One-Car Crash Takes Life Of Woman Driving

A single car collision near Warren killed one woman and injured two more Monday. The accident took place on Highway 69 at about 10 a.m., according to Gerald Corbell, State Trooper.

Bernice Moss, 64, a Beaumont day care counselor died shortly after arrival at the Tyler County Hospital. Ella Gallien, 50, of Beaumont had head and facial lacerations, and possible internal injuries. Ruby Franks, 46, of Beaumont had a broken left shoulder and possible internal injuries.

The two survivors were transferred to St. Elizabeth's in Beaumont.

Corbell said the car, driven by Moss, apparently slid off the shoulder of the road and then skidded, running over a mailbox before crashing into a large pine tree. "It was a freak accident," he said. He added that the driver was not speeding. There were no other vehicles involved in the crash.

All three women worked in social programs in the Beaumont area, and Moss was the director of Beaumont's Central Day Care Center. Franks works with the San Jacinto Council of Girl Scouts. Gallien is a member of the Family and Children's Services.

Bernice Moss, 64, of Beaumont was killed when the car she was driving slid off the road on Highway 69 near Warren Monday. The car hit a tree, killing Moss and seriously injuring two passengers. No other cars were involved in the accident, according to the Highway Dept.

Oil Field Worker Seriously Hurt In Collision

A 31 year old Louisiana man was seriously injured Monday when his pickup skidded out of control and hit a train on FM 255 near Colmesneil.

Donald Bourque of Lafayette, La. was in serious condition at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Beaumont Tuesday.

According to Gerald Corbell, Department of Public Safety, Bourque was found about 40 feet from his truck. The vehicle lodged between the engine of the train and the first car, and the train carried the truck about 100 feet before it fell to the ground.

The injured man worked as an oil field serviceman for the Petroleum Marine Production Co. in Lafayette. He was in East Texas repairing machinery according to company sources.

Corbell said Bourque was traveling west on FM 255 and he hit the train after rounding a curve with a steep incline. "The railroad tracks are located at the bottom of the hill in the road," he said. "I believe if the road had been dry, he could have stopped in time," Corbell added.

Bourque apparently exited the truck through the windshield. It took six people to get the 275 pound man onto the stretcher. "He was broken up pretty bad," Corbell concluded.

Limiting Taxes By Constitution

We've all had a chance now to think about the success of the California voters in finding a constitutional way to limit their property taxes. We have also had time to consider what impact Proposition 13 is likely to have on the rest of the country.

For the first time since the early days of this country the voters have found a way to cut taxes through their own direction. The idea, says Robert F. Dee, chairman and chief executive officer of SmithKline Co., "is simplicity itself, and it has shaken many politicians to the core. Used wisely, this device could return government to the control of the American people."

A new political tactic like this always produces reactions, Dee said. The instinctive response of politicians and government officials was at first a lament, coupled with predictions of massive lawlessness, garbage collection, police and education. But California officials have since moved to more reasonable grounds; they will get along somehow, they say. Perhaps they have concluded that if they don't, the voters will again take matters into their own hands.

With a few predictable exceptions, our national political leaders have rushed to get on the bandwagon of fiscal restraint. They are beginning to sense that great change has taken place in the mind of the American public. They can see the political advantage of not opposing that change.

Proposition 13 has cleared the way for a new assessment of the role of taxation in our national economy. It has also shown us a strategy by which we can control excessive government spending. At this point, the U.S. Congress has a number of tax reduction measures under consideration and additional bills may be under study by this time.

Dee thinks that all of us should write at once, expressing our feelings in the strongest possible terms about the need for immediate tax reductions coupled with immediate cuts in appropriation bills coming before our legislators.

It is highly imperative to consolidate the advances all Americans have made through the voters of the California Proposition 13 as a sign of the changing mood of America. We have learned some lessons from it. Now it is up to us to act on them.

The Price of Coffee

I'm an inveterate coffee drinker. My doctor, my wife and Molly the dog think I drink too much coffee, and they are probably right.

The thing I have a hard time rationalizing is the price of a cup of coffee.

When they had that gosh-awful freeze in the Brazil coffee plantations a couple of winters ago, the expected happened. Coffee prices soared to nearly $4.50 a pound on the coffee shelf, and the dime cup of coffee at your local cafe jumped to 30-40 cents a cup.

Some people switched to tea at the time, but sometimes, the aroma of freshly brewed coffee first thing in the morning is whole lot more appetizing than a soggy teabag in the kitchen sink.

The point all this is that apparently the Brazilians are coming into harvest season this year with a bumper crop. In fact it has been reflected in the store price of coffee for several weeks. The only places where cheaper coffee is not reflected is in the price per cup at most restaurants. Still 30-40 cents a cup.

I hate to be spoil sport, but it is just possible that we have become accustomed to 30-40 cent coffee, and the restaurant owners, recognizing a good thing, can safely assume that we will continue to pay it, regardless of what happens to the wholesale price of coffee beans.

Price escalation of course, in this time of inflation, and such American dollar excesses is confined to tea and coffee.

People who buy foreign cars have seen price increases on five separate occasions this year from Detroit and Toyota. I can't reason with that, in that the dollar is worth a lot less year than a year ago. But as Japanese car prices get higher, why do their counterparts in Detroit from Ford and General Motors get higher as well? Wouldn't it be better to hold the line and compete with the import market? Maybe it is like coffee—we are used to paying higher prices for imported goods, and would expect higher prices even on those items manufactured here at home.

As must be obvious from all this, I am not an accredited economist, but there must be a solution to the inflation problem. The hand wringing in Washington is a little scary.

Budgets go up and up. The deficits grow larger. The dollar is taking a battering in world currency markets because most bankers overseas have no confidence in our ability to get things under control.

