On Every Front

General Electric equipment is fighting with America's first army. From the tolling kitchen to the front line, electricity works for victory.

1. In the factory electricity attaches the seams of tank armor, and on the battlefield it controls the operation of these spearheads of modern combat.

2. In induction center and field hospital, the X ray helps safeguard the health of our fighting men, aiding in the diagnosis and treatment of disease.

3. Far from the usual power sources, mobile power plants supply electricity for 800,000,000 candlepower searchlights by which newspapers can be read 12 miles away.

4. Blitz war requires swift communications. On the soldiers' back, in field and sky, radio coordinates the striking force of American army planes, guns, and tanks.

General Electric believes that its first duty as a good citizen is to be a good soldier.

CONGRESS
 By Dr. GEORGE S. BENSON
 President, Harding College
 Searcy, Arkansas

(Editor's Note: Dr. George S. Benson is president of Harding College of Searcy, Arkansas. He is a student of the National Youth Administration, and is currently in Washington, D. C., where he is working on a bill for cutting unemployment graduates. Dr. Benson found himself catapulted into the headlines in 1941 when he appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee, and Senate Finance Committee, and offered a concrete plan for cutting unemployment graduates by two billion dollars. Self-reliant Harding College students recently hit the headlines when they asked the National Youth Administration to accept the return of funds allotted to them, requesting that the sum be invested in "tools for MacArthur's men.")

Are you critical of Congress? I was before going to Washington and having direct experience with various Congressional committees.

For years I read the good-natured cracks of Will Rogers about Congress. I also read numerous other articles which deliberately criticized Congress. Then I watched the aggressive executive branch of the Government make ever greater and more detailed demands of Congress, and finally found myself wondering whether Congress was still a capable, independent, representative body.

Having a measure of Scotch blood which has always given me considerable appreciation for the value of a dollar, I was also disturbed about the huge appropriations which from 1933 to 1940, averaged about $3 billion a year above National Income, and which were creating an unfavorable background for a long hard year, which was evidently before us.

Putting all of this together made me wonder if there was not some truth in statements made by "crack-barrel philosophers" to the effect that Congressmen were only a group of professional politicians, whose chief concern was keeping their jobs.

In May 1941, I decided to go to Washington and personally request the Ways and Means Committee of the House to reduce extravagant non-defense expenditures of the Government about $2 billion. While I know that many private citizens had that right, I nevertheless started to Washington with grave misgivings. Why should that group of Congressmen be interested in me—an average citizen with only one vote. Moreover, I wanted to talk common sense, straight from the shoulder, and wondered if that would make any sense to the group of congressmen. I was almost frightened to observe every member of the Committee following me closely, and apparently analyzing my every sentence. Having finished my speech almost breathless, awaiting their reaction, and expecting criticism of my suggestions.

Then came the most astonishing moment in my life. Not a single question was asked or a single statement made that might be confusing or embarrassing me. On the contrary, I was thanked for coming and sympathetic, intelligent, comprehensive questions were asked, demonstrating both their genuine deep concern in the general welfare of the Nation and their familiarity with economic and National budgetary details. They were thoroughly aware of the need for greater National economy, and interested in proper steps to achieve it.

That one experience completely reorganized my opinion of Congress.

Three months later, I appeared before the Senate Finance Committee. Again I was treated with unexpected courtesy. My growing esteem for Congress was further enhanced.

Still more recently I appeared before a third group—a Senatorial subcommittee. This time one member of the subcommittee, for whom I apparently tried only to heckle, embarrass, confuse, or discredit me. His conduct was quite different from that of his colleagues, and I later found that he had the best record at all. He was a recent appointee, who evidently had not yet become familiar with the dignity and honor which customarily characterizes the distinguished body of which he had suddenly become a member. He was the type I had heard so much about, the rare exception—not the rule.

During this most critical period in our history, national unity is of extreme importance. For the purpose of winning the war and protecting our National interests, it is imperative that Congressmen receive the respect and enjoy the confidence of the public to which it is justly entitled, and of which it is proving itself worthy.

In later articles I want to explain why I believe that Congress is the most important of our three branches of Government, why I believe a Congressional Committee is the best jury in the world; and why I believe a respected Congress is positively essential to the future of democracy in America. These statements will be proven by first hand factual information.

ROY SMITH TO BE COMBAT ENGINEER
 Roy Smith, who recently entered military service, has arrived at the Engineer Replacement Training Center at Fort Leonard Wood in Missouri, for an intensive training program in preparation for combat engineer duty. He is in Training Group (Colored). Training will include basic subjects like close and extended order drill, manual of arms, rifle marksmanship and combat principles as well as the functions of military engineering—use of tools and equipment, building of fixed and floating bridges, demolitions and construction of roads and obstacles. Soldiers go from here to tactical units or to special training or officer candidate schools.

MESSAGE TO FARMERS
 Loans to finance production of additional food and fiber crops needed in the war effort are now available to farmers and ranchers of Tyler County at the Farm Security Administration office.

The FSA office for Tyler County is located in the court house annex at Woodville.

Farmers who can expand their dairy and beef herds and poultry flocks, raise more hogs, larger gardens and the food-producing crops may receive these loans at liberal terms if they are unable to get the financing from local credit institutions.

THREE FOURTHS OF TEXAS FARM WITHOUT ELECTRICITY
 Texas has 307,147 unelectrified farms, according to an estimate announced recently by Rural Electrification Administration.

The state's allotment for loans during the fiscal year which will end June 30, 1943, is $408,479, however, no new REA construction is possible without approval of the War production board.

BARBARIANS
 "Yes, we are barbarians!" little boasts. "We want to be barbarians. It is an honorable title. We shall rejuvenate the world. The world is near its end. It is our mission to cause unrest." And what are you doing while this sort of "rejuvenation" goes on?
