For Many Years 'Twas Thought Harmless

Thirty-five years ago, a German scientist produced a derivative of barbituric acid possessing hypnotic qualities. For years it was considered as non-habit forming and harmless, and the type of drug was sold freely over the country without a doctor's prescription. But more recently the medical profession has realized that barbiturates such as allonal, amytol, luminal, vironal, neonal, et cetra, are far from harmless and definitely habit forming when used indiscriminately," warns Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State health officer.

It is true that these slumber producing drugs play an important part in certain insomnia conditions, as well as in the promotion of sleep when pain makes it impossible to obtain it otherwise. However, it is one thing to have this type of drug prescribed by a physician and administered under his supervision and quite another to employ it without professional sanction.

It cannot be too strongly stated that the prolonged use of these sleep-inducers can produce serious reactions including skin affections, impairment of speech and gait, paralysis of the eye muscles, and in extreme cases have been known to cause death. Most plainly, any drug that possesses such possibilities should not be self administered by the general public.

Moreover, it should be understood that insomnia is a system of underlying condition which may be due to any one of a variety of psychological or mental causes. The absurdity of habitual selfadministration of any hypnotic drug to remove insomnia becomes apparent.

Consequently, if the temptation arises to use a sleep-producing drug on the say-so of a friend, it should be avoided. And if already relying on sleep-producing medication, the brakes should be applied at once with the assistance of your family physician, according to Dr. Cox.

To quote a recent author on this subject: "The only safe rule regarding sleeping pills or potions is to realize that if anything of that kind is needed, one definitely needs a physician's advice first."

Workers Conference

The Baptist Worker's Conference will meet Tuesday, Sept. 20th with the Rock Springs church. Ralph Dean will open the song service at 10:00 a. m. Mrs. C. E. Dickerson will lead the devotional. The Rev.s Doyle Cowart, T. J. Campbell, W. A. Cockerell and Bennie Dubuse will each speak on an interesting subject before the noon hour, when a basket dinner will be spread.

Mrs. Jim Phillips will open the afternoon session at 1:30 with a 10-minute song service, and Mrs. W. M. Maddox will lead the devotional. Mrs. J. C. Boyd, Rev.s Ronald Pope and J. B. Oliver will speak that afternoon.

This is the last workers' conference before the annual associational meeting, and you are urged to be present. You are especially urged to get your church reports in to Lou Cruse at Dies, at least seven days before the New Bethel Annual Associational meeting which is to be held within a few weeks.

Mrms George Durham were in Beaumont Saturday.

Reports to FDR

Plans for liberalizing the United States social security system were submitted to Presdinet Roosevelt Thursday, Sept. 15, today, in a report by Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer, above. Recommendations will be submitted to the congress.

County Nurse Starts Work Here Oct. 1

Dr. De Shield of Bryan, health officer of this district, with a representation of the local PTA, Study Club and physicians of the county met Monday with the Commissioners' court and Dr. De Shield laid before the body the work of a county nurse and plans for the future which was heartily endorsed by all, and the court agreed to stand for the needed expense for the county. A nurse will be located here the 1st of October. She has a big job ahead of her. Schools scattered, winter ahead which means bad roads, but it is hoped that all people in the county will help her all they can, for she certainly will need encouragement, moral support and all the kind words that we can give her.

She will have all the schools of the county to oversee, help and try to control contagous diseases and help in maternity cases that need her. Its a huge load for any one woman and she needs our moral support and help.

THE WARREN - NEAL MILLS SINGING REPORT

The Warren - Neal Mills singing class meets every Friday night at Neal Mills school house and at the Warren school house house every Sunday night.

The classes are directed by C. Flynn of Warren. Everybody is invited to attend and bring you books and friends. If you have any special music to be rendered it will be appreciated. Be sure and come.

Woodville Locals

In spite of the rain on Sunday a good sized crowd gathered at the school auditorium in Colmesneil for the singing convention. Toy Tatum presided and a number of visiting quartettes gave special numbers. The mass singing under direction of local and visiting leaders was very much enjoyed. The next quarterly convention will meet in Rockland the second Sunday in November, which is the 13th.

Mrms J. T. Lindsey were called to Manning last week by the death of Mr. Gibbs, the husband of Mrs. Lindsey's sister.

Mesdames B. D. Hawkins and Clyde Phillips and son and Miss Lillie Mae Rainey visited last week end in Alexander, La.

PTA First Program Tonight

Because of illness in the home of the president of the PTA Mrs. Forest Pate has asked Mrs. T. J. Risinger to preside at the meeting tonight, and to make the welcome address. J. E. Wheat will give a resume of the work done during the summer and plans for the future. Supt. Lee Hensley will present members of the faculty. A male quartette will give a number and Prof. Norman Paschall will lead a group of men in songs. Refreshments will be served. Be there at this, the first meeting of the year and get a better slant on the activities of your child, and feel closer to the one who will lead him or her on through the school year.

PALMGREN - BLANCHARD

Sidney Blanchard junior member of the Blanchard bakery firm of Woodville, surprised his many friends by bringing home a bride from his week end visit in Houston. He and Miss Ima Lee Palmgren of Houston were married Saturday in the church of Christ. The King, the Rev. Father McCarthy officiating. The Booster with others extend best wishes to these newly weds.

Postmen In No Woodville Danger

Woodville possesses no five miles of concrete sidewalks so there is not not the slightest possibility of procuring free mail delivery service.

Of course, there are advantages in free mail delivery service—ah, the sidewalks one can use when your Uncle San's representative does not head your way. But trouble is abundant in many cities where postmen pound the sidewalks from day to day.

