Going to the state meet, the Panthers will be led by all-

Two Guilty Say County Court Juries Monday

Two jury cases were tried in Tyler County court Monday with guilty verdicts being returned in each case.

Garland B. Blaylock of Beaumont and Chester Ray Robinson of Jasper, were found guilty of charges of hunting at night and their fines set at $75 each.

The men, who had pleaded not guilty, announced through their attorney Glenn Favors of Jasper that they would appeal the verdict to the district court.

The pair, in company with their wives, were arrested last Dec. 26 by Game Warden Gene Samford of Woodville and Billy Platt of Jasper.

In the other case, a $50 fine and three days in jail was assessed by the jury on returning a guilty verdict in a drunk driving case.

E. O. Neely was fined on the drunk driving count. Jurors in that trial were Eugene Boykin, foreman; Jimmy Freeman, Barclay Dismukes, David Collier, Mrs. Neva Davis; and Cecil Fortinberry.

Members of the jury in the night hunting case were Barclay Dismukes, foreman; Eugene Boykin, David Collier, Mrs. Neva Davis, Cecil Fortinberry, and Mrs. O.E. Brown.

Sheriff Captures Pursue Snatcher, Gassiot Burglar

Quick work by the Tyler county sheriff's office Monday led to the recovery of $422 stolen from a local business house that same day.

Mrs. E. J. Whitton, who with her husband, operates the Whitton Furniture Co here, reported the loss of a billfold containing $551 shortly after noon Monday.

Sheriff Grady Ray said that Mrs. Whitton told officers a Negro juvenile had been hanging around the store early Monday on pretext of waiting for his mother. The youth, 14, disappeared and shortly after, Mrs. Whitton discovered her billfold was also missing, the sheriff said.

Furnished with a description of the suspect, the sheriff made inquiries and located a man who said the youth had paid him $25 to take him to Jacksonville.

Sheriff Ray, with the man-in-law, returned to Jacksonville, where the youth was located and arrested. He still had $422 of the money in his possession, the sheriff said.

After returning to Woodville, the youth led officers to the spot where he had thrown the billfold, the sheriff said.

Sheriff's officers also broke another case here last week with the return of a suspect in the burglary of Gassiot's Jr. Department Store from New Mexico.

Sheriff Ray said that Carl L. Lewing, of the Village Mills-Warren area, made an oral confession to having taken part in the theft of a cash register from the local business.

Lewing has been charged with burglary and is in county jail under $1000 bond.

Charges of burglary have been lodged against two others said to be implicated in the theft, Sheriff Ray said. Both of the men are supposed to call Houston home but one is thought to be in California while the second has sought the warmer climate of Florida for the present.

A certificate of appreciation has been presented to Clinton Currie, Tyler county agricultural agent, for his active support of the screwworm eradication program. The presentation was made by Bill Mahan, chairman of the county screwworm eradication committee.

Mr. Mahan commended Mr. Currie for devoting many long hours to the popular eradication project. He noted that the agent has been the key man in the county concerned with screwworm eradication activities, serving as an important link between program officials and local farmers and ranchers.

Along with keeping stockmen informed on all aspects of the program and cooperating with eradication workers in carrying out control activities within the county, the agent also served as advisor to the committee which coordinated local participation in the successful drive to raise more than $3 million from the livestock industry to get the campaign started nearly three years ago.

Other stops on the tour will include an afternoon rest stop at the Risinger home in the Harmony Community, lunch at Woodville's Community Inn, and a visit to the "gold" pine tree on the Harmony road. Local school property taxes would have to be increased immediately under Governor John Connally's teacher pay proposal, a spokesman for the Texas State Teachers Association said today.

L.P. Sturgeon, TSTA director of public relations, said local districts would pay 70 percent of the $20 million annual salary program offered by the governor in opposition to the TSTA $45 per month salary increase proposal would provide $42 million for teacher salaries in 1965-66 and would be financed on the traditional 80-20 basis, with the state paying 80 percent of the cost of the Minimum Foundation Program for teachers would not materialize until ten years from now.

The governor's measure, introduced as Senate Bill 124 by Sen. Jack Strong of Longview and House Bill 446 by Rep. W.S. Healy of Paducah, calls for local districts to pay $14 million of the bill's $20 million annual cost.

