IN HOLLISTER, Cal., the religious people, including the pastors, have joined in cleaning up the newsstands, and indecent literature will be hard to find, if their efforts are successful.

THE GOVERNMENT of the United States is supreme, and it is time a lot of low-brows, aliens, and would-be greater-than-thous learned the lesson—something like the abc characters—and the addition tables, which cannot be at all changed. Find the story headed "Go to Jail for Picketing Against the United States."

STEERING WHEEL. A weekly Austin publication, tells the world more about trucking problems than the rest of the combined Texas press. Last week's issue was Vol. 5, No. 1, and was printed on a better grade of paper, and was doubled in size, to eight pages. The paper is "The Voice of Motor Transportation Industry of Texas" official publication.

IF YOU can buy the suit and hat you wanted, emerging all untruffled from the fray, while others shuffle homeward empty-handed, from tramping miles and miles of aisles all day, if you are always lucky in your bargains and never have regrets, or what you spend, it's evident you are a canny buyer, and, further, you must be a reader of The Booster advertisements. Ah, with apologies to Kipling.

DOWN in Houston the wise ones are wondering if it would be a good idea to emulate New York City, and check their flowers and costly shrubs for the winter. It is a fact, Texas winters are becoming a nuisance. Palms and oleanders, roses and geraniums, sweet peas and geraniums are out of luck just as surely as they are left out doors on their own. And then there's the azaleas, etc., etc. Yep, 'twould be fine to check 'em in for the winter in a centralized green house.

THAT FELLOW Ed Reichell, the reporter in the Beaumont Enterprise, who writes up foot ball, base ball, basket ball, and all other ball games are there about witnessing them, has entered the political racket. Sunday the Enterprise had a story by Ed, who was stressing Senator John S. Redditt, Lufkin, who is retiring, and, too, also get this, Ed got his story identified, via the "By" route. It would seem as though a fellow's imagination would get worn threadbare in just guessing who's who in the gridiron game, without going out of his home political stamping something?

Heavens preserve us. First thing we know Ed will be raging about in Tyler county, spying on one or two of our famous justices of the peace, and won't that be ground to work on State-senators.

THE GULF Coast Press Association's paper, The News, says: Dick Wade, Livingston, is up in the air because he cannot collect what he charged for publishing a bunch of tax foreclosure notices. The Fort Worth Attorney refused to pay the bill, and, further, was perfectly willing to stand suit. Well, that's refreshing and at the same time interesting. Texas has no law stating a rate for legal publications, or for the musts, as regarding what notices must be published. However, the lawyer that is entering suits in Woodville against those made it easy for The Booster. They did not offer publication in The Booster the list of Woodville delinquents, but they have been or will be posted at some place in the court house, so we'll not have to worry about whether we'd get paid if the notices were offered for publication in The Booster. Legal notice printing in Texas without stipulated remuneration is considerable of a joke to newspaper men who have published papers for years where there is legal notice printing.

STRANGE AS it may seem one of the United States still has the whipping post. We have reference to Wilmington, Del., where eight men were lashed with a cat-o-nine-tails, last Saturday in the greatest flogging since that form of punishment was legalized in 1771. And how we have progressed in all those years, never were eight whipped at one time before. It took modern America of punishment, has kept cringing the protection of the guilty, instead of for law-abiding citizens. Think of it, 171 years that form to them it is evident the cat-o-nines in order, so to speak, but in 1940 eight got what was coming to them. It is evident the cat-o-nine-tails has made a far better record than all the lawyers in that state of Delaware. It is evident, also, that form of punishment is more to be feared than all the courts of the land, and even the KKK when it was in its prime and practice. The cat-o-nine-tails, if put into practice by law in all the states would be the greatest aid Martin Dies in his move to rid America of undesirable aliens than all the courts in all of America.

