A Vote For Ross Sterling For Governor Is A Vote Of Confidence For A Continuance Of A Proven Responsible Form Of Government

FRED BARBECUE A GREAT SUCCESS

On last Saturday, July 16th, people gathered at Fred from all parts of Tyler County and enjoyed themselves in a wonderful way. The candidates had been invited to attend and were there in great numbers. The speaking began at about 10:30 a. m., and the Hon. Clyde E. Smith was chosen by the local people of Fred to act as master of ceremonies. The first speaker of the day was Mr. Carlton Moore, who spoke in behalf of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson for Governor, then he was followed by Dr. Roach, J. W. Laird, as candidates for representative. Judge J. E. Sturrock, our local candidate for the Legislature, was unable to be present, but he was well represented by Mr. C. E. Smith, who spoke in behalf of Mr. Sturrock. Mr. Smith reminded the people of the fact that this is the first time that Tyler County has asked to send a man to the legislature since we have been in the same district with Angelina County, and it is thought that now was our great opportunity. He received cheer after cheer when he disclosed the reckless manner of the expenditure of our money by the government, and the careless way in which our legislators enacted laws, and created commissions and bureaus to eat up the money that was intended to pay off our debts. He told the people that Sturrock was the most capable man in the race, and that Tyler County should stand solidly behind him. At the close of his speech, many of the crowd gathered around and assured Mr. Smith that they would roll up a big majority for Sturrock in their respective boxes.

HON. J. M. COMBS FOR ASSOCIATE JUSTICE OF THE COURT OF CIVIL APPEALS

The Tyler County Bar is behind Hon. J. M. Combs for the office of Associate Justice of the Court of Civil Appeals. The majority of the lawyers of Woodville are requesting their friends to support the Hon. J. M. Combs for the office of Associate Justice of the Court of Civil Appeals. You will recall that Judge Combs served this district as District Judge and while on the bench made a great record. We feel that he is well qualified to fill the office which he is now seeking, and it is hoped that the people of Tyler County will strongly support the man who so faithfully served them in the past. Judge Combs could have secured the endorsement of many of the lawyers in Beaumont, but because of the fact that his opponent lived in Beaumont also, he thought it best not to ask any of the lawyers there to endorse him, and we want the public to know that many of the lawyers of Beaumont and other sections of the District are for Judge Combs, and believe that he is the man for the place. Respectfully submitted, TYLER COUNTY BAR ASSOCIATION By Clyde E. Smith, Pres.

SPOKE HERE SATURDAY FOR JUDGE J. E. HICKMAN

R. B. Cousins, Jr., formerly of Beaumont and President of the San Jacinto Life Insurance Company, was in the city Saturday, in the interest of the candidacy of Judge J. E. Hickman for a place on the Supreme Court of this state. He is giving Judge Hickman his unqualified support and enthusiastic endorsement as an able lawyer and a great judge. Mr. Cousins is moving to Austin, where he will have charge of the Texas Fire Prevention Association work in the interest of a reduction of a tremendous fire waste in Texas.

? Which Of These Two Men Is A Failure?

RICH ONCE, NOW POOR

Ross Sterling and Jim Ferguson are both before the people of Texas in this campaign as poor men today, which they probably are.

Each of them grew up in comparative poverty. By his own ability, determination and ambition, it was noticeable 18 years ago that each of them had come quite a long way in the business world. Since that time, each of them made large amounts of money. By ordinary human measurements, it is fair to say that each of them became rich. In many business ways Ross Sterling acquired wealth. Jim Ferguson, a well known Texas banker, acquired wealth. Ferguson, according to the record was at one time in personal possession of at least $156,000, for he, at one time, while he was governor, borrowed that sum in currency. According to the contention of our federal government, which, however, Ferguson disputes, his income for the years 1924, 1925 and 1926, amounted to $148,812.

By one way of measuring success and failure, each of them is now a failure, if each of them is now a poor man.

Are they both failures? Is either of them a success? Here is how Jim Ferguson has, for the most part, spent his last eighteen years.

In 1914 Jim Ferguson, then the president of a bank, announced that he had laid aside $15,000 with which to take his family on a trip to Europe, but that he had decided that, instead of going to Europe, he would use that sum to take a flyer at the governor's office. So he ran for governor of Texas. He was elected.

