Primary Election Brought A Heap o' Surprises To Friend and Foe; Aug. 27, the Run-off

The primary election of last Saturday proved to be one of the busiest and at the same time one of the most interesting primary elections held in Woodville during the past decade.

It could hardly be said that party lines were foremost in voters' minds because political contests in Texas are not famous. A voter is a Democrat or else.

Or else means if you are not a Democrat you have no place or business in a Democratic primary.

The interest of voters was mainly to see their friends elected, and speaking of lines that's where they were drawn—I want my friend elected.

Many cars were darting about here, there, and yonder, bringing in to the polling place voters who had not means of comfortable transportation.

The election in this precinct was held in the court house. Frequent showers kept the outside steps, which slant backwards which is wrong, full of water, but that made no difference, voters waded the water, cussed and waded up more steps and finally managed to cast their vote.

This primary did not make a record as to the number of votes cast, but from a stand point of interest, it is doubtful if previous primaries could compare.

Some voters were determined to break up the court house gang, and others were just as earnest in their desire to make no changes. The run-off, however, will determine who shall preside in power until ousted by the 1940 election which will be presidential year.

The following gives the closest account the Booster is able to tabulate.

District Attorney R. M. Briggs, piled up a big lead, swept every county except Liberty, the home of Grogan. The biggest majority of Briggs came in his home county, Hardin, where he polled 2908 votes against 798 for his opponent. Tyler county also gave him a large vote with 1531 compared to 738 for Grogan. Briggs carried Chambers county 950 to 688.

Grogan showed a commanding lead in Liberty county as he polled 2971 as compared to 1778 for Briggs.

Mrs. Mary Soale Pedito, of Hull, is visiting Woodville friends. Mrs. C. E. Smith entertained Wednesday in honor of Mrs. Pedito and Mrs. W. R. Pfafka, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mrs. Will Wisenbaker returned to her home in Beaumont Monday after a weeks visit with Mrs. S. L. Rainey and other relatives. Mrs. Rainey is happy at the news that her uncle, W. H. Galbreath, of Wharton, who was in the race for representative from that district won in the primary election.

Mrs. C. C. Post and baby of Jasper visited the Rainey's Sunday.

B. J. Tolar, of Kountze spent the week end with Tyler county relatives.

A Surprise Announcement

Miss Jewel Dean goes on duty at the Star Cafe at 5 o'clock p. m. and upon her arrival Monday she was overwhelmingly surprised to see the Star Cafe blooming with a profusion of cut flowers, packages piled high on the east counter, a lace covered table holding a large punch bowl and glass and reading "Leon and Jewel, July 30th." Some 75 friends, neighbors and relatives were present to enjoy her surprise. Hostesses were Mesdames J. D. Brown, T. A. Houston and the Misses Ruthie and Virginia Hatton, Blanche Baker, Billie Jones, Rosalie Durham and Marjorie Anderson. The Misses Ruth Hatton and Blanche Baker assisted by Misses Billy Jones and Virginia Hatton served the punch and cakes. The honoree and Leon Sturrock of Anahuac, will be married on Saturday. Both are well known here for the bride is the eldest daughter of Mrs. Esau Dean and Mr. Sturrock is the youngest brother of Judge J. E. Sturrock.

VOCATIONAL COURSES IN CAMP LEONARD WOOD

The vocational courses taught in Camp Leonard Wood are as follows: 1. Bookkeeping. 2. Advanced Bookkeeping. 3. CCC Administration. 4. Cooking. 5. Woodworking. I, II, III. 7. Surveying. It will be noticed that there is no vocational course taught which requires any technical prerequisite training. It is also noticeable that all deal with work in which long term of specialized training is unnecessary for proficiency in the particular vocation under consideration. The reason for this condition is obvious—men do not remain in the CCC long enough to become proficient in the other type of training. One of the major functions of the CCC is to make enrollees "employable". To do this, care must be exercised in choosing vocational subjects.

TO THE CITIZENS OF THE 75TH JUDICIAL DISTRICT

I am, indeed, grateful for my reelection as District Attorney, and sincerely thank the people for their support. I shall continue to serve the people to the best of my ability.