CHESTER SCHOOL NEWS

Gordon Worley, director of Negro education, with the State Department of Education was on the campus last Friday afternoon. The Community night at the school last week was a great success. This was sponsored by the TPA. The theme of the meeting was good citizenship and for that particular night behaviour at public gatherings. Rev. Waldrip of Corrigan, brought a good message on that point. The entertainment consisted largely of county net teams with the exception of the song flute band and the piano numbers.

The new Negro school building was dedicated last Friday night with the following school officials present: Gordon Worley, County-Supt. O. A. Riley, County Supt. Sandy Moore of Polk County and four of the local school trustees and the local superintendent. Among the Negro educators present were Dr. Norris of Prairie View College, principal speaker; Teacher McAdams of Crockett, other faculty members from Prairie View and many neighboring school men. There was a poultry show all day Friday.

Joe Wilson, an Indian missionary from the Sioux Tribe of Minnesota, and who has a specially well trained voice for singing and expensive costume, will put on a program here some time Friday, March 29.

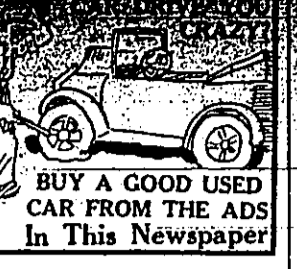

BOOSTERS TO BE HERE
J. T. Cox and Dr. Curtis Wallace of Nacogdoches were in Woodville Tuesday morning paving the way for the some 80 members of the Band Boosters of SEA to make its goodwill tour the 29th, Friday of next week. They plan to be here early, about 8:00 o'clock, a. m., so parents, why not plan to be up town as the youngsters go to school and enjoy this event. Some of our own, Woodville's young people are members of this band.

Baptist Church News
J. C. Boyd, Pastor

These notes are written from from Rodessa, La., where I am spending a few days in a meeting. Rodessa, as you may know, is situated in the heart of an immense oil field. The gas flares from the oil wells evenings illuminate the entire town and far into the country. There are many nice homes, but most of the people live in camp houses and shacks. In the midst of it all is located a school building that would do credit to any city. Not so much can be said for the church buildings. Figure this out for yourself. This afternoon I stood with both feet in Texas with my left foot resting on Arkansas soil and my right foot resting in Louisiana. In other words I was touching three different states all at once.

There were around 2,000 people killed through accidents in the home during 1938—an increase of 2% over the 1938 totals.

Falls, with 17,000 deaths, were responsible for the biggest part of home accidents. Slippery floors, small rugs, frayed rugs, and lack of hand rails on stairs were some of the things contributing to falls. To prevent these falls, points out Mrs. Bernice Clayton, home improvement specialist of the Texas A&M Extension service, floors should not be too highly polished; rugs should be mended; non-skid material should be placed under rugs. She suggests "Fix-It" movement as a means of holding down the number of home accidents. Many of the needed repairs are those which homemakers, or their menfolks, can make she said.

COOPER JACOWAY WINS LITTLE ROCK OFFICE

Cooper Jacoway, son of Mrs. H. M. Jacoway of Kansas City and nephew of Mrs. Wallace Shulars, was elected city attorney of Little Rock, Ark., winning by a large majority over the present holder of the office in a bitterly contested election last week. Cooper Jacoway is the grandson of the late congressman and Mrs. S. B. Bronson Cooper, residents of Beaumont for many years. Mrs. Jacoway was reared in Woodville and Beaumont and is widely known throughout east Texas.

The Booster is in favor of declaring open season on men who get The Booster out of the post office and then do not take it home so the Misses can look it over at her leisure.

