburn, and a Country Music Concert to be held at the Civic Center in Beaumont.

October 21 and 22 marks the dates for Tracy Byrd's Celebrity Big Bass Splash fishing tournament, which offers its contestants "Guaranteed" pay out of $55,000 in cash and prizes. Tournament Directors, Bob Selby, C.E.O. of American Fishing Tournaments, Inc., will coordinate the "Big Bass Splash for the same format as his nationally popular McDonald's Big Bass Tournament trail, which has raised over one million dollars for the Ronald McDonald Houses across our country. The "Big Bass Splash" event is expected to draw heavy interest from the public as its hourly payout format will offer $2,000 "per hour" for the top five big bass weighed-in for each tournament hour of the two day event.

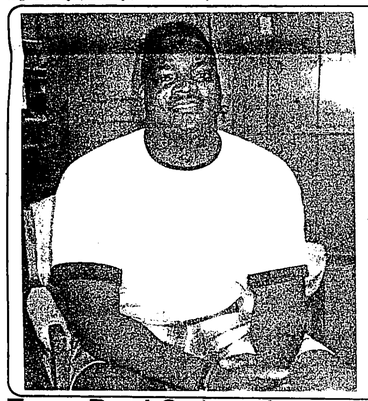
SPURGER BAPTIST YOUTH and their leaders tackled a corner lot overgrown with weeds in the center of downtown Spurger last Saturday, as they participated in the first Spurger Clean Up Day sponsored by the Spurger Civic Club. Pictured in front of Davin Ivans on his tractor are Theresa Blanton, leaders Ronnie and Debbie Loving, Jessica Sheffield and Brandy Byrd. Over 60 volunteers from throughout the community joined forces to pick up trash, mow and bush hog in an area one mile in each direction from the crossroads of FM 92 and 1013. Not present when the picture was taken was Dwight Tippett, who was helping Commissioner Henry Ray Sawyer haul trash to the dump.



Sets up scholarship fund

Derek Copes, formerly of Woodville, and a standout in football and baseball here, has opened up a scholarship fund to assist needy kids with scholarships. Copes, who now works in the Probation Officer in the Trinity County Probation Department says he wants to give back for those who helped him. The Fund was established recently at Community Bank, in Woodville, and was entitled The Charles H. and Beatrice C. Copes Memorial Scholarship fund. (Photo by John Morrison)

The lucky angler who catches the overall big bass of the two day tournament will claim the Grand Prize of a fully rigged 1996 Nitro 20-foot bass boat/tandem-axle trailer, powered by 200 HP Mercury XRI outboard and 12/24 Mercury Trolling motor - total value: $23,000.

The public is also invited to attend the two day event to enjoy the tournament activities which will also involve a special "Get Hooked on Fishing, Not Drugs", children's event. The public will also become eligible for the "free" drawing of a 1995 Sun Tracker Fishin' Barge 21 with custom trailer and 25 HP Mercury outboard valued at $10,000. NOTICE

To reduce the risk of excavation damage to underground gas pipelines, the leading cause of pipeline accidents, the Materials Transportation Bureau of the U.S. Department of Transportation requires all natural gas system operators to establish and carry out a damage prevention program. This requirement is enforced by the Railroad Commission of Texas.

The City of Woodville has a Damage Prevention Program. If you plan excavations in any public alley, street or other right-of-way, we urge you to call 409/283-2234 during normal working hours (8 a.m. to 5 p.m. - Monday through Friday) you will be told whether there are gas pipelines where you plan your excavations. This information may also be obtained by coming by City Hall, located at 113 North Charlton Street. If there are gas mains or services where you plan to dig, their location will be marked with yellow stake flags with "GAS LINE" printed on the 2 in. x 3 in. plastic flag. Asphalt or concrete paving will be marked with yellow spray paint. There is no charge for this service.

PLEASE CALL BEFORE YOU DIG. THE LIFE YOU SAVE COULD BE YOUR OWN. 32-2b

We have 10,000 Southeast Texas employees working to save you up to 49% on your next monthly phone bill.