R. M. BRIGGS

TO THE VOTERS OF TYLER COUNTY

I wish to express my appreciation for the nice vote given me in the primary election. I am taking this opportunity of soliciting your vote and influence in the August 27th primary, for the office of State Representative. Thanks.

CLAUDE H. CASKEY

TO THE VOTERS OF PRECINCT NO. 2

I take this method of thanking you for your kindness and consideration in the recent primary, and earnestly solicit your support on August 27th. Assuring you, if elected, the very best that is in me. I shall be glad to counsel with you concerning the things of interest to our precinct.

W. A. WATTS

TO MY VOTERS

I want to thank every man and woman who cast a vote for me. Now will you make the effort to go to the polls August 27th and do it again? I need your help now as much as in the primary. I will not get to see you, the time is too short but I do appreciate what you have done for me and ask you to help in the runoff.

LEM BULLOCK

AN APPRECIATION TO THE PEOPLE OF TYLER COUNTY

I wish to express my appreciation for the support given me on July 23. Again I am asking your support and influence for me in the second Primary, August 27.

CROSS DANIELS

TO THE PEOPLE OF TYLER COUNTY

I am very grateful for the splendid vote that I received in the July Primary. Not having received a majority of the votes cast in the July Primary I become necessary that I again solicit your vote and influence for the August Primary. Assuring you again of my sincerest appreciation for your support and influence, and promising, if elected, your county judge to render you the very best service that I am capable.

Yours truly

Wanted: Complete New Crop of Vaudeville Artists To Bring In Dark Horses and Battle Scarred Veterans Of Vintage of 1940. Gov. O'Daniel's Shown 'Em How By Winning In A Walk

Now that Texas and the Nation has learned through the antics of W. Lee O'Daniel, how successful is vaudeville, when applied to campaigns political, it is expected artists who can do their stunts under any and all conditions will again come into more general use.

True, election years will undoubtedly see great numbers and more stunt artists willing and anxious to take the stump for anybody who wants to be governor, and who has the sufficient amount of kale to make things interesting, ah, for the performers.

There will also be several separately distinct lines of artists for hire, and heavens, only the greatest athletically inclined minds will be able to visualize the vaudeville stunts that could and would fit in case vaudeville practices should invade the ultra-select, say Presidential field of endeavor, for instance.

Perhaps vaudeville practices may come to the relief of the big tent shows, for it is remembered, Barnum-Bailey, etc., greatest shows on earth, are not delighting the circus going through this year because of the activities of CIO Lewis and how he managed to produce labor difficulties so serious that the shows have been put back into winter quarters indefinitely. This opens the way for new stunts to enter the political vaudeville field and then you'll care for the big top tents?

Highly trained elephants and a few performers could go out with Mr. Hoover in the early days of 1940 and we'll tell the world Herb with his loud speaker and fog-horn voice, and other attributes of a No. 1 candidate, together with the greatest stunt elephants in the world would face O'Daniel, who introduced this kind of showmanship to relegate to the discard such men as Ernest O. Thompson and Bill McCraw.

Opposing Hoover's big ones could be a bunch of trick donkeys and, properly trained, Old Man Al Smith could have a bushel of fun. He could offer prizes for rough riders to ride his donkeys and if they were sure enough good, about one rough rider in 25 would be able to make the grade. But, really, trained donkeys who can and will kick and guffaw! Say! What a show would be one on the greens during the presidential campaign!

Happy thought! Won't somebody transmit this to Teddy Roosevelt's cousin?

It is understood, in this campaign vaudeville political stunts and best performers in all the vaudeville circles would command the greater take-in, and that would cause great campaign funds to get out of the hands of the fixers, if you understand what we mean, and perhaps being a manager of many seeking election, would cease, forthwith, to be any kind of plum, and more especially in the smaller towns and villages. And then performing monkeys and seals would be washed off on the state officers. Think how many states and state's officers!

GOP'S Attitude Well, Canst Thou Beat It?

A revealing feature of the Republican State convention in Indiana—only one thus far held in a large industrial state—was the plank on child labor. It "favored the principle" through the medium of "an amendment to the Constitution." Nothing was said about the proposed amendment which has been pending for nearly 20 years. No delegate addressed the chair on the subject or asserted that he had directly or indirectly endeavored to secure its ratification by the remaining 12 States necessary before it can be effective.

