Your Electric Refrigerator Needs Year Around Good Care to Make It Last

Don't neglect the care of your electric refrigerator just because it's wintertime. Remember, it's always summer in your kitchen. Follow these tips on the care of your refrigerator for longer life and more economical service:

- Defrost whenever frost reaches thickness of one-quarter inch. Frost acts as an insulator—increases operating expense.
- Wash inside of refrigerator including freezer—with weak baking soda solution each time you defrost.
- Wash grease from door gasket periodically with mild soap and warm water. Make sure gasket seals tightly.
- Protect outside finish with coating of thin wax to protect against scratches and acids.
- Remove dust from condenser coils occasionally with soft brush, brush at hose of vacuum cleaner. Keep entire unit compartment clean.
- Do not store hot foods. Let them cool first.
- Cover all liquids. Moisture drawn to freezing unit speeds formation of frost.
- Keep cold control at lowest setting necessary to secure safe temperature.
- Oil open unit motors per manufacturer's instructions. Sealed unit motors need no oiling.
