CARIBBEAN CONSPIRACY
By BRENDA CONRAD

I must ask you, who is the girl I looked at her for a long time before he spoke. She is a beauty, Anne said.

That's not true, Anne said. She is a girl who has been seduced. He looked at her for a long time before he spoke. She is a beauty, Anne said.

WOODVILLE, Tex., April 14.—A steady rain and a sun, not an identified wind, was what the weather gods decided for the day. The wind was from the south and the rain was steady. The temperature was in the 60's and the humidity was just what was needed for the day. The rain was steady and the sun was in the clouds. The wind was from the south and the rain was steady. Midnight Mission

Midnight or high noon. In winter's steel or summer's scorching sun, your electric service employees are on the job keeping war-wild electricity flowing.

With so many of their former co-workers in the service, they're being called upon to do more work with less help than ever before. So if occasionally it takes a little longer than in the past for a service call to be answered or storm damage to be repaired, remember that the manpower shortage is responsible.

Like the fighter in uniform, the men who man your electric system have an important war mission to perform—and they're doing their best to live up to their responsibility, regardless of weather conditions or personal hardships involved.

"When can I get a telephone?"

That's a frequent question from the 200,000 people who are waiting for us to give them telephone service. The best general answer we know is that it won't be long.

Even if the war stopped tomorrow, it would still be months before every telephone office in the country could be repaired. For a long time, the demand for communication equipment will be greater than our production capacity.

"I drive the car in our family"

"Ours is an old car, and I'm taking the best care of it I know how."

"Goodness knows, we won't get a new car for 2 or 3 years after V-Day. And with my Jim away, the car is my problem."

"My Gulf man has been a big help. Regularly he gives me the car's 'Gulfpride' and 'Gulflex'... He says that'll keep it running a long time yet."
