CHILDREN, OLD PEOPLE PENALIZED BY LAWS

WOLF CAUGHT NEAR WOODVILLE—Brook Sanders caught this big wolf in a steel trap on the Hickory Hill Farm east of Woodville. Melvin Tarver of the Star staff went out to farm to photograph Mr. Sanders and the wolf this week. The farm now owned by David Provost who hails from the Port Arthur area. Mr. Sanders said that he had had quite a bit of trouble with wolves in the area eating his live stock.

Malpractice crisis has boosted costs of health care

AUSTIN—The state's medical malpractice study commission has approved a report that shows the malpractice insurance crisis has boosted health care costs. At the same time, the problem has shrunk availability of care. The report also says the crisis could stifle medical advances.

Many doctors are forced to practice "defensive medicine" because of the threat of malpractice suits, says Milton Davis, M.D., a study commission member. Doctors have to use medically unnecessary tests, x-rays and consultants to be protected legally in the event of a suit. Unfortunately this makes patients' bills go up.

If a doctor gets sued, whether deserved or not, his insurance goes up, in some cases up to $30,000 a year. Some doctors' premiums have risen around 625 percent in about five years.

Doctors also are having to discontinue services to avoid the threat of suits and to obtain insurance.

GOOD WORD

Although affliction cometh not forth of the dust, neither doth trouble spring out of the ground;

Yet man is born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upward.

Job 5: 6-7

Due to bankruptcy of our big cities and inflation, it is now apparent that Congress must immediately reform two major pieces of New Deal legislation grown twisted out of shape: Aid to Families with Dependent Children and Social Security. These have enlarged over the years into monstrosities. Both now are actively harming and penalizing the very sectors of the population whom the laws were originally intended to help—little children and retirees age 65 and more.

The census bureau reports that 14 per cent of our nation's children under 18 are being raised by mothers alone. Yet all reputable psychologists are agreed that children sorely need the tender loving care and guidance of both father and mother. Worst affected are black families. The census bureau says that in 1960, 70 per cent of black children lived with father and mother; today that figure has shrunk to a pitiful 50 per cent. The growth in white and black families headed by women since 1970 has been as great as during the entire period 1960-1970.

For tiny tots, this is a tragedy. There must be changes in AFDC legislation that will drastically alter a situation in which welfare makes it financially advantageous for fathers to desert their families and also for women living alone to have more children in order to receive more money. The sociologists and dogooders who dreamed up various provisions of the present AFDC system ought to have acting consciences. Their good intentions have paved a hell for tiny tots.

Originally, AFDC was conceived in New Deal days to enable a poor widow (real, not grass) to keep her children with her instead of their being sent to foster homes or institutions. As time went on, the AFDC program became so distorted that it now subsidizes more than a million able-bodied children between the ages of 18 and 22 if they are "students." The term "widow" no longer has any social meaning and has been replaced by "a female with offspring." Partly this is owing to fanatical Women's Lib cultists.

In the New York Daily News today is a humdinger of a sarcastic letter by Doc Gaffney who writes, "Why do the most masculine women call themselves 'feminists'?" But let's give credit where credit is due. They have the perfect solution to the population problem. When they become husbands and men become the wives, the dilemma will be solved. After all, men are simply unbearable."

Concerning Social Security it is now clear that those individuals whom it was designed to help after age 65 are become captives under the law until they reach age 72. Social Security benefits have been extended to cover millions of people for whom its benefits were originally intended—again, "dependent children" under 22 who are full-time students! Retirees between the ages of 65 and 72 are penalized 50 cents for each $1 they earned over $200 per month, but retirees age 72 can earn any amount without loss of Social Security benefits.

Reeding and righting

In our nation's public school classrooms, teacher-student ratios are improved; there's less overcrowding. Teachers are better educated and better paid than ever before. New buildings place modern facilities within reach of every American child. Expenditures per student have doubled.

Our nation now has better schools, better educators and poorer education.

What's the matter? You've seen the college board scores. Dismal. You've seen the results of an assortment of achievement tests confirming that a greater than ever percentage of today's high school graduates cannot read, write or perform fundamental mathematics.

The defense of some educators is to attack the testing system, insisting that most talents and qualities are not measurable by "testing."

