MAN WANTED

More than ever before in the memory of living men, we need leaders. In government, in business, and in many other vital relationships of life we are drifting. Old principles are no longer persuasive. Old ways have lost their magic. Everywhere there are uncertainty and confusion. The very time cries aloud for strong and wise leaders. The millions await the man able to draw a clear road map to the future.

We have thought of ourselves as a steady people, sure of our strength and of our genius for accomplishment. We regarded ourselves as the very Rock of Gibraltar among nations. Bewilderment and fear in Congress and the White House have now bred doubt even on prohibition, a subject which has been discussed more hotly than any other issue before the country. Those now in the possession of leadership fall to take a firm stand. Preceding the convention, the President of the United States titular leader of the Republican party, was reported as hoping "to remain entirely neutral in the platform fight." That isn't leadership of any kind, not even titular.

If Congress should continue in later sessions to behave as it behaved during April and May, not many years will elapse before we shall hear vociferous demands for a dictatorship. Congress thinks Wall Street is the incarnation of the devil and Wall Street returns the compliment. Men misunderstand situations and motives. Half of the talk and of the proposals made in Washington has rested on ignorance and prejudice.

We have drifted with the fretful current because we have not known whither to go. A scornful "Oh yeah!" has been the popular shibboleth of the past few months. All that means is disillusioned disbelief. We can't travel far on that kind of fuel.

We need the reassurance of positive leadership. We need leadership in business as well as in government. We need leaders who have courage, vision and the eloquence of strong faith. We don't have to go outside of business to become aware of the death of courageous leadership. Consider the bankers. What have they been doing?

Holding on to their deposits for the most part, clucking fearfully like sitting hens. Of course banks must be prepared for emergencies but the purpose of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was not to make hoarders of

« Roosevelt's Telegram to Colliers »

"This nation needs progressive leadership. We must recognize two parts of the problem. First, adequate immediate national state and local aid to prevent actual want in the present and immediate future. Second, a comprehensive plan covering all phases of our economic and social difficulties.

"I can cite only one phase of this in this limited space. The farming interests represent half of our population. They have lost buying power and this has been largely responsible for depressing industry. We must at once take the Farm Board out of speculation in wheat and cotton, try out a new plan to insure getting surplus out of the country without putting the government in business, and set up machinery to save the mortgaged farm by cutting down amortization and lowering interest rates.

"These immediate steps must be followed by a landutilization survey in order to eliminate marginal lands and start a very large reforestation and flood-control program. "Finally we must give assistance to those families in cities who may wish to return to good land. "I use these as illustrations of the broad planning and active leadership which must extend to all the other problems because it is clear that the solution lies not in opportunism or in last-minute remedies, but in going to the sources of the trouble." FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

Garner for Appeal of 18th Amendment

Garner Indicates he Would Accept the Nomination for the Presidency. Texan Says He Appreciates Support and Is Ready to Serve Party and Nation in Any Capacity.

Washington, June 21.—John N. Garner, speaker of the house and one-time cowboy, swung his politicalariat toward the Democratic presidential nomination today with a statement urging repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

In a formal statement, the speaker said he had voted against the eighteenth amendment and added: "I have never believed it sound or workable and it should be repealed." Ready To Serve

Discussing the Democratic presidential nomination, he said: "California and Texas Democrats are sending delegations to the Chicago convention instructed to vote for my nomination for the presidency.

"This has been done without my solicitation," he continued. "I appreciate the support of my friends and am willing to serve my country and my party to the limit of my capacity." Returning to the capitol after being confined at his hotel several days by illness, the speaker handed newspaper men the following statement:

Text of Statement
"Many of my friends, not only those residing in my own district and state, but throughout the country, have asked me repeatedly to express myself on various public questions. "I have maintained the position I assumed when I was elected speaker of the house of representatives, that I would not indulge in the discussion of controversial issues not immediately under consideration by the house.

"Moreover, during the 30 years I have been a member of congress, practically every principle involved in the problems of the nation today have been before the house, and my views thereon are a matter of record. "This country has erected tariff barriers that are practically excluding the products of foreign nations. This makes it economically impossible for these nations to buy from us the products of our farms and our factories, thereby aggravating our industrial depression.

"Relief Temporary
"All relief measures so far have been purely temporary, and do not go to the root of the trouble. No sound-thinking citizen can favor the delay; neither can the government sit idly by and see its people starve when they are willing to work. "Enough work must be provided to keep the people from starving, and we shall be fortunate indeed if this irreducible cost minimum does not greatly exceed the amount provided in the relief measures which I sponsored. "Before genuine and permanent relief can be accomplished, the finances of the basic industries of this nation must be placed on a sane basis, thereby removing the specter of receiverships and foreclosures and restoring their buying power and ability to employ labor.

