Flu Vaccine Now Available Locally

Flu vaccine is available now for our area and will be given this Sunday, November 7, at the Canada Gym between 2 and 6 p.m. Location for the shots is (white building) on Live Oak Street across from the Woodville Elementary School.

According to Mr Jack Frost, Region 7 Public Health Service, there will be two types of vaccine administered. One type will be given persons over 65 and from 3 to 65 who are critically ill. Those critically ill will require a statement from their doctor.

Another type will be given people from 18 to 64 who are not critically ill. A search is still underway to find the right vaccine for those under 18 and not critically ill.

We wish to thank Radio Station KVLL for their information on this subject.

Mrs Smith said she shopped Due's as a result of newspaper advertising.

Deer permit Interest high

Competition was heavy this year for the 951 permits to hunt deer on five Texas Parks and Wildlife Management Areas.

A total of 10,657 persons made application to the P&WD.

In a public drawing Oct. 7, department officials selected names to hunt on the Engeling, Kerr, Sierra Diablo, Gene Howe and Chaparral Areas.

Those selected in the drawing will be notified by mail of their hunt dates and asked to submit a $20 fee to cover costs of conducting the hunts.

Hunters on the Kerr Area in the Hill Country will be allowed to take either white-tailed, axis or sika deer this fall.

All hunters who participate in the gun hunts will be required to wear a minimum of 400 square inches of daylight fluorescent orange material with 144 square inches appearing on the chest and back.

OFFICERS HOLD HITCHHIKER IN ROBBERY OF 2

Tyler County Sheriff's officers are holding a man who reportedly took about $500 from two men that picked him up while hitchhiking.

The man, Billy Earl McCray, was apprehended by the Polk County sheriff's deputies about 1 a.m. following the incident. Deputy Butch Kraus transferred him from Livingston to Woodville about 5 a.m./Tuesday morning. They got a statement from the suspect and said they are holding two other subjects in connection with the reported robbery.

Sheriff Lewis Craven's office got a call about 4:30 Monday afternoon about the incident and reported that the men's car had also been taken.

Michael Baker, 20, and Greg Jones, 22, both of Livingston, said they were traveling on US 190 about 5 miles west of Woodville when they picked up a man they both knew. They told that the man pulled a small gun out and demanded their money.

Another report from the sheriff's office related the account of two lady hunters who were lost on the old Rockland road. The report came in about 10 Sunday night and said they were lost in heavy woods.

Tyler county rescue units and sheriff's men were called out to aid in the search. After much searching the ladies were found about 2 a.m. Monday morning.

New VD strain defies controls

Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO — A new penicillin-resistant strain of gonorrhea first found in this country last February has spread to 10 states and could wreck venereal disease control efforts. Federal public health officials warned Wednesday.

"The outlook for VD control is grim is this new organism is resistant to a large number of antibiotics," said Dr. Paul Wiesner a VD control expert at the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga.

Only the antibiotic, spectinomycin, has been found effective against the new gonorrhea strain but it only cures nine out of 10 patients, he reported at the 16th Interscience Conference on Antimicrobial Agents and Chemotherapy in Chicago.

Officials are alarmed that the new strain may develop resistance to spectinomycin and then there would be no protection against a destructive new wave of gonorrhea. "We don't want doctors to use spectinomycin injudiciously because that's our last line of defense," he said.

Penicillin is the drug of choice against the established gonorrhea strain because it produces cures in 98 per cent of the cases.

One million new cases of gonorrhea were reported in the country last year but the CDC estimates that the true number is closer to two million. Many cases are not reported.

One of the biggest dangers of the new strain is that it may lead to a dramatic increase in female sterility, said Wiesner. Between 10 and 15 per cent of women infected with gonorrhea develop pelvic inflammations which is one of the leading causes of sterility, he explained.

The new strain of gonorrhea makes an enzyme called beta Lactamase which destroys penicillin, said Dr. Clyde Thornberry, a CDC microbiologist.