It was near the conclusion of a well worn tribute to a man recently deceased, who had grown from the ranks of his home county and subsequently achieved a certain degree of success in other sections of the State. Simple and succinct it read: "He never compromised a principal or betrayed a friend." I knew the man, but the editor's words left their own impression. Among editors in small towns, throughout the country are to be found some of the finest of the world's journalists. They sparkle, not, nor are they outwardly, glamorous, for they know the grime of printer's ink and the feel of hot lead as part of their day's work. Yet, among these men are those who take advantage of their rare opportunity to know many men generally and a few men well and to think conclusions ideas born of daily human processes as seen in the desirably slow motion of the American small town.—Max Ward in "Cosmic Dust" in the Glenville (W. AMERICAN BOY MAGAZINE COMPANION TO THOUSANDS

Hundreds of thousands of boys and young men read THE AMERICAN BOY Magazine every month and consider it more as a living companion than as a magazine. "It's as much a buddy to me as my neighborhood chum," writes one high school senior. "THE AMERICAN BOY seems to understand a boy's problems and considers them in such a sympathetic and helpful way. It gives advice and entertaining reading on every subject in which a young fellow is interested. It is particularly helpful in sports. I made our school basketball team because of playing tips I read in THE AMERICAN BOY." Many famous athletes in all sports credit much of their success to helpful suggestions received from sports articles carried in THE AMERICAN BOY Magazine. Virtually every issue offers advice from a famous coach or player. Football, basket ball, track, tennis, in fact every major sport is covered in fiction and fact articles.

MORTUARY

We spoke, a while back, of the country weekly recognizing the true importance of the last significant fact in any man's life, death. Your daily paper likewise records death in various classes. There is violent death, which merits headlines in proportion to the violence of the death and the importance of the deed. There is natural death which may get the headlines, depending upon the importance of the dead. Then there is plain, mise-run-of-death, advertisements for the undertaker—grouped under the narrow, chilling, lack-lustre word "mortuary." A shuddering word. The fellow who coined it should be quartered and hung.

Death, our weeklies recognize a time when the good man have done should be recalled, to live after them, to stand as an example for the children of the community.

If you have not read the death notices, usually on Page 1, you have missed in inherently unimportant form of American journalism. As the radio announcer would say, we quote:

"Mr. _____ was conscientious and dependable in all his dealings, with others, as befits a man of honor. His children knew him as a just and kind father and his friends as a man of high principles. . . ."

"Despite the lingering illness and months of intense suffering, Mrs. _____ bore it with Christian fortitude. . . ."

"Mrs. _____ was a good Christian woman and a devoted mother and wife. We regret to hear of the death of this good mother and grieves with the children in their loss. . . ."

And there is good journalism in this kind of reporting—good from the standpoint of giving readers what they want. When a friend dies, you may be shocked and saddened, but you also want to know all the details. This is not morbid curiosity, we think; even if you think differently, you've got to admit that you read the following paragraph with deep interest although you do not know the person:

"Her health has been declining for several months and she had been taken to specialists in San Angelo and Austin for examination and treatment, but without apparent relief. About two weeks ago she was taken to San Antonio and placed in a sanitarium, but to no avail. Her time had come to go."

Prologue to Love

By MARTHA OSTENSO

CHAPTER I—Lovely, independent Autumn Dean, returning home to Brazil Columbia from abroad without her father's knowledge, stops at the home of Hector Cardigan, an old family friend, to tell her that she is to be married. Arriving home at the home of the "Norma," she is greeted lovingly by her mother, who tells her that she is to be married to a young man named Millicent Odel, who has been dead for years. Autumn cannot believe the news, but she is to be married to a young man named Millicent Odel, who has been dead for years. She has lived with an aunt.

CHAPTER II—Riding around the estate with her father, the young man realizes that he has changed. Between them the dance arrives. Autumn meets Florian Parr, a dashing, well-educated young man. In the evening Autumn leaves the dance, and she meets Bruce Landon, friend and champion of the neighborhood. She takes her to see his mother, an invalid, and she is surprised to find that her father is dead, though he is supposed to be alive. She is to be married to a young man named Millicent Odel, who has been dead for years. She has lived with an aunt.

CHAPTER III—Autumn calls again on Hector Cardigan—this time to find out the reason for his death. From his conversation she inferred that Millicent Odel was her mother. She was to be married to a young man named Millicent Odel, who has been dead for years. She has lived with an aunt.