AT ANTIQUE AUCTION—This old time pedal organ will be part of the close-out Saturday of the Heritage House in West Woodville. A preview will be held Friday of the many antique items up for sale. Metal objects are also included, rare that is.

Students 18-22 Getting Social Security Should Report Changes

Students 18-22 getting social security checks should report changes in their earnings, school enrollment, and marital status to social security officials.

Over 774,000 students 18 and over get monthly social security payments because a parent gets disability or retirement benefits or has died. Students can continue to get payments to age 22—or slightly beyond for undergraduates—as long as they remain full-time students.

Students getting social security checks should report changes in their earnings, school enrollment, and marital status to social security officials. If you have questions about social security payments to students 18 and over, you can get answers by calling, writing, or visiting any social security office.

The Social Security Administration is an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Social Engineering Dominates Public School Rooms

Americans are, by now, well aware of the fact that, although more money is being spent on public education than ever before, less is being learned. Scholastic aptitude tests in reading and mathematics are at all-time lows. Students are taking remedial reading courses in colleges and universities and the study of American history and of foreign language has been all but eliminated in many high schools. Whether they can read or not, students are moved from the first grade through grade 12. Clearly, something is wrong.

In a recently published study, Federal Aid for Social Engineering in the Public Schools (ACU Education and Research Institute, 422 First Street, S.E., Washington, D.C. 20003), Solwig Egger, a contributing editor of HUMAN EVENTS and currently a Ph.D. candidate at Catholic University, where she has been teaching, puts into perspective the philosophy which has motivated those who have presided over the decline in our educational standards.

The fact is, Miss Egger writes, that "Today's education theorists are often less concerned with what and how children learn than they are with what kind of Utopian world the schools can produce." It was with the advent of federal aid that those who view the school as an instrument for social change could acquire a firm enough grip on local school districts and the content of education to realize some of these goals.

For the groom, marriage is an investment in poverty.

Miss Egger notes in her study that 18 million Americans over age 18 are functional illiterates.

recent years, young Americans have not had enough time to learn reading, writing and arithmetic. Parents and other concerned citizens should make no mistake about the reasons for this state of affairs. Students are not learning the basic precepts of the educational establishment because reading, writing and arithmetic are not important. Obviously, if little is being taught—little will be learned.

Catherine Barrett, past president of the NEA, states that the traditional skills such as reading and arithmetic should take no more than "one-quarter of the school day." She declares that "The remaining time will be devoted to what is truly fundamental and basic."

Miss Egger notes that "At a time when the education establishment has downgraded the teaching of the basic skills, it is interesting to note that 18.5 million Americans over age 16 are functional illiterates, most of whom have attended public schools for many years."

The manner in which federal money has been used to finance curricula which downgrade education and promote "change," is described in some detail in this study. Using the "inquiry" or "discovery" method, Miss Egger points out, students using federally financed courses of study are "told that there are no absolutes, no truths, no certainty with regard to right and wrong, and that factual knowledge is unimportant."

"Teachers are no longer considered individuals who transmit knowledge and

House asked to swear to impartiality

All members of the House would have to take a special oath if a bill of impeachment comes before the House, Rep. William Walsh, R-N.Y., has his way.

In his opinion, that's necessary because some of the legislators already have disqualified themselves from voting on it. Says Walsh, "If grand jurors make up their minds in advance, they are disinterested."

At the very least, all representatives (who may have occasion to sit as a grand jury) should be required to take an oath of impartiality. Such an oath is required in the Senate before an impeachment trial, but House rules are silent on the matter.

The oath proposed by Walsh is as follows: "I solemnly swear that in all things pertaining to the resolution of impeachment, I will do impartial justice according to the Constitution and laws, so help me God."

MOTHER SHOULD PIPE DOWN

Dear Helen:
Ever since I can remember I've heard how popular Mom was when she was in school. She was the prom queen, and a cheer leader, and had her pick of the boys. My picture isn't even in my high school annual, but she was plastered all over hers. I have nice friends, get good grades, but—

I'm almost 15 and have never had a boyfriend. So I hear how it was when SHE was 15. Her annual stays on the table. Mine gets put out of sight.

I used to be able to talk with Dad, but my folks split up two years ago. Mom says the marriage was a big mistake, and she chose the wrong one. She blames us kids for her not finding another husband, but I think her weight has something to do with it.

