County, Texas, and the day, March 3, was the greatest from a historical standpoint of any day in the entire territory of Walker county.

THOMAS E. Edmondson, in the March issue of The Texas Outlook, a monthly magazine, stressing the best of everything in the educational Texas world has an article entitled "The Common School Board: A Hindrance to Education." That is a whole of a statement. The writer explains what he means and leaves the average layman flat, betrayed—if you know what we mean. It is a fact, those who are not making a careful study of the modern march in education hardly know what it is all about. But read the article and judge for yourself.

JUST NOW is the balance of Texas week. In the State's Department headquarters at Austin to close April 1. There's bound to be a bunch of white collar men about to fall in on the bread line.

SOMETIMES WE wonder if Daddy Roosevelt didn't turn over in his coffin when his daughter Alice, of Alice Blue fame, added her testimony of a nameless less cigarette to go before the American people.

THE ELEVENTH anniversary of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce will be held at Huntsville March 24. Great preparations are being made to entertain the several delegates from this part of the state.

CONTRARY TO all doubts, Thomson work has commenced on the county buildings—court house and jail. When this work is completed and several minutes of the square removed, Woodvilleans will be able to point with pride, etc.

CAN ANYBODY tell what actually is the limit of the football football the Rockland team is the ball, about to be topped by the line, or will it just naturally explode, leaving the line quivering and shivering about like a wounded father awaiting the going down of the afternoon sun?

MANY TYLER county citizens are beginning to wonder when the tipping vat will be put into use. Cattle can be rounded up now, at least, troubles and expense then in 60 to 80 days hence. Tyler county farmers will be proud of the fact when the territory is tick free and out of quarantine.

THE MODERN gas range is changing the meals of the nation. This is the heading of an advertisement of a gas range manufacturer. So this is what's happening to our meals in the age of modernism. We've been wondering for a long while. Now we know. It's all as plain and clear as mud.

SA ST. LOUIS man won a suit for money his friend agreed to pay as the price of silence about immoral conduct of the friend with the man's wife. Any man who will accept money to keep silent, much less go to the court to obtain his rights, should walk under a giant heel about smoking off his hat.

JUST AS we said recently, the programs in cases of death of persons—where the face is shown on the TV and returned to the family—was a waste of time. The programs are done, and the family is left with a blank space.

plished in on... things done up at... mother set down at the table and read the Sun... (Wash.) out loud, stopping now and then to comment. "No, no daily paper, nor any of the several radio outlets will ever displace the 'fifties old' county paper." April 11, 90% of this radio programs folks just naturally tune out quick on the advertising features. Wonder if it ever occurred to the advertisers on the radio to give the newspapers a break and make the same offers in newspaper advertising as are given to those listening in on the day-by-day radio broadcasts.

Wool Crop Not Short in Texas

Wool may be short, but not in Texas. This is the report of Sam Ashburn of the San Angelo Standard-Times in the March issue of the official organ, Texas Parade, just off the press. Texas does not hold in dislike the glamour that is woven about this state by novelists, feature story writers and radio artists. They do, however, become at times tired of being referred to as a plain state. In the Southwest section there are hidden around the hills and mesas some 3,750,000 sheep, which makes the state a leader in the production of wool in the United States. The production this year will reach approximately 7,000,000 pounds this spring, or approximately one-fifth of the output of this fiber in the United States. In the fall will come along an additional five to 10 million pounds of fall short wools. The buying of wool is one of the most interesting spectacles in the whole picture of American business. Ranchmen sell their lambs quietly and with no rise to the blood pressing, but the marketing of wool is almost a continuous price fight. Wool in West Texas is a fighting word. There is assembled in San Angelo the greatest inland wool market in the world. In the spring of each year some 30 wool buyers representing approximately 50 wool brokers or manufacturers in the east attend. Many of the eastern wool firms have their representative offices who, live in Texas the better year. News of wool travels almost exclusively by the grapevine route all over the United States, and is bought on the clean basis, which means the amount of actual wool that can be obtained from a pound of grease wool—usually about 40 pounds from one hundred pounds of grease wool.

Wool Crop Not Short in Texas

There are situated in Texas some 25 warehouses which hold money on sheep and sell wool when it comes into the warehouses. These warehouses are owned by the wool growers themselves—and are operated by ranchmen who know the wool market, and best of all, who know how to horse-trade on wool for every lot of wool that is bought anywhere in the world is bought just like a horse is swapped.

The quality of Texas wool has been improved down the years. To be specific, only a few years ago Texas wools were not regarded as being good for top-making purposes, but today one half the wools in the United States are bought for making these tops which is an intermediate stage in the marketing process. Wool leads the price of sheep. When wool is high, sheep are high. The average price of wool in Texas for the next ten years is figured conservatively at around 33 to 35 cents.

My Heavens! 'Twas only 35 cents Gov. Allred (happens) to appear on the scene, a late down strike was averted in the House of the 1937 Legislature. Boss Hardin of Prairie Hill had a resolution pending in the House—proposing the House go on record as refusing to pass any tax measure until the bill to inflate old-age pension payments was passed. Indeed, it was because of Gov. Allred's delivery of an ultimatum which produced a vote of 90 to 23. Hardin's act failed, and the Texas Legislature failed to go on record as producing the first Legislative sit-down strike. Somebody should give Messrs Green and Lewis America's foremost unrest agitators.

NEWSPAPER advertising has come to be as much a necessity of a growing concern as the well known bank balance.

$12.75/1000 Allotted Texas Highway

With 11,000,000 allotted for the highway program, Texas is most fortunate in having their state sitting at the federal government table to receive this extra large cut of the July patronage malon. It is the first time the "big boy" has been so favored. However, it is because of his bigness (highway mileage) that the largest appropriation was received. And this is as it should be. For the biggest get the boy the largest the broodless must be. And then too folks are turning to Texas these days in every way. The home seekers, the investors and those just waiting to see the "big boy" main that makes up the empire of states. Uncle Sam has begun to realize that way down South-west on the gulf, he has one of the most promising members of his flock that is entitled to a little of his favored grooming. So what's a promising member out-look for our State this more than $11,000,000 means toward unemployment relief, building progress and industry, improved roads. With such a fund available for immediate construction of roads and better highways, there certainly will come business expansion and greater commercial activity. Now settlers better housing, schools, improved and modern business enterprises.

and new adventures will result. Now all of the funds made available to Texas will be expended in accordance with the general plan used in previous federal aid highway work. Projects for improvements will be selected by the State highway department, which also will prepare plans, let contracts and supervise construction—all subjects to federal improvement. Improvement of secondary roads and elimination of rail hazards with federal funds were first initiated as an emergency measure to relieve unemployment. The apportionment of funds for these purposes during the next fiscal year is the first to be made a part of the regular federal program. Regulations under which the two new funds will be administered are now being prepared by the bureau of public roads. Our state is required to match the funds for improvement of the federal aid system and for secondary roads, but it is not required to match the grade crossing funds.
