By CHUCK STAMPS

Tyler County, according to the 1970 census, ain't as big as we thought it was, if you'll pardon the vernacular phrase. But what county or town was?

Anyway, it's not how big you are but how big are the things you accomplish that really count. Tyler County and Woodville have been accomplishing some things through the years that cities much larger often envy.

The singing convention held here the past weekend turned out to be a pretty big affair and it did tax our ability to twke care of a large number of people. But everybody went away with compliments rolling off their tongues, so to speak, about the arrangements and hospitality shown the many visitors.

Now that the singers have gone it is time to begin thinking about another big undertaking which has grown into a major attraction during the past quarter of a century or more. That, of course, is the annual Tyler County Dogwood Festival which has brought all kinds of recognition from throughout the nation. It is such a big job that each year, after it once more has triumphantly focused the spotlight of attention on the amphitheatre under the towering pines, the hundreds who have worked so hard to make it another success vouch that it is the last one with which they will help.

But—if we don't have the dogwood festival what have we left to take its place as a monument to the talent, beauty, and resourcefulness found among the people of Tyler County? So, we roll up our sleeves and do it again. Thank goodness.

Another thing that we have here which is known throughout the country and which brings in several thousand visitors each year is one more tribute to the resourcefulness found among the people of this area.

That is Heritage Village which Clyde Gray began assembling in a small way and which continues to grow in size and fame each year. With little more to work with than his own two hands, Clyde has clawed a spot out of the hard East Texas dirt on which he has assembled a model of East Texas heritage—a village with the old log cabin, the country store, blacksmith shop, barber shop, and frontier post office, to name a few, which Texans knew in the past century. It is a working frontier village with no glass show-cases for the artifacts saved from the oblivion of time. They are there—right where they would be in 1830 or earlier—just as they were used by the people of that era. The blacksmith shop still is used, the country store is stocked (albeit the merchandise is not sold), and you could still shave in the old barber shop if you were a mind to.

The Tolar sisters of Hillister gave the log cabin, the Collier store was donated, the post office and barber shop, but Clyde had to manage to get them moved to the plot of land he had chosen for the museum.

Since that unsure start several years ago many artifacts used by the Texans of yesterday have been loaned and given to the village. Clyde still weaves, works, labors (there is a difference), to add continually to the only museum of its kind in the United States.

It is bringing visitors, it is bringing recognition across the nation, but it is hot bringing riches. We suspect Clyde always will be a poor boy because of his dedication to the cause of Texas heritage. He doesn't put every dollar that comes in back into the museum he had spent it at least a couple of years before he got it. Maybe you ought to do out there and see what he is doing.

Police Officer E. E. Pressley, ringmaster of the "Safety Circus" which is made up of 10 highly trained dogs, proudly holds Brownie, the tiniest of his performing dogs. Pressley has trained the dogs to perform in illustrating safety rules. He is appearing at schools in Texas this month and will be at Woodville Elementary School on Tuesday.

The circus is sponsored in Texas by the Department of Public Safety and nationally by the American Trucking Association, Inc. Pressley is on leave from the Charlotte, North Carolina, police department. The program has proven so successful that he has been on leave and traveling to put on the safety show for the past 14 years.

Voter Registration To End Jan. 30

Tyler Countians are reminded this week by Tom Sawyer, tax assessor-collector, that the deadline for voter registration this year is January 31 as usual. While a federal court has ruled that the registration period will have to be changed to end nearer the election dates, the legislature will have to act on the order at its current session.

Some groups have urged Martin Dicks, Jr., secretary of state, to extend the period past January 31 but there is some doubt that he could legally do so.

Anyway, to be safe eligible voters are urged to register before the end of this month in order to sure they can vote in this year's elections. These will include school district and city elections and any special election which might be called during the year.

Since the commissioners court has redistricted the four road and bridge precincts in the county and thus the voting box districts, Mr. Sawyer said that voters will be required to come to his office to register so that the voting precinct in which they live may be determined and put on the registration slip.

In Woodville, for instance, there will be three voting precincts, since three of the commissioners (road and bridge) precincts take in a part of the town.

Deep East Texas Development Assn. To Meet Here Friday

The first 1971 monthly meeting of the Deep East Texas Development Association will be held at the Plaza Hills Country Club west of Woodville beginning at 10 a.m. Friday.

Carl Fairchild of Chester, newly elected president of the association, will preside.

Principal speaker at the meeting will be Pierce Johnson, chairman of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. He will be introduced by Ollie Crawford, Jasper, vice president of EastTex, Inc.

Mothers To March

Stand up and be counted in the fight against birth defects, urges Mrs. B. J. Vardeman, March of Dimes chairman for the 1971 Mothers' March in Tyler County. The traditional door-bell ringing will take place on January 23 and 24 in the outlying areas of Tyler County and January 25 in Woodville. Men, as well as women, are included in the summons.

Mrs. Vardeman reports that Mrs. Don Cryer, Mrs. Chester Riekel, Mrs. Jesse Tolar, Mrs. B. H. Smith, Mrs. Billy Nowlin and Mrs. Jack Daniels have volunteered their services as chairmen for their areas but that additional volunteers are needed to handle the many tasks that go into this annual appeal. "If you are unable to make the door-to-door collections for us, there are countless other ways in which you can help this drive," she notes. "These include preparing the kits, telephoning volunteers to coordinate activities, planning March routes and tallying contributions."

Mothers' March collections, aid birth defects patients throughout Texas, along with national programs of research, education and community service conducted by the voluntary health organization. Prevention of birth defects, which now strike some quarter of a million American infants annually, is the challenging goal of the March of Dimes. Joining the Mothers' March is an ideal chance for those who care about the quality of life to step forward. Call 283-2557 for further information.