Sometimes I'd like to scream that I'd rather be me than her; then I feel guilty. I don't want to hurt her feelings, but how can I stop being—COMPARED?

Dear Compared:
It's rough, knowing that you're more mature than your mother—and trying to keep her unaware that you know. Maybe her case of arrested development might be partially cured if you'd substitute truth for pity. A good start: hide the annuals—and get her to join a reducing club. —Helen.

Dear Helen:
Last night I went to the movies with a new boy. He seemed nice, but he turned out to be hard to manage. I let him kiss me once, which was a mistake, because when I was enjoying the picture, he gave me a couple of hickies on my neck.

This morning my mother saw the red marks on my neck and now she thinks I am an immoral, free-loving hippie.

Please tell her a bite on the neck doesn't mean All Is Lost. —P.W.

Dear P.W.:
It's as hard to convince a mother hickies are innocent fun as it is to convince ME you were so interested in the movie you got two "unawares."

Let's concede "All Is Not Lost," but next time don't encourage Draculas. They've got more in mind than a nip on the neck! —Helen.

Dear Helen:
Our crowd are absolute friends—I mean we really go to bed for each other. And we did! I can't believe it even yet.

I started over a simple little incident, mostly messing around, but one person just didn't see it that way. He went stark raving mad. It was like he exploded. We tried to calm him down, but finally it took three kids (also in the friendship ring), and one of them had to sock him, hard.

Then the guy's older brother (also a friend) got mad at the "big kid" who had hit his little brother, and all hell broke loose and I am not kidding! Everybody mixed it up.

I hope this will blow over, but maybe we're broken up for good. Today I got to thinking this is the type of "incident" that starts wars and rioting. Both sides think they're right, but no one listens to the other.

Teens criticize adults for their wars, but they don't realize they do it themselves on a smaller scale. Can't any of us see how futile violence is? —TEEN WHO SAW THE LIGHT.

Dear Teen:
We see—but only afterwards, when it may be too late. —Helen.

STUMPING FOR VOTES—Allan Steelman came to Woodville last week looking for votes. He appeared at the Woodville Inn to meet with well wishers. He is trying to unseat Senator Lloyd Bentzen.

Too much nitrogen hides lawn disease

COLLEGE STATION—Homeowners who use too much nitrogen fertilizer on their lawns may be covering up some serious lawn problems.

That's the contention of Dr. Richard Dube, turfgrass specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Grass invaded by weeds, weakened by insect or disease attacks, or showing the effects of thatch accumulation may be boosted temporarily by nitrogen fertilizer. However, unless the primary problem is diagnosed and solved, the addition of nitrogen will only add to the problem," says Dube.

Excess nitrogen stimulates growth which adds to thatch accumulation. Also, excessive use of nitrogen produces succulent growth that is more susceptible to chinch bugs and other insects, as well as diseases such as brown patch and leaf spot.

Water requirements also increase when too much nitrogen is applied.

"Apply nitrogen fertilizer conservatively and only when the grass shows symptoms of nitrogen deficiency—pale color, slow growth and abundant seedheads," advises the Texas

Management Stopped In National Forest

The U.S. Forest Service was ordered yesterday to stop all management activity, including the sale of timber, on the Raven District of the Sam Houston National Forest by federal Judge William Wayne Justice of the U.S. District Court in Tyler, Texas.

Judge Justice issued the temporary restraining order late last evening in conjunction with a suit filed by the Texas Committee on Natural Resources against Agriculture Secretary Earl Butte, U.S. Forest Service Chief John McGilbra, and Supervisor of the National Forests in Texas, John H. Courtens.

The restraining order, placed in effect this morning, stops all Forest Service activities "impairing or destroying more than 100,000 acres of federally owned forest lands spanning Walker, Montgomery and San Jacinto Counties in Southeast Texas.

Specifically, the order enjoins the U.S. Forest Service from: (1) Proceeding any further with erecting and implementing a sale of timber in Compartments 73 and 73 of the Raven District, Sam Houston National Forest; and (2) Permitting any further action toward felling of timber or otherwise impairing in any way the natural growth of vegetation in said Raven District, and (3) Doing any act that would interfere with the present status quo of the real property and vegetation, including timber, in said Raven District."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q: I received medical services in December 1974 but forgot to send in a Medicare claim. Is it too late to do so?
A: You have until December 31, 1976, to send in a Medicare medical insurance claim for services received between October 1, 1974, and September 30, 1975.