HILL HITS BELL'S RATE REQUEST

AUSTIN — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. claims its investors are being shortchanged at a time when the company's bonds enjoy the highest market rating possible. Atty. Gen. John Hill said Monday.

The triple-A rating suggests to Hill that Bell's present rate of return is sufficient to attract all the capital Bell needs.

Hill urged the new Public Utilities Commission to reject Bell's proposed $28.3 million increase in rates in Texas. The hearing may last a month, and the commission is expected to rule on the proposal early next year.

Hill said independent rate analysts and those for several Texas cities have studied the Bell proposal.

"We have concluded as a result of that study... that this increase represents a fantastic exaggeration of the revenue needs of this applicant... We believe we will be able to demonstrate it is grossly excessive," he said.

Condensed from The Beaumont Enterprise

Allen Burch of Beaumont, who said he is a retired Texas employe, appeared as a private citizen who wonders why he can telephone across the state line into Louisiana cheaper than he can call Houston.

"I think Southwestern Bell is asking for an increase so you won't give them a decrease," Burch said.

Commission counsel John Bell said the company's proposal "goes to the inflation well" five times.

"The same inflation compounded five times over," Bell said. "How many times does Southwestern Bell have to protect itself against inflation? I believe one time is enough."

Jon Dee Lawrence of Dallas, Bell's general counsel for Texas, said the opposition of all the other attorneys led him to ask himself, "Why in the world should we go through the masochistic act of even filing an application?"

He said Texas is "one of the fastest growing states in the union," and that Bell was having difficulty in providing service in such a booming state.

But Bell is providing that service, he said. "The obligation we are not meeting is providing a fair rate-of return," he said.

"We have the burden of proof. We accept the challenge of the other parties to prove this matter," Lawrence said.

In his cross-examination of Doyle Rogers, Bell's chief executive officer in Texas, Hill noted that American Telephone & Telegraph, Bell's parent company, reported more than $1 billion in profits for one three-month period. That is the highest quarterly corporate profit ever reported by any company, he said.

Rogers, Bell vice president for Texas, said Bell has hired mainly temporary employes in recent months.

Gets Texas size share

Texas received $1,229,872 from the federal government as its 25-percent share of timber sales from the state's national forests. The money is earmarked by law to be used for the state's public schools and roads.

The 12 Southern states received more than $9.87 billion as their share of receipts from timber sales and other use of their national forests during fiscal year 1976, according to the Southern Forest Products Association.

Mississippi led the South with $2,080,455, followed by Louisiana with $1,823,656, Arkansas with $1,471,919, Texas with $1,229,872, and South Carolina with $1,164,182.

Last year, Texas's share of national forest timber sales was some $350,000.

Passage of the National Forest Management Act of 1976 will mean that money received by the states and counties for fiscal 1977 and beyond will be computed on the basis of 25 percent of the gross revenues received by the Forest Service.

Ants spoil more than picnics in East Texas

by: Rick Turner, Research Aide Forest Pest Lab

To most people, ants created mainly to raise havoc at family picnics. Two types of ants, however, are not attracted to the aroma of home-cooked food, but nevertheless are an increasing concern to East Texas. They are the town ant (also known as the Texas leaf-cutting ant) and the imported fire ant. Town ants, commonly found in forested areas, are easily identified by the clean-cut trail they make between their food source and their mound or colony. Along these trails the town ants carry small bits of leaves and pine needles to their mound. In their food collecting, town ants strip trees of their leaves or needles, leaving the tree to die. These leaf bits will be taken down into the colony where worker ants will culture a fungus on the leaf fragments. The fungus, and not the leaf itself, will be the main food source for the ant colony.

Evidence of the fire ant can be seen from a distance by the presence of dome-like mounds usually found in open areas. Like the town ant, the fire ant will construct trails to their mound, but these trails are considerably different. The fire ant will eat seeds and insects. Seeds supply an oil which the ants need. Insects are killed when found, dissected and carried back to the mound as a main food source.

Even though both ants are similar in color - a rusty red - they differ in size and in their mound-building habits. The town ant mound is considerably larger than the fire ant and has extra-ordinarily long legs and a large head. The town ant colonies on the ground are marked by several crescent-shaped mounds which surround the entrance holes.

