Lobbying and Virgin Islands Investigations Develop Lively Scraps—House 'Rebels' Are Team Concerning T.V.A. Amendments

THE House today was a scene of activity for the investigation of the Virgin Islands. The House Committee on Territories and Insular Affairs, under the leadership of Representative Charles McNary, of Oregon, today held a hearing on the report of the committee on the investigation of the Virgin Islands.

The committee report, which was prepared by McNary and other members of the committee, was a scathing indictment of the administration of the Virgin Islands. It charged that the administration had been grossly mismanaged and that the islands had been neglected for years.

The committee also charged that the administration had been grossly mismanaged and that the islands had been neglected for years. It called for a complete reorganization of the islands and for a new system of administration.

The committee report was a surprise to many, as it was generally expected that the administration would be defended. The report was a clear and concise statement of the facts and was well received by the public.
