Anybody who thought the Republican party was dead after Viet Nam, Watergate and the Nixon resignation, must have some second thoughts right now.

Nixon sits down to supper in the White House with President Carter, and the Vice Premier of China, and Governor Bill Clements of Texas, to see the Mexican President with one eye on those big oil reserves down in the Yucatan.

And Republicans, new as old, are taking aim at the White House.

John Connally threw his hat in the ring. And by all accounts, he has to be the most charismatic of the Republican hopefuls to date.

Another Democrat, Ronald Reagan of California, seems to be the front runner, but still waiting in the wings, leaving the water as it were.

Representative Phillip Crane was an early candidate. George Bush, Texas Governor, also has filled the necessary letters of intent with the Elections Commission, and will probably name the crowd in a month or so.

Howard Baker of Tennessee is making noise. And Senator J. Lee Rankin of Missouri either left by mountain, or sailed to Hawaii, and is now in the GOP.

The GOP is in a state of confusion. It seems to think the race has swung to the Democrats.

Money Shortage Affects Home Buying, Selling

A problem that faces Texas today is the shortage of funds available for home buying and selling.

It is altogether likely that mortgage lenders to home builders will contain the same spread that has existed between their past mortgage loans and their present loans.

There is another side of the coin, namely that the rate of interest on the money that is being borrowed is high.

Consequently, builders, realtors, building supply houses, etc., are having a hard time.

Turin Shroud Is Topic In Spurger

A presentation concerning the Shroud of Turin, which has baffled both religious and scientific experts studying the phenomenon for the past century, will be presented Sunday, Feb. 11, at the First Baptist Church in Spurger.

Joe Dickerson, Jasper physician, visited last October. He examined and photographed a piece of cloth imprinted with the negative image of a human body. The cloth has been identified as about 2,000 years old and physicists show it was at one time in the holy land.

The cloth has been the property of the Savory family since 1858 and was placed in the Cathedral of Turin for safekeeping.

Interested persons are urged to attend this 6 p.m. program.

The best scientific minds of our time still are studying the baffling phenomenon, the doctor said.

"KEEP THAT GREAT GM FEELING WITH GENUINE GM PARTS"

Fifth grader, Eartha Castle, receives individual assistance from aide, Mary Ann Fortenberry. Meeting the individual needs of students is a major emphasis of the reading program.

Reading Program Spells S-U-C-C-E-S-S

Under the local Right to Read program, kindergarten students are screened to identify areas where individual help is needed. Here, Mrs. Clara Jackson, kindergarten teacher, is helping students learn to classify various objects by finding "which one doesn't belong."

The Listening Center, one of six different stations in the Reading Lab, is one of the "favorite" stations of these 6th graders.

Mrs. Shields, third grade teacher, divides her reading class into small groups, in order to have more individualized instruction.

Students in first and second grades receive plenty of individual attention from their regular teacher, a Title I teacher and an aide, as illustrated in this classroom.

Text and Photos by D. Morey Sitton

The "Right to Read" program, which was introduced to the Woodville Independent School District last year, is already showing very positive results, according to Mary Nell Rainey, Woodville Independent School District Supervisor for Reading and Math.

The program is part of a national effort to improve reading skills through reading exercises and personal attention to each student, according to Rainey. It is being used in schools throughout the 50 states. Local emphasis, according to Rainey, is presently on grades K-6. Additional grade levels will be added in the future.

The local program, in addition to developing reading skills through reading exercises and personal attention to each student, includes a Kindergarten screening program. This phase, called "Early Prevention of School Failure," focuses on identifying the strengths and weaknesses of each individual student to help identify potential learning disabilities.

"It has been determined that the average age for referring a child for special classes or help is 8 years, says Rainey. If a child meets failure during his first 2 or 3 years of school he will very likely be turned off to the educational process by the age of 8 or 9, and that is very tragic."

