"The God who gave us life, gave us Liberty at the same time" Thomas Jefferson. This young businessman fought for freedom. PAUL REVERE is one of the best known American Colonial Patriots. His famous midnight ride inspired Longfellow to write "Paul Revere's Ride", which every schoolboy learned at an early age. But Paul Revere was also known as a good businessman. Son of a silversmith, he learned the trade so well that many of his works are regarded as masterpieces. He played an important part in the famous Boston Tea Party, fought against tyranny in any form, and knew the importance of freedom and free enterprise. He cast bullets and cannons during the war, and later, church bells. In 1808 he invented a process for rolling copper. Paul Revere was truly one of America's first champions of freedom and free enterprise...the two things we still cherish today, some 200 years later. Honor America.