In 1916 he ran for governor again. He was re-elected. Before the year was over, on grave charges of misconduct in office, he was impeached, and by that impeachment became barred from ever holding any office of public trust and confidence under the constitution and laws of Texas.

In 1918 he ran again for governor of Texas. Being defeated, he bolted the party and spent his time campaigning for the Republican nominee.

In 1920 he set up a sort of shell of a national political party of his own, nominated himself, and ran for president of the United States against the Democratic and Republican nominees.

In 1922 he ran for the Democratic nomination for the United States senate, and, being defeated by Earl Mayfield, he again bolted the party and campaigned for the Republican nominee.

In 1924 he, for the fourth time, entered the race for the Democratic nomination for governor of Texas, and because of the disqualification resulting from his impeachment had to be denied a place on the ticket. He then had his wife's name inserted on the ticket in place of his own. Against the Klan nominee, Felix Robertson, Jim Ferguson succeeded and his wife took oath of office in January, 1925.

In 1926 he, for the fifth time, on this occasion again in his wife's name, presented him with a gold watch, which he wears today. The great Humble Refinery was built at Baytown, employing near 4,000 men. The expansive Humble office building was constructed in Houston, housing many hundreds of employes today. Towering office buildings and one of the finest bank buildings in Texas he constructed and the operations of those and many more enterprises were expressed in wholesome payrolls, which he found time to have his part in guiding the destiny of the Houston Ship Channel on to a success of worldwide renown today.

Ross Sterling's money is gone. Frankly he told his neighbors, gathered by the thousands on the bay to do him honor recently, that he is unhappy that he has lost what it took a lifetime to build up, but that in his soul he finds gratification for things he sees about him. Such gratification is justly his.

The things which throughout that 18 years Ross Sterling created are expressing themselves today in Texas in good honest, self-respecting payrolls for multiplied thousands of people. Take out of Texas that which Ross Sterling created with his wealth when he had it, and many thousands of worthy men and their families would be without employment today.

If Ross Sterling's purse is empty, his works go on to bless thousands of people, and, in this time of depression, are aiding to sustain many thousands more. Should any man arise to say that Ross Sterling has not been a success?—Houston Chronicle

During these 18 years how has Ross Sterling spent his time? He spent it developing a little, independent oil company, truly in its beginning named the Humble Company, for it was a humble company. Under his guidance it grew to employ hundreds, and then to employ thousands. One lease at a time he added until its producing properties employed an army of oil field workers over the state. Every day of those years when Jim Ferguson was biennially, and in fact, perennially, running for office and promising benefits to thousands, Ross Sterling was creating pay rolls and giving benefits to thousands. Pipe lines and domestic marketing facilities and ships for foreign marketing facilities were gradually added to the fruits of Ross Sterling's energy. He conceived and built the Dayton and Goose Creek Railroad and when he sold that railroad the union workers on the line, as a token of their love and esteem for him, ran for the Democratic nomination for governor and was defeated. In 1928 he campaigned for Earl Mayfield against Tom Connally, who in that campaign defeated Mayfield. In 1930, again in the name of his wife, he for the sixth time, became a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Texas and was defeated. He is now, for the seventh time, making the campaign for governor of Texas. Money came plentifully to Jim Ferguson, and accepting his own statements as true, the money went away from him. Has it left behind one thing to benefit the people of Texas? During these 18 years how has Ross Sterling spent his time? He spent it developing a little, independent oil company, truly in its beginning named the Humble Company, for it was a humble company. Under his guidance it grew to employ hundreds, and then to employ thousands. One lease at a time he added until its producing properties employed an army of oil field workers over the state. Jim, presented him with a gold watch, which he wears today. The great Humble Refinery was built at Baytown, employing near 4,000 men. James V. Alfred for Attorney General

Rena Alfred, mother of James V. Alfred, attorney general of Texas, addressed a large crowd at the court house in Woodville, in behalf of his brother Saturday afternoon. Mr. Alfred was introduced by Clyde E. Smith, District Attorney for this district, and Mr. Smith paid a glowing tribute to the brilliant young Attorney General and urged his friends to vote for Mr. Alfred and give him a great majority in the coming primary. Mr. Alfred is seeking a second term, and his friends feel that he is entitled to a second term in view of the fact that he has made a wonderful record in office, and has performed his duty without fear or favor.

