County Polls Draw 2832

The statewide choices for governor and senator came up short in the returns in Tyler County voting. Bill Clements and John Tower both finished over 500 votes behind their competitors in Tyler County.

Only 2832 citizens chose to vote in the election Tuesday Nov. 7. The voters also voted on one U.S. Representative seat, the lieutenant governor, attorney general and nine amendments in addition to offices in the county government.

Clements trailed his gubernatorial opponent John Hill by 1653 to 1107. The Republican governor-elect ran stronger than expected in traditionally Democratic East Texas.

Tower was re-elected to his seat in the Senate, although his competitor, Bob Krueger led him in the county by 1633 to 1049. Krueger had made Tower's lack of leadership in the Senate an issue in the election, but the Democratic candidate was not able to generate enough support statewide to unseat the incumbent.

In the race for the seat in the House of Representatives Democratic incumbent Charles Wilson held off Woodville lawyer J. "Matt" Dillon by a considerable margin. In Tyler County Wilson outpolled Dillon 1823 to 896.

The voting for Lieutenant Governor was considerably to the side of the winner Bill Hobby. Hobby had 1971 votes to 603 for challenger G. Marshall. In the expected battle for Attorney General Mark White finished over 1000 votes ahead of challenger Jim Baker. The voting had 1836 for White and 822 for Baker.

In the race for state senator and state representative the Democratic candidates ran unopposed. Roy Blake garnered 1945 votes for senator, and Jim Browder had 1995 for representative.

Local officials also ran unopposed for their positions. County clerk Grace Bostick had 2144 votes. County judge Allen Sturrock received 2160 votes. County attorney Rols Brockman also was returned to office gaining 2067 votes.

District clerk Pat Brown also returns garnering 2139 votes. Austin Fuller, county treasurer, received 2116 votes, and District 1A judge Monte Lawlis had 1912 votes.

In precinct voting John Spanhanks was elected Justice of the Peace, precinct 1, with 587 votes. Kenneth Lowe was elected commissioner, precinct 2, with 537 votes. Frank Grimes was chosen Justice of the Peace, precinct 3, with 381 votes.

Adnell Odom was chosen commissioner, precinct 4, with 621 votes. Roger Drake is the Justice of the Peace, precinct 4, with 492 votes. G. James was chosen Justice of the Peace, precinct 2, with 529 votes.

County voters approved six of the nine propositions on the ballot. One came out exactly even and two were rejected.

The tax relief amendment was overwhelmingly supported. The vote for was 2061 while only 439 voted against.

Proposition 1 was approved by a vote 1458 to 704. Proposition 4 got 1120 for votes with 1062 voting against. Proposition 6 was also supported in the county with 1193 voting yes and 952 voting no. Proposition 7 got 1030 for and 1020 against, a close race. In the voting on proposition 8 the for vote was 1399, while against was 768.

Proposition 5 was split exactly down the middle. In 1088 voted for it, and 1088 voted against. The two propositions rejected in the voting in the county were proposition 2 and 3. Proposition 2 was turned down 993 to 1162. Number 3 was turned down 873 to 1285.

For further information about the Tyler County Housing office, persons are asked to call 283-2924.

WOODVILLE CITY FATHERS are given a report by David Waxman of Jasper. (top photo) which notified them of the receipt of a $1.5 million dollar HUD grant the city will receive. In the other picture, Mr. Freeman of Houston, is presenting to the council, a proposed low income housing project which is being considered as a privately funded project by a group of businessmen.

Woodville Awarded $1.5 Million Grant

Woodville City Council met in regular monthly session Monday and were publicly informed that the city has been granted the $1.5 million Community Development block grant to be awarded at $500,000 each year for the next three years.

Waxman said that before the city can draw money for the projects that the city would have to go through a letter of credit procedure after which the money would be funneled into the depository for the city.

Waxman reported to the council that all the environmental portions of the application have been cleared and are "no longer in the way" of the process.

The city is environmentally released for all three years of the program," Waxman said.

Waxman said the grant was virtually guaranteed for the three-year period "Provided that Congress doesn't go out of business or that this program isn't totally disbanded, you will continue to get your $500,000 each year as long as you show the progress that HUD requires for the program."

Waxman said that one of the first steps would be to survey and get together the housing rehabilitation group. Waxman said, "We have a pretty well defined housing development program."

HUD wants you to be successful with the program and they will be wanting us to perform according to the program.

In other business the council heard a request from John B. Smith, of Woodville, who questioned the council about recent increases in water rates describing hardships placed on the elderly who are living on fixed incomes.

Smith called the water rate increase very unpopular jumping from $3 to $5.

"There is just so much that a person on fixed income can afford."

Smith said that "Water, bread and milk are necessities. People are now thinking of giving up their burial insurances and their telephone."

The council fielded Smith's questions tagging each increase in the past few years as "pass-through" charges from inflationary costs to the city because of fuel charges and electrical rate increases. Smith admitted he had no answers to the "mouthful of questions he brought" but that if petitions bearing the names of persons who wanted to see the charges reduced would help, then he would bring them next month. "Is this rate really necessary and what can the city do in return for the peoples sacrifices?"

Smith seemed surprised when City Manager Walt Davis reported that the city had to pay for $100,000 of Federally required deficiencies in the towns' gas system. The council voted to expend that money for those corrections following Smith's questioning at the meeting. He said he couldn't figure out how the Federal Government could be blamed for the increase in costs.

In other business the council agreed to:

- purchase a "jaws-of-life" rescue tool for a purchase price of $6,000.
- authorize a $300 expenditure in support of a gospel singing convention which was deemed important by the Tyler County Chamber of Commerce.
- approved an ordinance to close in conjunction with the school year from the hours of 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. a portion of Hyde Street, to permit school children to cross safely.

In other business the council heard a location request from Lewis Hudson, regarding placement of low-rent subsidiary housing north of Beech Street near the location of the new high school.