Q: I'm an unmarried woman who is 21 and paying social security contributions. I'm over 40 years away from retirement. Of what value is social security to me?
A: For one thing, you could get monthly social security checks if you became severely disabled and unable to work for a year or more. Should you marry and have a family your children could get monthly social security benefits if you should become disabled or die. Your husband could also get benefits if the young children are in his care when you die. A parent dependent on your support could also get survivors checks on your work record.

Q: I'm 28 and have been getting student benefits for 2 years. Should I tell social security about the $2,500 I earned during the summer of about changing schools?
A: Since you can earn as much as $2,160 in 1976 without affecting your benefits, you don't need to report your summer earnings unless your total 1976 earnings will be over $2,760. You should tell social security, however, if you are now in a new school.

Q: When my wife died several months ago the funeral director notified social security. I understand I'm supposed to get a lump-sum death payment of $255, since she had always worked under social security, but I haven't received it. Why not?
A: Before any social security benefits are payable, an application must be filed. If you did apply, ask at the social security office why the check has been delayed.

New shortage: Pride

What do you suppose other nations think of the habit of self-condemnation and criticism of our own U.S. political, economic and social institutions which has become such a universal failing in the United States over the past decade or two? If we do not value our own institutions, how can we expect others to?

Isn't it time we began putting something back together? American institutions are not that bad. In fact, they are pretty good if compared with those of other nations. Pride in things American on the part of the people of the U.S. is becoming one of the scarcest and most badly-needed commodities in the land today. It would be a ghastly thing if the people of other nations started believing the U.S. is really as bad as its own people claim.

ECONOMIC INDEX SLIPS

The Associated Press announced last week that the government economic index dropped during August for the first time since last February. The report stated that the Commerce Department showed a 1.5 percent fall in August, due primarily to higher layoffs in manufacturing and reduced business spending. The drop is the largest decline since January when there was a downward slump of 3.4 percent. A decline usually signals a slower growth in the economy according to the analysis.

COVER GIRL WINNER NEXT WEEK

The Star's Cover Girl Contest has come to an end and the winner will be announced next week. Six contestants entered the competition and five of them have appeared in print during the past few weeks. A final contestant's photo appears elsewhere in today's Star. Those entering the contest were Dorothy Lou Bennett of Colmesneil; Leasa Cain of Woodville; Lara Lou Henderson of Woodville; Terri Lynn Craven of Woodville; Pam Die Gravis of West Woodville and Devenna Smith of Woodville.

MONDALE GETS ZERO RATING

Senator Walter Mondale, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, is one of 16 senators getting a zero rating from the ACA or Americans for Constitutional Action. The conservative group said Mondale voted against the conservative position on each of 28 key issues this year according to a United Press dispatch this week. His GOP counterpart, Senator Bob Dole, voted in favor of the ACA position 87 percent of the time.

CARTER, FORD NECK 'N' NECK

Time Magazine has conducted its own poll on the presidential poll and contrary to other polls showing Carter ahead---it says they nip and tuck. It shows them at 43 percent apiece. The poll showed 14 percent undecided. An August poll showed Carter ahead by six points while an earlier tally gave him an eighteen point margin. The poll went further in interviewing voters and found that 44 percent felt that Ford would win the election and 40 percent saw a Carter victory.

What in tarnation is wrong with folks? They dream of the good life but they stand by and let other people keep it from being just that.

Reckon its that they is easy goin' and good an' tuh keep th' peace they just take a lot of gaff. But then it don't seem that either. I've known of a few times in this ole life when folks would git riled up over somethin' and raise Cain then when the time come tuh do somethin' they'd jist sit an' pout.

In general, folks jist don't know their own power. They could band together and change the whole show. An' they could clean up the mess in Washington by putting in a good bunch o' senators 'n' congressmen and demand that they git right with the people. Shucks, I reckon we could move heaven and earth if we 'd jist stick together.

That bunch up there in Washington is the ones that got everything in sich a mess anyway. They spent money like water—money we didn't have and ain't got and won't ever have. Then they cause all this inflation and poor folks can't even buy their kids a little candy cause it's a lux'ry now. Then they votes themselves a big pay raise so's they're immune to inflation.

