The Amendments How They Line Up

Nine Constitutional amendments are to be voted on by the people of Texas at the regular election in November this year. These amendments should receive the attention of the voters of the State in the interest of an intelligent registration of the will of the people.

Two years ago there was too little thought given to the amendments, and although the danger in some of them was pointed out and the virtue of others, some of the dangerous ones were approved and some of the good ones were refused.

The nine amendments are on the following questions:

House Joint Resolution No. 24, provides that only sufficient amount of property on which taxes are delinquent shall be sold to satisfy the amount due, and providing further that the owner shall have the right to redeem said property in one year by paying all the money the purchaser paid plus a filing fee of $1 and not over 25 per cent additional on the purchase price and fees paid. After two years the principal, interest, $1 filing fee and not over 50 per cent on the total cost to the buyer, including taxes, interest, penalties and other costs shall be paid for redemption. After that the former owner's rights are forfeited.

House Joint Resolution of counties and cities bordering on the Gulf of Mexico to issue bonds for seawalls, breakwaters and for sanitary purposes, on two-thirds vote of the qualified voters. The amendment provides proper safeguards for the payment of bonds and interest.

House Joint Resolution No. 6, provides for $3,000 of the assessed taxable values of all residence homesteads as now defined shall be exempt from all taxation for State purposes, except in those counties now receiving remissions of taxes for improvement purposes, but when again subject to taxation shall also apply to these.

House Joint Resolution No. 12, provides that the Legislature of the State of Texas shall have no power to release or extinguish, or to authorize the releasing or (extinguishing, in whole or in part, the indebtedness, liability or obligation of any corporation or individual, to this State or to any county or defined subdivision thereof, or other municipal corporation therein, except delinquent taxes which have been due for a period of at least ten years.

House Joint Resolution No. 1, provides for establishing the prohibitions against voting of all persons in this State and provides that no person shall hold two offices of honor, or trust, or emolument, nor shall they receive moneys from the State while holding two places of trust, emolument, honor or compensation.

House Joint Resolution No. 21, provides for the consolidation of the offices of tax assessor and tax collector in counties of 10,000 population and over.

House Joint Resolution No. 26, provides that hereafter when an election is held by any county, counties, or any political subdivision of the State, or county, or defined district, only qualified voters who own taxable property in the State, political subdivision, county, district, city, town, or village, where such election is held and who has duly rendered the same for taxation, shall have a right to vote.

Senate Joint Resolution No. 28, provides for the expenditure of the State of Texas an amount of money through appropriation by the Legislature necessary for holding a Texas Centennial, commemorating the heroic period of early Texas history.

Senate Joint Resolution No. 26, provides for the placing of all lands and other property heretofore set apart and appropriated for the establishment and maintenance of the University of Texas, together with all the proceeds of sales of the same, heretofore made or hereafter to be made, and all grants, donations and appropriations that may hereafter be made by the State of Texas, or from any other source, except donations limited to specific purposes, shall constitute one permanent University fund. And the same as realized and received into the Treasury of the State together with such sums be appropriated to the fund, as may now be

45 Year Quest for 12-Inch Corn

The following taken from the San Augustine Tribune will be of interest to Booster readers. The seed for this corn was procured from Martin Nellius, who has a farm out on the Highway No. 40. It has not ever come to the notice of The Booster that Mr. Nellius ever had such success with his corn as is recorded in this little story:

"W. T. Wells, Sr., of the Broadus community, now 70 years of age, has been seeking for 45 years for an ear of corn matured 12 inches long. Many years ago he started this quest because of a contest in which no one could produce an ear of corn that had matured grains measuring 12 inches in length. Wednesday morning Mr. Wells brought to the Tribune office the ear of corn that he has been looking for all these years and it measured 12 1/2 inches full measure.

The corn in question was obtained in Tyler County about two years ago, he selecting the seed from a field that produced long, uniform ears of corn. Mr. Wells is very proud of the "stunt" and well he may be, for those who think that it is easy to find an ear of corn that length just begin now and see how long it will take you to find it."

PROPOSAL TO STOP ROAD CONTRACT LETTING IS KILLED

The house in short order Friday killed Representative Hardy's bill to prevent the highway commission from making any more contracts until the county bond reimbursements law is passed. The vote, on not to print, was 70 to 44.

The bill got an unfavorable report Thursday night by the house highway and motor traffic committee. The vote in the committee, after an hour and a half hearing, was 9 to 2 that it be reported unfavorably.

Many committee members raised the point that if this bill passed and the bond relief bill failed to pass, the highway department would be completely tied up.

Hardy admitted his bill was "sort of a club to force the passage of the county road tax bill."

Gibb Gilchrist, chief engineer of the highway commission, testified before the committee that under a new federal loan of slightly more than $7,000,000 which the state has received, all money received in the loan must be spent by June 30 of next year, and that one month's delay "would make a terrible difference."

He pointed out that even without delay it is doubtful if all projects under this loan can be completed by that deadline.