Mr. Alfred, in the course of his address received many cheers from the crowd, and especially when he discussed the suits filed by James V. Alfred to break up the violation of the anti-trust law in Texas.

ANOTHER ONE OF GOVERNOR STERLING'S CORRECTIONS

During the Sterling administration progress has been made toward the eradication of the fee system in Texas and the correcting of many abuses that have grown up with the system. An investigation conducted by a special committee of the legislature revealed that the state was losing considerable sums of money through the collection of fees by officials who were not entitled to them. Several persons were tried and convicted of charges that probably never would have been made, but for the activities of this special legislative committee.

Public attention throughout the state was called to practices that had been tolerated for years. Public indignation was aroused and action will be taken in the next legislature to abolish the fee system. In this work, whose value to the state is inestimable, the senate for investigating committee, the state comptroller, the attorney general, the state auditor, the governor, the adjutant general and the district attorney of Travis county have played a helpful part. Leaks that were costing the state hundreds of thousands of dollars have been stopped. The senate committee worked for months to ferret out and prevent fraudulent collection of fees. Bills have been prepared for consideration of the next legislature which will place district and county officials on a salary basis.

ERNEST C. OZRO COX CANDIDATE FOR PLACE No. 1

Ernest C. Ozro Cox is a native Texan and lives in Austin, was three times a member of the Legislature, 39th, 40th and 41st sessions.

While there he sponsored measures dealing with veterans of the World war, child welfare, education, Americanism, agricultural developments and tax reliefs. He served two years as Sup't of Municipal and U. S. Employment service, six years as manager of boys at State-Orphan's home, two years Assistant State Adjutant of American Legion, one year State Commander of American Legion, two years National executive Committee member, four years on National Child Welfare Committee, three years state surveying officer Texas National guard.

I favor tax reduction by abolishing those unnecessary bureaus and commissions established by Republicans to interfere in American business, tariff adjustment to aid agricultural South. A return to simple government, fewer laws, immediate payment of adjusted service certificates held by ex-service men, sharply graduated income and inheritance taxes to relieve taxes on necessities. I strongly endorse National nominees and entire National platform of Democratic party up to and including repeal of the 18th amendment. If elected I promise to do my dead level best for Texas.

Mr. Cox is a candidate for Congressman at large, Place No. 1, and is asking for support in this part of East Texas.

A SAFETY PLEA

No doubt this year will see a number of automotive accidents. The human element in driving can't be controlled as we would like it to be. But manufacturers have done their part to make cars safer than ever. Drivers should help by being alert, careful and avoiding recklessness. Modern all-steel bodies, four-wheel brakes, well-trussed frames, low centers of gravity and safety glass are just a few of the features which make the 1932 cars safer. To take the best advantage of these safety factors let every driver take a safety pledge this year.—San Augustine Tribune.

Messrs. R. E. Fortenberry and Harry Johnson of Camp Ground were in Woodville Monday.

INTEREST AROUSED FOR NEW CAVERN

Llano, July 11.—Much interest in this section is centered about the discovery of a large cavern in Burnet county, which is being developed as a state park. The cave will be operated under the supervision of the Texas state park board and the formal opening will be held in August. The land, including 600 acres was donated by Dr. J. L. Williamson of Burnet. D. E. Colp, chairman of the state park board, said the huge cavern contains over eight miles of underground chambers and passage ways decorated with glittering formations. It has not been completely explored.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION IN AGRICULTURE

Vocational education is that type of training or education which prepares an individual for a particular profession, giving him the practical side of the profession in conjunction with the theory part. Proficiency and attained skills are the standards upon which the progress of the trained is judged. Therefore, vocational education is nothing more than a practical education. The facts which are taught in the school room during the class period are carried to a doing level before the individual is ready for an additional assignment. Facts about the professions of the immediate community are put on a doing level, thereby teaching the student to take up the professions of the community in which he lives. It is a maximum that the student is happiest who is prepared to earn a livelihood in the community in which he lives. An education which prepares the boy and girl for a profession which is not found in the community in which he or she resides brings up the problem of adjustment, and the doubt will ever be as happy as if he or she could be employed in the community