In Dallas, for instance, mail carriers have their troubles, and in the last six months 53 mail carriers have had to procure medical attention for dog bites.

They talk of urging enforcement of regulations preventing unmuzzled dogs from running at large.

In this connection, our sister city, Livingston, will soon be procuring free delivery. More than the prescribed mileage appertaining to sidewalks is possessed, and this free delivery stuff is going to be stressed by their congressmen, 11 judges, two state rangers and the county (new) court.

The new postoffice building is in course of construction and a new jail. New jails and new postoffices all point to entire modization, and no city has that where the entire population has to dodge car speedsters, cross railroad tracks and mind all stop and go signals while daily calling at the postoffice.

NATIONAL INCOME FOR 1938 ESTIMATED AT 64 BILLIONS

Washington, Sept. 8.—Commerce department officials estimated today that the national income for 1938 would run close to $64,000,000,000, if current business improvement trends continued to the end of the year.

This figure would be about 6 or 7 per cent below last year's total of $69,380,000,000, they said, but would be larger than that for any other year since the nation's 1929 prosperity peak.

EAST TEXAS WILL HAVE 2,225 TRENCH SILOS BY END OF '38

The number of trench silos will increase 200% in East Texas during 1938 as indicated by the 23 counties entering East Texas Chamber Trench Silo contest, according to M. E. Darsey, regional Chamber Agricultural chairman.

Prior to 1938 these 23 representative counties had 763 trench silos, and by the end of 1938 they expect to fill another 1,492, bringing the total to 2,255.

L. A. F. Club

The LAF club had a meeting Tuesday afternoon in the rooms that J. B. Best is letting them use, in order to get them furnished. Some pictures and a whatnot was hung up and some tables and chairs were moved in. Curtains are to be made for the windows and some stools covered for the girls to sit on. Some of the girls are to bring floor lamps. A bookshelf is to be put in. A few scatter rugs are to be brought in fact, the girls and their sponsor are going to fix it up like a home. After the meeting, Miss Sarah Cottman [illegible]

Foes in Maine Election

"As Maine goes, so goes the Nation." That ancient political belief was tested again Monday of this week when the incumbent, Gov. Louis O. Barrows, Republican, left, faced former Gov. Louis J. Brann, Democrat, right. As was expected Gov. Louis O. Barrows was re-elected.

PTA Sponsoring Local Talent Play

The PTA is sponsoring a play which will be given next Tuesday night at the school auditorium. The school children are out selling tickets and you can buy from them five cents cheaper than on the night of the play at the door.

Black Eyed Susan will be presented by Mrs. Lanelle Griffith, supported by Mrms Paschall, Mrms B. V. Ferguson, Mrs. Clyde Smith, Miss Faye Mott, Mrs. Clyde Phillips, Mrs. Aubrey Swearingen, Messrs. A. W. Lay, Robert Stapp, Edwin Martin and E. W. Bailey. A bevy of chorus girls will entertain with song and dance. A baby contest will be decided that night and if you want to enter your baby see Mrs. Clyde Phillips. Age limit is six years. Votes are 1c each, so get busy and help your choice win.

J. B. CREWS PRESIDES AT MEET

The 26th Masonic District meeting will be held in the District court room in Woodville the night of Wednesday, Sept. 28th. The Worshipful Master of the Magnolia Lodge No. 495, of Woodville, J. B. Cruse, will preside. A large crowd is expected.

Conroe to Open New Hospital Today

Conroe, Sept. 13.—The new $150,000 Montgomery county hospital is completed and will be officially opened Sept. 15 with appropriate dedication ceremonies. County Judge Joe W. Strode will deliver the principal dedicatory address. Open house will be held after the ceremony.

The hospital is three stories and basement, finished in white stone to match the $500,000 Montgomery county courthouse and is one of the most modern in this section, both in building and equipment, with the operating room being completely air conditioned.

Woodville Locals

Miss Ruby Ruth Wheat and brother James Edward, drove to Austin Sunday, where they will continue their studies at State U. Miss Wheat returned to Austin early for rush week but James Edward returned home Monday via the Democratic convention in Beaumont. He will go to Austin the last of this week.

B. Daily of Port Arthur was greeting relatives and friends here the latter part of last week.

Mrs. I. R. Gray sold this week 37 acres west of Woodville to R. M. Chatham of Beaumont who will build a summer home and lake. Mrs. Bird Sholars has sold 15 acres south of town to Mrms Frank Weeks, who will build a home.

T. J. Stryker went on from the Democratic convention in Beaumont to Houston to the drug convention meeting this week.

Attending the Democratic convention were Rev. J. C. Boyd, Gene Martin, Lee Feagin, D. P. Mann, Roy Pate, G. C. Lowe, Vernon Ramsey, Martin Nellius, M. C. Tatum, Vernon Mills, Jethro Holmes, O. A. Riley From Colmesnell, Maurice Courtney, Pomp Meadows and W. H. Gilchrist. From Chester Messrs. W. H. Lewis and George Enloe. From Spurger, Scott Willis and Bud Sheffield, and from Warren, Tom Goolsbee.

Friends will be sorry to learn of the serious illness of the two-year-old son of Mrms Preston Foxworth. They carribd him this week to a baby specialist in Beaumont.

Mrms Forest Pate drove to Beaumont yesterday.

