

PALACE

BY CHRISTINE WHITING PARMENTER

"But the papers, Father!" Nora's eyes widened with surprise. "The papers were there, on the world to read. I thought you'd come when you knew how Don was injured. I thought you'd forgive us. I lay in bed after our little girl was born—so frightfully worried about Don—too weak to go to him, and every time a bell would ring I'd think: 'Perhaps that's Father! He wouldn't leave me to face all this alone. He'll come. He'll see that Don has everything he needs. And—and you didn't come, Father. Not that it matters now you're here at last.'"

"Listen," James interrupted, his voice shaking. "I was sick, dear child, down with pneumonia at the time. I don't know how long I was in bed. I never rang those papers, not one of them. It was no longer front-page stuff when I recovered. To be sure, Ned saw something that made him suspicious, but the name was misprinted and he didn't want to worry me about it."

"You must forgive him, Nora. The boy was going through troubles of his own at that time. He forgot everything else. Don't blame him any more than you can help, dear. We all do the wrong thing at times. And once in a great while—thank God—we're given the opportunity to make amends. Last night, you see, Ned realized that I was troubled—I'd been talking with Martha. She had been crying when I went up to see her birthday gifts, and because of you. For the first time in all these years, Nora, we talked about you; and in her own kind, carefully respectful way, she showed me myself—told me the truth that I had long suspected. And she said, 'I went down at last, and sat on the old davenport where you and I so often threshed things out together, trying to think how I could find you. And I should have found you. You'd been at the North Pole! Then Ned came in. He had heard news of you—I don't know how. He wanted to come himself but I refused to let him. I was so hungry for a sight of you. For you are my little girl, darling. Nothing has altered that, nor ever can. When I think what you've been through—Tell me, did he break off abruptly when you did your marriage? Who helped you when you needed help so desperately?'"

Said Nora, a far-away look creeping into her eyes: "A woman in South Africa, Father. The sort of woman we're supposed to kiss by on the other side." It's too long a story to go into now, but she gave me a diamond. It was very beautiful—so beautiful that, though it was saving us, I wept a little when I gave it up!"

Nora paused thoughtfully a moment; then went on: "You see, Father, things were very bad indeed. All we had saved had gone into this home. There were only a few hundred dollars in the bank when we started West; but we weren't worrying. There was plenty to see me through my confinement, and more was promised. We had never felt so sure about the future—so light-hearted."

"And then—the avalanche! For weeks the doctors thought Don would not live. For months he could not leave the hospital. He lay on one of a long, long row of narrow beds—nothing to hear but sounds of sickness and clamor of city streets—nothing to see but four bare walls; and he so loves beauty! Only to think about it tore my heart in two. And the pain—grinding, unceasing, wearing away his splendid strength" the trinkets you'd given me; but could not get out of their real value and what they brought only staved off the inevitable for a little while. "And then one night when I was counting the endless hours, it came to me like an inspiration that my diamond was worth money—real money. I saw us through, Dad—kept us going—brought us back home when Don was able to be cared for. He was so weak when he moved. Such a joy and feel the wind on his face! Almost from the first minute he started gaining. He's writing again now—a book—but the work goes slowly. You see, there is still much pain; and his nerves aren't steady. But he tries so hard to get the better of them, Dad. He's so courageous."

JANE WITHERS and a Huckleberry Pie Meet Head On, But Jane Is Match for Enemy

Her voice died down as if tears threatened again, and James said, "See here, Nora. I realize that you can forgive me a great deal because you understand. You know that though I was too stubborn to admit it, I have always loved you—let your husband regard me now? In his eyes I have betrayed a trust—let you bear burdens too heavy for your shoulders. Can he forgive too, or can't he?"

"In just a moment," broke in Nora softly, one hand thrown out in an expressive gesture, "I—I think we'll know."

James raised his eyes. The curtain of the door had parted, and standing before them, his hair blown back in the familiar way, stood Don, his boys beside him, his baby daughter clinging to one of them. Even that first quick glance told much to Nora's father. He saw that the once straight shoulders sagged a little, as if the effort to stand erect was now too great. He saw that the wind-blown hair was white about the temples; the eyes seemed deeper set—the cheekbones higher. But he saw also that the lines on Don's thin, tanned face were born of suffering, not self-pity; and that his head still lifted buoyantly as of old.

Unconquered! The word, so singularly fitting, sprang into James Lambert's mind as he arose. Unconquered! That was Don Mason. Never again could office walls imprison him. He had got beyond them.