He told the committee that in September, October and November around $10,000,000 worth of contracts will be let.

"The money is on hand for it," said Mr. Gilchrist. "Approximately 85 per cent of this will be federal money."

"We have checked most carefully and at the end of this year the highway commission will have a balance of about $7,546,000. We are at all times solvent. We have made allowances for the diverting of one cent of the gasoline tax for county road tax and we are preparing to carry on without it."

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE

Mrs. Ed Dickens and Hobby Young of Livingston visited relatives here Saturday.

in the Treasury, shall be invested in bonds of the United States, the State of Texas, or counties of said State, or in School Bonds of municipalities, or in bonds of any city of this State, or in bonds issued under and by virtue of the Federal Farm Loan Act, approved by the President of the United States July 17, 1916, and amendments thereto; and the interest accruing thereon shall be subject to appropriation by the Legislature to accomplish the purpose declared in the foregoing section; provided that one-tenth of the alternate Sections of the lands granted to railroads, reserved by the State, which were set apart and appropriated to the establishment of the University of Texas, by an Act of the Legislature of February 11, 1890, shall not be included in, or constitute a part of, the Permanent University Fund.

How to Contest An Election

(By W. O. Huggins, State Chairman)

Upon the face of the returns, it is now plain that the result is the gubernatorial race will be so close that election contest both within the party proceedings and in the courts need not be unexpected. Questions repeatedly asked lead me to think that many will be interested to know in a general way how this is carried on. You should keep in mind that the occasion Saturday was a party primary. Nobody was elected. The voters expressed their choice as to Democratic nominee. The results are certified by mail to Albert Sadness Johnson, secretary of the State Democratic executive committee, at Dallas. The secretary promptly puts a clerical force to work tabulating these results. He is expected to have the tabulation complete when the state executive committee meets at Lubbock on September 12.

When the executive committee meets at Lubbock it will appoint a subcommittee to canvass the returns of the primary. As a usual thing, the result is decisive and unquestioned. So the subcommittee goes far enough into the work which has been done by the secretary and his staff in tabulating and totaling the results to satisfy its members of its thoroughness, accuracy and integrity. Having done this, the subcommittee prepares a report, adopting the tabulation and all totals submitted by the secretary. This report is then submitted to the main committee, and as a rule, is adopted unanimously.

On the next day, September 13, the state convention meets. The state executive committee submits its report recommending, as a result of these tabulations and totals, who shall be declared the nominee. Heretofore, the report of the state executive committee has always been unanimously adopted by the convention.

It is the resolution adopting that report of the state executive committee which officially declares the nominee. The chairman and secretary of the state convention then certify to the secretary of State the names of the persons who have thus been declared the nominees of the party and the authority of that certificate and secretary of state is required to place the names on the official ballot at the November election as the party nominees.

It is not unlikely that at the meeting of the state executive committee at Lubbock, the totals reached and the result found by the secretary of the committee will be challenged by the friends of the candidate who on the face of the totals, is in the minority. It is not at all certain that the members of the subcommittee will agree unanimously with the result reached by the secretary and his staff. In that event a minority as well as a minority report will be submitted.

On the floor of the convention the next day, both the majority and the minority reports will be submitted to the convention and the nominee will be declared according to the majority or minority report is adopted. If there should be such a contest at the Lubbock convention, litigation is likely to follow. The contest at court would probably be in the nature of an application for a writ of mandamus, requiring the chairman and secretary of the committee to certify the name of the contestant to the secretary of state to be placed on the ballot as the form of an application for a writ of mandamus directly to the secretary of state requiring her to place the name of the contestant on the ballot as the nominee.

Quite generally, you have no doubt been hearing that a "recount will be demanded." Such an idea grows out of a misunderstanding of the nature of an election contest. A candidate, dissatisfied with the result as shown by the face of the returns, can not make a sweeping demand that the ballots be counted again. "One can't go fishing in the ballot boxes."

In order to have the ballots recounted in any precinct, he must, by a proper petition filed in court, allege that the ballots have been miscounted, giving the details, and he must offer evidence upon which he bases that contention before the judge will direct a recount of the ballots cast in that precinct. The contestant must do this before the election.

The misses Lucille and Lois Richardson, and brother W. A. and Messrs. Bryan Martin and Dan Johnson drove to Houston Sunday and Miss Lucina Richardson returned with them after a happy week's visit with friends and relatives.

The cotton truck has constituted a peculiar peril to the road ever since transport of the commodity by this means has come into wide use. It may be that cotton can be profitably shipped on trucks of dimensions that do not create a danger to others. But with due regard for the economies necessary in cotton farming and marketing, their requirements should not be permitted to risk life. The simple fact is that no motor vehicle should be operated by a driver not in good physical condition. Truck schedules which require long periods increase risk. The oversize truck "hogs" the road, refuses to risk taking the ditch by getting close to the margin on its legal side, thus impeding traffic. The clatter it makes draws the noise of the signal horn behind it. Even where the truck is equipped with a rear vision mirror, its driver frequently ignores the rights of the traffic.

