MISUSING PUBLIC SERVICE
 Two years ago, all safety programs of the State were concentrated into one organization, the Texas Safety Association. This association, bearing the endorsement and full support of the department of public safety, the highway department, the state department of education, and other state and private agencies, and working in co-operation with the governor and other officials, is doing an outstanding job. Meanwhile, over the state, a man who is running for public office is using a safety organization of his own as a medium for getting public attention . . . and votes.

Pierce Brooks, defeated for public office two years ago, meanwhile has organized a safety organization of his own, the Texas Safety Council. He lists himself as founder of the council. The secretary of state's office records reveal the Texas Safety Council was founded in 1936 by Julia Baldwin, Ralph Soaps, and A. C. Baldwin of Austin and is using the name as an entree to service clubs, radio stations and other places. Now, there is nothing wrong with Mr. Brooks preaching safety to his heart's content. But if he were NOT in politics and were a GENUINE part of the safety movement, he would be recognized by the department of public safety and the highway department . . . which do not now recognize him. But the name, "Texas Safety Council," sounds valid enough, and service clubs and other groups have permitted him places on their programs, apparently unaware of the fact that he is IN POLITICS and that he is not the recognized safety organization of Texas. Some newspapers have likewise been used by on the winning side. . . . where he'll be when the alliance takes place. 'Tis not to be long before the heavens will be glowing sideways at each other, and then, there'll be more war news. It is to be hoped France will gentle their navy in preference to turning it over to Germany. When Hitler succeeds to killing off all the belligerents, then the old country will again experience peace.

WAY BACK yonder about 25 years ago when the possession of a visa was necessary in foreign countries to gain admittance at the several ports of entry we distinctly remember how Dan Cobb, in one of the popular magazines of the time, told how a traveler was in trouble upon entering, say Germany with out his duly accredited, signed and witnessed, visa, and, said Dan, when one tried to get into Russia without his visa, he was a. o. l., which all well informed citizens of America know means similarly out of luck. Well, the newspapers in these United States told last week how a measure had been passed that all foreigners must be fingerprinted, photographed, examined, scrutinized, searched reviewed, investigated and catechised—all this to keep undesirables out. Ah, P. S.—The Secretary of the local War department informs this periodical writer it was Irvin Cobb and not Dan Cobb who was telling the world about visas. Yep, as usual, our mistake.

ABANDONMENT OF RAIL LINE WILL BANKRUPT CITY AND CO. GOVERNMENTS
 The rail lines traversing this state, serving both large and small communities with efficient and dependable service, constitute the greatest financial, commercial and economic asset to Texas, and the state's future progress and prosperity is inherently linked and synchronized with the continued successful operation of these specific carriers, was the opinion rendered recently by Burt C. Blanton, consulting industrial engineer and business economist of Dallas.

"Communities without rail outlets are not desirable locations for new industries, and it is an obvious fact that the more railroads providing service to a city or town the greater is its present stability, both commercial and industrial, and, likewise, its future potentialities are contingent upon such transportation facilities, which are still paramount to all other types," Mr. Blanton said. Tax revenue. "There are numerous communities in Texas, constituting cities and towns in the population brackets ranging from 2,500 upward to 20,000 inhabitants or more, who derive their major tax revenue from the railroads, and this is equally true in relation to three-fourths of the 284 counties comprising the State of Texas. Subsequently, if such a medium of taxation is eliminated due to the abandonment of rail lines, there are many of these communities which will eventually become bankrupt as a sequence of such loss of revenue, which cannot be replaced or supplemented by other forms of taxes as obviously business, industry and real property revenue.

Aided New World

Iroquois Tribe Swung Balance of Power Against French.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—W.H.U. Service.
 The conquest of the New World by the Spaniards is a story of the quest for gold. The conquest of northeastern North America is a story of the rivalry of the French, the English and the Dutch for control of the fur trade. Since furs were to be obtained only through friendly alliance with the natives, the three European rivals were not long in allying themselves in accordance with the natural enemies among the Indians. When Champlain undertook the colonization of the St. Lawrence region early in the Seventeenth century, it was only natural that he made friends with the Algonquians who then occupied that territory. This alliance inevitably brought the French into conflict with the Iroquois, the hereditary enemies of the Algonquians.

EDDIE BIG BEAVER, Black-foot Indian of Montana, is typical of his tribe, a large division of Algonquians from whom the English-Iroquois wrested control of the St. Lawrence region. Now the tribe resides on reservations in Montana and Alberta, peacefully engaged in stock raising.

TAOS INDIANS are the most northerly of the pueblo tribes and live along the upper reaches of Rio Grande in New Mexico. In their early conquest of the great Southwest, the Spaniards had plenty of trouble with members of this tribe. Now their main occupation is ceremonial dancing.

and semi-sedentary Iroquois possessed a genius for political and military organization, which, combined with their warlike traditions, was destined to give them the upper hand in conflict with native rivals. English Chose Iroquois.

When the English undertook to aid the Iroquois in their struggle, they allied themselves with the side that represented the balance of power. So it came about that North America is now English instead of French.