"There was a silence; then Don said gently: 'Well, sir, but to the old man they were a challenge, and he met it generously. Though his eyes smiled, his voice was wholly serious.'"

"I lay down my sword. The enemy surrenders to the better man." And then Don laughed, a laugh that seemed to bring the clean, gay spirit of adventure into the room. Impulsively he started forward, but stopped, remembering; while James saw with quick compassion that one foot dragged.

"The enemy?" Don echoed. "I think not, sir," he glanced down, meeting the puzzled young faces that were lifted to him. "Children," he said, "attention! Salute your grandsire. The old King has come home!"

(THE END.)

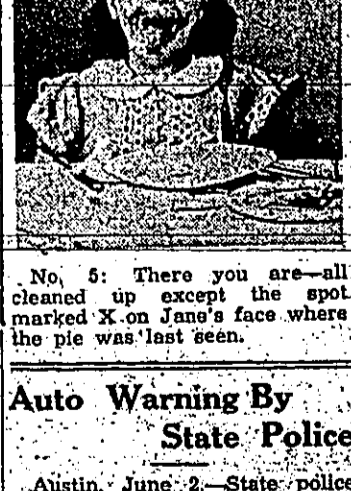

No. 1: Little Jane Withers and a big huckleberry pie. In the order named. Both contestants enter the ring in excellent shape. Jane has a little the edge in speed and 'sped', but the pie weighed in at top fighting form.

No. 2: Except between meals Jane is rarely hungry. So, ready—! The battle begins with a little cautious sparring.

No. 3: Aim! Fire! It's great to have those girlish gastric juices.

No. 4: But a fork sort of cramps a fellow's style, doesn't it? And a fork is so leaky, anyhow. So, nertz to it!

No. 5: There you are—all cleaned up except the spot marked X on Jane's face where the pie was last seen.

WOODVILLE LOCALS

Miss Mrs. Belle Stewart, of Chester, following a visit in the home of her relatives, Mrs. But Park, returned to her home at Park, Tuesday morning. She has been visiting in the Dooley Davis home.

Miss Mrs. J. L. Smith spent the week end in Houston.

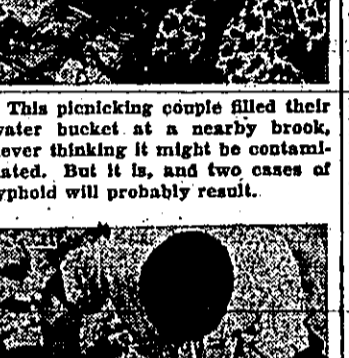

Miss Jessie V. Chambliss is visiting her sister, Kitty, at Port Arthur.

Mrs. L. R. Fisher and son Gene, of Austin, left Sunday, after a few days visit with the husband and father, J. R. Fisher.

Doucette Soft Ball fans and players are anxiously waiting for the field to be lighted. The globes are expected some time this week.

Orle Swearingen of Austin visited his parents Mrs. Ed Swearingen, this week end.

Mrs. Buck Campbell, Mrs. J. D. Smith, Mrs. B. Cockerham and Miss Katie Bendy attended a shower at the former home of Mrs. Campbell in Fostoria, last Wednesday.

July Fourth is a day of picnics and of picnic accidents. If the gentleman isn't careful, he'll split an artery instead of opening his bottle.

Here's one for the books... filling a gasoline stove while smoking a cigarette. It looks foolish, and is, but many Independence Day picnickers will try it.

Fourth of July is a favorite day for swimming... and drowning. If you're not an excellent swimmer, don't be independent just because it's Independence Day. Don't go in the water right after eating.

If the youngsters MUST HAVE fireworks, make sure they're small size. You'd better be around to supervise the celebration, too. Children can be awfully foolish with fireworks. So can some adults, or that matter.

WOODVILLE LOCALS

C. G. Yelverton with his daughter, Mrs. Forest Pate and the children leave this week to visit his old home in Alabama.

Mrs. Mary Evans carried their little son, Bobbly Allen, to the hospital in Houston, Texas, last week.

CREROKEE DIES

Friends of Mrs. Nelle Hollomon will be glad to learn the little daughter, Nelva, is slowly improving, after a very serious illness.

Mrs. Bryan Martin of Woodville, spend Sunday in the Jim Fortenberry home.

Mrs. J. W. Bostick attended church and singing at Camp Ground Sunday.

Mrs. Otto Fortenberry, have returned after a visit with the parents, Mrs. Jim Shepherd of Doucette. The daughter, Grace remained for an extended visit.