Highway 69 South of Warren was the scene of the 5th fatal accident in Tyler County in 1978. Gary Wayne Gooch, 17, of Kountze was dead on the scene. Friday, Nov. 10 at about 1 p.m. Gooch was travelling South on the highway when he apparently crossed over the yellow dividing line and hit a diesel truck heading north head on. The picture above shows the remains of the automobile Gooch was driving. Last year Tyler County recorded 11 fatal accidents for the year.

Tuesday, November 14 at 8 a.m., the trailer brakes on this Southern Pacific truck locked and caused the vehicle to jackknife. Southern Pacific driver, Bobby Joe Hanson of Mesquite, was southbound on Hwy. 69 in Doucette behind a school bus when the brakes locked. No one was injured in this rainy morning accident.

For Fred Post Office

Bids Sought To Build, Lease

FRED, TX.—The U. S. Postal Service is again asking for offers to lease space in an existing building or a newly constructed building at ground level for the main post office in Fred. Postmaster O.L. Morrison said here.

A contract was awarded in July to The Williams Company, P.O. Box 1650, Woodville, Tx. 75797, to build and lease the new post office; however, the firm has defaulted on the contract which has required re-advertising of the project.

Under the Postal Service "open advertising" program for leased facilities, prospective bidders are asked to offer building and maneuver area or site and construction bids as a single package. No public bid opening is held.

Bid packages are to be submitted no later than November 30, 1978, to Ray F. Barnes, realty management and acquisition analyst, Field Real Estate and Buildings Office, U.S. Postal Service, P.O. Drawer 239, Dallas, Tx. 75221.

An existing building should have approximately 1,400 sq. ft. of interior floor space with 120 sq. ft. of platform area at ground level and about 7,000 to 8,000 sq. ft. of parking and maneuver area available for postal use.

For a newly constructed building, the site should have 15,000 sq. ft. of land, or a lot with dimensions of approximately 100 ft. by 150 ft. The building will have 1,400 sq. ft. of interior floor space with 120 sq. ft. of platform area. It will be built with private funds and leased to the Postal Service.

The preferred location is within the general area of the present post office located on State Hwy. 92 about one mile north of FM 1943.

The proposed new post office space will be leased to the Postal Service for a basic period of 10 years with renewal options for 20 additional years.

Commissioners Hold Routine Session

Tyler County Commissioners met in regular session Monday and awarded an uncontracted bid to the Eastex Division of Temple-Eastex Inc. to supply paper for copy machines at the courthouse.

Eastex made an offer of $2.75 per ream for 8 1/2 x 14 inch sheets and $2.16 per ream for 8 1/2 x 11 inch sheets. Commissioners failed to agree to fund a beacon for the Tyler County airport saying they didn't have the money.

The meeting ended after canvassing election results and approval of the treasurers report.

Notes From An Oldtimer

BY PHEBE ARMSTRONG

For forty years the young ones who started to school in the first grade in Woodville had handwriting pretty much alike. If anyone showed up in school writing the Palmer method or a backward, that person was likely to be branded a yankee - at least it was a sure thing he or she hadn't started to school to Miss Myrtis Triplett. Miss Myrtis set the copy on the blackboard and everyone strove to imitate with state pencil and state plain round letters. Even after later exposure to push-pulls and ovals in the muscular method of writing, the influence of that first copy can still be discerned in the penmanship of many of her former students.

Over a period of twenty years all nine in our family started our school career with Miss Myrtis. She was our neighbor when the last three of us entered the first grade.

Miss Myrtis started teaching in the Woodville school in 1894 when she was barely seventeen. Orphaned in her early teens she was both mother and sister to the younger members of her family. Her husband, but a baby, while Miss Myrtis knew all about the youngsters in her classes, there was a great deal about Miss Myrtis we never knew. Miss Myrtis never married and the why and whereof of her life was the topic of frequent conversation among the small fry. The stories that were passed around of Miss Myrtis' lost loves would have filled a book. The one about the sea captain who was scuttled with his ship was in my mind the most romantic.

It never seemed to occur to anyone there might have been a simple answer to that important question but she was so burdened with caring for her family and teaching school that marriage for her was out of the question.

Miss Myrtis knew not only the children and their parents but even their ancestry. Once, when filling out an enrollment card, in the space for "nationality" I wrote "Scotch-Irish and Indian." Miss Myrtis went to Maria to find out the reason. I couldn't understand why they laughed. It seemed perfectly logical to me. Uncle Dick had been an Indian scout, hadn't he? Didn't that make me part Indian?

Whenever close the families were outside of school, when Miss Myrtis took her seat behind her desk on its raised platform in the corner of her room, she was all business. There were no pets. She meted out punishment with an even hand. Her job was to teach children to read, write, spell, and do arithmetic. There were no social promotions. No one got out of her room without having acquired the skills she considered necessary to do the next grade's work.

And she was fair. Once, in the spelling line a new girl was given the word "egg." The child spilled it - "e-g-g." The girl's face turned red with embarrassment when the rittering and giggling broke out. Miss Myrtis rapped for silence. "That is the correct way to spell the word," she said sternly. "I have let you say 'e-double-g' because that has been the custom here. From now on you, too, will have to spell that word as properly."

Miss Myrtis had a good business head on her shoulders, also. On her meager salary she managed to put aside enough to become a sort of unofficial money-lender. There were other moneylenders in town then, but their interest rates were considered exorbitant, and people who were in a financial bind had no collateral other than their farms sometimes found themselves bereft of their property when they were unable to meet their notes on time. Not so with Miss Myrtis. If a man was trustworthy, she would lend him money at reasonable interest without collateral. She didn't get rich that way, but she didn't lose, either. She was much admired and respected by everyone.

In 1939, the year that death took Miss Myrtis, a new school house was being built. A scroll with the signatures of as many of her former students as could be reached was placed in the cornerstone of the new building. This was the building of native stone quarried at Rockland that later burned. Wherever the scroll is now, it honors the memory of one who has such a tremendous though quiet impact on forty years of first-graders in our town.

