On a tree in the center are four gold stars in honor of the crew who have given their lives for their country. Dr. W. A. Birdwell gave the address. It was an impressive occasion, and the band of which Jim was a member, was one of the main attractions of the program which closed with a special song in the name of "God Bless America."

"It was a job we did for the Army," explained Lieutenant Holley. "I was in charge of the landing party. It was a very tough job, but we did it. We were the expendables, the ones who went in first and didn't come back. But we did our duty, and we were proud of it."

CHAPTER VI
 The boat separated, expecting to meet at dawn. It was the last I ever saw of the 31 boat. The first I saw of it was when it was in the water. It was a very small boat, but it was the only one left. The rest had been sunk or destroyed. It was a sad sight, and it was a reminder of the sacrifices that were made during the war.

"Attack!"

Until his push is out this is the fateful summer that we have been waiting for. Hitler knows he must win before another winter rolls around, or face inevitable annihilation. And you can be sure that he will hurt everything he has—every gun, plane, soldier and tank—into the summer struggle that is even now riding to launch on every front.

And when the command goes out to our fighting men to ATTACK—you can be sure they'll look for success. They don't hesitate. They strike fast and hard—as they did at Guadalcanal, in Tunisia and in the skies over Europe.