Mrs. Lude Lee and family of Chester spent a short while in the Webb Sheffield home Sunday afternoon.

Bob Cruse and Burton Fortenberry were in Huntington and Lufkin on business Monday.

Miss Ruth Norris entertained with a party Saturday night for the young folks.

Mrs. Eugene McRee and Mrs. Bryon McRee of near Colmesnell spent Sunday with Mrs. C. C. Knight.

Our baseball team made up for their defeat last Sunday by winning two games this week. The score with Harmony was 8-7; with Town Bluff, 8-1.

Misses Joyce Nowlin and Tera King of Bethany attended the base ball games here Sunday afternoon.

Miss Dolores Brown is visiting her grandparents, Mrs. Joe Brown.

Mrs. Marlin Fortenberry and family visited relatives in Corigan Thursday.

Several families from here have been attending the political rallies in nearby communities.

Mrs. Webb Sheffield and mother, Mrs. Justice, spent Saturday night with Mrs. Ray Sturrock of Bethany.

Cade Davis of Woodville spent the week end with home folks.

BAPTIST CHURCH NEWS

The morning services at the Baptist church during the summer will be concluded at 11:45 o'clock. The BTU attendance each Sunday evening is indeed gratifying. There were 52 in attendance Sunday evening. The senior BTU under the direction of Mrs. Clyde Phillips, is doing a very fine work.

Owing to the crowded condition in the Intermediate's and Young People's departments in the Sunday school, some of the class members are asking if arrangements might not be made for them to meet at some other place near the church.

The Women's Auxiliary met at the church Monday afternoon with 25 ladies in attendance. Miss Jennie Boyd lead the devotional.

The Senior BTU, accompanied by Mrs. Phillips, went to Honey Island Monday evening for a swim party. There were about 30 young people in the party.

The Home-Maker's class, instructed by Mrs. McCombs, was delightfully entertained Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Lee Henley.

A payment of $75 per month would pay off a loan of $4,000, the amount suggested to be borrowed for the new church building, in approximately five years. All the while the building would be in use, making possible a larger and better work. It is significant to note that this church this year has paid an average of $75 per month into the improvement program at the pastor's home. Most of the amount has been paid out of the regular offerings.

Practical lessons with the children were given at the church last week.

Mrs. Harris Campbell of Warren plan to leave soon to spend three weeks in College Station where Mr. Campbell will attend school at A&M. He was county seat visitor Tuesday.

The electric line is being extended to the Clemons tract from the Gulf high line and although the line was turned off, a lineman got severely burned last week, on his feet and hands when lightning struck the line near Koutzka and he received a heavy shock of static electricity. He was hurried here to a physician who accompanied him to a Beaumont hospital.

Historic Hoaxes

By Elmo Scott Wilson

Clan War

ONE day a section of the Clan MacLean dropped in to the office of the Toronto Mail and Empire, as was his custom, to see his friend, Charles Langton Clarke. On the newspaper man's desk he noticed a clipping of an article which quoted "the noted Scottish historian, Strangway," as saying that the MacLeans had been the first to flee from the Battle of Culloden, thus causing the defeat of Bonnie Prince Charlie. That clipping had been "planted" there deliberately by Clarke, who expected his friend to find it and "blow up."

Instead, the victim of Clarke's hoax rushed from the office and set himself down to write an indignant letter to another Toronto newspaper. Immediately other Scots in Ontario took up the matter and a bitter controversy began. To the MacLeans, proudest of all the proud Highlanders and numerous in Canada, such a reflection upon the courage of their ancestors was an insupportable insult.

Members of other clans—and these included men who were supposed to be authorities on Scottish history—declared that they were quite familiar with the works of Strangway and had always found him accurate. For days the battle of Culloden was fought over and over again in the columns of the newspapers. So bitter grew the feeling that Clarke began to wonder if he could still, the tempter that he had raised, before there was bloodshed. When a report suddenly came that a man in Ontario had remembering what I had to face alone, he kept on fighting."

"The water wears away the stones of a beach. I think that he would then want to die. Father, to what the struggle; but remembering what I had to face alone, he kept on fighting."

"How very terrible. I couldn't get in to cheer him at odd times. He was in a ward. I saw him a single hour. He was going—mildly, but he was going."

"I don't see the point of it."

Auto Warning By State Police

Austin, June 2.—State police Thursday issued public air points of safety for summer motoring tourists. The main admonition was not to pick up hitchhikers.

"The small game of motorists will be the small game of motorists this summer," the police said.