The English did not indulge extensively in missionary activities, but with the Roman Catholic French the desire to convert the natives to Christianity was a leading factor in stimulating exploration.

In 1615 Champlain thought the time was ripe to send missionaries into the territory of the St. Lawrence. This work was begun by the Recollets, a Franciscan order. But in 1625 the Jesuits came, pursuing their calling under almost un-placed with the dead were a manifestation of this belief. The souls of the dead, however, were usually feared and frequently extreme measures were taken in attempts to prevent their return. The religion of the Indian was entirely practical and was designed to help him, not in the future, but in the immediate present.

Thus, when the Indian thought himself plagued by an evil spirit, the obvious way to rid himself of his difficulty was to propitiate that spirit with offerings. His attention thus was fixed equally upon friendly and unfriendly forces.

Believed in Supernatural. Underlying all this was the somewhat mystic conception of an impersonal supernatural force which permeates all Nature and animates all phenomena which control the destiny of man. Early white travelers, not comprehending the real nature of this idea, usually translated it as "The Great Spirit."

DRAGS WOLF, GROS VENTRE

Indian of North Dakota, has heard tales of his ancestor's dealings with the white man who came to conquer the plains and did. This tribe is another branch of the Algonquians who lined up with the French in the early days of American history.

The fabric of the Indian's religion was woven about his intimate observations of Nature. Each day he saw the sun rise in the east and set in the west, obliterating the stars which guarded the heavens at night. He noticed the regularity of the waxing and waning of the moon. He watched the procession of the equinoxes with the accompanying complex phenomena of the seasons.

Mrs. Maryell, at home, as a school girl, at Kirby High school in Woodville, at Sam Houston State Normal College, in her Sunday school work and in the church scattered sunshine and good will towards all with whom she came in contact. Hers was the happy disposition that caused her to always have a cheery word and a gracious smile for even those of casual acquaintance. Despite all that medical science could do she passed away on June 6th at the age of 22 years, in the full bloom of young womanhood. We do not regard her as being in the tomb, but a dweller in that "Happy Home" beyond the skies. Resolve that we convey to the father, the mother, and her kindred our tenderest thoughts of sympathy and condolence. May time and the Great Healer, bring you serene contentment.

JOSEPH P. KENNEDY CALLS FOR RECORD GIFTS TO AMERICAN RED CROSS

London, June 23.—Declaring that "everything indicates England will be called upon to meet the greatest siege in the history of man," Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy urged the United States public to do its utmost in contributing to the Red Cross. The American ambassador declared that funds "now at our disposal are pitiful in relation to anticipated needs."

"Your fervent gratitude that your children are not now at any moment liable to be killed in their beds," he said, "may well express itself in helping those who face this reality. "We in England see tragedy close at hand. We realize no sacrifice can be too great for any of us to make to ease the people's suffering. "In the cause of humanity I ask that you do your utmost. We cannot give too soon or give too much." Kennedy's appeal was made by radio.

THAT FREEDOM OF PRESS AND SPEECH

The idea is being battled around just now that freedom of speech do more than get a "vice started" move, the Post-Dispatch recently attacked a St. Louis press to some dictator, in return for jobs, food, clothing, shelter and fuel in plenty for everybody.

Well, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, owned by Joseph Pulitzer, recently printed two editorials vigorously attacking a St. Louis judge. One of the editorials was accompanied by a cartoon from Fitzpatrick, whose cartoons frequently decorate Collier's editorial and other pages. One of them scolded up with what he conceived to be righteous indignation and cited publisher, managing editor, editorial editor and cartoonist for contempt of court, of course. Pulitzer says he'll fight the case through the highest court he can get into; and if he know anything about his Post-Dispatch, he'll be crones' courage and tenacity, we hope he wins; and if that's some more contempt of court, come ahead, Your Honor.

The point we're getting to is this: These Post-Dispatch editorials and cartoons attacked at some extortion funny business, alleged to be going on under this same judge's wing if not with his knowledge. Take away newspapers and magazines' freedom to expose such goings-on, and where do we land? We land, without having moved at all, in a country where crooked judges (though we believe most of our judges are honest) can connive with crooked politicians, contractors, service or merchandise sellers and labor leaders to jack up living costs in a multitude of ways for the consuming public. Meaning less and less purchasing power for what money any of us can scrounge up; or, in plainer English, less and less food, shelter and fuel for more and more work. That is what a free press means to the well-being of the American people. It is at the very heart of such well-being.—Colliers Magazine.