No one at Indianapolis mentioned the recent report of the National Child Labor Committee which states that in this year "there has been a rapid and alarming increase" in industrial child labor; a "shift of working children into the largely unsupervised service trades." The report showed there are approximately 350,000 child workers under 16 employed to day. The industrially controlled Indiana convention adopted ironical treatment of what actually is the proud handiwork of the reactionaries whenever legislatures have sought to ratify the current amendment.

CLAUDE CASKEY MADE THE RUN-OFF

A Tyler county man—made a fine showing in the race for representative.

Claude H. Caskey won a place in the run-off and we believe that Caskey can be elected if Tyler county voters will stay behind him. Tyler county has never elected a home man in over twenty years. Now is our chance to bring the office to Tyler county. Forest M. Campbell is backing Mr. Caskey and is using his influence in Mr. Caskey's behalf. Also Polly A. Durham and Mr. C. Wrottenberg are throwing their strength to Caskey.

We are urging Tyler county voters to back a home man. He is capable, honest and efficient.

Mrs. Ben Richardson have moved from Woodville into their new home just north of Warren. He was in Woodville one day last week.

and assessor should have a group of tumbling girls, a parrot and a gila monster.

The treasurer, a sharp-shooter, resembling Annie Oakley and nearly as efficient, and a trained blood-hound.

A county attorney would be expected to have a band truck fully equipped with loud speakers, trumpet, fiddles to attract and a beautiful young girl snake charmer with an 11-foot coa-sonatic horn—would about her. An, perhaps for self protection.

Of course precinct officers could learn to do their own stunts, and perhaps be able to attach themselves to some of the greater attraction outfits.

We nearly over-looked justices of the peace. Owing to the fact justices are famous in not getting those who are in business and possibly showing his power over a lion and a frisky calf.

Lem Bullock In the Run-off

In conversation with Bullock, candidate for commissioner in Precinct No. 1, he urged The Booster to step on the report started in Woodville, to the effect he was going to resign, and make a fight in the run-off.

"I wish you would tell the voters in Precinct No. 1," said Mr. Bullock, "that I am positively in the race and will be until by county of the ballots I am proven a loser." That was a perfectly plain statement. Every child can understand every word of it. Also, Mr. Bullock would like to know what friends will be glad to know that the race for commissioner in Precinct No. 1 was not completed at the primary, so that the office was to be won by default.

Cau You Beat It?

Sunday's edition of the Beaumont Enterprise, failed to mention the vote received by the man who was a candidate for Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel's office. The only mention of Renfro we would locate was in a little short paragraph where a woman ill-used an ambulance as a voting booth, son she vote voters for Beaumont favorite son.

It is barely possible that the prize had something about it in the Monday morning edition if twice there we failed to mention the story.

SOME CANDIDATES blame the unders and the overs for the grand totals covering the primary election. Well, maybe so.

IT APPEARS the primary election this year showed a greater interest than any similar primary election day during the last decade.

THE MOST intriguing point in Mr. Hoover's brooding and speculation from California, where he is speaking in behalf of a Republican Congressional candidate, was his charge that Mr. Roosevelt "is not a Liberal." The basis of Mr. Roosevelt's New Deal IS Liberalism in the truest sense. —Chatanooga News, (Ind.-Dem.)

SATURDAY, AS most of Booster readers have correctly surmised, was election day. What an army of go getters possessed of ears there were and did they bring in the voters? Well, if you think they did not, look over the totals. Lines were hewed close and the run-off is going to be as exciting as were the last days of the campaigning before the primary.

THE YOUTH of the land seems to be attracting more attention this year than ever before. The 4-H clubs are on vacations, many of them educational. In comparison, the youths of today are performing in a fixed epoch. Fixed is right and thinking parents hope modern educational efforts will not prove to be in vain.