Alan Miller's T-WHEELER

By ALAN MILLER, Director, Public Information, Simple-Taxist Income

This is one of those stories I wish I hadn't heard second hand. It would have been so great just being there when it happened.

There was a group of East Texas big game hunters, who were lucky enough to receive hunting permits on a "magnificent" private game ranch near Sheridan, Wyoming.

We've been in that part of the country. And it is gorgeous. High plains, the Big Horn Mountains, reaching to the sky. You can see for miles in every direction.

The ranch was 70,000 acres, small by Texas standards, but stocked with elk, mule deer, antelope and other game in prodigious numbers. Our intrepid hunters, I don't have all the facts, but our hunting party was anticipating accommodations somewhat like the Ponderosa, maybe not with Lorne Greene greeting them from the front porch, but something pretty classy, at least. (Makes you wonder how much the permit cost, doesn't it.)

I gather they arrived at their destination in the middle of the night because the ranchhouse was a little bity place, rammed by a Ma Kettle type, and her several sons, and a yard full of dogs.

The bunkhouse was a disaster. Ready to fall down and knee deep in dirty socks, and other items. Hadn't been cleaned or swept out in months. All of our hunting party's gear was at a hunting camp twelve miles away.

Meals were something else, too. Apparently, the woman was a fairly good cook, but the dishwasher was rather primitive. After the meal was served, the cooking utensils were just tossed out in the yard for the dogs to clean up. At that time, maybe the dishes were too, but I don't know.

My informant says Mother and sons argued all the time; the language turned blue, and everything was settled with a big drink. And I think the meat, the Gatorade, in the building, the drinking, (by the hosts of course), started at eight in the morning, and when they had enough, they just curled up on the floor, pulled up a blanket, and snoozed until the next morning.

Baths were unheard of while they were there. Guess they just made sure they were standing downwind.

Says one night they went out on the town. Out on the town was to Decker, twelve miles of dirt road away. Decker consisted of one saloon.

One of our hunters who had signed up for a week's stay, was home in three days. Some of the others had a hard time concentrating on the hunt. All they could think about was a hot bath. And the guides just keep feeding and fighting.

One of my Texas friends who was there said he had it all figured out. General Custer lost the battle of the Little Big Horn. It was just too pooped after climbing all those darn hills.

A lot of the things my friends said about their Wyoming trip wouldn't print in a family newspaper. Between the dogs, the bunkhouse, Ma Kettle and her tipsy sons, I gather it was quite a week.

But that does come back to me. But I imagine before they got West again together, somebody will make an earlier trip and reconnoiter the area.

But then again, fellas, you'll always remember that you shared your dinner with a houseful of blue-tick hounds. Not many of us can claim that distinction.

Anthony Harrigan SENSING THE QUES

Though President Carter vetoed the public works bill, on the ground that it represented a " pork barrel" approach to spending, he used his political muscle to obtain passage of $7.4 billion in foreign pork barrel legislation.

This is the new foreign aid bill.

The vetoed public works bill contained a great variety of items, including water and flood control projects - some desirable and others unnecessary. If we have the money to spend we ought to help our own people first.

To give Mr. Carter due credit, many of the proposed and ongoing water and navigation projects such as the Tennessee-Tombigbee project, have represented an unrecoutable waste of public funds.

On the other hand, the foreign aid giveaway attitude of the Carter administration is shocking and unacceptable. Sen. Milton Young of North Dakota, angered by Mr. Carter's veto of the public works bill, pointed out that the administration wanted to spend more than $10 billion for "public works" projects all over the world, including a $1 billion reclamation project in Pakistan.

The Senator rightly said: "If we have the money to spend we ought to help our own people first."

The affected states will have to do without these projects for the time being, and perhaps permanently.

But the taxpayers in these states will not be unmindful of the fact that the Carter administration has generously provided for public works in numerous countries around the world.

Executive Orders Issued

On November 8, President Carter issued an Executive Order which establishes the standards and guidelines to be used in the selection of nominees for U.S. district court judgeships.

The order puts the Administration on record as favoring the establishment throughout the nation of commissions which would screen potential candidates for district judgeships. The commissions would be independent bodies which would review candidates on the basis of merit.

This represents another step in the President's efforts to establish the merit system nationwide in the selection of federal judges.

Traditionally, selection of appeals court and district court judges and judicial officers has been a prerogative of Congress - specifically the Senate.

Get To Know Your Children's Teachers

Parents and teachers know each other -- for children's teachers are people, too.

Work together as a team and share ideas about the child's needs and interests. To make learning more meaningful for the child, both school and at home, the specialist adds.

When parents and teachers inform each other of these interests, then both can make those interests work for the child's benefit, she says.

Also knowing what the child encounters in each place and how he reacts can help both parents and teachers better understand and help the child. Ms. Lamson says.

For example, when parents learn of a school incident or activity that especially interests their child, they can plan other activities, such as trips or talks, to extend the interest.

Students Produce Safety Filmstrip

Fourth grade students in Mrs. Sattie Johnson's class at Woodville Elementary school have produced their own safety filmstrip on traffic safety with materials provided free of charge by the Texas Office of Traffic Safety.

In "The Safest Show on Earth," class members create their own illustrations for a full color sound filmstrip exploring key aspects of passenger, bicycle and pedestrian safety.

The Texas Office of Traffic Safety makes available to the school all necessary materials without cost for the "Safest Show on Earth." After the students finish their illustrations, the drawings are processed into a filmstrip by Media In-teractive Learning Corporation, designers of the program.

The filmstrip is returned to the class originator with drawings, along with a lively soundtrack cassette narrated by the class.

More than a half million children across the nation have participated in the program to date. Initial evidence from evaluation efforts in Texas indicates that the program is contributing to a reduction in traffic accidents among schoolchildren.