Night Prowlers Looking for Trouble

It would seem that some one, or perhaps more than one, in Woodville are headed for serious trouble. A few nights ago one matron sleping beside her husband was aroused when a prowler clad only in shorts touched her, leaving the room hurriedly when she screamed. Another man and his wife were sprayed with cloroform, through a bedroom window. Still another man aroused by a car stopping, heard some one jump the fence and walk around the house. The days are past when doors can be left unlocked, and valuables left about. Every home owner should realize this and act accordingly. If you women can't shoot a gun don't brag about it. Get busy and familiarize yourself with one. No one wants to shoot anyone, but this reporter decided a long time ago that anyone about her home who does not make himself known has no business there, and she will not hesitate to shoot and do the explaining later.

This is really a friendly warning for people to lock their homes. Many criminals are being run out of cities and they can but prey on small towns and we should be prepared.

ALL THE BLACKEYED PEAS GO A HELUVALONG WAY

Just before press day the News' third vice president in charge of vital statistics, along with his compeers and a handful of peas retired to the editorial sanctum for an executive huddle, and after several hours of much palavering, perspiration and profanity, emerged at midnight with a headache and the following:

S. B. Pierce, owner of the local pea thresher, has threshed 145,000 pounds of peas and expects to reach the 155,000 mark before another week.

Therefore, the local thresher has handled 297,600,000 individual peas.

Twenty-eight blackeyed peas, laid end to end, will measure one foot.

Therefore, if the 297,600,000 peas threshed here were laid end to end, they would form a line 10,628,571 feet or 2,031 miles long.

Considering these facts and consulting a standard mileage gauge, if you should start next Tuesday and thread all of the peas threshed in Centerville on a string like Christmas popcorn, you could tie one end of that string to the courthouse chimney and carry the other end to the top-most corner of the State of Maine and still have enough peas for a Chamber of Commerce banquet.

Woodville Locals

Miss La Fairse Hill returned to Houston with her uncle and aunt, Mrms W. M. Hill, early last week and was in a car collision enroute. The car was demolished, turning over three times but none of the occupants were seriously hurt outside of cuts, bruises and nerve shock. Mrms F. C. Hill hurried down returning Sunday. They also visited Galveston while away.

Mrs. J. W. Harris and son H. T. spent the week end in Dallas with the daughter and sister, Miss Elizabeth, who is a nurse in Baylor hospital.

The Misses Jo Lulu McAllister and Violet Kirkland enter college in Nacogdoches this week.

'Little' Business

When President Roosevelt called a conference of small business men at Washington last winter, they responded by forming their own association under DeWitt M. Emery of Arkron, Ohio, above. Two thousand delegates were expected at the first annual convention which opened at Pittsburgh, Tuesday. The results, however, did not seem to disturb politic America to any great degree.

TO THE PEOPLE OF TYLER COUNTY

I sincerely appreciate the honor you have bestowed upon me by electing me to another term of service as County Treasurer, and I shall strive to merit your confidence and to serve you faithfully.

I shall welcome every opportunity to be of service in furthering the interests of Tyler County, and promise my hearty co-operation with each and all of you to that end. I again thank you for your many kindnesses to me. Sincerely,

LANDON RISINGER.

Marvin Nicholson sailed from Texas City last week on the tanker, Mungers T. Ball, and like many other tankers just now, destination unknown to the public.

Rev. J. C. Boyd left early Monday to take his daughter, Miss Lucille to Marshall where she will attend school. This week he also drove to Huntsville where the daughter, Miss Ruth will be one of the faculty. Miss Jennie Mae opened her school work at Joshua and Miss Elizabeth at Boyd last week.

Mrs. J. U. Hopson of Colmesneil has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Ed Sargent in Jasper.

Con. Lindley Beckworth and Mrms W. H. Allen of Gilmer visited Mrms C. M. Davis Monday enroute to Beaumont to attend the Democratic convention.

Fred School English Assembly

Good English week in Fred school will be launched in assembly Friday, Sept. 16. In a three-act play, written by the students, the relation will be shown between the use of good English and success in business. The play was written by Miriam Calloway, Neline Holland and Irma Ray Hanes. Actors will be Lee Bell, Jr., Aubrey McInnis, Sam McInnis and Earl Yawn.

Dewilda Gregory will explain good English week to the school. At the next assembly, a prize will be awarded to the room keeping Good English Week the best. Other numbers on the program will be scripture reading and songs by the school.

Where You May Find Faculty Members

All should know by this time where to locate the members of the school faculty out of school hours, but if you do not perhaps this will help you. Supt. and Mrs. Lee Hensley are in the north end of town in the Ollie Mann home; Mrms J. Webb Miller are back in the new home Mrms J. R. McCombs built for them over a year ago, and by the way, Coach and Mrs. Bob Nall are also in one of the McCombs apartments. Mrms F. B. Sullivan are enjoying their new home north of the S. P. Sims home. Mrms Bailey are in the Collier home, west of the McCombs residence. Mrms Norman Paschall and Mrms B. V. Ferguson are still residing in the Fuller home south of Mrms B. D. Hawkins. Mrms Brock will be at home in the so lately rebuilt house of B. D. Hawkins south of the F. C. Hill residence. The Misses Hattie Wilcox and Elizabeth Coleman are rooming in the Mrs. John C. Davis home; the Misses Ollie Risinger, Evie Belle Harrison, Ima Bean and Robert Stapp are with Mrs. Zula Harrison, Mrs. Jewel Jackson, Miss Billie Blankenship and Miss Frances Broadstreet are with Mrs. J. F. Barclay. Messrs. Lay and Martin have quarters at CCC camp. Miss Julia Belle Cruse, Miss Anna Frances Lowe are in their parent's home and Miss Willie Mae Allison is with Mrs. R. E. Pennington.