"International trade must be re-established by the restoration of international confidence and credits. Honesty among nations is as essential a virtue as honesty among individuals. "An individual who borrows and makes no honest effort to pay is dishonest; the same applies to a nation. "If foreign debts should be canceled, the credit of the nations involved would be destroyed and they can not borrow again. "The government of the United States owes it to its citizens to collect the extent of their ability to pay, and there should be no film-fam accepted as to that ability to pay.

"When the prohibition amendment was proposed I, as a member of congress, voted against it. I have never believed it sound or workable, and it should be repealed. "The cost of government, city, county, state and nation—can and should be reduced not less than one-third. "The principal obligations of a government, established in accordance with the American principles and traditions, is to protect all of its people in the free enjoyment of the fruits of their labor, and the pursuit of happiness.

Appreciates Support
"The steadily increasing tendency toward Socialism and Communism is the gravest possible menace. The government should use every means within its power to prevent their further spread and they should receive no encouragement from any American citizen, high or low. "The Democrats of California and of my native state, Texas, are sending delegations to the national convention in Chicago instructed to vote for my nomination for the presidency. "This has been done without my solicitation. I appreciate the support of my friends and am willing to serve my country and my party to the limit of my capacity." Tell your friends about the Booster.

Grasshopper Menace Recalls Campaign of the Year 1924

College Station.—The grasshopper invasion which is menacing Texas recalls the early summer of 1924 when a gigantic demonstration campaign covering half of Texas was organized by County Agents with the result that the hoppers were stopped "cold" wherever demonstration methods were followed," states R. R. Reppert, extension entomologist of Texas A. & M. College. In that year record was obtained of 21,215 farmers who controlled crops on a million and a half acres at total savings of more than seven million dollars.

"Grasshoppers are popularly supposed to come in seven year cycles," says Mr. Reppert, "but many factors may interfere with the regularity of appearance of these destructive pests. Indications from last year's scattered infestations did not point to a wholesale invasion this season, but early spring appearances have changed matters. The situation is already the worst since 1924 and may possibly develop to very serious proportions, especially if dry weather continues, in practically all parts of Texas.

"County Agents are watching the situation closely and where necessary re-issuing and re-demonstrating the use of poison bran mash which has become the standard control measure. This is made by mixing 25 pounds bran mash, one pound Paris green or white arsenic, and one pound common salt together, diluting one once with two gallons of water, and pouring this liquid over the poisoned bran until every particle is moist. Furthermore, during the 30 years I have been a member of congress, practically every principle involved in the problems of the nation today have been before the house, and my views thereon are a matter of record.

"This country has erected tariff barriers that are practically excluding the products of foreign nations. This makes it economically impossible for these nations to buy from us the products of our farms and our factories, thereby aggravating our industrial depression. "Relief Temporary

Senate Votes Down Veteran's Bonus Bill

Washington, Saturday, June 18.—The senate's overwhelming defeat of the bonus payment measure by a vote of 62 to 18 Friday, discouraged veterans who made the pilgrimage to the capital hoping to cash their service certificates. Soon after daylight Saturday the roads leading out of Washington were dotted with groups of weary, rainsoaked ex-soldiers, homeward bound. Leaders vainly strove to hold the ranks intact, declaring that only about 150 veterans had gone home to recruit more marchers. Police said that the veterans were leaving in large groups, and the police were prepared to furnish truck transportation 50 miles out of the city. It is expected the move will include a thousand of the veterans today.

PRINTERS INK

Many predictions have been made on business—guesses on the turning tide. Neither prophet nor crystal gazer, and, as far as I know, born without a caul, I can nevertheless make one prophecy. I know this one thing so well that it has become an obsession with me. No man, no business, can either revive or hold its own apart from PRINTERS INK. It is the stimulating influence that will finally lure loitering business around the corner—so use it to play your part in the militant march to better times. —CLAYTON RAND.

WILL THEY VOLUNTEER?

School and colleges throughout the state and country have closed their regular term, sending hundreds of students and teachers back to their homes for the summer. Many included in this group are finding little or nothing awaiting them in the form of gainful employment. It is a shameful situation that these students and teachers face. They have worked hard and are well trained; they are young, ambitious and energetic. Given a chance they will add much to their respective communities for the summer. If given the proper encouragement some of this group will donate their services rather than to remain idle, provided they know they are really helping the community in doing so.

The extensive recreation program her parks and play grounds is being done almost entirely this year by teachers and principles who have given their time to the cause hoping only to better those whom they serve.

We rather imagine that Center and Shelby county could profit extensively by similar programs and doubt that many would refuse to participate, could such a program be started.—Center News.

SPLENDID MAN OF TYLER COUNTY GONE

For the past three weeks, friends of the Wisenbaker family have with the family been concerned over the aged father who was confined to his bed at the Rainey Hotel with his daughter, Mrs. S. L. Rainey. Sunday morning early he passed away.