Congress is still on a spending binge, no matter what rhetoric you hear to the contrary. As with coffee beans, we seem to assume the federal budget will continue to go up and that there are many things the government should be doing for us. After all, isn't that what government is for?

No not a bit more than we should be paying 30 cents for a cup of coffee.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

The special session just completed has produced a tax relief package in excess of $1 billion for the people of this state.

By repealing the state sales tax on residential utilities and by raising the inheritance tax exemption for Class A beneficiaries, we have acted in two areas where relief has been long overdue. The answer to skyrocketing utility bills is much more complicated than simply abolishing a 4 percent tax, but the abolition of the tax is an affirmation of our decision to find an answer to the problem of utility costs.

By increasing the exemption from the inheritance tax for Class A beneficiaries from $25,000 to $200,000 immediately and eventually to $300,000 in 1985, we will reduce dramatically the number of family businesses and family farms and ranches which are sold to pay inheritance and estate taxes.

I have already signed these two measures into law. The inheritance tax exemption is effective September 1 of this year, and the repeal of the sales tax on residential utilities becomes effective on October 1 of this year.

A separate package of constitutional amendments on the November ballot will be appropriately labeled on the ballot as "The Tax Relief Amendment." The package is multi-faceted and addresses the following six major areas:

The constitution presently provides for the equal and uniform taxation of all property including intangible property. Most local officials say that, as a practical matter, the enforcement of that provision as to intangibles is impossible without a serious invasion of personal privacy.

Yet the state is currently embroiled in litigation Federal Court which seeks to force that action on the part of the state. The proposed amendment removes intangibles from the mandatory tax base, but permits the legislature to tax intangibles if necessary.

The proposed amendment also removes the $250 limit on household goods and personal effects which are exempt from ad valorem taxes. If passed, it would exempt all household goods and personal effects which are not for sale or lease, and the production of income and would permit the legislature to exempt all or part of the personal property of a homesteaded individual family.

Even before the special session, it was clear that the one single tax which was really oppressive was and is the school property tax. That was the area which most needed attention.

The proposed constitutional amendment grants a $5,000 exemption from the market value of a residential homestead for school tax purposes. The legislature may grant an additional exemption up to $10,000 for citizens aged 65 and older and for disabled citizens as defined by the Federal Old Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance or its successors. The provision also requires that the property taxes for residential homesteads of persons 65 years of age or older be frozen and that they may not be increased during the period of time that residence remains a homestead of that individual.

The proposed constitutional amendment also includes a provision which would require the legislature to provide for the taxation of land devoted to farm and ranch use on the basis of productive capacity rather than simply market value. It also provides that the legislature may extend from ad valorem tax purposes to land which is devoted to timber production. The legislature is also authorized to impose eligibility requirements to implement this constitutional amendment.

Texas needs this kind of alternative valuation system for our agricultural land. The evidence is that more and more families are leaving farms and ranches now and that a major reason is high taxation. If Texas is to maintain its role of leadership in agricultural production, we must insure that as much of our agricultural land as possible stays in production. This constitutional amendment goes a long way toward achieving that goal.

Obviously, these tax benefits to the citizens of the school district mean an erosion of the tax base of those school districts. In order to prevent the necessity of increasing taxes to replace lost revenue and thus nullifying the effect of school tax reductions, I insisted that the revenue loss which was anticipated as a result of these exemptions would be made into consideration by the legislature in developing the school finance bill. Additionally, I required that the legislature actually set aside $450 million to replace these anticipated revenue losses as concrete evidence of their good faith.

The Texas Constitution currently contains a provision which allows the legislature to provide for the taxation of land on the basis of productive capacity rather than simply market value. It also provides that the legislature may extend from ad valorem tax purposes to land which is devoted to timber production. Notes From An Oldtimer

By PHEBE ARMSTRONG

There never was much of interest to see between here and El Paso. Now there is less.

The great I-10 Highway is a prime example of monopoly road construction engineers have wrought. They have cut through every else. They have by-passed every town. They have spoiled everything they could spoil. They have done it or are doing it for road work goes on and on.

Leave El Paso coming east and, as soon as you're out of the city limits, and sameness surrounds you. The two ribbons of concrete are so widely separated it's hard to make out that a person is actually behind the wheel of an approaching car. There are miles and miles of nothing—nothing but numbered mile posts and matching exit signs proclaiming that people live in communities off to the right or off to the left, communities hidden out of sight among the barren hills.

Two truck drivers ahead, undoubtedly chatting over their CB's, relieve their boredom by playing a little game. They travel side by side at forty-five miles per hour blocking the path of cars behind them. The one on the left hand blinks his turn light and moves later, off before a single car can pass, the one in the right lane moves into the left lane and draws up even with the other. More miles creep by and more cars line up behind. Eventually they part and let the impatient cars whiz by. Well, it did relieve the boredom!

The white saw-tooth mountains with the village clustered around the freeway come into view.

Remember the night we spent in Sierra Blanca? That was in January, 1944. Now there is no way to tell among the roofs below whether our motel is still there.

In that clean, warm place we didn't know there was weather outside. But the next morning, when we were a hundred yards down the road, our radiator began to spout steam. Back at the service station, when the attendant brought out his hose and turned it on, the water froze in long icicles before it hit the ground.

If any cars had heaters then, ours did not. After our radiator was thawed, we rode on bundled up in blankets but numb with cold.

At mile post 180 we look up to gaze once again at the Sleeping Brave. He's been a landmark up there on the mountain for centuries lying flat of his back with arms across his chest and knees raised. Some miles later, off in the distance, the Squaw's Teal looms. That, too, was a guide post to western pioneers. So far the road workers haven't spoiled them, but give them time.

From Ft. Stockton to Sheffield, about seventy miles, there is not one human dwelling to be seen. The hills are polka-dotted with low cedar shrubs greener than usual for this time of year. Men have all gone away leaving only their works to interrupt the vast nothingness, miles of fences, oil storage tanks gleaming silver in the morning sun, a giant grasshopper there and there dipping his head to pump the oil.