Chas. Lockhart Shows 'Em How

That loud rumbling sound you hear is the Capitol at Austin falling down. The fine old building, which cost us 3,000,000 acres of good tillable land, couldn't stand the strain. State Treasurer Charles Lockhart turned back into the general fund $12,920 of his budget allowance for the year ended August 31.

The State Officials Wastrels Society is reporting considering kicking Charley out for conduct unbecoming an office-holder. Little Charley has "showed them up." His absolutely ridiculous and uncalled-for action in saving 9% of his budget is contrary to the by-laws and constitution of the society. He is a traitor to his class.

But Charley is a friend of the taxpayer. He has earned the magnificant vote he received in the primary. If we had more like him in Austin there wouldn't be a $15,000,000 deficit and the state wouldn't be following the dishonorable policy of issuing rubber cheks.

Good work, Charley; keep it up.

Woodville Locals

Mrms Hill Durham visited their daughter, Miss Rosalie in Jasper Sunday.

Reports come to The Booster there are a number of cases of malaria in Woodville. Wonder if the alleys, back yards and vacant lots were cleaned up and weeds cut wouldn't help the situation some.

Mrs. Ezra Eaves and grandson have returned from a visit in Port Arthur.

Mrs. Dan Rentro has returned to her home in Bonham after a visit with her son, Lynwood Rentro and family.

Miss Jean Davis of Gulf Pump Station visited Miss Merle Schleiffarth part of last week and while here with Miss Schleiffarth and mother and Mrs. Arthur Anglin spent a day in Beaumont.

Mrms W. A. Hodges were in Beaumont Sunday.

THREE MEN ON A HORSE

The Greatest Threat to Democracy

Our democracy is in danger of destruction if we continue to be indifferent to it except on the Fourth of July, is the warning of Hendrik Willem Van Loon, noted historian. Declaring that the Fascist countries are what they are because of the encouragement of our indifference, he writes in Redbook Magazine of a late issue:

"The democratic form of government is rapidly disappearing from almost every other part of the world. England and a few of the smaller countries of Europe still cling to it. So does South America. South America never quite realized the meaning of this pleasant arrangement between those who were being ruled and those who did the ruling. It accepted the name, but always rejected the substance. If you want to convince yourself of the [illegible] and has to stand on the back seat of his car in order that he may be noticed by his followers), and in which all remaining vestiges of a parliamentary form of government have long since been sent to the firing squad and the concentrating camp.

"You will be surprised and also shocked and greatly disappointed! Here and there in a few odd corners you will find the remains of what (with a little bit of exaggeration) might still be called a democracy. In the majority of cases, all nations are now being dominated by brazen young men with colored shirts and raucous slogans, whose idea of a political argument is a blow on the back of the head with a blackjack.

"Once in a while we awaken for a moment from our lethargy to denounce the knavish brutality of all the autocracies, both of the left and the right. But we forget that our enemies-on-horse-back in every part of the world would never have attained their prevailing elevated positions if he had not encouraged them (both directly and indirectly) by our own complete indifference about a form of government for which everybody, at the moment of a great national crisis, seems willing enough to die, but for which, during normal times, few people care to live in such way that the democratic form of government stands revealed as a manifestation of all that is best in our national life."

HITLER SAYS: "We'll never capitulate." The statement was cheered by 180,000 Nazi leaders.

IT SEEMS the Japs are to hook up with Germany and Italy if a major conflict should materialize. Just looking for more glory, but we'd state they are not yet over their little fuss in China.

THE LATEST excuse for murder was presented in the killing of a night club (Chicago) hostess. Can you beat it? "She begged me to kill her." Ah, the prosecuting attorney will beg the State to kill him—an exconvict.

ADVERTISEMENTS IN these days are boosting cigarette smoking and they say doctors state 20 fags a day will do no hurm to the average man. Fine! but suppose you try 5nd find a man who'll admit he is only an average man.

POLK COUNTY folks are up in arms ... recent bond issue ... purpose of ... right-of-way on highway 59 in Livingston to the Tyler County line. A good sized fractional unit of the sum total has already been expended for purposes other than procuring right-of-way.

ONE OF these days the word will go forth in this particular school district that on such and such a date there will be a school carnival put over by the PTA. This annual affair is exactly like the 4th of July, Labor day, Christmas and New Years, it cannot be sidetracked, in spite of the fact that it slips up on a fellow unawares.

SCHOOL STARTING this week made things hum. Personally this writer thinks it is wonderful that order can be restored in the short time between 9 and 12 o'clock on the first day of school. It is a fact so many expect special privileges, and, it should be known there are no specials in a well conducted institution of learning.

IT SEEMS as though electric power is about to become a drug on the market. Every part of Texas, approximately, that is periodically flooded, wants flood control dams put in and while at it make these dams capable of germinating electric energy to supplement light and power companies, who are not suspected of selling the juice at cost.

LEST WE FORGET. Remember why Texas went Republican when Herb Hoover was elected? Well, let this soak in under the skin—Jim Farley will never be elected president of these United States, and for the same reason that Al Smith was snowed under. Even the daily newspapers nor an administration buildup would ever elect Farley.

SENATOR CONNALLY was the guest speaker at the Livingston Chamber of Commerce banquet Friday night. As a political speaker the senator made a great hit with the assembled guests. He rambled up to the very edge of the main topics of the day, finding himself almost too close for comfort, he wise-cracked away from on to a more safe footing. However the speech was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

SPEAKING ABOUT a stop and go signal at the Matthews' corner The Booster would suggest when the solicitors go forth to raise the funds necessary for the installation of same, they remember The Booster dollar will go as far as the bootlegger's dollar, or a dollar obtained in any way from anybody. Anyway, we're for the stop and go signal, only we'd like some teeth attached to an ordinance prescribing punishment for all who insist on running on through a red light.