BIG CROWD 'OUT AT SPURGER

While Judge Sturrock is having the best time in his life at Luckin, just a denying campaign mis-statements, Attorney Clyde Smith appeared for the Judge at Spurger. There was a runaway crowd and the enthusiasm displayed after Smith stopped speaking made it look like a walkaway for Sturrock in that voting box.

in which they were reared. Vocational Agriculture is that type of training which teaches the boys and girls of a particular community to farm according to the best approved practices of the community and supplemented by the findings of our agricultural experiment and agricultural workers. Each boy enrolled in the agricultural class carries every job in which he is taught to a doing level. Scientific facts about farming are put into practice. This is a practical education—that type of education which the world is demanding today. To teach the job of planting cotton the boy is required to plant cotton and he further does every operation in the raising of cotton from tracing the ground to marketing the cotton.

MURPHY THE HERO

There is one candidate in Texas who is a hero at home and that is Ed T. Murphy, candidate for the unexpired term on the Railroad Commission. Murphy is one of the few men whom the Alabama Indians will talk to. He is the man in all of the State of Texas in whom they have confidence. The story goes that the Indians, the last remnant of a once powerful tribe and the only tribe now living in Texas were on the point of starvation, and Murphy came to their rescue. Murphy did not bring them charity and further impoverish them, but he secured medical attention for them and helped them build more homes and improve their sanitary conditions and today these Indians are Ed Murphy's friends to a man.

Ed T. Murphy was County Judge of Polk County for eight years. The Alabama Indians live on their reservation in Polk County and no man knows more about these Indians than does Murphy. Murphy then was elected to the Legislature of Texas and he brought the story of the suffering of the Alabama Indians to the rest of the state and since that time the state government and the federal government have exercised an oversight over the Indians and they are happy and busy on their little farms.

In carrying his candidacy to the vast regions of Texas, the people whom he meets don't know the facts about his public service due to his modesty. However, those people who have served with him in the Legislature of Texas know that he is one of the strongest men who ever served in that body. He is a lawyer of ability and has an unusually clear idea of the transportation laws of the state and of the functions of the Railroad Commission of Texas.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

Patrick E. Crowley

Patrick E. Crowley was a railroad town on the Erie line. It was the ambition of most of the boys born and raised there to learn railroading.

His mind was made up while he was in grammar school that he would seek a job on the railroad as soon as his father would permit. In the days the generally accepted way to learn the business was to begin young and work your way up the ladder.

So the lad left school when he was fourteen years old and went to work as a messenger and odd job boy for the Erie in his home town. Each month his pay envelope contained a little that wasn't much financial incentive the youngster was satisfied and proud of being a wage earner.

When he wasn't on the jump he sat and watched the telegraph operator at his work. There was something in the click of the instrument that seemed to fascinate him. The tiny telegrapher, holding his instrument, held him to learn the Morse code. The boy proved to be a mighty apt pupil. By the time he was sixteen he was a full fledged operator.

Most boys would have gone to bed as soon as they arrived home from such a hard day's work as this youngster put in. But not young Crowley. He was a great reader of history and technical books dealing with railroad problems. Often he remained up reading until midnight or later.

TALES... of the TRIBES

By EDITHA L. WATSON

The Hopi

The Hopi call themselves "The Peaceful People," but they could fight like furies when they consider it necessary.

Long ago, they moved from the village of the Hopi in the mesa building their picturesque homes on the elevations, where, rattling rattles, would not surprise them. Fanning in the land below must have been a very exciting and dangerous occupation sometimes when the hostile man of the future must have his weapons as close to his hand as possible.

So the lad left school when he was fourteen years old and went to work as a messenger and odd job boy for the Erie in his home town. Each month his pay envelope contained a little that wasn't much financial incentive the youngster was satisfied and proud of being a wage earner.

Woodville Locals

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Spurlock were your car loads of young people were in Lufkin Tuesday boosting for Judge J. E. Eurrook.