It was at Bakersfield, now off to the left somewhere, that we stopped once during the oil boom. Grinning men gathered to watch as we went around the car checking each tire carefully. They knew how rough their road was. Were they grinning because they knew we had been sure we had four flat tires?

Can that be the great Pecos River we're crossing? The mighty Pecos, that mile-wide barrier to western migration? Shucks, it's no bigger than Turkey Creek after a good rain.

With the by-pass still a-building, we get to take the curving, twisting, steeply rising road around the mountain to the High Plot Plateau and the lookout over the ruins of Ft. Lancaster. This was one of a chain of 19th-century forts built to protect settlers from the ravaging Comanches and Apaches that scoured western Texas.

We left I-10 to go into Ozona, the "Biggest Little Town in the World", for gas.

Memories of that other trip thirty-four years ago crowded in. That was our second day out and there wasn't a place open in the whole town for us to spend the night.

It was too late for us to try to get to Ft. Stockton since we traveled at the prescribed thirty-five miles per hour when the roads allowed it. On recapped tires and a borrowed spare of questionable durability we dared not emulate Plum Cruse. During that era she was wont to say, "If thirty-five miles is good for tires, seventy ought to be twice as good."

In desperation we knocked on the office door of a motel at the edge of town that seemed deserted. The manager in hair curlers and robe explained that she was closed for the duration. All her help had gone off to work in war plants.

But she opened her heart and the door to a long-unused room for us. A candle was our light and we used our own cover. We tried, after the war was over, but we never found her again. A business building stood where we were sure her motel had been.

Happily we leave I-10 after it by-passes Junction, that pretty little town where our favorite picnic spot overlooks the Llano River and a beautiful clean lake sparkles at the foot of a hill.

Along the crest of Fredericksburg the spruced-up Sunday houses flaunt their Texas historical markers.

Fruit stalls on either side of the highway to Stone wall boast tree-ripened peaches and eager buyers are gathered around. We tried, after the war was over, but we never found her again. A business building stood where we were sure her motel had been.

Happily we leave I-10 after it by-passes Junction, that pretty little town where our favorite picnic spot overlooks the Llano River and a beautiful clean lake sparkles at the foot of a hill.

BUY OR SELL FIRST
 Should you buy your new home or sell your present one first?
 This situation arises consistently when families move up into a larger area in the same general area. In this case, it makes sense to sell the present home first.
 The secret, however, is to sell the house under the conditions that the papers will pass and title will be conveyed in 90, 90 or 120 days. This way you avoid the possibility of owning two homes at the same time.
 True, if you're in a position of being forced to buy another home, this was your original

Eagles Scrimmage Center

The varsity and junior varsity Woodville Eagles scrimmaged the varsity and junior varsity Centerville team in Woodville on Friday, August 25. Woodville Head Coach Melvin Houston said that he was well pleased with this first scrimmage. "It was a fair job for the first game. It went about as we expected it to go. We made a few mistakes, mostly mental errors." "I felt that the offense could have moved the football better toward the end of the scrimmage, but all in all it went about as expected." "The junior varsity team did all right, too. There were a few rough spots that need worked on, but they made a good showing."

Warriors Blanked

The Warren Warriors hosted a scrimmage game against Trinity on Friday, August 25. The game was a defensive clash with neither team scoring. Warren Head Coach, Jack Powell, said: "The team did a good job and we didn't find any surprises." "We handled Trinity on defense and moved the ball good on offense. We didn't score, but we probably should have."

Colmesneil Coach Pleased After Tilt

"We are pleased with the performance of the team, but we are not satisfied," says Colmesneil head coach Bill Hunter after Colmesneil scrimmaged Deweyville, in Colmesneil on August 25. "In the two week training period, everything hasn't been soaked up. Some of the players on the squad had never played football before this scrimmage. There were a lot of players who didn't get to play in the scrimmage."

Chester Faces Alto

The Chester Yellow-jackets, who didn't scrimmage last week, will meet Alto in first outing against competition on Saturday, Sept. 2, in Alto.

Texas Due A Major Hurricane?

Property would be threatened during the storm. The TCPIA is known as "windstorm pool" or "cat-pool," shorthand description of property insurance. The Texas cat-pool is the largest of its kind in the nation. Hurricane Carla, which hit Texas in 1961, caused an estimated $408 million in damage.

THE TRAGEDY OF A HURRICANE-After the storm has ended the rebuilding of a city and the burial of those killed begins. This scene from Galveston shows townspeople carrying a body to be buried. A storm of similar results could threaten the Texas-Louisiana coast this year, although tropical storm Debra dissipated before reaching hurricane strength. Weather service officials are hoping this area can escape a major storm again this year.

McIntire's Trip To Heaven and Hell (Part 2): 1900

After a varied life in Texas as a cowboy, lawman, saloonkeeper and gambler, James McIntire settled about 1900 in Mountain View, Oklahoma Territory, to operate a gambling establishment. During the first months of his stay, McIntire eventually recovered his "head," McIntire experienced "visions" of "Hell and Heaven." The first portion of this two-part series, taken from his book, recounted McIntire's description of Hell.

To start our week off with beautiful colors, we had Mrs. Dorothy Jolly to come and paint for us. The residents really enjoyed trying to guess what the painting would be as she started. We guessed everything from boats to flowers. But as it turned out, it was an assortment of fruit. After she finished, we held a drawing for the picture. Ben Barclay was the winner. Ben said that he wanted the painting to hang in the dining room so everyone could enjoy it.

Thank you Mrs. Jolly for sharing your time and talent with us. And we hope that you will return as soon as possible.