NOT ALL the errors of omission and commission are confined to the weekly press of all of America, as witness this from a daily paper. Daily papers, you know have men whose only duty from day to day and night to night, is to find errors: "Mrs. —— a 2-year-old Oklahoma City widow, killed in an automobile accident late Saturday, was returned to her home for burial today," and there was a lengthy obituary thereto attached.

THE TEXAS Tax Journal suggests the elimination of two needless and expensive administration agencies in order to save $1,000,000 a year for the state's old age pension fund. The proposal has real merit. The Journal points out that in January the Liquor Control board had 297 employes drawing $47,947 in pay, with total expenses of $81,495. In the same month the Old Age Assistance Board had 374 employes drawing $56,164, with total expenses of $72,377.

IT HAS been the fond hope of many that the work of widening the main drag would be completed before the opening date of school, when the streets will be full of school buses, cars and youngsters, all on their way to the school grounds up on the hill. It is a fact, it is the greatest wonder imaginable that many pileups have not had to be untangled because of the great variety of parking of cars, trucks and passenger buses on a street that with no parking at all would not be wide enough to establish four lanes of travel—two cars abreast each way. And then there is the actual need for a stop and go red and green light signal at the Matthews' corner.

NOW THAT the two primaries are over, newspaper men should get together and arm themselves against the bureaus of publicity—known in practice as space grafters. The daily newspapers are the chief offenders. If they have a candidate they like they seem to have difficulty is creating enough slush together with eleventeen different kinds of photos of the coming chief commissioners of public hearings and scandals. Then the candidate, in his rounds out over the state, displays the great city's support and, it was published for nothing. It is then the little fellow is just naturally stepped upon. Who is he to charge for the matter the big city fellows do gratuitously? He's on the firing line and falls. That's all. It is time the country press turned down everything that is offered him unless the cash accompanies the order. And, it appears, whichever way he jumps will be the wrong way. Lets get together and organize against the spacegrafter.

IF THERE is any one publication the newspaper men, and more especially the country members of the profession, are going to miss in many different ways, it is the Texas Press News, which was edited and published at Terrell, Texas. That paper touched upon points the so-called Texas publisher's mouthpiece apparently was not interested enough to remedy. We've been told a representative paper of the Texas press is published somewhere in the state, but we've never been able to run across a copy, and have an idea there is not such an institution in the state—one that is really looking after yes, we got a letter from someman a couple of years ago ask the publisher's interests. Oh, ing newspaper men to contribute to the sucker fund, and we in common with others mailed our check and it was cashed, and as far as we know the contributions were merely added to the easy money funds. However, this go-getter was supposed to have a pet bill in the Austin State house and as far anybody has been able to find out it is still there. The Terrell paper, was, however, going to to get out and do things, and it is our guess it was not properly supported.

THE MAN WHO MAKES NO MISTAKES

It was an ancient seer who said that criticizing another man's oration is a simple thing, but to make a better one in its place is a task exceedingly difficult.

The galleries are full of critics. They play no ball. They fight no fights. They make no mistakes, because they attempt nothing.

Down in the arena are the doers. They make many mistakes because they attempt many things. I would venture to say Edison, Burbank, Ford, Macaroni and the Wright brothers probably made more mistakes than any other men who have lived. Ford forgot to put a reverse gear in his first automobile. Edison once spent over two million dollars on an invention which proved to be of little value. The gigantic creative experiments of these men in blazing new trails made mistakes inevitable. But who remembers the critics who laughed at them?

The man who makes no mistakes lacks boldness and the spirit of adventure. He is a brake on the wheels of progress. There are no thrills in his life. And there are no monuments to his memory —A. O. U. W. Magazine.

The Humble Oil & Refining company today announced that it will bring Texas football fans radio accounts of Southwest conference games again this season, for the fourth consecutive year

An ambitious program of broadcasting beginning with the very first games on September the 24th the Company will broadcast all conference games and many of the outstanding intersectional contests to be played by conference teams. On several Saturdays as many as four games are on the tentative schedule of broadcosts, and on two Saturdays five broadcasts are schedules.

Games to be broadcast and the stations over which they may be heard will be announced from week to week during the football season.

The Humble company again emphasized that its purpose in sponsoring the broadcasts is to render an added service to the company's friends and employees and to stimulate an increased interest in Southwest conference football. It is hoped that the broadcasts will result in increased attendance at football games throughout the state.

Kern Tips and Cy Leland will again head the list of play-by-play announcers. Other announcers are now being selected, and the complete list will be ready for release within a short time.

In connection with the broadcasts, the Humble company will also again publish the Humble Football News. This attractive, lively football weekly has proved to be extremely popular among followers of the game. In addition to covering the Southwest Conference, the Humble Football News also covers high school and college football in Texas. Plans for this season include one or more feature stories every week. The Humble Football News will be distributed free by Humble Service Stations and Humble dealers each Thursday during the football season; the first issue will be in their hands on Thursday, Sept. 22nd.

The parachute jump now held the limelight in Sarah Lynn's thoughts. She read and studied and asked questions and listened eagerly to Conrad Jordan and the ace, and Lynn Dana sat in his wheeled-chair and approved.

"Won't it be pretty bulky with two chutes, one in front and one behind?" she wanted to know.

"I have said I will remove the door," Gunnar reminded her.

"Then you can dive out, forward, and that's much handier than backing out," Conrad Jordan said, lighting a cigarette. "Then you'd have to push your way, with your back against the door, against the air-pressure."

Lynn Dana's amused gaze, slightly grim, went from one calm speaker to the other. "If you don't mind, Sarah Lynn, I'd rather like you to take whatever precautions suggest themselves."