MRS. CHARLES F. STAPP

It was with sorrow that this reporter learned of the death of the mother of Robert Stapp. To know that a dear one leaves this world at such a great distance from us is a burden heavy to bear and also to realize that the one who leaves is longed for as well as to see that the one who remains is left to grieve those near by uttering the longed for loud, thirty years ago, two young people, both graduates of Baylor U at Waco, cast their lots together and for God's work. The husband, C. F. Stapp, was a student preacher and the girl, Miss Louise Shannon of Burleson was preparing herself for the life of a missionary. The Baptist church sent them, which was their honeymoon trip to Bahia, Brazil to assist that splendid old pioneer, Rev. Z. C. Taylor. Later Dr. and Mrs. Stapp moved to Sergipe and were the only missionaries to ever have made their home in that state. For many years past they have been at Paratyba, where she was at the time of her death at the age of 61 years. There are four sons in this family, Dr. John Paul Stapp, a physician and surgeon in the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., Dr. Celso Stapp who is in Tulane university in New Orleans, Robert and family at Odessa, and the youngest son, Wilford Lee is in San Antonio. Each of the boys were sent back to the States in their early teens to attend Baylor. Rev. and Mrs. Stapp were in Texas for a year's furlough, and returned to Brazil just two years ago. Deep sympathy is felt for the bereaved husband and sorrowing sons.

CENSUS SHOWS HUMBLE SHOWS A GREAT LOSS

Out of the 11 incorporated cities in Harris county outside of Houston on one city showed a decline in population, according to the just completed census. In 1940 Humble shows the nose count to be 1231 as compared to 2527 in 1930.

DETAINED TRAFFIC FOR QUAIL

A mother quail and her nest of 21 eggs recently caused travelers to do a bit of detouring between Brackettville, in Kinney county and Rock Springs in Edwards county. The state highway department's crew of engineers and construction gang, in building a road between those two communities, located a quail nest of 21 eggs. All traffic was detained around that spot until Mama Quail hatched 19 of her 21 eggs and the little birds were able to leave. The report to the highway department was made by a local resident.

WHY NOT A SAFE FOURTH OF JULY? Looking ahead to the approaching observance of the Fourth of July, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health officer, warns against the irresponsible use of fireworks and other explosives.

Dr. Cox pointed out that celebration of the Fourth of July has associated with it inevitable increase in hazards to life and limb; auto accidents increase in added congestion; an undue number of drownings occur, chiefly affecting non-swimmers in places lacking adequate safety supervision; and a great many injuries and not a few deaths are directly attributable to fireworks. The past several years have seen the introduction of municipal ordinances in certain cities designed to prevent the indiscriminate and intemperate use of fireworks, particularly the more dangerous types, and this has to some degree reduced the hazard associated with their general use.

However, it is not to be inferred that risks to health and life from fireworks have been eliminated completely. Temporary stands inside city limits make explosives accessible to the independence Day celebrators, while the large majority of Texas communities have as yet adopted no regulations barring them. Non-thinking parents still permit the many thousands of children to use this dangerous method of celebrating the Fourth, with the inevitable result that some of them find their way to the hospital, and other to the undertaker's establishment. Tetanus always is in the shadow where high explosives are being handled for amusement by amateurs. Any person receiving a powder burn or wound, however superficial, should see a physician immediately. Anti-tetanus serum, in the majority of instances, will be administered to prevent the possibilities of lockjaw. To treat an injury of this sort unconcernedly is to run an unjustifiable risk. Moreover, the post-Fourth's casualty items are augmented by the carelessly operated automobile. Statistics show that not only in Texas, but through out the nation, the misoperated motor vehicle is a real Fourth of July hazard. Again, the list of drownings is definitely increased on that day, and finally, snake bites, polluted drinking water, sunburn, and poison ivy are always ready to meet the excursionist half way.

There is no desire to dampen any one's enthusiasm for fun and relaxation on the Fourth, but the wise person will appreciate that harmful possibilities to life, limbs and health do exist, and will govern himself accordingly.

U. S. MOTORS SEIZED

New York, June 21.—A Rome radio broadcast, picked up in New York by Columbia Broadcasting system said today the official German news agency NDB reported German forces "captured 400 planes which had just arrived from America and 20,000 motors complete with plans for mounting." The broadcast said the DNB dispatch came "from the front."

FANS BUY SCORES A RUN

Max Jacob, Brooklyn pitcher, once struck out and scored a run before another pitch could be made. He reached first base when the catcher missed the third strike, went to second when the batter was thrown out, and then scored.

WILDLIFE VALUED

Texas continues to lead the nation in the value of its wildlife resources, according to figures assembled after surveys were made by the federal government and forwarded to the executive secretary of the state game commission. Not only does Texas lead the nation, but its wildlife resources are worth approximately three times as much as those of the second leading state. Wildlife resources in Texas are valued at $94,350,394 by federal experts. This takes into consideration the value of insectivorous birds to the farmer, of game and the amount of money spent by hunters it brings the land owner, hotel, owners, stores and tourist camps; the value of the fur crop in the state and a myriad of other ways in which game is of actual monetary value to the Lone Star State.

DO NOT FORGET THIS BAN, "MAYDAY" BAN

Use of the word "Mayday" in any false or fraudulent manner on a radio program involves a $10,000 fine, according to the federal communications commission. "Mayday" is a corruption of the French "m'aider," a plea for help. The international telecommunication conference of 1938 ruled that this distress call should be sent only by order of the master or person responsible for a ship, aircraft, or other vehicle in distress. An offender is subject to punishment by a fine of $10,000, two year's imprisonment, or both.