SCHOOL BOARD HEARS TAX REPORT, HIRES BUS DRIVER AT MEETING

The board of trustees of the Woodville Independent School District held their regular monthly meeting Monday night with W. S. Jarrott, president, presiding. Other members present were Harold Allison Jr., Dr. L. G. Burton, Dr. R. E. Swearingen, and Jim Galney. B. H. McGuire, superintendent, told the board that currently tax collections are 40 percent for this year including $24,875 paid in December. The large landowners usually pay in the last of January which will bring the collections up past 80 percent, he said.

The trustees approved the financial statement for December and approved the hiring of a bus driver to replace one who resigned. Hired was Robert Allen Fortenberry who formerly was associated with a local realty firm.

In other action the board decided to allow the use of the school gym only on the night of the Dogwood pageant and coronation on the first Saturday in April. Heretofore it had been used both on western and pagan weekends, the last Saturday in March and the first Saturday in April.

The trustees asked Mr. McGuire to secure estimates covering the water at the elementary school and additional bleachers at the football field. No action will be taken until an estimate of the costs have been secured and only if one or both projects are financially feasible, members stressed.

Large Crowds Attend Singing

Officers and arrangement committee members of the Tex-La Neches Valley Singing Convention halted the three-day session as one of the most successful ever held as the final gospel tunes faded into the warm air of a summery January day from Kirby High School auditorium Sunday afternoon.

They had seen the opening session Friday night, the concert of quartets and special groups, develop into a hand-clapping rapport between singers and listeners which continued through the Saturday afternoon session, the Saturday night and all-day Sunday general sessions.

The Saturday night session reached an almost evangelical fervor in the jam-packed auditorium as gospel songs swelled from the throats of hundreds in quartets, trios, and groups.

Outside on the street, several members of the Woodville Volunteer Fire Department assisted city police in directing orderly parking and trying to locate additional parking space as the cars came, and came, and came. It was the same thing for the all-day session Sunday except that the crowd was not as large as that of Saturday night.

There was a total of 25 special groups that appeared on the programs during the three days including the concert on Friday night, the youth session Saturday afternoon and the two general sessions Saturday night and all-day Sunday.

Twenty-two groups appeared on the Saturday night program, and 21 on the Sunday program, according to Jesse Harper, president of the convention. Some of the better known quartets and groups were the Bibletones of Mississippi, The Conn Family of Dallas (young and old groups), the Glad-Things Trio of Jasper, the Shaw Family of Baton Rouge, the Sons of Calvary of Dallas, Woody Woodrime and the Tinsley Sisters, a Kiowa Indian and his wife, Ray and Ella Darity of Oklahoma, and others too numerous to mention here.

The Bibletones sang at the Sunday morning service of the First Christian Church.

The singing convention drew persons from seven states outside Texas, including Alabama, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Florida. Mr. Harper said other states might have been represented but these seven, besides Texas, were all he knew about.

A surprise at the Sunday session was the appearance of the Dixie Echoes, a group of professional gospel singers, who are on a concert tour in the area. They had a concert Saturday night and got up at 3:00 a.m. Sunday to drive to Woodville for the final session of the Tex-La Neches Valley Singing Convention.

At the business meeting Saturday night, all officers of the convention were re-elected. Besides the president, Mr. Harper, others are the Louisiana vice presidents, Videl Polk of Baton Rouge and Gary Davis of Monroe; the Texas vice presidents, G. E. Perkins of Jasper and Charles Dickens of Livingston; Miss Irma Duncan, the Louisiana secretary; Miss Carl Stewart, the Texas secretary; and Mrs. Jackie Harper, treasurer.

Mr. Harper said that the convention officers and the local arrangements committee headed by Bob Belt want to express their deep appreciation for the cooperation of everyone in making the convention such an outstanding success. He said he wanted to thank the area newspapers and radio stations for the publicity given the convention and to all members of the arrangements committee for their work and assistance.

He said he wanted to especially thank the Woodville Band Boosters Club for doing a fine job with their concession stand. Their help in providing refreshments and food for those attending the convention is much appreciated.

Mr. Harper said that he and Mr. Belt already have started thinking about the 1972 convention and ways in which it can be improved. The Tex-La Neches Valley Singing Convention has only one session a year and that is in Woodville.

ON ARBOR DAY . . .

Tree Planted In Memory Of James W. Shields

Part of crowd is shown attending tree planting ceremony on Arbor Day.

On Arbor Day, January 15, a live oak tree was planted on the Woodville Elementary School campus in memory of James W. Shields with the Woodville Club sponsoring the memorial program and the planting of the tree.

James W. Shields was a teacher in the Woodville Independent School District for 18 years, and was the principal of the Woodville Elementary School at the time of his death. He was dedicated to the teaching profession and to the upgrading of the educational system.

Mrs. Alice C. Fredricks, president of the Woodville Garden Club, presided. Mrs. Fred Rasberry gave the invocation. L. C. Lowery, principal of the Woodville Elementary School, gave the welcoming address. Mrs. Irvin Grillo recited the poem "Trees" by Joyce Kilmer.

Jerry Grimes, educational officer for the Texas Forest Service, gave the history of Arbor Day from its origin in Switzerland during the fifteenth century to the present time, pointing out what it has meant to the East Texas area. Mrs. Ruth Houston, accompanied by Miss Mary Alice Fredricks on the piano, sang "America".

In conclusion Mrs. Alice Fredricks quoted an old Arabian proverb, which says, "He who plants a tree loves others more than himself," and with this thought in mind, the Woodville Garden Club, dedicate this tree to the memory of Mr. James W. Shields.

The Rev. Ray Williams, pastor of the First Methodist Church, gave the benediction. The Champion Paper Company gave a donation towards the tree.