"Of course, Uncle Lynn! I want to be sensible."

Sensible: the small, slight thing with her clear olive-and-ivory face and its crowding eyes, her fine, thin hands relaxed in her lap, planning this dazzling danger as casually as her cousins made dates to go dancing.

"The mental reactions are very different," her uncle's flying friend said, "in a premeditated jump and balling out in an emergency, to save your life. All the breaks are with you now. You're going at the thing scientifically, you have no fear and no nerves, and I prophesy it's going to be a tremendous satisfaction to you, at the moment and in your memories. But I want to tell you frankly that you'll have some bad minutes before you go up." He leaned forward to knock off an ash. "Never knew it to fail. The most hardened jumpers experience it, though I dare say in most cases it's purely physical and subconscious. I know a young chap at an airport who does exhibition jumps, but always before he goes up he turns deathly pale and his face and hands twitch. And the minute he climbs into the ship he's fine."

"Like a soldier in the trenches waiting the command to go over the top," Lynn Dana contributed. "Or, I remember before a big game, the agony of waiting, of wishing you had elected to play tiddledy-winks instead of football, and the departure of all doldrums when the whistle blew."

"Exactly. Tremendous relief in definite action: setting the body into directional motion toward a determined objective. Physical action replaces mental; fear evaporates. My conviction is that with a normal mind danger brings a calm and alertness and a cleverness far beyond ordinary experience."

"That I also believe," the Norwegian ace said.

Jordan went on. "There's the case of an English army officer, years ago. His chute caught in the ship and tore, leaving only the harness on him. He didn't know it, and the motion-pictures showed him calmly feeling round the harness and rip-cord, trying to figure why his umbrella didn't open, almost the whole way to the earth."

"Cheery anecdote," Lynn Dana said a trifle tartly.

"That was an old-fashioned affair, Lynn. Sarah Lynn'll have two modern, absolutely reliable chutes."

"Fool-proof," she grinned at him.

"Fool-proof, which is superfluous in your case," he grinned back, approving her warmly. Lynn Dana's study pulsed with approval, with affection for her. Her uncle's life-long devotion, the cordial friendship of his friend, the cool comradeship of the flying boy from Norway. What more, besides a Gipsy Moth, did a girl need for happiness?

Fliers did not marry.

"I have wondered if I'd really remember to pull the string," she said, "but I was reading Lieutenant Cramer's account of his first experience. An old-timer told him he couldn't keep his finger away from that ring if he tried!"

Jordan nodded. "Your only difficulty will be to wait until you are entirely clear of the ship." He faced Lynn Dana. "She'll have two 'chutes fastened to the webbed harness about her body. The main one has a 28-foot spread and the second a 24. That's on her chest."

"Made of silk"

"Light, but entirely substantial. Both have pull-rings and rip-cords to unlace and throw up the parachutes, and the rings are handily placed. You'll have everything clear in your mind a hundred times over, Sarah Lynn. The thing you must be prepared for is the scream and the flapping of the silk and the report, like a gun, and the violent jerk when your parasol opens. After that—he ground out his cigarette—"it's really delightful."

"But—I was reading yesterday—when I'm almost down, within a hundred feet of the ground—"

"Then you must reach up and hang onto the big rings above the sling in which you're sitting, and lift yourself, and take some of the bump out of your earth contact."

Sarah Lynn nodded gravely. "Uncle Lynn, what about Great-granny? Shall we tell her, and let her come out to the meadow and watch?"

He shook his head. "I'm against it, Sarah Lynn. She hasn't been up to the mark, lately, and it would be bound to be a strain—not understanding, as we do, the simplicity and safety of the thing. I believe you'd better tell her about it afterward."

"I expect you're right. But she'll be furious at us. I must go home, now, Uncle Lynn." She stood up, and Jordan and Gunnar rose.

"We must be on our way, too," the older man said.

"Yes. But I walk first with Sarah Lynn to her house," Gunnar answered.

"So, now you fly, and you make the great jump," the youth said soberly. "That is good. The courage you have; the skill you swiftly learn. I think my grandmother, living today, would be also like that."

Sarah Lynn fought back crazy laughter. Of all the round-about, detached and diluted compliments! His grandmother, a girl in her period, would be like her.

"I return, next month, to Norway. I have there the fine offers, one from the government, one from a great flying firm. It is wise that I go."

She heard herself making a faint sound:

"But I like well America, California. I will come again one day. And you, also, should visit my country."

"Oh, yes, indeed! Cousin Sally Ann has told me how glorious it is," she said clearly and cheerily, and told him good-by and ran in the house.

Well, what of it? Why not? Was there any reason why he should linger forever in an alien land?

Fliers did not marry.

But fliers occasionally, it appeared, fell in love, achingly, absorbingly, terribly in love. She faced it then. "Idiot! You've known it for weeks — months — always! What's the use of lying to yourself. You may as well admit it; he'll never know."

The nonagenarian was beside Lynn Dana when he was driving out to the field for the parachute jump. She had guessed or divined what was to happen. "Can't fool your Gre'grammer!" She sat on the edge of the seat, the dabs of color which excitement always brought on her cheek-bones, her sunken eyes gleaming.

"I never saw the beat of that young one," she said complacently. "But you keep that ambulance out of sight, Lynn Dana, or I'll box your ears till you see stars, old as you are. Plumb foolishness, anyway. Sairy Lynn'll come down just as if she was playing on a feather-bed."

"Am I running true to form?" Sarah Lynn asked Conrad Jordan as they fastened her harness about her.