Miss May Cuevas of Beaumont was visiting Mrs. W. A. Barnes in Chesapeake on Sunday. She was en route to Woodville with her, remaining during her illness, helping care for her.

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Hawkins were in Jasper Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Anderson spent Sunday at Town Bluff.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Powell and children and Mr. and Mrs. Lige Rushing and some son spent Sunday in Chesapeake, enjoying an annual family reunion of the Rushing family.

Little Dorothy Marie Shinkler of Boone, La., is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Clyde Phillips.

Mrs. T. C. Cook, two daughters, Misses Joanna and Frances, Major and Mrs. C. M. Easley and son Claude, Jr., Mrs. O. T. Craver and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wickline arrived Saturday night from Fort Benning, Ga. The Easleys went on to Waco Monday to visit his people, but will return here before returning to Georgia.

Mr. C. W. Clayton, who has been for some months with the local Miltrot store, left Wednesday for Houston, Tex., to work for the Morgan & Lindus firm.

Mrs. W. H. La. Grane and granddaughter, Miss Allene Alexander, left early last week for Shreveport, La. After a visit in the W. P. Nash home during the great Pueblo rebellion of 1891, they returned to the home of Awaholi, continued in the new religion.

Awaholi was thus a thorn in the side of the other Hopi villages. With the white man's religion, these people had adopted the mission religion with a disposition, and were constantly harassing the people of the other villages. They would not return to the ancient faith, though they crafted some of it into their new beliefs, and adhered to the mission religion with a tenacity seldom inspired by the love of anything other than themselves.

This happened in 1700. That is, the Hopi raised cotton before the advent of the whites, and one of their early manufactures was often embroidered. Pottery making is another art for which they are famous, and although at present their skill in decoration does not flourish as it once did, they copy and adapt designs centuries old with considerable effect.

So they are once more the Peaceful People, but perhaps, if necessity should arise, they would again show the world that they know how to fight.

Wanota, the Yankton chief, is described (in 1820) as wearing white buffalo skins, a necklace of gizzards, bear claws, red sticks in his hair; his face was painted vermilion, and he carried a turkey feather fan.

Tree Rings are now used as a means of telling the age of ruined Indian buildings. A beam from Walpi, one of the Hopi pueblos, was cut in 1427—15 years before the discovery of America by Columbus.

Anybody Here Seen "Friend" Lizzie?

An eight-year-old Ford touring car, which Harry Moore, San Antonio transfer man, has equipped with so many trimmings that he values it at $1800, was being sought in Houston Wednesday after Moore called at the police station and told City Detective M. H. McCoy that the car was stolen in San Antonio and was reported to have been seen in Houston.

Moore said he made a hobby of adding various touches to the car—a 1924 model—and had spent many hundreds of dollars on it. He nickel-plated the motor and all working parts. He put glass panels in the hood. He put elaborate brass decorations on the car. He equipped it with 41 electric lights. He attached a trunk and nickelplated it.

Last September, Moore said, he bought the car to a San Antonio automobile company for exhibition purposes, and it was stolen while in the company's care. He told McCoy that he has heard nothing from the car since it was reported stolen.

WE'VE TRIUMPHED BOOMS

In 1837, a great land boom collapsed. Farmers sold for 25% of their value. Banks suspended specie payment. This was followed by two years of prosperity.

In 1841, many industries were shut down. The cotton gin was invented. The next twelve years were prosperous.

In 1857, every bank in the United States suspended payments in cash, and industry stopped almost entirely. Property values fell 25 to 75%.

In 1873, following the failure of Jay Cooke & Company, then the biggest banking house in the United States, the Stock Exchange closed for eight days. Commodity prices sank to low levels and pig iron could not be sold for any price.

In 1893, Reading, Atchafalaya, Tonoka & Santa Fe, Erie, Union Pacific and Northern Pacific failed for a combined loss of $240,000,000. Union Pacific sold for as low as $4.00 a share.

In 1921, because Europe was off the gold basis following the war, pessimism seized. Property can never be returned to the level of 1913.

In 1932, they have been saying exactly the same thing that they said eleven years ago. Those who laid constructive plans and worked them out intelligently, during previous depressions, have made fortunes, as the inevitable improvements expanded business values. The same thing will happen again and a word to the wise is sufficient.

