Football Boys' Banquet At Gym

At a banquet in the high school gym Friday night, Jan. 25th, the boys who lettered in football this season will be honor guests and will receive sweaters. The banquet will be served by the P. T. A. and all friends of the school are urged to be present. The committee has fixed the price of the plates at the modest sum of 50c each which will be the actual cost. They have agreed to serve this banquet in honor of the team without any profit.

The banquet will be served at 7 p. m. and then at 8 o'clock there will be a program in the gym in which the sweters will be presented and plans for next year will be discussed. This program will be open to the public and no admission will be charged.

In order that the P. T. A. will know how many plates to prepare tickets will be on sale until Wednesday, January 23. This will be an important event in closing the work of the Athletic Association for the year and making plans for the future. It is hoped that some plan can be worked out for obtaining a field nearer the school building and having it electrically lighted so that night games may be scheduled for next year. It is hoped that a large crowd will be present.

Beware of Trichinosis

Austin, Texas, Jan. 15.—Now that the winter is here and pork and pork products are more freely used, warning against inefficient cooking of these is given by Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer. Trichinosis is caused by a parasite in the muscles of pigs. This parasite may occur in large numbers in infested meat.

The disease is rather extensively distributed among hogs, and all pork should be regarded with suspicion unless treated to kill the larvae. Freshly killed pork is more dangerous than meat that has been kept in cold storage for some time because parasites tend to die out during prolonged storage at low temperatures. Other processes of preserving meat also tend to kill the trichinella larvae. No method of meat inspection will invariably discover the presence of this parasite. Thus safeguard against the disease must be necessary by intelligent consumers of the infested pork. Thorough cooking may be counted upon to kill the parasite.

Trichinosis results from eating uncooked pork, usually in the form of sausage, that contains the larvae. There is often danger of not maintaining sufficient temperature to thoroughly cook the meat. Outer portions of the meat may appear well cooked while the inner part is quite rare and will retain the living parasites. Especially is this true if the piece of pork is quite thick. Cases of trichinosis have occurred from eating just such inner portions of undercooked pork. Pork with the slightest red tinge may contain the living parasites. Pork should be cooked until all color disappears through the piece of meat, for this is the only safeguard against trichinosis.

Pork Dealers Must Pay Processing Tax

Treasury Department, office of Taxation and Collecting, Beaumont, Texas, Jan. 9, 1935. Woodville Booster. This department would appreciate your publishing the following to help clear up misunderstanding conditions.

Pork dealers, including meat markets, grocery stores, cafes, and other establishments who are buying pork products from farmers and other individuals, on which no tax has been paid, are hereby being notified by the collector of Internal Revenue, that they will receive no further warning, and that those persons engaged in such business must report their liability at once, and pay taxes due on all such pork purchased since November, 1934.

A hog producer who sells pork to markets, cafes, and other types of business, who, in turn, further sell the pork is due no processing tax, but such market, cafe, and other types of business, who buy pork from the producer, is charged with the responsibility of keeping an accurate record of the number of pounds of each cut of pork (ham, bacon, sausage, lard, etc.), bought each month, and shall file a return on any such tax that is due monthly. A hog producer may also sell 300 pounds of pork products directly to the consumer without paying any processing tax, but when the producer has sold in excess of 300 pounds to the consumer, he then becomes liable for payment of the tax on a basis of $2.25 per hundred pounds liveweight.

A feeder is entitled to no exemption on pork sold. A feeder is a person who does not own the hog from the time of farrow, but a person who is engaged in buying live hogs, and slaughtering them for market. If a feeder buys some live hogs, slaughters them and sells them to a market, cafe, or some other business, who further sells them, or if he sells the pork direct to the consumer, the feeder is due to pay the tax on all such animals slaughtered on a basis of $2.25 per hundred pounds liveweight, and shall file his report monthly with the collector of Internal Revenue, at Austin, Texas.

All persons dealing with pork are hereby notified to get in touch with Deputy J. D. Langford, Beaumont, Texas, or the collector of Internal Revenue, Austin, for the purpose of securing returns, and paying taxes due on November and December, 1934. Pork products slaughtered and purchased. The full 25% penalty and interest will be asserted on delinquent returns, and ignorance of the existing law will not be an acceptable excuse for not filing monthly returns.

A careful inspection will be made of local pork dealers in the near future for the purpose of detecting any delinquency of efforts to evade the payment of this tax. Persons desiring any further information may call at Room 306 Federal Bldg., Beaumont, between the hours of 8 and 4 o'clock.

Signed: J. D. LANGFORD.

Just a few years ago there was a decided difference with the style and dress of the country and town girl. Now it is not so. The country girl through newspapers, radio and perhaps mail order catalogues (give the devil his due) a beautiful girl has almost gone "one better" than the town girl for she has learned to make her own clothes. Especially where House Dresses are concerned, she has a decided edge over the town girl.

Cookies Seem to Take High Place

By No Means Out of Favor Even When Holidays Are Ended.

The holidays may come and go, but some of my readers seem to remain interested in the question of cookies, says an expert on the subject. In spite of previous articles devoted to their home manufacture, readers are still avid for more recipes. I also had a letter from one reader, saying that she had been able to make brownies and walnut wafers, though she followed my recipe exactly. I myself have made them hundreds of times, and always with success.

WHAT GRADE LABELING MEANS TO FARMERS

Crops grown for canning take up 40 per cent of the truck crop farm acreage in the United States. Most of these crops are grown on contract under which the canner buys the crop at an agreed price. This the grower has a sure sale for what he raises at a price which is often more remunerative than he gets for crops subject to market hazards.

Anything that hurts the canner likewise hurts the grower. The two go up or down together. The canner now faces a demand from certain government offices that he place a grade label on his produce. He knows that any attempt to put all canned foods in three general grades means that he will have to give up against price and quality. He will be the lowest quality in each grade. Inevitably, the general quality of canned foods will go down, and when quality goes down, competition goes down with it.

Canners have offered a better label to the grower. It is a plan to label produce according to a plan that will give the grower a better price and a better market. The plan is to label produce according to a plan that will give the grower a better price and a better market.

It is the grower and the canner who are the center of labeling. The grower is the one who produces the goods and the canner is the one who markets them. The grower is the one who produces the goods and the canner is the one who markets them.