"No; a bit too calm and not pale enough, I should say," he told her cheerfully. Then he looked at Gunnar and away again, grinning, without comment. It was the hardy Norseman who was showing the regulation jumper's symptoms.

His ice-blue eyes blazed in a face of sudden snow; his young mouth was set in a taut line. "Come!" he called harshly.

All Sarah Lynn's slimness was overlaid with her equipment. "I feel like Tweedledum and Tweedledee both!" she laughed. She was comfortably casual in her brief good-bys, making no ceremony of farewell.

The Hermod, looking oddly crippled with its missing door, took off into a brisk wind. The flier did not look at his passenger nor speak.

"I wonder what makes him so deathly white?" she asked herself. "Just a detached interest in all branches of aerial conquest?" She felt suddenly gay. All her instructions were etched on her memory; she was past the traditionally bad moment of leaving the ground; she knew exactly what to do to get clear of the ship, and after that, she had been assured, the adventure would take on elements of distinct pleasure.

There was likewise a icy empty place.

At three thousand feet Gunnar nodded. "Ready! Now you go!" he shouted hoarsely.

Sarah Lynn stood up and made her bulky way toward the opening. She thought he was the palest living person she had ever seen.

"Fling yourself far from the ship. Make sure you are clear. Count a slow ten before you pull the cord!" His words came jerkily. "Wait! You are sure? You wish to go? There is no need, if you—"

Suddenly Sarah Lynn laughed aloud, filled with a wild mirth which was heady and sweet. "Still the fear of death?" she mocked him. "Life is one adventure; death is another!" She was confident, shining-eyed, radiant, but as she made a forward movement his arm shot out and caught her, pulling her against him.

"Sarah Lynn—" he said her name queerly in a choked voice, and kissed her, a fierce kiss, deep and desperate.

Then she was leaping out into swift and stinging air and was amazed to find that she did not immediately fall. The speed of the Hermod was carrying her along beneath it, face downward, with her arms and legs spread out like a starfish. There was the strange sensation of traveling across the air rather than through it.

"He kissed me!" she exulted. "Gunnar kissed me!"

She began to fall, her body twisting and turning. Now she was looking up at the plane, now down at the earth which was coming swiftly, perilously closer.

"There's something I must do, now!" she thought anxiously. "Oh, yes!—The cord! But where is that ring?"

Her fingers fumbled for it. It seemed to be lost in the webbing. Why hadn't she kept her hand on it all the time? She turned over again and saw the Hermod still above her but further away, somersaulted and saw the earth rushing up to meet her. Why hadn't Gunnar taken her higher than three thousand feet?

Sarah Lynn thought suddenly of her mother. She had a poignant picture of Adelaide Dana's upstairs sitting-room, pretty and peaceful, with potted plants whose every leaf glistened, and a canary warbling tenderly in an expensive cage, and quantities of framed photographs of her big brothers and herself and young Bill in all stages of infancy and childhood.

WISDOM

They tell of a certain town in the Middle West that had two daily newspapers. Both were owned and edited by the same man—and the strange feature of the situation was, that while one paper was completely in favor of the Republicans, the other was completely in favor of the Democrats.

The owner of the two rags wrote the editorials for both papers. One day he would praise Roosevelt highly in his Democratic sheet. And the following day, writing in his Republican paper, he would bitterly attack his own editorial.

Came the afternoon when a state senator approached the editor of the conflicting papers.

"You're a strange man," observed the senator. "I read one of your papers and find you're an ardent Republican. Then I read your other paper and find you cutting the Republicans to bits."

The senator paused and regarded the publisher.

"Will you tell me something confidentially?" he whispered. "What are you really—a Democrat or a Republican?".

The publisher smiled cagily.

"That all depends," he murmured, "on which paper lasts the longest!"—Philadelphia Record.

HOW IT STARTED

"Rastus," said the judge, "you are accused of disturbing the entire neighborhood on Tuesday night. What have you to say for yourself?"

"Well, sah judge it was dis here way," began Rastus. "Me an' Lucy had an argument. She called me a lazy loafah, and I slap her down flat. Up she hops an' smash a plate on mah head an' drop me flat. Den I rise up an' welt her one, and a chillun an' den she leave." [illegible]

Talking of Hard Times By An Old Timer

Geo. McKee, Anderson, S. C., says times are not hard, and goes on to prove it in his own manner:

"Don't talk to me about hard times. I was born eight miles from a railroad, five miles from school and nine miles from a church, 885 miles from New York, 200 yards from a wash hole, 15 feet from a corn field and 8767 miles from Hong Kong.

"Our nearest neighbor lived two miles away and he couldn't read or write. I never saw a suit of underwear until I was 17 years old, and that revelation didn't belong to anybody in the family. The only book in the house during my early childhood was a Bible and a catalogue somebody sent to us.

"There were 12 members in our family, but you see, we had three rooms to live in, including a dining room which was also a kitchen. Everybody worked at our little house. We thought everybody else in the world had gravy and bread for breakfast, liver and cracklin' hoecake for dinner, buttermilk and cone pone for supper, 'cause that's what we had—and liked it.

"Some of us wore brogan shoes occasionally in the winter time; we had nice white shirts for summer time use. We slept on straw ticks and pillows were not thought of or required. I did not know that money would rattle until I was nearly grown. Father got hold of two half dollars at the same time, and let us hear them rattle. Taxes were not higher but harder to pay then than now.

"We owned two kerosene lamps neither of which had a chimney. Our house wasn't ceiled, but two of our rooms had lofts in them. we had a glass window and our 'company' room. Our nicest piece of furniture was a rocking chair. Our beds were of the tight-rope variety. The 'trundle' bed took care of all the 'yunguns' under five years of age—and it stayed full all the time.