Uncle Sam's Peace Table in New York

NEW YORK—(Special)—Giant steamshovels are tearing away at the soil and hundreds of men are working on the $3,000,000 Federal Area for the New York World's Fair where Uncle Sam will preside, figuratively, at a 1939 world peace table that is expected to have a lasting beneficial effect upon international relations. Uncle Sam will be represented by a huge Federal Building which will be placed at the head of a Hall of Nations where foreign countries, 64 of which have agreed to participate, will show their official exhibits at the Fair. All the buildings will be grouped around an enormous parade ground which will be the scene of parades, pageants, drills and other colorful events of like nature, and where many thousands of Fair visitors will gather on opening day to listen to a speech by President Roosevelt. The architect is Howard L. Cheney.

ASK ANYBODY how 'twas done, and everybody will look you in the face and wonder what in the world you all are talking about. Why? We profess and confess we have not the slightest idea. However, everybody in the world that can tell which is which as regarding a dish of ice cream and a hot biscuit (with apologies to O'Daniel) knows it to be a fact, why a street moving project is being carried on, when buildings are moved back, when owners distractedly acclaim their property is damaged because of a street being widened, and when these claims are settled, buildings remodeled and resulting damage thereto is repaired, the lumber required and the labor performed, all this must be paid for. Oh, not with promises, notes and I. O. U. slips, but with coin of the realm, good in any bank that read the test of the late, but not forgotten bank maritimum. It is not on record the "fixers" resorted to condemnation procedure in obtaining the added right-of-way for the widening of Woodville's main drag. Indeed, if reports are true, such a procedure was not resorted to. It may be there was a bit of conversation with an occasional owner, but in the end he got his, in a lump sum, and the work is still going on. Also citizens, all of them, are glad of the improvement. But the question is: where did the money come from? The county could not kick in because Tyler county has nothing to kick in with. The State was not in any way interested. And it appears Woodville is possessed of no visible angel, proud of his native home, and anxious for a chance to create a lasting monument of his philanthropy, and so folks are left gasping at the get-away-post wondering what it is all about. No, reader, we are for this great improvement, and as far as the appearance is concerned would not offer a word of criticism, but wondering where the money came we in common with about 85% of the citizenry of all of Woodville. There is a bunch of citizen on the know, and they're not talking. The Booster is going to attempt to find out—not necessarily for publication, but for our own edification.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION

H. J. R. No. 20

Proposing an Amendment to Article XVI, Section 1, of the Constitution of the State of Texas; changing the form of the oath of office for members of the Legislature and all officers of the State of Texas; providing for an election upon such Constitutional Amendment, and making an appropriation therefor.

Be it resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas: Section 1. That Article XVI, Section 1, of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended to hereafter read as follows:

"Article XVI, Section 1. Official Oath. Members of the Legislature, and all officers, before they enter upon the duties of their offices, shall take the following Oath or Affirmation: "I, _____ do solemnly swear (or affirm), that I will faithfully execute the duties of the office of _____ of the State of Texas, and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States and of this State; and I furthermore solemnly swear (or affirm), that I have not directly nor indirectly paid, offered, or promised to pay, contributed, nor promised to contribute any money or valuable thing, or promised any public office or employment, as a reward for the giving or withholding a vote at the election at which I was elected. So help me God."

Sec. 2. The foregoing Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to the electors of this State, qualified to vote on Constitutional Amendments, at an election to be held throughout the State on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1938, at which election each ballot shall have printed thereon the words:

"FOR the Amendment of Article XVI, Section 1, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, changing the form of the oath of office for members of the Legislature and all officers of the State of Texas."

"AGAINST the Amendment of Article XVI, Section 1, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, changing the form of the oath of office for members of the Legislature and all officers of the State of Texas."

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

STRAIT GATE

by Ruth Comfort Mitchell

"He checked again. 'Would you like to see the place?' He turned and pointed towards the hills—a handsome, really—run by a couple of his best friends. Very snappy and artistic—rily, they tell me, and they call it 'The Stewed Prune.' 'Well, I guess it's well named.' 'Aunt Helena was rising poorly in purple draperies, flushed with her excellent fare. 'Shall we go into the living-room for our coffee? I expect the young people are arriving.'"

