

WONDERS OF THE DEEP

MOST of the earth has been discovered. More and more we are probing the secrets of the air. But the ocean remains, in many ways, the great mystery. And since nearly three-fourths of the earth's surface is covered by oceans, it will probably be many years before scientists can explain all of the wonders of the deep.

One of the never-ceasing sources of wonder is the quantity of food that comes out of the sea, and the nutritive value of this sea produce explains this. In telling us that as the water cools, the sea becomes richer. By the process of condensation and other factors, the sea is being continually improved. The sea is rich in vitamins, and these vitamins are being continually improved. The sea is rich in vitamins, and these vitamins are being continually improved.

THE BOOSTER thinks the finest Christmas present in all the world this year was made by John Amos of New York City. To 19-year-old Frank Chabina, Jr., he gave his eye that the boy might see. The operation was entirely successful by the surgeons. The old man, John Amos, told the story on the

A MAN by the name of Mann is going to try and knock from off his shoulders a block belonging to the champion prize fighter of these United States as well as the balance of the uncivilized world. The battle has been tagged as a set-up for the negro, just to keep him in practice for a real battle that is going to be pulled off a little later. Of course this is just a little Christmas gift for the champ. He'll grab off a chunk of coin—easy money, ah, if and when.

SOME OF US can remember the so-called gay nineties and exactly how the bathing suits appeared. What we mean by this is that what would the present seaside-resorters think if the styles then in vogue were by law enforced during the year 1938. Perhaps you can tell. Words, absolutely fail us, and more especially after viewing some of the pictures of the bathing beauties

IN THE UNITED STATES, says that he looks forward to the time when we will cultivate the seas as we do the land areas, increasing their production, much as we do with other farming today. In speaking of the importance of sea foods in the diet, Commissioner O'Malley says: "They have proved to be good sources of the minerals and vitamins so essential to a well-balanced diet, and of course, to good health. For a long time sea foods have been recognized as the richest known sources of iodine-bearing foods."

If you are a housewife, this all sounds very interesting, perhaps a bit tedious, also, you have to clean fish. Soaking and cleaning even the most sleek and iodine-containing fish imaginable is not an inviting task. But, when you are a very old-fashioned housewife, this is not a problem. You can buy a very old-fashioned housewife's fish, and you can buy a very old-fashioned housewife's fish.
