If one curses his father or his mother, his lamp will be put out in utter darkness. Proverbs 20:20.

H.J. Rawls and A.E. Stafford brought in a 38 lb. bull-fish last week. We took several pictures of the big fish and when the film came out of the developing tank it was blank. The 3 ft. long fish was caught at Dam B Lake on a trotline. The fisherman used home made bait.

Elmer Stafford of Hillister came by to tell us about a Cushman he grew. He said it weighed 21 pounds and measured 20 inches long. Ordinarily, a Cushman weighs about 8 pounds, Mr. Stafford said.

The amendment we are publishing this week concerns District Court. Whatever your views are on this or any other amendment you will have an opportunity to express them at the polls on November 6.

AMENDMENT NO. 6-S.J.R. NO. 26

(Amending Article V, Section 8, of the Texas Constitution, to grant the district court the general jurisdiction of a probate court in addition to the jurisdiction otherwise conferred on it by law in probate proceedings, and to authorize the legislature to adjust the jurisdiction of the courts in probate matters, to adopt rules for such courts relating to probate matters, and to provide for appeals in probate matters.)

The proposed amendment adds a paragraph to Article V, Section 8, which provides that the district court, concurrently with the county court, shall have the general jurisdiction of a probate court and, in a probate proceeding, shall also have the jurisdiction otherwise conferred on it by law. It also provides that the legislature may increase, diminish, or eliminate the jurisdiction of the district court or county court in probate matters, may adopt rules governing the filing, distribution, or transfer of cases and proceedings as between the courts having jurisdiction of probate matters and may provide that all appeals in probate matters shall be to the courts of civil appeals.

The Constitution of 1869 gave to the district court original and appellate jurisdiction over the county courts exercising probate jurisdiction, and original jurisdiction and general control over executors, administrators, guardians, and minors, and gave the county court jurisdiction over probate business generally. By the Constitution of 1876, the jurisdiction of the district court was confined to appellate jurisdiction and general control over the county court in probate matters and original jurisdiction and general control over executors, administrators, guardians, and minors, and it was that constitution which gave the county court its present-day jurisdiction as the court of general probate jurisdiction. The constitutional amendment of 1891, which presently governs the jurisdiction of the courts, did not alter the jurisdiction in probate matters.

Therefore, with Article V, Section 16, granting the general jurisdiction of a probate court to the county court, and Article V, Section 8, granting to the district court only appellate jurisdiction and general control over the county court in all probate matters, and original control and jurisdiction over executors, administrators, guardians, and wards, the district court has no original jurisdiction over the probate of a will, and its jurisdiction over probate matters is appellate only. SCHOOL FACILITIES REPORT

A district has two basic approaches that it can use in meeting school facilities needs. It can sit back and wait to see what is going to happen and then deal with each crisis as it occurs or it can begin making plans to meet needs before they become emergencies. Three years is not too long to plan for the financing, construction, and building. J.A. Anderson, assistant director, Division of Administrative Services, Texas Education Agency, told the Woodville School Trustees

Education must lead-not follow; it must create-not just conserve. A school plant survey is an analysis of needs based on a sound education philosophy. The purpose is to collect and analyze data in order to propose suggestions to assist a school district in planning for immediate and future needs. Surveying is a continuous process to help anticipate school plant needs and to inform the public of these needs. The school plant must support the instructional program if it is to justify the amount of money invested by the community. This survey of school facilities was made at the request of the Woodville Independent School through its Superintendent, Mr. B.H. McGuire. All statements made which pertain to making changes in sites, school buildings, the instructional program, equipment, finances, school organizations, etc. shall be construed as suggestive only and are not to be

The Senate is expected to go along with the version shaped by the House. It has passed Big Thicket bills twice in the past only to have them die in a House Committee.

The Nixon administration considers legislation to create Texas' Big Thicket Park a key part of its legislative package.

Separate authority to provide the estimated $60 million in appropriations for the parks, won't be necessary, Echhardt said, because the Interior Department has a separate purchase and fund just for congressionally-approved parks.

When estimated that if Congress approves the Big Thicket bill and President Nixon signs it, the first steps of a three year plan to create the park could begin as early as January.

The bill's ranking Republican on the House Interior Committee, Rep. John P. Saylor, R-Pa., has assured his Nixon won't veto the bill even though it might contain 16,000 acres more than the recommended amount from the budget bureau.

On January 21, 1972, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission authorized amending the U.S. Corps of Engineers license at Dam B to delete 4,042 acres at the confluence of the Angelina and Neches Rivers, and for the negotiation of an additional license for that area.

under the present practice in cases such as will contests with the litigants having a trial in the court room to force them to have a trial in the court room. Also, the problem with the judicial system is that the trial is held in the court room and the judge is present to hear the evidence and render a decision. This is a costly and time-consuming process. The proposed Code seeks to change this by allowing the trial to be held in a judge's chambers or a court room, at the discretion of the judge. This would save time and money for the litigants and the court system.

HOMEMAKING HINTS

By Mrs. M. W. Moore

Autumn, perhaps the loveliest of seasons, will find you in the kitchen. Many county courts are not presided over by lawyers. District judges are lawyers and their services are needed for many probate matters and proceedings. Under the proposed Code, the trial is held in a judge's chambers or a court room, at the discretion of the judge. This would save time and money for the litigants and the court system.