Sarah Lynn came in with Duncan Van Doren and the Keaton Danas. She wore an unimportant dress which did nothing for her dark slenderness and she—menaged, even in the surging roomful, to look lost and lonely. The youth from Detroit had an air of languid intelligence and polished good-breeding, and Keaton Dana was a solid young man with a heavily placid face. Ardine La Mont Dana made her leisurely way toward the guest in a shimmering gown. Hers was a vehement, insistent beauty, a ripe loveliness; over-ripe, Sally Ann thought acidly, instant in dislike.

"Wonderful to meet you at last," Ardine drawled negligently, appraising her from under the heavy white-lids of her long eyes. "Imagine—how Big Shagster of Bonaville in one night! You—and Gunnar Thorwald."

"Gunnar—not the young Norwegian flier?" "In a way, Jim Allison's bringing him. You must meet him. But he won't take you for a ride. He never flies women."

"I can, perhaps, succeed in bearing it. I've had rather more than my share of the air."

"You must come and see my house."

"I passed it today. Do you get in and out with a car-opener?" "I have a zipper down the front. She nodded, indulgent, patronizing. "I'll be seeing you." She made a slow progress through the crowded room and Adelaide Dana took her place beside the traveler.

The eyes of both women were on Sarah Lynn and her sister, and they saw Duncan Van Doren take the thin young elbow into a proprietary grasp, and the girl jerk it away. After an instant the youth came to them, smiling.

"Mind if we go dancing?" he addressed himself confidently to Adelaide. "Of course not, dear boy," she beamed approval on him. "May be a bit late, you know, if we look in at the silly Stewed Prune," he told her conscientiously. "I shan't worry, Duncan. I know Sarah Lynn is safe with you wherever—and whenever—you take her. Tell her Mother says to run along and have a happy time."

CHAPTER IV

"Like to drive around awhile?" Duncan Van Doren wanted to know, closing the door of his gleaming roadster on Sarah Lynn and getting into the driver's seat. "I'd rather drive around until it's time to go home," she said tonelessly. "You know how I loathe the Stewed Prune."

"Promised Ardine we'd barge in for a while at least. And it won't be time to go home until I'm ready to take you." He did an arm behind her stiffened shoulders. "You matter said 'anywhere, anywhen'! It wouldn't barge you up if you'd enter into things, Sarah Lynn," he complained. "If you'd just take a couple of drinks you'd be surprised at the difference it would make."

"I don't like it."

"Well, I'm not so crazy about the stuff myself, but I've learned how it oils a party," he said reasonably. Ardine and her cohorts had made the Stewed Prune deliberately demure with bright-furred chintz and ruffled curtains of dotted Swiss and old-fashioned furniture.

Sarah Lynn and Duncan arrived at eleven. Tables were set close to the walls and the floor cleared for dancing, and musicians sent wailing, throbbing blues and torchsongs through the warm, smoke-laden air. "Step?" Duncan held out languid arms. "No, please," the girl shook her head. A hand reached out and pulled her down into a vacant chair.

"Oh, yes, Mary!" she answered gladly. Mary Dana Webster was a comfortably plump and plain young matron with bright-brown hair and a baby-daughter. Sarah Lynn had never seen her there before.

"Think this wicked roof will fall on my righteousness?" she caught her breath with a gasp. "I have a precious customer up from the South who craves night-life and I'm here to pour them into the car and roll them home. Duncan, you run along and dance with Ardine. I never see Sarah Lynn. Ginger-ala? Well, Cousin Sally Ann's a peach, isn't she? You look like her, Sarah Lynn."

Mrs. Webster looked about her with keen, amused eyes. She wore no make-up and her hearty daytime color was a little dingy by night. "What a madhouse! And how they toll at being devilish! Will you look at my Nedd? Bicarbonate of soda and eight o'clock for the next week. He's dying on the vine right now, but the customer's fresh as a birdie." Duncan Van Doren danced by with Ardine. "There's something in the air, tonight. I feel it."

"Drink it down, baby, before some comedian pollutes it."

tea or anything else she wants. But that doesn't cramp your style." She poured him a lavish highball. "All right, but wait—I want a sandwich first. I have my sys."