All other fourth grade classes of Woodville Elementary are now in the process of completing this same project.

Newton Takes Warren

BY DON WOOD
NEWTON-The high flying Eagles of Newton, the Purple Tide, clinched the District 17-2A championship with a 26 to 8 decision to the Warren Warriors, who are in the cellar in the same district.

The Eagles, the state's No. 1 Class 2A power, now stand at 9-0 in the season and 5-0 in District play. They will warm up for the Class 2A playoffs next week as it ends the regular season against the Kirbyville Wildcats.

Newton scored one touch-

The Eagles first touch-down came on a 57 yard punt return by Terry Lathan in the first quarter. The extra point failed, giving Newton a 6-0 lead.

In the second period, Newton drove 71 yards with Ricky Sells hitting Pat Gram for 65 yards. Sells then added the touchdown on a one yard plunge into the end-zone.

The PAT was unsuccessful, putting the Eagles

Colmesneil added some insurance points on the board as Chester Marshall hit a 13 yard scoring pass to Kevin Davis for the TD. The PAT was unsuccessful, boosting Colmesneil ahead by the score of 27 to 0.

The PAT was unsuccessful, mounting a scoring drive and were able to put some points on the board later in the third quarter, as Randy Deslate burst in from the 15 yard line. The two point conversion attempt was made good as Ricky Cooner carried the ball in for Sabine Pass, to make the score 27 to 8.

Marshall - once again found his way into the end-zone, as he scored from the 15 yard line to put the Bulldogs ahead 33 to 8, the extra point failing.

Cold Water Drownings Can Happen

ADUSTIN-The need to be alert about water safety does not lessen when summer comes to an end. Drownings occur more often in the warmer months, but the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department says an increasing number of fatalities is being registered in winter.

The cause of 75 percent of cold-weather drownings is hypothermia.

This condition is defined as rapid loss of core body temperature, which means the body loses heat faster than it can produce it, rapidly exhausting energy reserves.

Waterfowl hunters as well as fishermen can be affected if they are suddenly in the water. The critical low body temperature is 93 degrees, which can be reached after only three hours in 50-degree water if a person remains relatively still, or after he has reached about one mile if he attempts to swim.

Texas waters can drop to the fifties by mid-December and coldest average water temperatures are registered in January.

SHORT GAINER-Victor Hadnot, fullback for the Woodville Eagles, fights his way through a hole in the Wolves defense for a short gain. Woodville Over San Augustine

BY DON WOOD
SAN AUGUSTINE-The Woodville Eagles closed out the season with a 27 to 14 victory over the San Augustine Wolves, to assure the Eagles at least a third place spot in District standings.

The Eagles took advantage of eight turnovers by the careless Wolves to finish the season with a season record of 6-3, and a District mark of 4-2.

The loss by the Wolves drop their record to 3-5 in the first quarter on a halfback pass thrown by Buster Moyer to Jimmy Menefee, who caught the ball in the endzone. However, the officials seemed to doubt the validity of this play and called it back.

San Augustine took advantage of this break and put the first points on the board in the first quarter, as half-back Michael Curt took the ball 10 yards to the endzone, a touchdown whose conversion attempt failed, giving the Wolves a 6 to 0 lead.

However, the Wolves refused to give up, and they chalked up six points when Curt tied the game up when he carried the ball in for

The Hocus Pocus Of Athletics

"Fat what you need, then what you want," the researcher said as he showed slides of pizza, spaghetti, hamburgers and steaks - all nutritious foods.

Vigorous exercise doesn't increase the body's need for anything except water and energy.

Many of the high school students he works with have problems meeting their basic nutritional needs. Smith reported that 32 percent of male and female athletes he worked with did not eat breakfast; 20 percent did not eat lunch; 50 percent eat candy; and 60 percent took vitamin supplements.

The best suggestion, he could give to young athletes is to have a good diet with plenty of water.

"A well fed and hydrated kid can have a more successful season than one with poor dietary habits and the same amount of conditioning," he said. "While both athletes may be evenly matched at the beginning of the competition, the better nourished individual will have the energy reserves needed to win."

You And Your Credit

HELPFUL SUGGESTIONS

Credit is something like fire. It can keep your house warm or burn it down—depending on how it is used. Experts point out that it should not be a scheme to spend more than you earn. It should be used only when you are spending less than you earn.

To find out how you may join, experts at the National Association of Federal Credit Unions point out that you should first find out where you work. Then check any civic or religious organizations you belong to. Chances are you are a member of some group that has a credit union without even knowing it.

First Aid Tips On Carpet Care

Black spots will appear on new carpets, no matter what precautions you take. When they do, it's important to act quickly to remove them before they set.

Here are some tips for specific types of spots: 1. Animal accidents. Sponged the stained areas with several applications of clean, lukewarm water. Use a clean, damp cloth to absorb as much of the moisture as possible; and then apply Formula 2 as directed.

Sperry and Hutcheson, who devised these remedies in response to consumer questions. When a color change takes place, however, no further treatment can restore it.

6. Furniture Dye Stains. Wood dyes and stains from bottoms of chair and table legs sometimes spot carpets. When these occur, consult your rug cleaner.

Children's Decisions

COLLEGE STATION—Children learn decision making from observing how adults make decisions, reports a family life education specialist.

It is a big "plus" for children if they grow up in an environment where the skills of quality decision making are practiced, Jenny Reinhardt says.

However, if children aren't that fortunate, it's possible to modify or acquire new skills.

Miss Reinhardt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

She suggests these steps to follow to become a more efficient and effective decision maker:

- 1) Recognize that you have options. Thinking that there are several different choices makes decision making easier.
- 2) Be open to re-decision. There rarely are issues that are forever resolved.
- 3) Learn to base decisions on facts—not emotions. Consider the facts that affect the issue, make the decision and then allow feelings and emotions to flow. In other words, deal with the facts, and then celebrate.
- 4) Evaluate options. Look at the best and worst that could happen if a certain option is chosen.
- 5) Take the initiative. By being on the offensive in decision making, we improve our chances of getting what we want.