J. F. Wisenbaker was born in Georgia on April 19, 1852, son of William and Ann Wisenbaker. When he was nineteen years old his family moved to Texas settling in Washington county where a few years later he married Miss Harriett Oliver, and they set up their new home in Travis county, coming to Tyler county 29 years ago, going into the mercantile business, which he only gave up some four years ago to take the later years of his life a little easier. The latter part of last November his beloved companion for so many years passed away and though the homes of his children were his, he has no doubt been lonely, for who can understand or take the place of a husband or wife if two lives have been associated for so many years, and Mr. Wisenbaker was ready and anxious to go on and join her, for he felt the assurance as a christian that they would dwell together in the place the dear Saviour had gone ahead to prepare.

Many years he has been a consistent christian, a member of the Missionary Baptist church. Giving of his time, talents and money to further his Master's cause. Rev. W. F. Nash brought a message to the loved ones Sunday at the funeral, that might have come to them from their father, using Bro. Nash as his spokesman.

No one knew better than Revs. Nash and Jeff Rhodes, who assisted in the service, the heart of Mr. Wisenbaker. For as pastor so long, no doubt they had been nearer in his life than any outside his family. A large crowd gathered at the Rainey hotel at 10 o'clock Monday morning and many eyes were wet with tears, thinking of the life of this man as father, brother, neighbor and friend. The loving hands of grandsons, as they did with the dear grandmother, carried him to his last earthly resting place in the Magnolia cemetery, and the voices of men, who had known and loved and raised their voices in songs, which comforted the hearers, both at the home and cemetery.

Mr. Wisenbaker is survived by 10 children, 27 grandchildren, seven great-grandchildren and one brother, Houston Wisenbaker of Mineola.

The surviving children are W. H. Wisenbaker of Beaumont, J. R. of Richmond, H. R. and E. Wisenbaker of Woodville, Mrs. W. J. Galbraith of Woodville, Mrs. A. L. Tucker of Jasper, Mrs. S. L. Rainey, Mrs. W. F. Grammer, Mrs. J. A. Williams and Mrs. C. E. Smith of Woodville. An adopted daughter also survives, Mrs. Floyd Taylor of Beaumont.

The grandsons who served as active pallbearers were Otis Wisenbaker of Richmond, Harry and Allen Wisenbaker of Port Arthur, Lucian Tucker of Jasper, Aubrey Galbraith of Houston, E. L. and C. F. Rainey of Woodville, Oliver Williams and R. E. Grammer of Woodville.

The Booster family with a host of friends sorrow with the family over the going of this beloved man.

ALWAYS EXPECT THESE

After 15 years in the business, a newspaper man becomes reconciled to the following facts:

1. That he will generally be regarded as some sort of freak.
2. That the favors he does will usually go unnoticed, but his mistakes never.
3. That when he gets in a crowd some one will say loudly: "Don't talk in front of So-and-So; he'll put it in the paper."
4. That once a week some one will remark: "Newspaper work must be very fascinating."—Arth Jarrell in the Arkansas City (Kan.) Traveler.

IF YOU CAN DREAM

The lines are by Rudyard Kipling, great English poet.

"If you can dream and not make dreams your master.
If you can think and not make thoughts your aim.
If you can meet with trouble and disaster
And treat those two impostors just the same,
If you can bear to hear the truth
You've spoken
Twisted by knaves to make a trap
For fools,
Or see the things you've given your Life to, broken,
And stoop and build them up with
worn out tools,
If you can walk with crowds and keep your virtue
Or talk with kings nor lose the common touch,
If neither foe nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you, but none
too much,
If you can fill the unforgiving minute,
With sixty seconds worth of distance run—
Why, yours is the world and all
that's in it,
And what is more, you'll be a man,
my son."

—Rudyard Kipling.

LOSS OF CATTLE

It has been estimated that on cattle alone, we are losing around $250,000,000 annually by not fattening and packing in our own state; that there is a hundred million tons of steel brought in which could be manufactured from our own ore in East

Texas, and distributed to the markets of the Southwest. In canned goods, food and clothing, another hundred million could be saved. As I said before and as I say again, these items are going to be purchased anyway, and all that is necessary is for a man to familiarize himself with where they can be purchased in Texas from our own people. Now the plan is simple. In building up our community, we must first think of the home town, then the home state and then the Southwest, and, in the last analysis, the United States of America. The way to build up the home town is first, support the home town merchant, buying local products of the farmer and of the manufacturer—then, in the state of Texas, then from the Southwest and increase the use of cotton, wool and wheat. We are thereby helping our own people to help themselves.—McKinney Democrat Gazette.

Fun From the Press

The League of Nations is endeavoring to discover some outrages being committed by nations that won't talk back.—San Diego Union.

Unemployment seems to be the condition of being unrelated to a public official.—Arkansas Gazette.

Recent disclosures about Wall Streets' inside operations suggest that Bishop Cannon wasn't really gambling—he was only giving to the heathen.—Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

We see that the famous Coolidge smile—the one that looks as if some one in the vicinity were smoking a wet cigar—has been taken over by John N. Garner.—Detroit News.