Mrs. Melody Trahan was with us Wednesday to show the film of the last dance and the Haygood's anniversary party. Laughter filled the dining room as the film began. Residents started picking themselves out during the film. They enjoyed viewing themselves in live action.

Roses Need Attention

The popular and versatile rose, with the proper care, will reward the grower with continual summer blooms. Perhaps the most outstanding asset of the rose is its long season of bloom from the greening of spring grass to fall's first frost.

Summer roses, like most summer flowering plants, must have supplemental summer waterings. Water plants with a slow stream of water to insure a good soaking well into the soil. Never sprinkle the rose foliage, but water at ground level. Blackspot disease and mildew are encouraged and spread by wetting the rose foliage. A thick summer mulch such as pine needles or bark will prevent the rose bed from drying out so quickly and will offer a cooling effect to the soil.

The key to good roses is a well-prepared soil prior to planting. Roses prefer a rich, loamy, well-drained soil. Raise the rose planting six to eight inches above normal ground level to insure surface drainage. Prepare the rose bed well in advance of ordering plants and planting.

Natural Look Popular In Men's Fall Fashions

Men's fashions for fall and winter depict the "natural look in styling, fabrics and color."

In tailored clothes, the natural, softer shoulder is in vogue, with notched collars, narrow lapels, full-cut jackets and back vents, says Martene Odie-Kemp, a clothing specialist.

Ms. Odie-Kemp is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Dress shirt collars have shorter points—some rounded and short button-downs. Pants are fuller straight legged and pleated at the waist.

Ties are narrower, ranging from three and one-half inch silks to two-inch knits.

Eggs, Melons, Chickens Top Buys

COLLEGE STATION—Best values at Texas grocery markets this week include eggs, melons, fryer chickens and several fresh vegetable items, according to Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt.

Also, there are a number of "specials" at dairy and frozen food counters and along grocery market aisles, she says.

POULTRY—Eggs are a good value, with small and medium sizes the most plentiful. Fryer chickens, also a good value, when bought whole will save 8-10 cents more per pound.

Turkey prices, however, are moderate to relatively high due to limited supplies and more demand.

FRESH FRUITS—Honey dew melons, cantaloupes and watermelons are economical choices. Varying price levels appear on peaches, nectarines, plums, prunes, grapes, bananas and pears—select according to budget limits.

FRESH VEGETABLES—Economic items include corn, carrots, cabbage, cucumbers, okra, dry yellow onions, yellow and zucchini squash and potatoes.

DAIRY—Features include milk (buttermilk and homogenized milk), yogurt and a variety of cheeses.

FROZEN FOOD—Items "on special" are fried chicken, orange juice and a variety of vegetables.

GROCERY MARKET AISLES—Features are tuna fish, canned applesauce, tomatoes, peaches, cooking oil and peanut butter.

BEEF—Prices are steady in general. Most markets offer beef values on chuck roasts and steaks; round and sirloin steaks and beef liver with ground beef.

PORK—Prices also stable. More economical items include Boston butt roasts, end and loin chops, quarter loin cut into chops, semi-boneless hams, bacon and liver.

CONSUMER WATCHWORDS: Eggs offer complete, high-quality protein, so they serve as economical "stand-ins" for meat, fish or cheese. Buy from refrigerated cases and put them away as quickly as possible.

Gifts Ease Tax Burden

COLLEGE STATION—To help ease the federal estate tax bite individuals may want to consider annual gifts to their heirs, says an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Annual gifts up to $3,000 to each individual, or $6,000 if a husband and wife make the gift jointly, are tax-free under the federal gift tax law. The amount given away during your lifetime will reduce the size of your estate and consequently the amount of federal estate tax on what you leave your heirs some day," points out Tom Prater.

Under the annual exclusion, you can make gifts each year to as many people as you wish, and the first $3,000 of the gifts to each person is tax-free if it is a gift of a present interest. Present interest indicates that the recipient takes immediate possession and enjoyment of the gift. If possession and enjoyment are postponed or are subject to some condition or the wishes of another, it is a gift of a future interest and does not apply to the $3,000 (or $6,000 husband/wife joint) annual exclusion, explains the economist.

"Gifts made under the $3,000 annual exclusion are not subject to be included in the gross estate if the giver dies within three years after making the gift," notes Prater. "Beginning in 1977, all other transfers by gift within the three-year period prior to death will automatically be included in the gross estate of the deceased—and so will be subject to estate tax. This makes the annual exclusion an effective way to reduce the size of your estate, regardless of when death occurs."

The recipient of your gift under the annual exclusion has no obligation either to report or pay income taxes on the amount he receives, adds Prater.

In considering tax-free gifts, the economist suggests contacting a lawyer or tax accountant who can assist in planning lifetime gifts and other phases of estate planning.

From The WCC Chit-Chat

Well folks, even though I'm not a member of the Woodville Convalescent Center, I will still be writing their column for you each week.

Before I get into the happenings at WCC, I would like to share my opinion with you on a couple of different things.

First, nursing homes in general. All of my life I've heard nothing, but how horrible nursing homes were. Can assure you, people who have those opinions are very wrong. I was employed at a nursing home for quite some time. In my opinion, nursing homes are one of the grandest things that ever happened to our world. People, where would we be without them? They give out medication to the people in nursing homes. They keep the bathrooms clean and all the trash emptied. They really have it rough cleaning up all day long.

Then comes the laundry staff. These people burn up all day long hovering over washers and dryers. They not only have all the patient's clothes to do, but all the washcloths, towels, sheets, pillow cases and blankets etc. That really adds up when your nursing home holds around a hundred people. They have to put up with all the different complaints when Mrs. Jones' dress was put into Mrs. Smith's closet by mistake.

Last, but not least, there's the maintenance man. He really has his hands full. Mowing the grass, fixing the plumbing and anything else that goes wrong in the nursing home. Then he has to take care of all the residents when a knob falls off their dresser drawer or their closet door won't open.