Exercise Precaution Needed

COLLEGE STATION—Exercise—but take some precautions before beginning any program.

Recently people have become interested in a variety of exercises including jogging, racquet ball, tennis, swimming, and many more, to promote physical fitness, points out Carl Shearer, a health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Everyone needs exercise on a regular basis; however, they should exercise some precautions when entering into any program, the specialist advises.

Ms. Shearer suggests considering the following before beginning an exercise program:

- 1) Don't try to do too much too soon.
- 2) It's advisable to get a medical check-up before starting a program of vigorous physical activity.
- 3) For those over 35, it's wise to include a cardiogram in the pre-exercise exam.
- 4) Don't push yourself too far.
- 5) Stop exercising immediately if you experience chest fatigue, tremor or pain in the chest, abnormal shortness of breath, lightheadedness or nausea.
- 6) In these cases, check with a doctor again about the exercise that you are doing.
- 7) Although exercise is recommended on a daily basis, when suffering from a cold or fatigue, discontinue vigorous exercising.
- 8) Let the body warm up before strenuous exercise. This period of gradual warm-up minimizes muscle and joint problems. Five to ten minutes is usually sufficient to loosen joints, stretch muscles and speed up circulation.
- 9) After exercising, allow the body time to cool down.
- 10) During vigorous activity, blood goes to the arms and legs. Muscles movement helps the blood return to the heart.
- 11) If the muscular activity is abruptly stopped after vigorous exercise, the return of blood will slow down. By gradual, lessening the strenuousness of the activity, the body can return to its normal condition.
- 12) The key to physical fitness is regular daily exercise—not just on weekends.
- 13) Now-and-then exercise will not help to build and maintain physical fitness.
- 14) In fact, some experts believe if you can't exercise regularly, you may be better off not to exercise at all.
- 15) If it is impossible to do daily exercising, exercise at least three to four days a week alternating rest days and exercise days.
- 16) But, exercising only once a week will usually only provide you with sore muscles.

Family Business Involvement Essential

COLLEGE STATION—Make household business a family affair, suggests Lillian Chenoweth, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Know who the family's financial advisors are: lawyer, banker, accountant and insurance agent, for example.

Review the insurance policies held and determine the kind of policy and amount of coverage needed, the specialist advises.

Understand the maturity dates and the payment of premiums.

Know where the policies are kept and what the policy numbers are, as well as the benefits provided.

The local county Extension office can provide free publications entitled "Setting Your Household in Order, D-855."

This publication provides a form to be used in answering questions about a family's finances.

Completing the form together with a spouse can help women obtain economic independence, Mrs. Chenoweth says.

Also, the forms are useful for singles who wish a record of what they have and where papers are kept, she adds.

Saturday night, November 18, is the date for our annual Thanksgiving supper at the Community Center. Bro. Steve Benfield will be the guest speaker. Everyone is invited to bring his family and friends and enjoy the good food and hour of fellowship as the beginning activity of the Thanksgiving season.

The revival at First Baptist Church during the past week brought a harvest of fifteen professions of faith and several rededications. Bro. Junior Hill from Alabama was the evangelist and the pastor, Bro. James Best Jim and Denise Owens of Atlanta, Georgia, are the parents of James Joshua and Steve and Kathy Kolaski of Summerville, South Carolina, are the parents of Andrew Maglin. Ruth left Saturday to be with her daughter in South Carolina, and will be joined later by her husband for a visit through the Thanksgiving holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Poland and other lovers of music of this vicinity enjoyed the good gospel singing at the Anglin's Singing Convention at Concord Saturday night.

The warmest of sympathies extended to the late Bro. Tom Campbell, who spent the weekend with home folks in Colmesneil.

The local Home Demonstration Club was host to the county council at the Community Center 1:15. An inspiring program, and a delicious luncheon, provided the activities of the day.

Ramblin' 'Round Rockland

Our special guest today was John Grounds and he was a wonderful addition to our youth choir. The Lord has truly blessed our church these last two years. We have an apology to make, but it was really just a combination of mis-ops. Carl May had a birthday last week and our Rockland correspondent was awaiting further details on a party which was given to honor this occasion.

Get well wishes go to Sue Bassett who is in John Sealy Hospital in Galveston. And now to the church news. I hardly know where to begin on the most fantastic day we ever experienced. We are grateful to the church and love them all so much. To add to our joy, John and Wendy Green united with our church during the worship service. We are so glad to welcome them into our fellowship.

Happy birthday to J. A. Winder on the 17th, Alvin Dean and Kenneth Woodson on the 18th, and Paul May on the 19th.

Until next week, take care and God bless.

Last week, we started off with our exercise class getting in the dining room, stretch their muscles and limber their joints. We have a large group attending this morning at 10 a.m.

After the exercise class was over, the group met for fun-gab session. At this meeting, the residents open up, telling their problems to one another. This helps to take a load off their shoulders, and they leave the meeting feeling like one big happy family.

Wednesday, our residents' clothes were patched and darned, thanks to the ladies from the Calvary Baptist Church. Other ladies from the same church were

Best Buys

COLLEGE STATION—Budget items at Texas grocery markets this week include large-sized eggs, onions and bananas, Gwendolynne Clyatt reports.

Also, low-price items are grocery aisle features and ads.

Mrs. Clyatt is a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

This week's price-quality trends are the following: POULTRY—Egg prices remain about the same with large sizes offering best value weight. Fryer chicken prices are up a bit.

FRESH VEGETABLES—A record-large onion harvest helps keep onion prices low.

Other vegetables in good supply include broccoli, cabbage, carrots and cooking greens. Also, bell peppers, hardshell squash and white and sweet potatoes.