The fire ant, on the other hand, only has one entrance hole for each colony. The crescent-shaped mounds of the town ant measure, on the average, from 5 to 14 inches high and 12 inches in diameter. The larger dome-like fire ant mounds may measure 12 inches in height and up to 24 inches in diameter. The most noticeable difference in the colony structure is the depth and area. Much like terrogers, town ant colonies can extend 20-30 feet deep and can occupy an area of 100 square feet. Within the colony, several tunnels interconnect rooms which are used to rear immature ants and to grow leaf fungus. The fire ant colony, although not as extensive as the town ant's, is also located primarily underground. Colonies, however, do contain tunnels and rooms for the rearing of young ants and for food storage.

Damage from both types of ants occur when they forage for food. The town ants not only injure hardwood trees, but a large colony can completely strip needles from young pine plantations, causing economic losses to landowners. The pine damage mainly occurs in the winter and early spring because of the lack of other green foliage. The fire ant, known for its potent sting, also is harmful to wildlife and domestic livestock. They will protect their mound in times of apparent danger and sting animals or humans. In some cases, the sting from fire ants has killed new-born animals.

The control of both types of ants can be accomplished by the use of pesticides - Mirex 450 for the town ant and Mirex 250 for the fire ant. Mirex will kill the entire colony. Bait bits of grain and cornmeal impregnated with Mirex are taken down into the colony by the foraging ants, where they are ingested by all ants within a short period of time. To achieve the best control, Mirex should be applied during spring when the ants are most active. It is important to locate and treat all the mounds, for if one is left untreated the ants will soon reproduce.

Mirex has had its ups and downs with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) which resulted in the complete shutdown of the Aberdeen manufacturing plant in Mississippi, the sole source of the bait in the South. The recent purchase of the plant by the state of Mississippi and re-estimation of Mirex for ant control by the EPA, indicates future use of Mirex as a pesticide will be more stable.

Famboyant and quotable, Dr. Hayakawa, shown wearing the tam that has become so much a trademark.

GUEST EDITORIAL from The Beaumont Enterprise

Ready or not?

We don't know if the U.S. Senate is ready for S. 1. Hayakawa. Hayakawa is the former university president who made a name for himself by standing firm against student dissenters in the 1960s. Although 70 years old, he is active and vigorous and has good chance of upsetting Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., today. It's Hayakawa's wit that we're not sure the Senate can accept. That staid, formal body is not accustomed to having someone who seems as if he'd rather throw out a one-liner than a serious comment. But the way Hayakawa uses his wit is a large part of his appeal. He has been able to appeal to both the Reaganites and anti-Reaganites, for example, with this comment about his stand on the Panama Canal: "We should keep it. We stole it fair and square."

April 11, 1947: For the first time in baseball history, a Negro plays with a major league team. Jackie Robinson suited up with the Brooklyn Dodgers for an exhibition game with the New York Yankees.
April 12, 1861: The first shot of the Civil War is fired as Confederate forces open battle on Fort Sumter in the harbor of Charleston, South Carolina.
April 13, 1964: Sidney Poitier becomes the first Negro to win a top motion picture Oscar when he is named best actor of 1963 at the annual Hollywood ceremonies.

Congressional scorecard

The 94th Congress started out with the bit in its teeth, settled down for solid work and then ended its run with a gallop, spurred by election litters. Some good legislation was passed. And, fortunately, some bad measures were left to expire. President Ford's vetoes, and the threat of vetoes, restrained the normal congressional tendency to spend excessively. In the final hectic days, the Clean Air Act was shoved aside. That bill contained some good provisions, such as more state control, but it also included a nondegradation provision that was a threat to growth in many parts of the nation. It is just as well that legislation didn't make it through at the last minute.

Congress did approve in the last days a clear-cutting bill that calls for modernized standards to protect the environment while providing the lumber needed for new homes. And it did get through a needed Law Enforcement Assistance Administration bill, a measure that was controversial because the LEAA has its own administrative problems.