With a little bit of help, now you can save money on every one-plus, direct-dialed call within your 1+SAVER℠ regional calling area (shown at left). Choose between two money-saving options: select Option A and get 60 minutes of regional calling for $10.80 a month. Additional minutes are just 17¢ each. Or, for just $3.00 a month, Option B saves you 15% on regional calls all day and all night, for total savings as high as 49% over weekday rates on evening and weekend calling. 19. LEGAL NOTICES

THE STATE OF TEXAS
NOTICE TO DEFENDANT: "YOU HAVE BEEN SUED. YOU MAY EMPLOY AN ATTORNEY. IF YOU OR YOUR ATTORNEY DO NOT FILE A WRITTEN ANSWER WITH THE CLERK WHO ISSUED THIS CITATION BY 10:00 A.M. ON THE MONDAY NEXT FOLLOWING THE EXPIRATION OF FORTY-TWO DAYS AFTER YOU WERE SERVED THIS CITATION AND PETITION, A DEFAULT JUDGMENT MAY BE TAKEN AGAINST YOU."
TO: UNKNOWN STOCKHOLDERS OF TYLER COUNTY FAIR, FORMERLY A NON-PROFIT TEXAS CORPORATION, NOW DEFUNCT; and all other parties claiming any title or interest in a 6.758 acre tract of land, more or less, out of the Josiah Wheat Survey, A-657, Tyler County, Texas.

You are hereby commanded to appear and answer before the District Court of Tyler County, Texas, in the Tyler County Courthouse in Tyler County, Texas, at or before 10 o'clock A.M. on the first Monday after the expiration of 42 days from the date of issuance hereof, being at or before 10 o'clock A.M. on Monday, the 25 day of September, 1995, then and there to answer the Original Petition of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Robert M. Pate Post No. 2033, A Texas Corporation in Cause No. 15,464, filed by the attorney for the Plaintiff, Joe R. Smith, 314 South Magnolia, Woodville, Texas 75979, styled VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS ROBERT M. PATE POST NO. 2033, A TEXAS CORPORATION vs. TYLER COUNTY FAIR, FORMERLY A NON-PROFIT TEXAS CORPORATION, NOW DEFUNCT, and all other parties claiming any title or interest in a 6.758 acre tract of land, more or less, out of the JOSIAH WHEAT SURVEY, A-657, Tyler County, Texas, are Defendants. The said Original Petition, filed August 2, 1995, discloses that the nature of said suit is as follows:

"Defendants are the record title owners of the surface estate, and said Defendants are a "spin-off" corporation of Plaintiffs, because at the time the property was purchased, the Plaintiffs were prohibited by law from owning an interest in land, which is further described as follows:
BEING all of a 6.758 acre tract of land, more or less, in the JOSIAH WHEAT SURVEY, ABSTRACT NO. 657, Tyler County, Texas. Said 6.758 acre tract of land, being the resurvey and remainder of a called 10.0 acre tract of land described in deed from Tyler County Fair Association to Tyler County Fair Corporation, dated June 16, 1923 and recorded in Volume 75, Page 216 of the Deed Records of Tyler County, Texas.

This suit is brought to place record title to the property in the name of the Plaintiffs, since the Defendant corporation is now defunct.

3.
WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs request that Defendants be cited to appear and answer, and that upon hearing the court enter a decree as follows:
A. Directing that a Judgment be entered placing record title to the subject property in the name of the Plaintiffs.
B. Awarding general relief, and such other relief as to which Plaintiffs may be justly entitled.
If this citation is not served within 90 days after date of its issuance, it shall be returned unserved.
ISSUED AND GIVEN UNDER MY HAND AND THE SEAL OF SAID COURT on this 7 day of August, 1995, at Woodville, Tyler County, Texas.

Here's Hope Crusade

LIVINGSTON — On August 20 through 23, Polk County churches will present the Here's Hope Crusade nightly at 7 p.m. in Lion Stadium.

The crusade, which has involved virtually all of the churches of Polk County, will feature Michael Gott, an international evangelist who grew up in Livingston, Texas to become a world travelgr. He spends four to six months each year outside the United States, muclfof the time in countries formerly referred to as the Communistic Bloc-Russia, Poland, Romania, Czechoslovakia, etc.

Gott is a communicator of the message of Christ-an evangelist. He feels that encounters with people in typical non-Christian settings is an essential part of his mission. He sits with world leaders and newsmakers to listen and share. He is driven with a desire to fulfill the command of Jesus: "Go into all the world."

Regarding his view of present world events, Gott says, "These are exciting days to be alive. As an adherent of Biblical Christianity, I see God moving amid world events. The cataclysmic turmoil of our time involves not only a great challenge, but also a great opportunity for evangelism.

"As we go into the world, we must be both unquestionably rooted in the unchanging Gospel and realistically related to a changing world. We must dare to demonstrate God's love in action to a world searching for lasting values."

Although Gott was reared in Livingston, and his family roots are in Texas, he has been educated in England as well as the U.S. He is an avid student of news events as well as the Bible. "I try preaching with a Bible in one hand and the newspaper in the other. I seek to apply the Bible to today's problems," Gott said recently.

With the separation of church and state still an explosive issue, Gott nevertheless gets into schools to speak of his experiences with world youth. He has over 1,000 speaking engagements annually.