"This is accomplished," Sturgeon explained, "by including the cost of textbooks and teacher retirement matching in the Minimum Foundation Program. This would require local districts to pay 20 percent of the cost of both these items. Add that to the 20 percent local share of the governor's salary plan and it adds up to an average of $14 million a year paid by local districts for the next biennium. The state would pay the other $6 million annually, or 30 percent."

In Texas, the state has furnished free textbooks since the textbook program began in 1921. The state has paid the cost of matching teacher contributions to the retirement system since 1941.

"The governor's proposal," Sturgeon pointed out, "would shift part of this cost to local districts and establish new precedents which probably would lead to even heavier local tax burdens in the future."

Local schools already pay the full cost of constructing and equipping local school buildings. They must finance this debt completely from local property taxes, their only source of local revenue, Sturgeon added.

"In many states the financing of buildings is part of the state's responsibility in the minimum foundation program," he noted.

and the operator of a Las Vegas casino and Secretary Udall. The last name indicating that we had achieved a table of cabinet-rank level. In this bright crowd, eating things I could never describe nor identify, submerged by brittle, witty Washington society talk, (You boys really shouldn't have stolen all those butane tanks, know... Guv'n'r, those warm butane tanks, they was fertilizer tanks... haw, haw, haw.) In this supercharged atmosphere of celebrities I was unsure, unsafe, soon to be undone.

My companion's head was constantly spinning about as she picked the range of movie stars, high officials and the things that were meaningful there. She asked for the burgundy and then the bourbon, and it was then that I automatically reached into the ice bucket by hand. That's what fingers are for, aren't they? But a steely grip froze my elbow, conversation faltered for a shocked split second, I hung there emblematized, fingers dripping over the ice bucket.

After an eternity, someone passed me the ice tongs by candlelight. Face burning, and with elaborate care, like de-fusing a hydrogen weapon, I put the tonged ice cube deep into my companion's highball glass. And that is when I found out that the cube will drop down and wedge there, and lock the tongs into the glass, leaving one with elbow upraised, half standing, half sitting, like a nursing giraffe, unable to get the tongs ever out of the glass. The only choice is the wait for a haw in the springtime, or swing the entire assembly with savage force against the skull of a passing waiter and deplore the awkward help they get in the better places these days.

Later, the Las Vegas club owner fluffed out the lace at the bosom of his shirt and graciously confided that true sophistication was a natural person, unhibited, un-awed, by his surroundings. I slowly turned and fixed him with blue-green eyes, faded by a million miles of keen peering at distant horizons and danger. I let my sun-winked temple tick nervously. 'Podner, I may not be much on manners, but Ahm a pritty good test pilot.'

'And what do you fly, sir?' 'Them X birds, man, and the

Accent on Health

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health
J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

As Ponce de Leon sought the fountain of youth, so we today seek the quick, easy route to good health.

Unfortunately, neither of these exists. But there are ways to keep your mind and body physically fit.

Take a look at the seven paths to fitness.

One essential is proper medical care. This means preventive services—periodic medical examinations and an immunization schedule. Give your physician your confidence, follow his advice and obtain prompt care when you are ill.

Nutrition is an important part of fitness. Gorging yourself one day and going without food the next is not the way to become fit. Your daily food needs include meat or meat substitutes, milk and milk products, bread and cereals, (enriched or whole grain), fruits and vegetables, plus other foods to complete meals.

Proper dental care is important not only for good appearance and better health, but to permit proper chewing of food and to prevent distress and pain. Visit your dentist every six months or oftener as he advises. Brush your teeth properly, as soon after meals as possible—or if you can't brush, floss your mouth with water.

And go easy on the snacks, particularly those high in sugar, between meals. Regular visits to your dentist can help prevent dental distress, forestall needless pain and expense, and help to prevent the premature loss of teeth.

And believe it or not, exercise last thing my ole colonel said was, 'Now, Tex, don't you git down there, with all that hard-luker crows in Warshington and tell 'em all you know 'bout our X bird.' So I ain't a gonna tell you nothin'. Then they sat in silent respect as I sauced and blowed my coffee.

Exercise improves the action of the heart, blood circulation and breathing function. It steps up muscle tone and helps in weight control. And it gives you an overall feeling of zest and well-being.

A person also needs to have a satisfying work, healthy play and recreation, and adequate rest and relaxation.

Include these seven paths to fitness in your life. You won't have a fountain of youth, but you'll sure feel better.