GAO raises eyebrows

Practically everything done in Washington these days is viewed in a political light, and thus we are not surprised that some eyebrows are being raised at the timing of a congressional report on the Mayaguez incident.

Release of the report critical of the actions taken by President Ford came just the day before a scheduled foreign policy debate by Ford and Gov. Jimmy Carter.

Coincidental? Maybe so, but our eyebrows are raised, too.

The report on the U.S. actions following the seizure of the cargo ship by the Cambodians was put together by the General Accounting Office, the investigatory arm of Congress. Democrats are in the majority in Congress. There is nothing particularly new in the facts reported by the report, little that did not become public knowledge within days after the Mayaguez crew was freed while the United States was undertaking military action. The Washington Post says the report is the GAO issued it and reached conclusions from the facts presented. Within days after the Mayaguez incident, questions were raised about the interpretation given reports from pilots flying over the scene and the failure of intelligence reports to accurately predict the resistance expected on Koh Tang island. The nation looked at the facts and generally concluded Ford acted expectantly and correctly, despite the heavy price of 41 servicemen lost. The skipper of the Mayaguez says the actions by the President saved his crew. The GAO report again raises questions about the adequacy of military intelligence and the ability of frontline reports to get to the White House expeditiously. The questions are presented by the report, and the time to release the report actually served to cloud with politics whatever point the GAO was trying to make.

The Things We Say

By RUBY SHANNON
When a family tries to surprise one of its members with something like a birthday party, quite often the youngsters have to be talked to pretty straight to prevent them from letting the cat out of the bag. "Daddy, did you know that Mother has a big birthday cake in the freezer?" is one way of letting the cat out of the bag. . . . If it's Daddy's cake.

Since a hog does not chew its cud, it is considered an unclean animal in certain religions, and it is thought sinful to eat it. About the eighth century, when the Moslems invaded Europe, their first edict was to make the sale of pork illegal. Things bought illegally always seem to be a temptation, so farmers who raised pigs would get them in a poke or bag and sell them after dark. Just for fun, some farmers began to put cats in the bag instead of pigs, and the unsuspecting buyer would not know until he reached home that he had been swindled. Since the whole business was illegal, there was little he could do about it, so the expression, "Don't buy a pig in a poke" came about. It's easy to see how "Don't let the cat out of the bag" originated. If the bag was opened the least bit, the buyer would jump out, and then the buyer knew for sure he was not purchasing a pig.

A House sub-committee agreed Texas' presidential preference primary law should be revived, with refinements.

Insurance Board members Durwood Manford and Ned Price had a fistfight during a recent meeting.

musings

By Emma Drake

PUBLIC ECONOMY

Two hundred years ago Thomas Jefferson wrote the following sage counsel to the American people: I place economy among the first and most important virtues and public debt as the greatest dangers to pursue our independence. We must not let ourselves load us with perpetual debt. We must make our choice between economy and liberty or profusion and servitude. If we can prevent the government from wasting the labors of the people under the pretense of caring for them, they will be happy. The same prudence which in private life would forbid our paying our money for unexplained projects, forbids it in the use of public money.

J. A. Hankins Survey, Abstract 767, 2,47 acres. Colmesneil Independent School District deeded D A Feagin the above land for $10.00 and other considerations, 5-2-61, recorded in Vol. 193, page 672. Mineral rights were reserved by D A Feagin.

D. A. Feagin deeded Jimmy W Davis the same land for $10.00 and other considerations, 10-15-76, recorded in Vol. 349, Page 778.

Jimmy W Davis deeded Tyler County the same land for $10.00 and other considerations, 10-15-76, recorded in Vol. 349, Page 191.

The minutes of the Tyler County Commissioners Court should show that the taxpayers will pay $11,000.00 for this land.

Many taxpayers do not understand why the sale of this land was so manipulated in such a manner. I am proud to be an American citizen and to pay my fair share of taxes. But, I am credibly offended by some of the ripoffs and misrepresentations that our governmental bureaucrats force upon us by legal loopholes.