TAX REDUCTION PROGRAM

The program of tax reductions in municipal, county, state and national governments is being executed with a degree of speed that is considerably ahead of any schedule we could have hoped to attain. We are working on it, and every one participating in it, has been working on it, and every one participating in it, has been working on it, and every one participating in it, has been working on it.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

John Hays Hammond

The boys started on horseback from San Francisco to Oakland. Their aunt, Mrs. J. H. Hammond, was with them, staying while their father was in the East, conducting his business.

They took a small compass, a short gun, fishing tackle and $50 in money with them. Hammond was a big, rugged fellow, in his late thirties, with a good deal of the extra equipment.

They visited their friends in Oakland. John Hays Hammond, the older of the two boys, was fourteen years old. His brother was only ten years younger. They had been brought up in the California of Civil War days and had been through the hardships of being out-of-it—we are winning, settling our private and public houses in order for a more moderate activity at the disturbing headquarters.

We have had aid from every source, public officials, and private individuals have aided as a result of this aid. The next season of the Texas legislature will provide more of it. The next season of the Texas legislature will provide more of it.

Property values fell 25 to 75%. The next twelve years were prosperous. In 1857, every bank in the United States suspended payments in cash, and industry stopped almost entirely.

On Texas Farms

A total of 17,132 different farm families have been coached in better ways of home making, chiefly making the living at home. In 11 North Texas counties since last December. Home demonstration club women have attended the work of the county home demonstration agent in various ways to help 85% of the farm population this year. The same plan is working in parts of Texas.

The Selkirk grant offered by Earl Burns at the request of the Robert Selkirk nearly 200 years ago might well be adopted by many Texas farm families this year, particularly those having 4-8 practices. Said Burns: "Some live meat, and some eat, and some eat that meat; but we have meat and we eat, and we eat the Lord be thanked."

A Bosque county farmer treated his seed oats for smut last year for six cents per acre and had no smut. A neighbor didn't and lost 18% of his crop. In days of 10-cent oats this is small talk, but we note it in passing. A few more bushels in the bin is not smut, even in our crazy economy.

Hermetically Sealed Unit (Dirt Free—No Oiling Required) DRY ZERO INSULATION

THE INSULATION of an electric Refrigerator is an important factor. Many of the ordinary types use "Cork" Board, Celotex, Insulite or "Rock" Cork. MAJESTIC uses, exclusive, "Dry Zero" which is the most efficient odorless and permanent insulation known to refrigeration science. . . . The PROOF of the preceding statement is the following table, compiled by the U. S. Bureau of Standards, showing the comparative heat resistance of the different insulation materials.

DRY ZERO	100 %
Cork Board (Commercial density)	80 %
Celotex (cane fibre)	70.6 %
Insulate (wood fibre)	70.6 %
Rock "Cork" (mineral wood - asphalt)	65 %

MAJESTIC insulation is immune from rot, decay, moisture, absorption and odors.

GALBREATH - ANDERSON

A wedding of affectionate interest to a wide circle of friends in Wharton county and South Texas was the wedding of Miss Nell Galbreath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Galbreath of Wharton, to Leroy Lawrence Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Anderson of Crosby, Texas, which was solemnized at the First Baptist Church at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, with Rev. R. E. Early reading the impressive service. The church decorations were confined mainly to the altar space where arrangements of beautiful pink and white roses were clustered in pedestal baskets with fern backgrounds, over which gleamed the candle lights on the altar while the vows were pledged.

The music was given by Mrs. J. R. Cox at the organ, who provided the accompaniment for "I Love You," sung by Mrs. John R. Moore, with Miss Sylvia Hankins of Goose Creek as violinist.

The bride entered with her father who gave her in marriage. She wore a lovely creation of white pean de ange lace and carried a small white prayer book over which fell a cascade of white rosebuds. Her misty veil of illusion was fastened with a bandeau of pearls and swept into a long train at the back.

Misses Alice Anderson of Crosby and Kattie Benice Prieste of Houston, and Mrs. W. A. Galbreath of Houston, matron of honor, were dressed in pastels of delicate shades and carried arm bouquets of pink carnations. Mrs. Galbreath, mother of the bride, wore a gown of blue eyelet embroidery. Mrs. Cox was in an exquisite gown of pink chiffon. Mrs. Moore wore an ecru lace model and Miss Hankins was lovely in a blue chiffon frock.