There is a lot of better jobs than these, that would cause a lot less worry and heartaches, but these employees are there because they have a heart. They love the residents and care what happens to them. That's the kind of people that our nursing homes need. I would like to thank all of you for a job well done. Keep up the good work!!!!

Friday before last, church services, Joetta Fobbe from Rose Pine, Louisiana, was here to sing a special. She is the grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burl Nash. Then Mrs. Eva Nell Fobbe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burl Nash, sang a special with her mother and Dad. Brother John Spannback brought the message in church last Friday. Both services brought a full house and was enjoyed by all.

Bingo winners last week were: Ida Hughes, Ella McDaniel, Mattie Sue Williams, Lewis Davis, Gordon Elliott and Burl Ashworth.

Last Thursday night Bob Clifton, Gordon Elliott, Easter Collier and Clara Vinson went to Holiday Pines to do their monthly dance. We'd like to thank Holiday Pines for the invitation, our residents really enjoyed it.

Wana Whitson, with the Allan Shivers Library, brought a movie for our residents. The movie was entitled "Manitoba" and was about the wilderness of Canada.

Tuesday evening, our MHRM group went to the park for a B.B.Q. The menu consisted of B.B.Q. beef potato salad, baked beans, pickles and homemade ice cream.

New residents in the home are Jethro Homes and Lillie A. Simpson.

We would like to send our deepest sympathy to the family of Mrs. Alma Watts, Lester Norris, for the loss of their loved ones. May God be with each of you!

Working Women Making Progress

WASHINGTON—The progress women of many nations are making in achieving greater opportunity and equality in the working world is described in a new publication released by the Labor Department.

The "One World of Working Women," by Anne H. Nelson of Cornell University, is the first in a series of occasional monographs in which the department will report on labor conditions in other countries pertinent to developments in the U.S. Through the series, the department hopes to stimulate discussion, encourage further study and provide policy makers inside and out of the government with useful information and analyses.

In her monograph, Nelson reports that working women around the world have found they have much in common. She indicates that the same kinds of discrimination exist in both developed and developing nations and working women in both have "the same practical needs to ease their household loads, buy and keep equipment, child care jobs that can't be fitted around their family schedules, and the chance to train for upgrading."

Among the issues Nelson discusses are wage discrimination between men and women, the need for more women in decision-making posts, equal pay for work of equal value, litigation as a tool for correction of employment discrimination, the Swedish approach to women's equality, and the necessity for more extensive child care facilities to attract married women into the labor market.

Nelson also assesses the progress made by international organizations and trade unions in promoting equality of opportunity for women. She also discusses the need for women workers in every country to form networks through which they can provide help to one another and develop a political base. Nelson concludes that government policies will need to respond to the new consensus for changes in women's roles because "there is no doubt that women are no longer satisfied with their traditional roles" and "a massive social revolution is underway."

Copies of the 15-page monograph may be purchased at $1.10 a copy from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, upon giving stock number 25-700-0024. There is a 25% discount for orders of 100 copies or over.

Scope: The staff at nursing homes. A lot of people complain and gripe about employees in nursing homes. I think these people should be complemented on a job well done. Their jobs can really be something at times, but these people are there because they CARE!!!!

Take the administrator. For instance: She really has a load on her shoulder. She has to take care of about 100 residents and about half that many employees everyday, plus all the inspectors and paper work. Then in nursing homes, like all other jobs, there are complaints. These are all left up to the administrator to take care of. They give out medication to the people in nursing homes. They keep the bathrooms clean and all the trash emptied. They really have it rough cleaning up all day long.

Then comes the laundry staff. These people burn up all day long hovering over washers and dryers. They not only have all the patient's clothes to do, but all the washcloths, towels, sheets, pillow cases and blankets etc. That really adds up when your nursing home holds around a hundred people. They have to put up with all the different complaints when Mrs. Jones' dress was put into Mrs. Smith's closet by mistake.

Last, but not least, there's the maintenance man. He really has his hands full. Mowing the grass, fixing the plumbing and anything else that goes wrong in the nursing home. Then he has to take care of all the residents when a knob falls off their dresser drawer or their closet door won't open.

There is a lot of better jobs than these, that would cause a lot less worry and heartaches, but these employees are there because they have a heart. They love the residents and care what happens to them. That's the kind of people that our nursing homes need. I would like to thank all of you for a job well done. Keep up the good work!!!!

Newcomer News

It's "back-to-school time" again and I'm sure everyone is ready, well, at least nearly everyone and we are sure the "Mothers" are. There are a lot of newcomers to Tyler County who are getting ready for their first visit to the Woodville Schools.

David and Ann Barnes and their one year old son, Damon, are new to Woodville, after leaving Austin, Texas, where they were in school assistant football coach. He recently coached in the Round Rock Independent School District. The Barnes are Methodists.

The Pairview Baptist Church is proud of its new members, LeRoy and Laura Way and their thirteen year old son, Davey. The Ways moved to the Dam B area after leaving Austin where Mr. Way had a janitorial business. They have three other children who are married and are living out of the area.

Twenty-four year old Charles Colmescell, an associate forester with International Papers in Duquette. He comes from Bryan where he recently received his Masters degree in Natural Resource Development at Texas A&M. Originally he comes from Ruston, Louisiana. Mr. Colvin attends the First Baptist Church. Moving from Houston, Mr. Tom B. Burke, Jr. He is the News Director at KVLL Radio Station.

Max and Sherry Greiner, Ne. left Los Angeles and are living in Woodville where Mr. Greiner is self-employed with the Creative Design Concept. They've lived here since May.

Charles and Nancy Turner and their son, Jason, left Tyler County and moved to Colmescell. He works for the forest service.

