Repairs Going On At Theatre

Wednesday night of last week during the second show at the Theatre, Aubrey Powell noticed the signal lights were working and immediately turned on the lights. The lights burned, showing out a scene into the auditorium, doing damage to the ceiling. The lights burned for an hour and a half, and the intense heat made it impossible to see the show. The contents of the show were badly burned, and the audience was forced to leave. The repairs are now being made and the show will be resumed on Friday night.