FRESH FRUITS—Banana imports are heavy and prices are low. Large supplies of citrus fruits are arriving and quality and flavor are improving.

Apples are in large supply, cranberry prices are more attractive, and grape prices are slightly higher.

GROCERY AISLES—Corn, snap beans and peas—the three best-selling canned vegetables—are grocery shelf favorites.

Applesauce, tuna fish and cake mixes also have feature prices. Check prices on dry beans, dry peas and rice.

FISH—Fish is plentiful and prices are reasonable when considered on a cost-per-serving basis.

BEEF—Chuck cuts are in the spotlight, although there are scattered buys on ground beef, sirloin steak and beef liver.

PORK—Pork prices fluctuate and few cuts are receiving store emphasis. However, Boston butt, end chops, liver, rib and loin-end roasts offer most economical values.

HOLIDAY WATCHWORDS—In choosing fresh cranberries, look for plumpness, good color and uniformity in size. Avoid cranberries that are crushed and leaky.

To store fresh cranberries, refrigerate them in their original package.

Airman Smith, whose husband, Larry K. Smith, is the son of M.L. Smith of Chester, Tex., is now trained to repair generators, gas turbines and hydraulic pumping equipment and will serve at Nellis AFB, Nev. Completion of the course earned the individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman is a 1973 high school graduate.

Grants

Approved

AUSTIN—Governor Dolph Briscoe has approved two criminal justice grants affecting Tyler County.

They are:

—$35,751 to the Deep East Texas Council of Governments for high speed tele-type for law enforcement agencies throughout the region.

—$12,548 to the 88th Judicial District Attorney Office in Tyler County to finance a criminal investigator, part-time secretary, travel, equipment and supplies.

The local grants were among 51 approved by Governor Briscoe statewide from Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) funds under the Crime Control Act of 1976.

Winterize Your Car Now

Although winter does not present the problem for Southeast Texas drivers that it does for the northern portions of the country, motorists here still need to take certain steps to be assured of better and safer driving in the months ahead.

Have a tune-up! An untuned engine works inefficiently, robbing the battery of vital starting power and reducing fuel economy (as much as 15%). A tune-up involves a check of the four basic systems of the car, i.e., fuel, ignition, electrical and emissions. A thorough tune-up can bring any major problems to light.

The battery needs to have special attention at this time. Nothing is so aggravating as attempting to start your car on an especially chilly morning, only to have it sit there completely passive. Be sure it is fully charged and clean. Even a fully charged battery has only 65% of its starting ability when the temperature drops to freezing and accumulated dirt and grime cause corrosion on battery cables which drains starting power.

Have the cooling system carefully checked. Its main function is to control metal temperatures by absorbing excess heat produced by the operation of the engine. Be sure there are no leaks in the water pump or radiator hoses, that the radiator cap seals and maintains working pressure, and the thermostat is working properly. Have the antifreeze/coolant solution checked. If the system has been operating properly and a check shows no apparent problems, a simple water flush, which can be done by the car owner, will be enough and new antifreeze/coolant can then be added. However, if a lot of dirt sediment and corrosion are present it may be necessary to take the car to a service station which has equipment to completely flush the system.

What type of antifreeze to use? Beware of the so-called "instant antifreezes" which are on the market. These powdered substances contain salts (calcium, magnesium or sodium chloride) and, while capable of lowering the freezing point of water, may produce some damage to an automobile engine. Experts tell us that an ethylene glycol solution, referred to as "permanent" antifreeze, provides protection in both hot and cold weather, and contains rust and corrosion inhibitors. It should be added in a 50% antifreeze/50% water solution. Never add 100% antifreeze or water. Remember, a permanent type antifreeze does not last forever. For best performance, drain and replace the antifreeze/coolant every year. Be sure the level is checked periodically.

Use a winter grade oil. Cold weather causes oil to thicken. Oil suitable for both cold and hot weather are called "multigrades" and are numbered, for example, 20-30, 10W-40, etc. The lower number refers to the oil's ability to flow adequately in cold weather; the lower the number the more effective the oil will be in lower temperatures. Choose the oil according to specifications in your car owner's manual.

Check your tires. Be sure they are in good shape with adequate tread and inflated properly for the maximum performance on rainy mornings and slick overpasses.

Check your brakes and windshield wipers. A sudden "blue norther" with heavy sleet and rain can remind us all too frequently that we have forgotten to take care of these two very important aspects of car maintenance.

Remember, you are your own best protection...Be prepared.

Bible week saga
Some of the greatest stories ever told, plus some great stars combine in a three-part 'Stories from the Bible' (Nov. 19-25 on NBC). Lew Ayres, John Carradine and Robert Culp are a few of the names playing in Noah and the Ark, Moses and the Exodus of the Israelites. The special is part of National Bible Week, and the sets include a wooden ark and a sprawling battle sequence, complete with hundreds of chariots and thousands of Roman soldiers.

BROTHERHOOD

Lucan (Kevin Brophy) jeopardizes his life when he frees a young domesticated wolf, which is about to be destroyed. Then, he faces a raging forest fire while trying to reunite the animal with its pack so that it can survive in the wild in "Brother Wolf," an episode of "Lucan," Monday, Nov. 20, on ABC.

Raised by a pack of timber wolves, Lucan is constantly at odds with his upbringing as he faces day-to-day life in a research facility. He often has a hard time distinguishing which is most civilized — society or wildlife.

Ex-Teen Idol David Cassidy Is Back

By DAN LEWIS

ATLANTA — At the unexpected sight of David Cassidy, emerging into the hotel lobby, several teenage girls began squealing. Cassidy was startled by the recognition and noticeably uncomfortable in the midst of the mini-hysteria. Cassidy has resurfaced after four years of seclusion. He plays an undercover policeman in NBC's Thursday night series, "David Cassidy — Man Undercover."

After four years in seclusion, David Cassidy is starring in the NBC Thursday night series, "David Cassidy — Man Undercover."