Thurston and Bessie Coyle left Cincinnati, Ohio after Mr. Coyle retired as a truck driver. They live in Woodville.

Mr. Behrent Jorgensen is originally from Copenhagen, Denmark, but is now living in Woodville, where he is a flight instructor. He is twenty-two years old and is a pilot. Coming to Woodville are Jack and Gertrude DeBoer, who moved here from Benton, Arkansas. Mr. DeBoer is a retired woodworker who was employed by Dyke Brothers in Little Rock, and Mrs. DeBoer is retired from employment with Gibson's.

Do you know of a new neighbor or just an acquaintance if so, please notify us at 283-5164 or 283-2064. We appreciate it and the newcomers will too.

Ramblin' Round Rockland

Hello again from Rockland where we've had a busy and exciting week at the Baptist Church and there's more to come. Homocooling is coming at the Baptist Church on September 17, so there are big things going on over there. Last week, new paneling in the Sunday School rooms was added to our new new cushions and this week we are adding new carpet. The workers on the paneling project, including J.B. Dean, Ralph Dean, Preston Dean, Booner Brooks, Roy Thompkins and Ben Kenna, really have done a fantastic job. Do join us on the 17th for our annual homecoming. There were 44 in church on Sunday and we had a wonderful service. We were happy to welcome back those who have been ill like Henry Holbrook and Elvera Williams and to have a special new guest Tracy Marshall, who came with Susan Marshall and their great-grandmother, Mrs. Ida Guinn. It was a wonderful Lord's Day.

Chester Skinner returned home Friday from Orange after a pleasant visit with his children Mr. and Mrs. Keith Forcye, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Arlon and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Skinner. He also welcomed a new grandson during his visit which was born to Mr. and Mrs. Gene Skinner recently.

There will be a housewarming and household shower for Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Gilchrist, Jr. at the Baptist Church Thursday, August 31 from 2 to 4 p.m. The Gilchrist's lost their home and its furnishings by fire recently. They have bought another home in our vicinity and are getting resettled. Our prayers and best wishes are with them.

Paul Guinn left Monday for Houston for his regular check up at M.D. Anderson Hospital. He, too, has our prayers and best wishes. Mr. and Mrs. G.H. Henderson returned Friday after having their regular check up from their doctors, his being in New Orleans and hers in Houston.

On Sunday, August 20, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Tompkins and family and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Skinner returned home Friday from Orange after a pleasant visit with his children Mr. and Mrs. Keith Forcye, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Arlon and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Skinner.

CATTLE NUMBERS CONTINUE DECLINE—Cattlemen are continuing to reduce their herds, but some signs point toward a buildup by next year, contends a livestock marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Total cattle and calves inventoried on July 1 were 1.6 percent below a year ago while beef cows were down 9 percent from a year ago in some states, and this might be signaling an end to the old cattle cycle which began in 1967.

FERTILIZER FOR QUALITY FALL HAY—High quality hay can be produced in the fall with good moisture and plenty of fertilizer, says a forage specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Apply nitrogen fertilizer at the rate of at least 50 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre (150 pounds of ammonium sulfate). Levels of production, protein and digestibility of fall-produced pasture hay tend to be near spring levels if sufficient fertilizer is applied and timely rains fall.

KEEP LANDSCAPES SIMPLE—Plan a landscape for easy maintenance, save time, money and work, notes a landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Group plantings of shrubs, trees and flowers are easy to care for and give a landscape a look of unity. Slow growing or dwarf plants require less pruning. Mulches around plants keep weeds down and moisture in the soil. White bricks, stone or concrete edging around trees and shrubs make mowing and trimming easier.

Colmesneil News

A new business in Colmesneil will open its doors on Friday, Sept. 1, in the building formerly occupied by a barber shop next to the cafe. The name is to be "Nan's Gift Shop" and a large variety of articles for your home or for gifts will be provided. Nan is the lovely Nancy Turner who, with her husband, Charles, came from the coast region a few months ago. You are invited to visit this shop, meet this lovely couple and see her beautiful display of gifts.

A drive through the high school grounds will verify the reports that something has been added there through the summer. A lovely new sign will soon be available for use and four class rooms have been added to the grammar school building, along with much work on the grounds.

The youth director at First Baptist Church through the week of Sept. 1, Taylor W. W. left Monday for his home in Texas. Taylor W. W. has been employed by the church for several years. He has been a great help in the church's youth work and will be missed. Taylor W. W. is a member of the church and will be returning to his home in Texas on Friday, Sept. 1.

A group of about 20 people gathered at the church on Sunday, Sept. 2, for a "Family Night" supper. The supper was held in the church's dining room and was a great success. The church's youth work is always a success and this year was no exception. The church's youth work is always a success and this year was no exception.

Star Scene

Richard Schaal. You know the face, you've seen it hundreds of times on TV in a raft of programs from the Mary Tyler Moore stable and guesting around on such shows as "Switch." You also have heard the name a lot lately... as Dick's amicable divorcee from Valerie. "Rhoda" Harper hit the news wires, columns and television interrogators. This fall, however, a new syndicated Viacom series; "Please Stand By," gets Dick's face and name together in a situation comedy co-starring Elinor Donahue. Elinor (who as a kid was "Princess" on "Father Knows Best") plays the wife who coaxed ad man (Schaal) to give up a big city salary to take a head of a minor TV station. He has to do zany stunts to keep his station on the air. Dick is soft-spoken and gentle... and when he swears "Please Stand By" is funny as well as warm, you tend to believe him.

His appearance last spring as an undercover cop earned him an Emmy Awards "Best Actor" nomination... and a deal to star in four more specials, as the same character, for NBC, in the "Police Story" saga, which now airs, not weekly, but as occasional specials.