'Tain't fair, I tell you. Put 'em out and git someone in there that'll be for us and our country. Reminds me uv a bit I saw in the paper t'other day—"I only wish my great, great grandchildren could be here tuh see the incredible things the government is doing with their money." I think maybe you could put three greats in front of grandchildren and still have spending to spare.

'Course things ain't right back home, neither. Folks has devised every means possible to join in the rip off. You can't blame folks fer not votin'. They're plum disgusted with it. But, by and large, it's the only way to change things. 'Course you've got tuh have a good man tuh vote fer. If'n you got two loggerheads runnin' the only thing yuh kin do is vote fer the lesser uv the two evils—and that's what we bin havin' lately.

Cousin Jody once sed a feller ain't apt tuh rite up til yuh make 'im mad. Seems like the givernment has done enough to rite the whole contry side. Then why in tarnation ain't they mad enough tuh do somethin' 'bout it.

—Zeke Abernathy

Rains Affect Shrimp

Recent localized heavy rains affecting brown shrimp growth and movement in nursery areas are being closely monitored during a 60-day closed Gulf harvest season set by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Heavy rain and resulting runoff into Galveston, Trinity, San Antonio, Copano and Nueces Bays have lowered previously favorable salinities in nursery grounds, according to Terry Leary, P&WD shellfish program director.

THE RIGHT TO COMPETE

We believe that every man has the right to compete in the business world as he sees fit. We believe that the American concept of freedom and the foundation on which it was established is the guarantee of pursuit in free enterprise.

We established a newspaper in the town of Woodville with a free spirit—thinking we could contribute to the good of the community. We sought no grinding ax; no great reward; no monetary richness—we sought only to ply our trade.

Now after a few short weeks we realize that unseen forces are moving against us. We have every reason to believe that there is a conspiracy to hush the voice of The Star. We have seen evidence of repeated violation of our right to compete. We have felt the continuous attempts to cause advertisers to stay away from our pages. We feel that there has been intimidation, coercion and pressure brought to bare upon our advertisers and would-be advertisers.

We are sorry that events have taken this course. We want only to publish a newspaper in the spirit it was intended at the onset of our beginning. We want only to make a living from the pages of our paper. We wish no man any ill-will; no person a revenge; no citizen a reprisal. We want only to go forth with our sole venture—to enlighten the people and advertise their wares.

But THEY don't want our voice to be heard. THEY don't want our readers to be enlightened. THEY want to still our voice—to hush The Star.

We stand firm. We will not be intimidated! We call upon every red-blooded Tyler Countyman to stand beside us. We urge the support of every citizen and businessman to aid our cause. As long as we have this support our voice will not be stifled.

The climax of our concern over this matter came to light just this Tuesday when we learned of a willful move to dislodge us from our quarters. It was then we decided to inform the people of the plight against us. We have seen much evidence of oppression here. It has been ugly to a degree. We have been concerned about it but we had shrugged it off as typical small-town oppression. But the many kinds of oppression and the extent to which it has been dealt has caused us to take a second thought.

There are many strong minded individuals in the business community here and they cannot be intimidated but there are a lot of these same kind of businessmen who are caught between a rock and a hard place, mainly due to circumstances beyond their control— who will not stand on their own legs and defy the pressure boys. Let us stand together as individuals and wage a course of existence in the midst of those who would silence us forever.

To compete is one thing but to force a competing business out of existence just for THEIR convenience is quite another.

Again we urge wary and the unwary citizens of Tyler County to champion our cause—to stand steadfast against our oppressors.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Just Another American Dream?

GUEST EDITORIAL from The Lukfin News

An alternative to work?

A Rand Corporation study, sponsored by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, provides further insight into how New York City got in the financial bind that has caused so much consternation this year.

The city has made its welfare program so attractive that it actually is discouraging some recipients from wanting to work. The study shows that many of those on welfare are getting as much as $1,900 a year more on welfare, in terms of total dollar value of all cash and services received, than they would if they had a job paying the minimum wage.

As the Rand researchers said: "Welfare could clearly be an attractive alternative to employment."

We can understand the viewpoint of those who feel that welfare benefits should be sufficient to permit a family to live decently. But we believe that the Rand study clearly shows that New York City has gone overboard in this respect, making welfare temptingly attractive and thereby causing welfare costs to soar.