The cotton truck is not the only road miscreant. Other oversize trucks constitute as great a danger, but risk is intensified from the nature of the cotton load where it does not conform to a reasonable regulated size. The cotton truck has not a friend in the traffic alongside it. Unless it can be kept within uniform maximum limits, it ought to quit the highway. Dallas News.

Plans for County Band Progressing

To those who are interested in band or orchestra music, the following announcements and suggestions may be of interest.

We are planning to open two classes in band or orchestra music, the first of which is to be open to those who have had previous experience in such music. All who have played on any instrument and wish to get in that organization are requested to meet at the school auditorium next Tuesday evening, Sept. 12, at 8 o'clock. Bring your instrument and music. We are expecting this group to be ready to play for the first football game. That means that we soon have to work. This group is going to be accompanied by a new group of amateur instrumentalists. Chester. Remember to bring the music so that we can check it on the night will have to be ordered.

A second group for beginners will be organized by great attraction. It has been thoughtfully considered that people can learn to play band instruments in groups. No number of the band trained at Chester ever had a private lesson. However, there are a few reasons to give in this connection. Get your instrument and get started with the group because all the group must move at a like speed. One that gets too far behind is hopeless for keeping up without private lessons and extra work. A meeting for the beginners is called for Thursday evening, Sept. 15 at 7:30 o'clock. The group instructions will not include the violin. The tuition for group instruction will be $1.00 per month.

Those who wish to do so may get private lessons on violin or band instruments. It would be well if all could do so, but it is in no wise necessary to have private lessons on band instruments. However, those who take private lessons on any instrument have the advantage of proceeding as fast as they are able to go and with more personal attention they usually develop into better musicians. The price for private lessons has not been determined, but it will not exceed ten dollars per month.

It will be well for those who do not have an instrument to see me had at prices from $10 up depending on the type and quality of the instrument. The looks of the instrument is not as important as the playing condition and tone quality. It is not well for beginners to spend too much in the beginning.

While such bands as we will have are generally called school bands, they are always open to anyone of any age who will abide by the regulations as school pupils do. Often certain groups of the large school band, such as Boy Scouts, choose instruments for themselves so that they will have a balanced smaller band for certain other functions. Many enter the school band with the intention of playing at church or dances later.

Now is a fine time to learn for any purpose. However, it should be understood from the beginning that the school band, functioning as such, will attempt to play only such music and only at such functions as are becoming to a dignified school band.

I understand that a great deal of beginners is coming from Harmony and another from the Warren-Hillister area. I hope that other points of the county will join in and help make an All County band. Let us all Tyler County with music.

RAILROAD AN GUARDIAN

It is a wonderful thing that one can start a small child at one coast and send it to the other and feel perfectly at rest, knowing that when put in the care of the railroad it will be cared for until it is in the hands of friends at the other end. On the 11th of August David and Emma Lindsey, 14 and 9 years of age were entrusted to the care of the Southern Railway at Beaumont for a safe transportation to Tampico, Mexico. Following is a letter received by Mrs. W. A. Lindsey, with whom the children were making their home at that time. "Southern Pacific Lines, Beaumont, Tex., August 21, 1932. Mrs. W. A. Lindsey, Woodville, Texas. Dear Mrs. Lindsey—Further reference is made to your two grand children from Beaumont to Tampico. A phone call on the 10th we saw a lower berth for them and prepared railroad tickets all the way. We also telegraphed our Passenger Representative at San Antonio, Texas, and Monterey, explaining each of them the car and berth number, these youngsters occupied, and asking them to meet them and render assistance in making change of cars. We have reply from each of these agents stating they were met on their arrival and looked after them. We appreciate with this patronage and hope they had an enjoyable trip all the way. The attention given these children is not out of the ordinary, but a part of the excellent service we endeavor to render at all times for our nation friends, trying to make the Southern Pacific more popular all the time. If at any time we can be of further assistance to you we shall appreciate it very favor to have you call upon us. Very truly T. Y. Cleveland."

REMUNERATION

Tyler County Booster (Woodville): That little girl out in California who swallowed a nickel obtained in a prize package of candy and who later settled with the manufacturers for $500 is bound to make her fortune some way. Life is full of surprises like that. The little Californian not only located the prize package for which many yearning candy buyers seek in vain, but made the nickel pay $500. The civil courts are full of similar instances of plums acquired by folks who hunt for them in the manner of children searching for rabbits' eggs at Easter, aided in these cases, however, by the superior guiding of members of the legal fraternity, in spite of the ban against lotteries, this is one of the best instances we have of luck on the draw. The law on the theory of damages begins auspiciously, but as applied by juries is open to criticism by the skeptical. But as long as any of us have hopes of profiting by it we are disinclined to alter it. But the manufacturers of the California prize package of candy could have had greater disaster. These packages contain all sorts of small toys as a rule. The young lady might have swallowed an engine and the company would have had to settle on the basis of a full train.—State Press in the Dallas Daily News.