Miss Prissy: From Tara to Children's TV

By JOAN GEOGHEGAN

"Ladwy, Miss Scarlett, I don't know nothing 'bout birthin' babies. Ma used to let me watch, but I didn't help," whined Miss Prissy's distinctive voice in David O. Selznick's epic "Gone With the Wind." Today, 40 years later, Butterfly McQueen talks with the same high-pitched voice when she appears in the ABC Saturday morning special "The Seven Wishes of Joanna Peabody," on Sept. 9.

"Oh I do hope they make a series out of it!" Butterfly says as she explains her role in "Seven Wishes." She plays a fairy god-mother type, Aunt Thelma, who reaches out from the television screen to grant seven special wishes to a Harlem girl, Joanna Peabody — an offer Joanna learns carries some strings with it.

Dressed in a blue and white dress with matching turban, Butterfly flutters from an excited description of "Seven Wishes" to nostalgia for "Gone With the Wind." She is as ethereal as her name. She turns down coffee and asks for water. Butterfly has been an avid health food fan for the past 40 years. But she rummages in a big plastic bag when the questions turn to her role in "Gone With the Wind," and she fishes out a marvelous collection of film photos sent to her by fans. There's Clark Gable, Vivien Leigh, Olivia de Havilland and Hattie McDaniel.

Wife for Sale, the Ultimate Mistake

"For my part, I don't see why men who have wives shouldn't get rid of 'em as these gypsy fellows do their horses."

That outrageous statement launches "The Mayor of Casterbridge" on Masterpiece Theater on PBS Sunday evening, Sept. 3. Even more outrageously, it's implemented. Michael Henchard, portrayed by film star Alan Bates, sells his wife (Anne Stallybrass) and infant daughter to a sailor for five guineas. Sounds like pure invention, doesn't it? The ultimate degradation of women, fiendishly plotted by a male chauvinist author just to get his story started?

Incredibly, it isn't. Nineteenth-century novelist Thomas Hardy has solid historical documentation for the famous shocking scene that opens the Mobil-funded PBS seven-part.

He found it in the County Chronicle of his native Dorset, model for the fictional Casterbridge. "Selling Wife at Buckland, nr. Frome," the article read, "a laboring man named Charles Pierce sold wife to shoemaker named Elton for five lbs. and delivered her in a halter on the street. She seemed very willing. Balls rang."

The article appeared in the 1820s, about the time that the practice of wife-selling was outlawed in England, with anyone caught exchanging his spouse for legal tender liable for a two-year jail sentence. But it continued well into the 1900s, according to Oxford University's Samuel Menefee. Novelist Hardy omitted some of the more horrible aspects that Menefee's research into five centuries of wife-selling in England turned up. He softened the scene by making Michael Henchard act on drunken impulse. Real-life wife-sellers knew exactly what they were doing, and had the whole money-making transaction all planned. Some were sold by weight, like the cattle into whose pens they were herded for sale. At the going rate of about two pence a pound, the sailor who bought Michael Henchard's wife in "The Mayor of Casterbridge" overpaid considerably. But the real price, as audiences will be seeing on Masterpiece Theater, was paid by Henchard, who charted his own inescapable tragic fall the moment he exchanged his wife for a handful of silver. Alan Bates comments on the role, "Henchard is one of the great figures of world literature. He does this one rash thing — selling off his wife and child at a fair in a state of drunkenness — and it ruins him. In every emotional crisis he faces as his life progresses he makes the wrong decision. There is a perversity in his nature. He becomes driven into a state of paranoia which causes him to go wrong in everything." "The Mayor of Casterbridge" is one of the 44-year-old blue-eyed British star's comparatively rare TV roles and one of his favorites. Today's audiences know him best as the charming Soflo artist who romanced Jill Clayburgh in the film "An Unmarried Woman."

This is also his second role as a Thomas Hardy character. After starring in the film based on that famous author's "Far From the Madding Crowd" Bates decided that Casterbridge's Michael Henchard was the most intriguing of all Hardy's characters.

Among his other notable film roles have been "Zorba the Greek," "Georgy Girl," "The Fixer," "Women in Love" and "The Go-Between."

His co-star, Anne Stallybrass, is also in a comfortable role. As suffering spouse Susan Henchard, she's appearing as yet another down-trodden wife. She maintains, "Everybody who knows me will tell you I am not a bit long-suffering." Anne started enduring the slings and arrows of outrageous spouses as Jane Seymour, who died of childbirth in "The Onedin Line." Her lot as the wife of the faustical poet John Milton in "Paradise Restored" on PBS's Classic Theater was no bed of roses, and she didn't fare any better as the humiliated Mrs. Johann Strauss of "The Strauss Family."

Pan Into Series Role for Vincent Baggetta

By DAN LEWIS

As an aggressive young actor making his way in theater in New York, Vincent Baggetta had various means to cope and survive. He drove a cab to earn his keep and, when he felt the urge to pamper himself with an exotic meal, he had a quaint method of extracting his pleasure from some of Manhattan's better dining establishments.

"I carried a dead cockroach in a bag into the restaurant," Baggetta recalls, further explaining he would also be accompanied by several equally self-serving friends. "Near the end of elegant meal, I would deviously slip the cockroach out of the bag, place it in one of the dishes, and call the waiter. Then, horrified, I would point to the dead insect."

It usually worked, Baggetta recalled. The embarrassed establishment would calm its "angered" patron by picking up the tab.

His caddy experiences were not nearly as playful. After he was held up for the second time by a guy with a knife and a gal with a gun, he gave it up.

"I knew what terror felt like then," Vince said. "It was an awful feeling. They didn't do anything, except they took $22 from me — my early fares."

After the pair fled Vince remembers, the fear faded and he got angry. "There I was, only 22 years old, trying to make a living, and suddenly I thought while facing the gun and the knife that I'm going to die." That ended his former happy experience as a cab driver.