These A. Ramsey of Crosby served as best man and Charles P. Rainey and Oliver Williams of Woodville, and Joseph Proctor of Houston as groomsmen and C. B. Jones, Chas. Hale and J. A. Redding were ushers. Little Aubrey Galbreath, Jr. of Houston acted as ring bearer and little Miss Lillian Ruth Coleman of Navasota, in a dainty frock of blue organza was the flower girl.

Immediately following the church ceremony the guests gathered at the home of the bride's parents where the wedding reception was held. Pink and white roses repeated the scheme of the wedding in the living room and similar bouquets of the roses were used in the dining room, with Perpetua as the decoration on the late spread buffet table on which the beautifully embossed wedding cake was placed. Tall pink tapers in crystal holders burned on both ends of the table. The brilliantly lighted porch of the home was banked with roses and ferns and the large punch bowl presided over by Mrs. Charles C. Pool of Cotulla formed the high-point of the decoration. Mrs. Marjorie Ramsey of Woodville, Evelyn and Katherine Tucker of Jasper, Louie Wrenbaker of Richmond, Virginia and Irene Banker of Bonnie Estill assisted in serving the ice cream course. The bride's book was in charge of Mrs. Bolton, Outlook.

Mr. Moore and "I Love You" Trio, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Cox and Mrs. Carey Nelson offered two solo, "All for You" and "The Sunshine of Your Smile" with Mrs. Cox as accompanist.

Mrs. Anderson, who is a graduate of the Wharton University, is a popular member of the younger set of Wharton, having lived in this city the greater part of her life. The past year she was a teacher in the public schools of Highland, Texas. The groom holds the position of bookkeeper for the Ford Motor Company of Crosby. The young couple left for a wedding trip to Corpus Christi and other southern Texas points before returning to their home in Crosby.

Out of town guests for the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Theo. A. Ramsey of Crosby, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Wisenbaker of Richmond, Mrs. S. L. Rainey of Woodville, Mr. and Mrs. Houston and Mrs. S. A. Houchins of Palacios, Mrs. Froete of Houston and Mrs. Hankins of Goose Creek.

THEY SPLIT THE BLOOMING ATOM!

No more we'll think of atoms
As things which can't be split.
For Science did its darndest
To make another hit.

They split the blooming atom;
They gave it such a whack
They pierced its shining armor,
And turned it on its back.

They found a way to do what
They'd never done before,
And lo! that tiny atom
Lies wattering in its gore.

O hear me, praying mortals;
Why don't you mend your ways?
What tho' you split the atom—
Will that prolong our days?

You're always doing something
To confound Nature's laws;
Forever you are scheming
To cover up your flaws.

Pray, Science, in the future,
When notions turn your head
Don't split the harmless atom!
But ice bergs split instead!

For just betwixt the two of us,
The gatepost and the fence,
To split the iceberg strikes me
As more like common sense.
—John Ashton, in Publishers, Aux.

No town, country or community will ever prosper where there is a division or strife of any nature. In helping others you invariably help yourself. No town will prosper and grow where a lack of enterprise and push on the part of its citizens is felt. The true motto of each and every citizen of a town is and should be to assist and help your neighbors, encourage business of all kinds, unite in the matter of improvement in making the town attractive and giving it a homelike appearance. When this is done people from a distance will form a good opinion of the place and it will be an inducement for them to locate with us and become permanent and substantial citizens.—Grapeland Messenger.

IT TAKES COURAGE

To live according to your convictions.

To be what you are and not pretend to be what you are not.

To say "No" squarely and firmly when those around you say "Yes."

To live honestly within your means and not dishonestly upon the means of others.

To refuse to do a thing which is wrong because others do it, or because it is customary and done in trade.

To stay at home evenings and try to improve yourself when your comrades spend their evenings having a good time.

To remain in honest poverty while other grow rich by questionable methods which you could easily use yourself.

To refrain from gossip when others about you delight in it, and to stand up for an absent person who is being abused. But it always pays.—Harper Herald.