This new series isn't looking for the very young audience. And while Cassidy says it would be nice if his old fans turn to his new series, he hopes he doesn't become "the hottest T-shirt item."

"I've gone through it," he says ruefully. "You really get sucked into that audience. This new series is not designed, sketched or directed, or fixed for kids," he adds emphatically.

For 4½ years, David was a superstar to the young. From one of the kids on "The Partridge Family," he quickly rocketed to an international pop hero for screaming young girls. His records quickly sold in the millions.

The adulation and the hysteria, however, were not music to his ears. As a result of his extraordinary popularity, David was forced into an agonizingly compressed existence. On tour, he was a prisoner in a hotel room wherever he went.

"It was frightening," David recalls. "You stood there on stage, and 30,000 little girls were screaming, trying to get to you. One little girl died of what they claimed was a heart attack at my final concert. The press blamed me."

He was a young man with great success, but not virtually every scene of the early-filmed episodes. He wants his involvement trimmed a bit "for the sake of my marriage, my life and career," he says.

The Cassidy clan is an unusual family. The teen-idol mantle has been transferred to David's half-brother Shaun, star of "The Hardy Boy Mysterians" on ABC. David smiles when he talks about Shaun. He's happy for him, and he's also knowing, and he has advice for Shaun. "I hope he chooses to do the same thing I did...pull out when another day is another hell."

David sees Shaun's career in a different perspective, however. "I never intended for it to happen to me. I think Shaun had designs on it. It was difficult for Shaun through junior and senior high school, living as my younger brother. I think he had the older brother syndrome. He always looked up to me because of my success, which made me look larger than life to him until he was old enough to see it differently. I'm happy for him, but Shaun knows that I'm the only person who can understand what he's going through because I had it for 4½ years. He knows that I know the changes that will happen to him. No way you come out of this as the same person."

David feels his nightmare is over now, but Shaun's are mounting. And there could very well be another Cassidy in the future. That would be 16-year-old Patrick, whom David describes as a "tremendous athlete" and could go either way — into sports or show business.

"He's a border line," David observes, "but I'm afraid he'll get sucked into show business."

Even dozen

When the Miami Dolphins face the Houston Oilers on Nov. 20, a new sports record will be in the making. In the nine years of ABC's "Monday Night Football" history, no team has won more than 11 games. If Miami trounces Houston, the Dolphins will be the first team ever to win an even dozen games on "Monday Night Football."

50th birthday

Mickey Mouse, 50! ABC's "Kids Are People, Too," will showcase the lovable mouse's golden anniversary on Nov. 12. Mickey Mouse, who was born in pen-and-ink on Walt Disney's drawing board, appears with 15-year-old animator Chris Tate. Chris talks about his own cartoon-making process and shows the audience how they can create their own animated figures.

HIMSELF

The Rev. Jesse Jackson portrays himself on "Lou Grant," Monday, Nov. 20, on CBS. Jackson, head of the "Push for Excellence" program, appears before a group of ghetto high school students.

Bohemian Folk Opera Frolics at the Met

By RICHARD BURGER

As the curtain rises, Americans can tune-in to the celebrated voices, the sumptuous costumes and the classic opera that has established New York's Metropolitan Opera House at the pinnacle of fine opera companies.

On Nov. 21, PBS will telecast the Metropolitan Opera's brand-new production of Bedrich Smetana's comic opera, "The Bartered Bride." "Live From the Met." The musical director of the Met, James Levine, will conduct, and the singers include the company's finest.

"Since 'The Bartered Bride' has not been performed at the Met for over 25 years," says Michael Bronson, executive producer of "Live From the Met," "it's coming back in a specially-commissioned English version, translated by Tony Harrison, which should represent the progressive changes going on at the Met."

With its new English libretto and "charming production" (directed by John Dexter, with sets and stage design by Josef Svoboda), Bronson feels that "The new 'Bartered Bride' is a piece that is a "treasure." Capsulized, the opera's plot is this:

It is springtime in a Bohemian village in the mid-19th century. Marenka (Teresa Stratas), lovely daughter of Krusina (Derek Hammond-Stroud) and Ludmila (Elizabeth Coss), is in love with a young stranger, Jenik (Nicola Gedda). Krusina, however, in order to pay his debts, has agreed to marry her off to Vasek (Jon Vickers), the sturdiest son of Tobias Michal (John Cheek), a rich landowner.

The arrogant village marriage broker, Kezal

(Martti Talvela), presses the Marenka-Vasek match so he can win his commission. Kezal buys off the hero, Jenik — or so it seems. Actually, Jenik cleverly outwits him; he wins Marenka and successfully reasserts his rightful claim to land and money.

"The Bartered Bride," in spite of its light, comical nature, offers an authentic glimpse into 19th-century peasant life. Much of the music is based on old Bohemian folk melodies of a charming, captivating quality, and it is considered to be Smetana's masterpiece.

"It's a beautiful work," says Francis Robinson, who will host the telecast, "and I'm immersed in it as I never thought I would be." Robinson, who hosted most of the previous "Live From the Met" broadcasts, feels that this is "a work which can help stimulate a new interest in opera across the country."

This is the third season of "Live From the Met" telecasts, all of which have been funded by large grants from Texaco Inc., with additional grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Charles E. Culpeper Foundation.

John Newland says he doesn't think anything could lure him back to Tahiti where he directed Angie Dickinson and David Janssen in the recent TV movie, "Overboard." Because of the sharks, both the kind that menace swimmers and the kind that judge the purse in the marketplace.

He would, however, hot-foot it to the Philippines, he says with a raise of the eyebrow, if he could train his cameras in one of the so-called "psychic surgery operations" in progress.

Not that Newland, the suave narrator as well as the creator of "One Step Beyond" and the new "The Next Step Beyond" series, is a committed cynic. Au contraire, he believes "somebody" in power is shushing airline pilots who tell of UFO sightings.