But the experience of fear proved his disguised asset. "In terms of acting, those encounters with the taxi bandits helped me react when I was called upon to do terror," says Baggetta.

Baggetta will star in "The Eddie Capra Mysteries," which NBC will air every Sunday night starting Sept. 23. Before that, "The Eddie Capra Mysteries" will be an integral part of NBC's "Sneak ABC is ready to premiere a new fall schedule this year. It won't be a major revolution, though, since top network ABC will be returning 21 series from last year. Only five new shows will debut in September.

The ABC premiere week for new shows and old favorites starts Monday, Sept. 11, with "Mork & Mindy." However, ABC is holding its biggest property until Sept. 17.

"Battlestar Galactica" is the biggy. It premieres on Sunday, Sept. 17 with a three-hour special. Ratings experts are predicting it will be the smash hit of the season.

Set in the seventh millennium, in galaxies far, far away, the hour-long series depicts the exploits of a group of people who command the spaceship Galactica, aboard which are the last vestiges of their civilization. Struggling to survive in alien galaxies, constantly battling the evil warriors of the dreaded Alliance, they voyage in search of a new destiny and a new freedom toward a new world known as Earth.

Richard Hatch and Dirk Benedict star as two resourceful fighter pilots aboard the Galactica. Lorne Green plays Adama, the Commander of the Galactica, with Maren Jensen as his daughter, Athena. The producer is John Dykstra, winner of an Academy Award for his special effects in "Star Wars."

Also from an outer galaxy is "Mork & Mindy," which will air Monday evenings and stars Robin Williams as Mork, from the planet Ork, and Pam Dawber as Earthling Mindy. Mork made his first appearance at the Cunningham household in an episode of "Happy Days." Now, returned to Earth in 1978, he is on a mission to observe earthlings and only young and lovely Mindy is privy to his true identity.

"Taxi" will be a half-hour character comedy about the personal and professional lives of a group of New York City cab drivers. This mobile comedy airs on Tuesdays.

The Wednesday night ABC addition is "Vegas" with Bob Urich as private investigator Dan Tanna combating crime in the city of neon lights and fast fortunes. Tony Curtis is also a regular cast member.

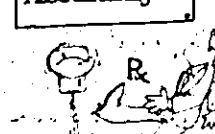

On Saturdays, ABC has lined up a Norman Lear comedy, "Apple Pie." Rue McClanahan stars as Ginger Nell; a Depression-era woman who longs for her own family. And then there's East Eddie, the head of the house and the only voice of reason in this daffy family.

BRITANIA RULES
 England still has the best stars in my book. I'm mad about Nick Tate from "Space 1999," but now that the series is no longer being made what can I do? Where is Nick? — Jenny Mossel, Santa Barbara, Calif.

You could say Tate, who, by the way, is Australian, is lost in space for the time being. But he is making a film in England with another British import you'll be seeing a lot of this fall, Gareth Hunt. Hunt is starring with Patrick MacNee in "The New Avengers," which will air weekly after the late night news. Maybe you can accept him as a substitute for Mr. Tate, until he (hopefully) turns up in your local theater.

BEATLE'S BABES — Could you tell me a couple of personal items about Paul McCartney? The names of all his children and his mother's name. I've read about Paul's father, but never his mother — why? — Jenny Stokes, Moorhead, Minn.
 The reason you may not have read much about McCartney's mother is that she passed away when he was in his early teens (John Lennon's mother died around the same time). Her name was Mary Patricia Mohin before marrying McCartney Sr. Paul and Linda had three children together — Mary, Stella and James. Linda has a daughter, Heather, by her first marriage. Paul has since adopted Heather as well.

SHINING STAR — I would like to write to Liberace — somewhere the letter might reach him personally. Can you give me such an address? — Arliss Barber, Red Bank, N.J.
 It's against procedure and good judgement to give out home addresses — you wouldn't want yours published, right? But I'll give you Wlad Ziu Valentino (now you know why he shortened his name) Liberace's office: It's 4993 Wilbur St., Las Vegas, Nev. 89119.

GOOFED ON GIBB — You recently answered a question about the Bee Gees and said that out of the Gibb's Barry was the oldest and Andy was the youngest. That's not true. They have an older sister, Leslie, who is 34, and a younger sister, Berri, who is 13. — Melissa Fenn, Woodbury, Conn.

If I goofed it was only in misinterpreting the question. I assumed the question referred to the famed singing siblings in the clan — the Bee Gees and Andy. My apologies to the female Gibbs.

Send your questions to TV Dialogue, Pepper O'Brien, NEA, 200 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Sorry but we cannot answer by mail.

JOE'S SHOW

HORRORS — Do you recall a horror-type movie that was on TV some years back with Roy Thinnes as a reporter investigating a sculptor's death? The statue comes alive at the end — remember? Anyway, what was the name of this movie? Also, what was the name of the TV series Thinnes did about UFOs? — Mark Clockridge, Clinton, Iowa.
 Thinnes got clobbered by that great big hunk of clay in "The Norliss Tapes," a 1973 occult oddity made by spook czar Dan Curtis. "The Invaders" was his earlier series, which was not only ahead of its time, but a lot more fun than the likes of "Project U.F.O."

Whew! When three sources fed in reports about Lynda "Wonder Woman" Carter in two days it looked like conflict and chaos. But, with some sorting out, it all adds up... and to Ms. Carter's credit. Report No. 1 (from a Hollywood columnist) said Lynda's act hadn't drawn in the paying Nevada customers during the premiere run... and she and the management were not opting for a second cycle. At least at the moment.
 "The fault is the format's, not Lynda's," said a booking agent over lunch yesterday in the Rainbow Room atop NBC. "She's not my client. I don't even know her... but I caught the act. This is talent. She's not a TV personality palming herself off as a singer. This is a real singer. She's good. She has a future."