The chateleine of the Stewed Prune had a glowing check against his. "Cousin Adelaide's been asleep for hours. Just break down and be yourself, darling. The Girl Reserves can always drive you home."

She nodded to Sarah Lynn. "I'll get your lil' of drink myself, baby!" She went away and returned with a cold-beaded bottle of ginger-ale and a tall glass of deep amber, and opened and poured it out herself for Sarah Lynn. A noxy youth leaned over with a dash, but she fended him off. "Behave, Benjy!" She put a protective arm about the girl's thin shoulders. "Drink it down, baby, before some comedian pollutes it."

Sarah Lynn obeyed; grateful for the long, cool, stinging drink which seemed for an instant to freshen the stale air.

Sarah Lynn watched Duncan with apprehension. If he gave over his usual caution he would insist on staying late, and she was so tired and so bored. She tried to mark her mind away from the immediate scene and think of her traveling Cousin Sally Ann, of the tall young Norwegian who had stood framed in Aunt Helena's doorway. Why did he run about with Jim Allison? But Jim was a brilliant flier who had met him abroad; Gunnar Thorwald could not know that Ardine and the Stewed Prune went with him. She hoped he wouldn't come here tonight. She didn't want them making game of him, and if Mary Webster was right and they were planning to make him the object of one of their high-keyed, hectic, ribald jokes—she would warn him.

Mary Webster took Sarah Lynn back to her table. "I'll soon be the last round-up of old Nedd. Sarah! We drive you home?" "Oh, thanks, I'd love it, but Duncan—Mother'd be annoyed if—" she was interrupted by a ringing yawn. "Oh, excuse me, please!" "Poor lamb; dead for sleep, aren't you?" She sat down. "Perhaps another ginger-ale would wake me up," she said dully.

"It will, darling! I'll get it," Ardine had followed them. Ned Webster, a large and very solid citizen, came up wearily, mopping a heated brow. "Cough, Mary! He says he isn't leaving till sun-up!" "The customer is always right," his helpmate reminded him. "Say, I'd rather lose the account," he moaned. Ardine came back with the cool bottle and the tall amber glass. "Here, baby! This will brush out the cobwebs." Then she looked at her sharply. "Listen, darling—did you have a couple of drinks before you got here?" "No!" Sarah Lynn said. "You know she never touches—!" Mary Webster began indignantly. "Of course; that's why I'm warning. I've never seen her this way. I thought maybe Duncan had a flask, and that while they were driving around—Oh, well—never mind." She looked at Ned Webster. "The rising rector prety low!" His wife nodded.

Wanted: An Auto Chassis To Carry Barges Up the Trinity, With 11-ft. Wheels

HATFIELD'S DREAM OF BARGES UP TRINITY COMES TRUE AS MEMPHIS BIDS FAREWELL TO PARTY EN ROUTE

Memphis, Tenn., July 23.—The first freight barges ever to travel by water between Memphis and Fort Worth, Texas, cleared the port of Memphis at noon today on the second lap of their first trip.

It was a great event for Commodore B. M. Hatfield, picturesquely Texan, who conceived the idea.

"I'm real proud and thankful I've lived to see my dream come true," said Commodore Hatfield. "Although this is a small beginning, I expect to be sitting on the top of the eleventh-million barrel of oil when it comes from our great Trinity river valley to Memphis by the all-water route."

A BURDEN — TAXES
Tax the farmer, tax his fowl, tax the dog, and tax his howl; tax his hen and tax her egg; let the blooming nudist beg. Tax his pig and tax his squeal, tax his boots run down at the heel, tax his plow and tax his clothes, tax his rags that wipe his nose, tax his horse and tax his bed, tax the bald spot upon his head. Tax the ox, and tax the ass, tax his filver, tax his gas, tax the road which he must pass; make him travel on the grass, tax his cow, and tax his calf, tax him if he dares to laugh; He is but a common man, so tax the cuss just all you can. Tax the laborer—be discrete, tax him for walking on the street; Tax his bread, tax his meat, tax the shoes upon his feet. Tax the payroll, tax the sale, tax his hard-earned paper kale; Tax his pipe and tax his smoke; teach him government is no joke; Tax the confederates, tax the shrouds, tax the souls beyond the clouds; Tax all business, tax the shops; tax the houses, tax the storks; tax the living, tax the dead; tax the unborn, before they're fed; tax the water, tax the air, tax the sunlight if you dare. Tax the bus and tax the truck, not one of them can duck; Tax the passenger, tax the fare, tax his worry, tax his care. Tax them all and tax them well. Do your best to make life hell. BRITISH TRANSPORT 50 BARS GOLD IN OPEN HORSE CART
London, July 23.—American gangsters who are used to seeing gold transported in armored cars watched over by guards with drawn pistols will weep at this news of how the British do it.

