Were doing all we can to serve people waiting for telephones

The urgent job of getting telephones service to those waiting is going ahead. We are installing telephones for people who need only a telephone instrument (bell) to get service will have to wait a while longer.

In the first three months of this year we have installed 150,000 new telephones in the five states we serve. This is as many as we could have installed in six months of a normal year.

Although 170,000 new applications for service during this time kept the waiting list long, 122,000 in the Southwest as of April 30, 1945, we are getting service faster to those waiting longer. 50,000 more of the people waiting for service in 1945 have been served.

Two big jobs remain:

As quickly as we can get it, we are getting the precision, intricate machinery that makes your calls at the exchange. This takes time and skill. We must do years of work in the next few months.

We are also getting the cables and wires. We plan to have the land-line cables in place by the end of the year. We are getting the cables in place as fast as we can. We are getting the cables in place as fast as we can.

Meanwhile, we are trying every way we know to get the service to those waiting. We are looking forward to the day we can get the service to those waiting. We are looking forward to the day we can get the service to those waiting.