New York City has one of the best welfare programs, insofar as the recipients are concerned, in the country. That's fine, as long as New York City wants to tax itself and pay the bill and doesn't want the rest of the nation to chip in.

QUEST EDITORIAL

Death and Taxes

WASHINGTON—Nothing is certain but death and taxes, and no taxes are more unfair or more counterproductive than the taxes on death.

Some amazing miscalculations have been made in tax law, but some have ever been wider of the mark than the federal estate tax.

The estate tax was supposed to keep the rich from becoming unduly richer through accumulating vast estates and passing them on, virtually intact, to their children. But that isn't what's happening.

The estate tax has had very little impact on the truly wealthy, who have the wherewithal to hire lawyers clever enough to circumvent its provisions.

But the estate tax is massacring the family farmers and the small businessmen who wish to leave their property to their sons and daughters.

For a long time, the estate tax did apply only to the truly wealthy. The middle class was exempted from its onerous duty. But the estate tax exemption hasn't been raised in 33 years, and its effect on the middle class has been devastating.

In 1942, when the federal estate tax exemption was raised to its present level of $60,000, it applied to only the top one per cent of all the estates in the country. Today, thanks to inflation and the rise in real incomes, ten times as many estates—and fully 75 per cent of all Americans—now feel the bite of the estate tax. Even some elderly retired people who have never earned more than $4,000 or $5,000 a year in their lives have estates worth more than $60,000.

The effect on the family farmer and the small businessman is brutal. Frequently, the business must be sold off or the farm split up in order to pay the estate tax. Meanwhile, the larger farmers and the big businessmen avoid the estate taxes by forming corporations, which live forever.

Thus, the estate tax in its present form doesn't tax the people it is supposed to tax, and taxes people it isn't supposed to tax.

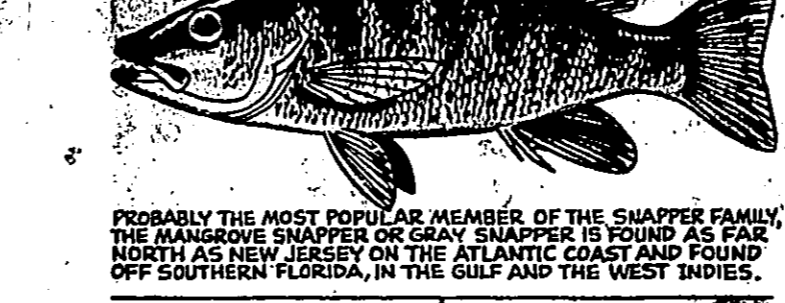

The economic hardship the estate tax imposes on family farmers and small businessmen isn't compensated for by generating large revenues for the federal treasury. Last year it produced only $5.1 billion, 1.6 per cent of all federal revenues. In 1930, when the tax hit only the genuinely wealthy, it produced 1.4 per cent of all federal revenues.

Clearly, the time for reform is long overdue. President Ford has proposed raising the estate tax exemption to $150,000 to be phased in over a period of five years. I have cosponsored a bill to raise the exemption to $200,000. Congress should act soon on one or the other of these measures.—Jay Sen Towser

Curb On Hospital Visits

A PHYSICIAN friend was struck with a mild heart attack while delivering a lecture in the hospital. The timing was fortuitous and he was taken to the intensive care unit where concentrated treatment was begun. He now has been transferred to his own private room and is progressing exceedingly well.

Because he is so loved he soon found himself himself bombarded with well-wishers. The books and flowers arrived in a steady stream.

Dr. Coleman arrived and soon began to overwhelm him. The telephone calls became an increasing burden and the visitors who were kept out of the intensive care unit poured in on him. Mind you, all of this went on out of sheer devotion.

Killing with love is a gentle art practiced by visitors who overwhelm sick patients and absorb their energies. Soon our doctor friend, still in the early stages of recovery, became the host. He arranged the seating and offered the victuals, the grapes, cookies, candies and liquor that made the hospital room a neighborhood tavern.

My friend came up with a brilliant idea, which, I hope, can be used by others in a similar plight. He made a simple tape recording on a cassette. On this he told the story of the date of his illness, how it occurred, where he was, what the symptoms were like, what the doctors said, how long he would be at the hospital, how long the recovery period would be and when he would again be able to return to work. Each new visitor interested in these details was given the cassette of tape and a small recording machine to take to the visitor's apartment.