I think that we should examine the actions of our public officials close to home. Everyone of us are born with the knowledge of what is right and wrong. We do not have to be told by defenders of the law what is ethical and will serve our community well.

Not too many years ago we took pride in our civic leaders. We believed and trusted them (they realized that they were elected by our consent) and that they would take care of our interests.

Now, we seem to have petty politicians who want to rule instead of serve. We must realize that all the goodies our politicians promise us must first be taken from us—and in this process, we do not receive for our dollar. The time is near when their inventions will come home to plague the inventors.

GOD'S WONDERS ARE REVEALED, NOT HIDDEN, BY AN ECLIPSE

An eclipse of the sun or moon, be it partial, total or whatever, is an exciting celestial event to most people in the part of the world where it will be visible. No matter how many of them we have already seen, they always promise a spectacular new behind-the-scenes look at the mechanics of the universe, right from our terrestrial vantage point, free and available to all. Much of our knowledge of the heavens has come as a result of these alignments of the sun, moon and earth, and they provide an even greater insight into the magnitude of God's creation. So look to the sky, enjoy the show, and on your return to earth go to the Church of your choice, where you will learn how you and this magnificent world you live in came into being.

WENDY UNSWORTH WINS BABY CONTEST
The Star's baby contest came to a close last Saturday and little Wendy Unsworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wayne Unsworth of Doucette, came in first with a total of 21,000 votes. It was nip and tuck for awhile as the top four vied for position. Wendy won a large stuffed turtle donated by a friend of the VFW, a $10 gift certificate from Woodville TV, a $20 gift certificate from Sears Catalog Sales Merchant Dorothy Nettles and a free 11 x 17 portrait from Omega Studio. Other baby run-ups inside along with their final scores.

Scenic Fun

BY KERRY BEARDS
AFTER A WEEK OF heavy rain, the weather is clearing and the sun is shining. It is a good time to go out and enjoy the outdoors. The Woodville area is a beautiful area with many scenic spots. One of the best places to go is the Woodville State Park. The park has many beautiful views of the Texas Hill Country. There are many trails for hiking and biking. The park also has a picnic area and a playground. If you are looking for a quiet place to relax, the Woodville area is a great choice. There are many beautiful homes and farms in the area. The scenery is truly beautiful and it is a great place to visit.

Hunters Invading Big Thicket

By NANCY FLOWERS
The Downum Enterprise Hunters are invading the Big Thicket National Preserve, although the land is still legally in the control of private landowners who have a right to order the hunters off the land, the superintendent of the preserve said Wednesday.
Tom Lubbert, superintendent of the Big Thicket, said landowners in the midst of negotiations for their land to be included in the preserve are being aggravated by hunters who think they have a right to hunt in the preserve.
No preserve lands are open to hunting this year, Lubbert said, though some units of the preserve may be open for hunting in 1977.
Land on the land for the current hunting season were honored, Lubbert said, even though the land may be acquired for the preserve. Other sections that are acquired for the preserve cannot be opened for hunting because the public would be unable to determine where the hunting was prohibited or allowed.
Boundary markers clearly defining the area to be included in the thicket may lead the hunters to believe the land has been acquired for the thicket, he said, but the markers only mean the area has been surveyed, not necessarily purchased from the private owner.
Only Menard Creek and the Neches River Corridor remain to be surveyed, Lubbert said, so the boundary is marked by painted trees.
When the Big Thicket is opened to hunting, it will be unit by unit, he said. Only units that have been totally purchased for the preserve will be opened for hunting.
Next year, Beech Creek and possibly the Big Sandy unit will be totally acquired, and may therefore be opened to hunting, Lubbert said.
Tentatively, the acquisition schedule indicates that the Turkey Creek and Lance Roster units would be opened in 1978, the Neches Bottom and Steamboat units in 1979 and the Neches River Corridor and the Pine Island Bayou Corridor in 1980, Lubbert said.
He said the bill creating the preserve mandates that hunting will be allowed within preserve rules, but that it would be unable to open a portion of any unit to hunting unless the entire unit is acquired for the thicket.