"We went to school two or three months in the year, but not in a bus. We attended church once a month, but not in a car—we used a two-mule wagon. We dressed up on Sunday, but not in silks and satins. We neither wrote letters nor received any. We made our own ashhopper. We drank sassafras tea and never had a yearning for coffee.

"We sopped our own molasses; we ate our own meat; we considered rice a delicacy for only the preacher to eat; we had heard of cheese, but never saw any; we knew of some store-bought clothes, but never hoped to wear any; we got a stick of candy and three raisins for Christmas and were happy; we love ma and pa and were never hungry, enjoyed going naked, didn't want much, expected nothing. And that's why our so-called hardtimes ain't hard on me."

SONG ACCEPTED BY PUBLISHERS

You, who listen to radio programs most likely will hear a new song soon entitled "Jackie Boy," and will be interested to know that the words were written by Mrs. E. Y. Brooks of Livingston, the sister of Mrs. Tom Minyard. The song will be released as soon as she receives her copyright. The Columbia Publishing Co., of Toronto, Canada, accepted her poem and a member of the firm, Alexander Angus, a well known composer, has set the words to music.

IF EVERY ONE

C. E. WIESER, D. D. S.

If everyone who drives a car would lie a month in bed,
With broken bones and stitched-up wounds or fractures of the head,
And here endure the agonies that many people do,
They'd never need preach safety any more to me or you.

If every one could stand beside the bed of some close friend,
And hear the doctor say "no hopes" before that fatal end,
And see him there unconscious, never knowing what took place,
The laws and rules of traffic I am sure we'd soon embrace.

And step into the darkened home when once sunlight shined,
And look upon "the vacant chair" where Daddy used to sit,
I'm sure each reckless driver would be forced to think a bit.

If every one would realize pedestrians on the street
Have just as much the right-of-way as those upon the seat,
And train their eyes for children who run recklessly at play,
This steady toll of human lives would drop from day to day.

For worn-out tires, loose steering wheels and brakes that fail to grip,
And pay attention to all lights while driving roads at night,
Another score for safety could be checked up during night.

If every one who drives a car would heed the danger signs
That [illegible]

FAIR GLAMOUR

We certainly do hear a lot these days about the New York World's Fair 1939. We keep right on hearing it, too, day after day. It seems you can't pick up a newspaper anywhere, or a magazine, either, that you don't run across something about the tremendous, stupendous, glamorous gorgeousness of the Fair, or words to that effect.

Sometimes we lean back in our worn editorial chair and wonder whether the fellow who's sending out all this press literature about the exposition isn't kidding us just a little. New York, you know, likes to kid the country-folk now and then. However, it doesn't seem there are any grains of salt sent with the press news of the Fair, so perhaps we're supposed to take it as is and believe it.

Let's see, now, what some of the wonders are going to be, as they are told to us in all sorts of flowery language. If you want to stick your tongue in your cheek afterward, that's up to you. We're just sitting still till it's time to journey to the Fair and see for ourselves.

To begin with, we're told that the Fair has built a steel globe 200 feet high, the biggest thing of its kind ever put up, and that there's a steel spire 700 feet tall right next to it, and that you are going to travel from the spire into the inside of the globe on the biggest escalator in the world, and that it took a camera man more than half an hour to climb up into the spire to take some pictures of the scenery thereabouts. Well, mebbe, mebbe.

And now try some of these on your imagination:

A statue of George Washington 65 feet tall, the largest portrait in sculpture in the world; a sun dial 50 feet high that's really going to tell time whenever the sun shines; the process, which all visitors will be able to witness, of milking 200 contented cows on a revolving platform so that they'll give 4,000 quarts of milk every 24 hours; the opportunity to make a parachute drop of 250 feet and live to tell the folks back home about it; the presentation of the entire history of railroading in this country, with all the dramatics of hold-ups with big six-shooters, and the like, on real tracks with real trains and masked bandits; a gigantic fountain display at night combining fire, water, sound and color as never before in what has been called "the nearest approach to chaos that man can contrive for purposes of entertainment"; the sight of a great airplane apparently in flight that you'll feel like ducking when you see it as it is coming toward you; the quivering of the leaves of a thousand trees to fairy-like tunes by the light of hidden mercury vapor lamps; the display of a "rocket ship of the future" in which those who want to can go away from it all" may go through the stratosphere to Mars, or to wherever else the distant universe [illegible] been foolish enough to buy tickets; a wide amphitheatre as large as those of ancient Rome, where thousands will gather to witness thrilling pageant and spectacular productions of rainbow hues on a huge island stage; an enormous model of the City of New York, with some of its sky-scrapers shown twenty-five feet tall, to display the intricate lighting system of the metropolis.

These are only a few of the promised wonders. Is the Fair trying to kid us? What do you think?

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Mary E. Hooks of Spurger passed her 90th milestone a few days ago and her children, the 27 grandchildren, 28 great-grandchildren, 3 great great-grandchildren, other relatives and friends gathered about her to help her celebrate the day. Mrs. Hooks came to Texas in 1858 and is one of the real pioneers of this East Texas. She married Francis Marion Hooks in 1887 and six daughters and two sons were born to them. She gives an interesting description of the coming from Georgia, by mule and horse teams and crossing the Neches river at Town Bluff, as she was a girl of ten years at the time. The family went on to Harris county but returned to Tyler not long after.

George Stanley returned from Boerne after a number of weeks visit to attend the funeral of his uncle, Hans Babin, and came on home with his parents, Mrs. and G. Stanley.