A PARABLE
And in those days, beheld there came through the gates of the city a salesman from afar off, and it came to pass as the day went by, he sold plenty. They that were the grousches smiled on him and gave him the hand that is glad. The tight wads opened up their purses to him. And in that city were they that were order takers, and they that spent their days in adding to the alibi sheets. Mightily were they

Action To Prevent PWA Lobbying

As efforts are continuous to discredit the Works Progress Administration, so reactionary elements also attempt to embarrass the Public Works Administration in employing projects that provide employment on needed improvements throughout the country.

In both WPA and PWA there are clearly stated, strictly enforced regulations against political activity and that forbid payment of a bonus or commission of refund for any sort of remuneration for obtaining or "expediting" consideration of applications for projects. Violations of such stringent rules usually have been "revealed" by spokesmen for Republican organizations at great distances from Washington. When requested, invariably they have failed to support the charge.

influence in last Saturdays primary elections.

I will endeavor to show my appreciation by filing the office to which you have elected me to the best of my ability.

Again I thank you very much.

Sincerely,
ESCA D. WALKER.

TO THE PEOPLE OF TYLER COUNTY

I sincerely appreciate the loyal support of my many friends in Tyler County preceding and during the recent primary and I earnestly solicit the vote and influence of each and every person in our County in the coming primary.

Many of you know that my home and financial responsibilities combined with my endeavor to give my personal attention to the office have not only denied me the pleasure and privilege of seeing all of you personally, but will, likewise keep me from seeing you before the 27th of August. You also know that I desire to maintain a home and to educate my children and that it seems impossible to do these things without your influence and support.

The pleasant memories of your many expressions of faith and confidence in me as a mother and as your County Clerk are tributes I cherish greatly and assure you that these memories will enable me to continue rendering efficient service and courteous attention to you.

FOLK COUNTY REMARKS

The Booster received last week the first issue of The Folk County Remarks from Livingston, edited by D. D. Mistrof and assisted by Temple D. Gray. The first issue had 24 pages 16 of them all home print. Candidates and business ads of welcome to the new sheet just about left no ad space in the issue. It is a five column, 14 in-column paper and we will watch its progress with interest.

Another aged Tyler countian, who has had a share in its prosperity and growth, was laid to rest in his beloved East Texas, when Uncle Billy Neal was buried, Sunday, in the Neal cemetery, funeral services held by Rev. Burns of the Primitive Baptist church, at the Neal church. Mr. Neal was born in this county and would have been 87 years of age on August 13th. His wife was before their marriage, Miss Inez Durden and of the large family born to them, only two daughters survive the parents, Mrs. Ruby Finley of Warren, with whom he has made his home since the death of his wife in 1927, and Mrs. Walter Willford also of the Warren community. Two grandchildren are also bereft. Mr. Neal was a school teacher in the early days, later a surveyor and farmer. He has not been well for a year but was only confined to his bed the past month. Among the many who attended the funeral were Mrs. W. T. Ogden of Woodville, Mrs. W. E. Neal, Mrs. F. C. Puddy, Mrs. H. C. Durham and daughter Miss Maxine, Mrs. J. C. Durham all of Port Arthur and many old friends and relatives from Port Neches and Beaumont.

Warren Band Meeting

Mrs. Fitzgerald, bandmaster of Warren Public Schools, was here for the purpose of getting started for the ensuing year in band practice. She gave the large crowd several numbers and outlined her program for the summer work.

Much interest was shown and 23 were ready to purchase their instruments. She will be back next Monday and spend the day starting her work with the ones having their instruments.
