

Representatives Study Japanese Competition

Examine Oriental Imports

Representatives of the House of Representatives today are studying the competition of Japanese goods in the United States market. The study is being conducted by a subcommittee of the Ways and Means committee, headed by Representative Charles McNary, Oregon.

The subcommittee is holding hearings in Washington today on the subject of Japanese imports. It is expected that the committee will report to the full house in a few days.

The study is being conducted in response to a request from the Senate Finance committee, which is also studying the subject of Japanese imports.

The Household

By EDITH M. BARBER

When you are planning the menu for a dinner party, there are some things which you can do to make the occasion more enjoyable. First, you should consider the menu. It should be simple and attractive, and it should be easy to prepare.