After listening to it, the visitor was allowed to return and to engage in all the pleasant. More and more people are catching onto the fact that uncontrolled federal spending is the big fire under inflation. Roads may roll at the polls if Congress continues to lie down on the job of reforming its own spending habits and way of doing business.

DECLARATION OF A FREE MAN

By Roderic Marble Oldeman

I AM AN American Citizen - a member of the greatest fraternity on earth - the Brotherhood of Freemen. * This worldwide Brotherhood is open to any man, anywhere on earth, who is deeply determined to be free and willing to pay the personal price. * Men are paying the price and are joining this Brotherhood every day even in the uttermost parts of earth. * Because our forefathers pioneered the continental vastness that is America and won; because the men of industry teamed up in research and development to produce the necessities and the finer things of life in a superior way; and because a million Americans have died and millions have suffered in the wars of this Republic, I have Freedom of Mind, Freedom of Body, and Freedom of Spirit. * I have Freedom to Work, to Love, to Learn, and to Play; mine is the Freedom to Compete, to Invent, to Save, to Invest, to Create, to Promote, to Progress, to Own, and to Give; I have Freedom to Choose, to Join, to Vote, to Speak, and to Walk Erect with head high; I am Free to be my own self, as an individual human soul. I am Free to Worship my God, as I see fit, and I choose to cherish jealously each one of these Freedoms. * Life would be as dull in a windy street if through indifference I were to lose them. * I know what my father and his father before him have done that I might inherit these precious blessings. * Hence, I am ready, willing, and eager to make my own contribution towards their preservation. * I will do everything within my power each day to strengthen and defend these Freedoms wherever I am, whatever I do - that I may pass them on to my sons and daughters undiminished. * I am Responsible. * I am a Free Man.

YOUR CHILDREN NEED MORE THAN SCHOOL ALONE

As the approaching school season appears on the horizon, it's time to realize that the school, for all its importance in teaching your children the basic skills of life, is actually the second stage of their education. The first is in the home, where they should learn manners, unselfishness, the difference between right and wrong, and respect for authority and the rights of others, before they take even the first step out of the house, because the outside world begins right on your doorstep. Moreover, the character they develop during these years will remain with them all through life, so this early training should also include an education in faith, in the Sunday school at the Church of your choice.

Curb On Hospital Visits

A PHYSICIAN friend was struck with a mild heart attack while delivering a lecture in the hospital. The timing was fortuitous and he was taken to the intensive care unit where concentrated treatment was begun. He now has been transferred to his own private room and is progressing exceedingly well.

Because he is so loved he soon found himself himself bombarded with well-wishers. The books and flowers arrived in a steady stream.

Dr. Coleman arrived and soon began to overwhelm him. The telephone calls became an increasing burden and the visitors who were kept out of the intensive care unit poured in on him. Mind you, all of this went on out of sheer devotion.

Killing with love is a gentle art practiced by visitors who overwhelm sick patients and absorb their energies. Soon our doctor friend, still in the early stages of recovery, became the host. #### 'Wild' Pets Not Good

Cute and cuddly wildlife young have a way of growing into dangerous animals, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife officials.

This is the time of year when fawns and other appealing animals appear in large numbers. It is also the time when large numbers of recreationalists head for the Texas outdoors. These fun-seekers find the young animals, think they are abandoned and take them home for pets. This is not only dangerous, it is against the law if the animal is a game species.

"The assumption of abandonment is probably false," according to Pierce Uzzell of the Parks and Wildlife Department.

"While the mother is away," said Uzzell, "the fawn lies very still, resembling a sun-dappled log or rock. During the first few days after birth, fawns appear to have no scent, and hunting dogs have actually jumped over a motionless fawn without noticing it."

People who pick up young animals do a disservice to the animal and themselves. It takes special knowledge to raise a wild animal under domestic conditions.

Animals which survive table scraps and inexpert care grow up under protected conditions and lose their natural fear of man.

This makes them dangerous. The cases of "wild pets" suddenly becoming vicious are numerous. The victim is often a child.

"The best rule when finding a young animal in the woods is to leave it alone," said Uzzell. "Look at it for a while if you want, but then turn your back and walk away. Both animal and human will be better off that way."