CHAPTER IV—Florian Parr, at the castle for dinner, proposes to Autumn. She declines his offer, and he is angry. He is to be married to a young man named Millicent Odel, who has been dead for years. She has lived with an aunt.

CHAPTER V—Autumn tells her father that she is to be married to a young man named Millicent Odel, who has been dead for years. She has lived with an aunt.

CHAPTER VI—Autumn knows then that she is to be married to a young man named Millicent Odel, who has been dead for years. She has lived with an aunt.

CHAPTER VII—Autumn knows then that she is to be married to a young man named Millicent Odel, who has been dead for years. She has lived with an aunt.

THE COLORADO PLAN

Forty thousand persons, one in every 25 of Colorado's 1,100,000 inhabitants, pulled out of their mailboxes in February pension checks from the State Treasurer. The maximum $49, the average $39.40. In cases where two pensioners live together, and about a quarter of them do, each getting full amount, with deductions for other income. For some it was a matter of relief from need. For others it was deserved security. In any event 40,000 persons were thus made reasonably content. It might be said therefore that for these persons, 60 years of age and older, the pension problem in Colorado is solved.

The Colorado pension amendment differs in many respects from pension laws in other States. It is liberal in the amount provided and in qualifications. Some call it radical. But even its opponents will agree, it is not a "crack pot plan" in the sense of being an effort to revolutionize the economic system. It's just a very liberal and very inflexible method of paying pensions to the aged.

In the first place the plan is fixed securely in the Constitution, voted there by a large majority in 1937. The amendment provides that pensions of at least $45 be paid each month to those qualified. There has been enough revenue to pay the full amount only a few times.

Those between 60 and 65 must have resided in the state continuously for at least 35 years. Those over 65 must have resided in the State for at least five years with in the nine years before applying for the pension. All must be citizens of the United States.

Beyond that the only qualification is that the recipient must not have a net income of more than $45 a month. This works out, it is explained, so that one who has an income of $44 may still apply for the other $1. The significant result though, even the mildest of critics of this particular plan point out, is that there has been a scramble to eliminate all other very easy sources of income and rely entirely on the pension. Before the new law went into effect there were some 27,000 on the pension rolls, compared with the present 40,000.

AND THE DEALER WAS MAD, TOO!

And then there's the error the boss made in copy reading once when he made an ad read "Rolled Rats" for sale, instead of "Rolled Oats." The grocer was mad, too.—Ruth Russo in the Jayhawker Press.

PIANIST'S LUCK IS IN WORN OUT OLD CROCODILE PURSE

Beautifully dressed in gowns designed especially for her, Anna Drafmann's appearance when she arrives on the concert stage for one of her piano recitals reveals one false note—an old crocodile-handbag, worn almost to the point of being disintegrating. But that handbag has gone to every recital with her since she made her first public appearance in Vienna, 12 years ago. She believes it brings her luck, because it was presented to her by just before her debut. Morning, afternoon or evening, the bag's there though Madame Drafmann admits it is unsuitable for evening attire.

"I take the best possible care of it," she says, "so that it will last through many more years of my career—and I hope my career will last forever."

VALUE OF ADVERTISING

In selling your paper as an advertising medium, it isn't enough to sell it only to the merchants. Even though the doctor, dentist, and lawyer may be prohibited from using advertising themselves, it's important to sell them on the function of advertising as an essential in sound merchandising. These professional people are in perfect touch with the merchants, and they are not slow to express their opinions about anything—and everything. It's smart policy for the advertiser to get their views.

IN MEMORIAM

In Memoriam of my Mother Crumpler, who passed away Mar. 19, 1939.

Your gentle face and patient smile with sadness we recall. You had a kindly word for each of us. And died beloved by all. The voice is mute and stilled the heart. That loved us well and true Oh bitter was the trial part From one so good and you, Mother dear. You are not forgotten loved one, Nor will you ever be. As long as life and memory last, We will remember mother. We miss you now our hearts are sore, As time goes by we miss you more dear. Your loving smile your gentle face No one can fill your place.
