WOODVILLE LOOKS much cleaner now, following the general clean-up campaign this week. People of the town were very considerate in cooperating with the "city fathers" and Chamber of Commerce in this movement and that is just what it took to put it over. The one eye-sore—those vacant lots, are not as attractive yet as they should be but many owners live out of town and others feel that it is too early to move these plots from which they have no income. Anyway, it was a thing worth while and as a stranger to the way Woodville does things we say that the effort was as wholeheartedly entered into here as any place we ever lived and far more than most of those places.

THOSE WHO do not admire Woodville now will never do so. The early flowering shrubs are all in bloom such as azaleas, red-bud, peach and mock peach and pear, and plum. Indian point blue and the state flower, blue bonnets as well as the famous dogwood. Colors of these flowers and shrubs and trees intermingle with the fresh green of leafing trees and growing grass to make a beautiful garden of the entire countryside. Although the dogwood festival has been discontinued "for the duration" yet the beauty remains and local people who view it yearly will make trips through the country again this week-end.

WE LIKE the spirit of these state guardsmen of Woodville. (We never like that name "home" guards as it should rightly be "state" or "defense" guards). The members of that organization, many of whom fought in the last World war, get right in there and drill as though they were going to be placed on a front line next week. Sunday they were all out carrying out various maneuvers that took them about everywhere in town. And that is the only way to enter into any defense work no matter how "far-fetched" it might now seem. Germany as well as Japan would like to kill we Americans into feeling we are out of any actual danger and then when the time was right, swoop down as they have in other countries. It would do well for all of us to copy that spirit of the state guardsmen and keep it with us throughout the war. If a thing is worth doing, it is worth doing right. And don't think for a minute that those guardsmen would hesitate at meeting any manner of invader from a trench where bullets were exchanged.

"OLE HOME PAPER"
 Baton Rouge, La.
 Editor Willard,
 Tyler County Booster,
 Dear Mr. Willard:
 Words are hard to express when "one in the service" picks up a paper from the "ole home town" and I appreciate very much your willingness to help. I find you are sending the paper to Washington before it reaches me; therefore, I would like to inform you of my new address as follows:

Sgt. R. L. Seamons, 58th Pursuit Squadron, Harding Field, Baton Rouge, La.
 Thanking you for your trouble and your kind attention, I remain, Respectfully yours,
 Sgt. R. L. Seamons.