Why? He surmises commercial and government powers reason that any credence given to sightings would hurt business. "Maybe they figure potential passengers could scare themselves into staying home rather than risk snatches by aliens."

Newland has reassembled the original "One Step Beyond" team for the new series and says the same format applies; dramatizations of supra-normal happenings. "We change names, and sometimes places ... but never the facts as documented by reliable sources. The American Psychical Society has been very helpful." Also helpful, Newland wants it known, is Proctor and Gamble, which is committed to five years of sponsorship to let the series build. KCBS, New York and KNXT in L.A. already carry the program.

But, to zoom back to the topic of flying. What's "up there" will likely scare Jaquie Courteny (of "One Life to Live") away from a major movie role for which a chum reports the svelte blonde is under consideration. It's "The Pilot," starring Cliff Robertson, Milo O'Shea and Gordon MacRae. Not that aliens worry Jaquie. Her phobia is airplanes, and the role would require her to be filmed aloft in one scene in a zippy little crop duster. Yipes!

Planes are swell, however, as far as Dr. George Sheehan is concerned. They're about the only place he gets to rest his feet these days. Thanks to the patronage of Du Pont and its Today's-Dacron project, Dr. Sheehan is junketing around the U.S. staging TV clinics on the sport of running. European Sex Symbol in American Debut

By JOAN GEOGHEGAN

Kabir Bedi is the Robert Redford of Italian cinema. In France, most Spanish-speaking countries and his native India, too. Bedi's first American venture, "The Thief of Baghdad" will air Nov. 23, on NBC.

Very tall, dark and exotic-looking, 32-year-old Bedi is the son of an Indian father and a British mother. Indian features blend with rugged British looks; his warm bronze eyes defy both East and West.

Now wonder mobs pursue Bedi whenever he ventures into public in Rome and Paris.

Handsome Bedi is the romantic lead in "The Thief of Baghdad." As Prince Taj, he must overcome the Caliph's (Peter Ustinov) trials if he is to win his daughter (Pavla Ustinov).

In hushed, slightly halting English, Bedi explains, "the thief -- Roddy McDowall -- comes in with his earthy street wisdom and helps the Prince overcome obstacles, which are almost flights of the imagination. For example, there's a fight with knights in the sky, a battle with a great bird, a struggle to destroy the Wazir's soul and a mountain of truth sequence. All the time, temptations are trying to lure him from his path."

Bedi admits the plot is confusing. "It's as hard to describe as 'Star Wars.'" But if "Star Wars" capitalized on special effects, "Thief of Baghdad" launches flying carpets, genies and a great cast of actors.

Although Bedi had starred in 27 films in India and a European miniseries, "Baghdad" was his first opportunity to work with an all-star cast that included the Ustinovs, McDowall and Terrence Stamp.

"I never lose my wonder of working with all these people who I've admired since I was a child. There's always something to learn."

After leaving India, Bedi's first European venture was the "Sandokan" miniseries in which he played a Malaysian pirate battling James Brook -- the white Raja of Sarawaka.

Since "Sandokan" was a joint French, German and Spanish venture, it was distributed all through Europe, South America and Asia. Lew Grade handled the English-speaking distribution and brought "Sandokan" to the West Indies, Kenya and Australia. He plans to distribute the miniseries in the U.S., as well.

Bedi would like to help bring to American TV the miniseries that made him famous. He concedes, "Sandokan" was the spearhead for me in many territories. Maybe once "Thief of Baghdad" has aired and is well received, there will be interest in "Sandokan."

Although Bedi is still unknown here, the European press reveres him as their greatest sex symbol.

What's it like to be mobbed by adoring fans? Is it frightening?

"It's a strange thing," Bedi admits. "It's what happens when a major star appears. They come to you not to harass you, but out of love."

He describes two instances:

"When the series opened, I went to visit a school in Rome, and there was a complete breakdown of all order. I was forced to retreat -- kids were getting trampled. I opened a door, and I was in a church. That sobered them a minute. It took a squad of police cars to rescue him."

The same thing happen in Milan at the circus," he continues. Although he arrived when the house lights were low, as soon as people realized he was there, they began to close in on him. "I retreated into the center of the ring ... through the back doors and animal cages." Again, the police came to Bedi's rescue.

Bedi is low-keyed and matter-of-fact about mobs. "I don't get scared. Maybe because I'm tall, and I can always see above the people's heads. It's not like I'm being smothered. Crowds have a feminine psychology. If you advance, they retreat. When you retreat, they advance."

Women intentionally seek Bedi out at his hotels. On the street, both men and women pursue him. But what is most rewarding, Bedi claims, "is to see old people reaching out to touch you."

The European sex symbol is putting down roots in Los Angeles these days.

"I'm here to stay," he insists. "I think it's important to be here if one wants to be international."

The divorced Bedi says he sees "no one in particular -- I mean everyone in particular," then laughs at his own joke. He's looking forward to the release of his first American feature film, "Ashanti," and looking for another film.

"People are so nice to me," he says with a bewilderment that's hard to take seriously. An actor, as unique as Bedi will have no problems conquering his final frontier -- the American public.

Reading class

Television is helping kids read. Yes, you heard right. Now in its second season, the CBS Reading Program gives elementary and secondary school students the chance to read the scripts of prime-time dramas and movies prior to their airing. The students read the scripts in class for discussion, then follow the broadcast at home.

This season's offerings include an episode of "The Waltons," a two-hour special based on the book "Lovey" and a movie "The Corn is Green" with Katherine Hepburn.

Up to bat

Little League baseball will join the airwaves in the form of situation comedy, when CBS premieres "The Bad News Bears" in mid-season. Based on the 1976 Paramount movie release of the same name, which starred Walter Matthau and Tatum O'Neal, the series pits a team of determined youngsters against their coach -- a former minor-league baseball player of questionable talent.