Immaturity can influence child's behavior

COLLEGE STATION—Have you ever wondered why your little rascal is so naughty at times or if they ever will grow up?

Adults sometimes forget that children misbehave just because they are children. Miss Miller, a family life education specialist, reminds:

"Young children are immature and lack the experiences which adults have had to help them make wise decisions. Without thinking about the consequences, a child may act impulsively, such as chasing a ball into the street or pulling a hot pan off the range."

Mrs. Miller is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Children are also curious, and it is their curiosity which often gets them into trouble. They are so intent on learning why or how something works that they forget the rules and touch or taste things which are 'off limits.' Parents think the child is disobedient when really he is just being normally curious about his surroundings," she added.

Boredom and a desire for attention are other reasons children often seemingly misbehave. Parents help a child learn acceptable behavior by praising acceptable actions and ignoring inappropriate actions, as long as the behavior is not dangerous to the child, to others or to property. Mothers and fathers can also guide their little ones into more acceptable activities if the children are bored or seeking attention.

If your youngster seems to be especially difficult to live with, perhaps he is letting you know he is growing more independent.

For example, the typical 3-year-old goes through the "no" stage to demonstrate his independence.

Older children may exert their independence by insisting on doing things themselves. If parents understand this is a normal process of growth, it is easier to maintain a sense of humor and patience even if the children's actions are exasperating.

Learning to act appropriately in different situations is a slow, sometimes painful process for children. Parents help a child learn "right" from wrong by providing patient and consistent guidance based on the needs and abilities of the individual child. Understanding and respecting the child's feelings also helps create a good climate in which acceptable behavior can be learned more successfully, she said.

Discipline is a family affair involving both parents and children.

Over-printing of fiat money is real cause of inflation

By Richard Harvey

Stop the presses! No, not the newspaper presses—but the government printing presses which are grinding out ever-increasing quantities of fiat money. It is fiat money because it is not backed by specie and contains no promise of redemption. It is made legal only by law or decree. And the over-printing of this fiat money, according to economists such as Henry Hazlitt and Leonard Read, is the real cause behind our number one problem of inflation.

Of course, our government leaders are going around in circles trying to find a cure for inflation. And there are proposals galore—only none of them are solutions. Instead of trying to find the cure, our government officials should first look at the cause. They make a cure sound very complicated while the cause is extremely simple. It's overextended government.

Since our federal government has taken over so many "do-good" programs in the fields of welfare, medicine, public housing, urban renewal, racially balanced busing, etc., the cost of our government has risen beyond the point where the costs can be covered by tax levies. In order to make up the difference, the government just prints more money.

Yes, the cause is simple. The cure could be equally as simple, if we Americans would practice a little self-reliance. Most Americans today are feeding at the public trough in one way or another, whether it be by way of a farm subsidy, social welfare, or free educational benefits. And although it would be difficult indeed to convince all these individuals that their interests would be better served by individual initiative than by increased taxes and inflated money, sound economy would not be nearly so difficult to arrange through responsible and intelligent leadership of our representatives.

Year after year, however, we find these same representatives in Washington voting to increase the ceiling on the National Debt instead of clating down on some of the giveaway programs until we are presently paying $27,800,000 per year just on the interest on that debt.

Take, for example, the recent appropriation bill for Health, Education and Welfare, included in the bill is a $138 million item for treatment of alcoholics along with another $9,500 item for "official receptions and representation expenses"—in other words, parties and liquor. The same bill is taking care of those who want to drink and those who can't and the taxpayers foot the bill.

Along with a disastrous national spending policy, the U. S. is also intent on aiding the economic and agricultural system of Communist Russia with a loan of $180,000,000 at six per cent interest from our taxpayer-supported Export-Import Bank.

It is up to our Congressmen and Senators to put an end to this journey to financial destruction, but it will also require a loud and clear voice from the people that demands fiscal responsibility.

The largest American clam, the goodieck, is over eight inches long.