Another key aspect of the program concentrates on individual instruction for each student. In addition to the regular classroom teacher, a Title I teacher and an aide have been added to all first and second grade classrooms during the regular reading and math instruction each morning. Later each day these supplementary instructors return to the classroom for a reinforcement time. This lower student/teacher ratio enables each child to receive more individual attention, thus encouraging faster progress in developing reading skills. In grades 3-6 students are also presented skills on their instructional level, in small group situations.

On the 6th grade level a special "Reading Lab" has been implemented to help students 1.5 years or more below grade level. According to Rainey, students are grouped and each week go to a new station. These stations include: (1) basic skills and high interest reading; (2) Listening Center; (3) controlled-reading, using a machine; (4) SRA Lab; (5) specific skills; and (6) an enrichment center. "The Reading Lab," says Rainey, "has been particularly successful and has certainly been a plus in creating interest in reading for those students participating in the lab."

"As with any new program," says Rainey, "it has to be in use for several years in order to determine its true effectiveness." However, our local effort in this "Right to Read" program, she adds, is already showing a remarkable degree of success.

Effort is the key word, she adds, for the continuing success of the program. Effort by students, teachers, and parents.

"The parents' role is critical," she says, in instilling a love of books and reading in the child. She advises that parents read to their school children, and listen to those children read who are already in school. Sharing the reading experience will not only strengthen the child's skills, but will strengthen family communication as well.

By working together as a team, schools with the support of parents and the community, says Rainey, should be able to meet the "Right to Read" goal, which is: Every student should be given the right to receive, according to his/her own ability,

Tera Conner, a kindergarten student, demonstrates fine motor skills as she threads a card on a string.

Listening skills are one of the primary skills in learning to read. These earphones are "fun to use" says these eager students.

Tower Proposes Bill

WASHINGTON—Regulating control over government regulation and bureaucracy gone haywire is the expressed intent of a bill introduced today by Sen. John Tower (R-Tx)...

Tower's bill to create a Citizens Commission on Economic Regulation, Oversight, would be empowered by the Congress to review existing regulation, agencies and laws and recommend their elimination or amendment.

In introducing his bill, Tower told his colleagues that burdensome regulation and bureaucracy cost the American taxpayer billions, stifle capital formation by business and lower productivity and more importantly, empo-

More, not less, regulation results. For example, in the January 1979 Federal Register, HEW reported that it had 45 significant regulations under development. The President's budget for Fiscal Year 1980 reveals that outlays for civil rights enforcement are projected to increase by $25 million from $425 million in 1978 to $450 million in 1980.

I do not know of a responsible legislator who would argue that a share of our capital resources should not go for social purposes. But we are in an era of hard new economic realities. We must assure the American public that the dollars spent in its behalf are dollars well spent that dollars spent achieve their purpose.

Tower pointed to the fact that regulation reduced the supply of capital available for investment in technology and production, threatening further reductions in productivity and eventually lowering America's standard of living.

The Citizens Commission would help in significant ways to reduce regulation and bureaucracy because its appointed members, all distinguished Americans outside government, would be empowered to recommend for the first time the elimination of useless agencies and regulations. The public would also participate through a series of hearings.

Heart Disease Is No. 1 Killer

What will be the number one cause of death during 1979?

Will it be cancer, or homicide, or heart disease, or automobile accidents? "None of these," says Dr. C.R. Allen, Director of the Texas Department of Health's Chronic Disease Division. "We are talking about heart disease."

Dr. Allen says that according to 1977 statistics, the latest available, heart disease kills more Texans than cancer, accidents and homicides combined.

"A heart attack may come suddenly but the underlying causes may develop over many years," says Dr. Allen. "The heart is a muscle pumping blood to the rest of the body, and just like any other muscle, it needs some of that blood for its own nourishment. Coronary arteries supply the heart with this nourishment, and if they become narrowed or eventually blocked with fatty deposits and cholesterol, this is called atherosclerosis and this coronary artery disease has been compared to the formation of lime deposits that build up in a water pipe," he said.

"When the arteries get too narrow, or a clot is formed, the blood flow to the heart is blocked off entirely, and that part of the heart dies. Doctors call this condition a coronary thrombosis, coronary occlusion, or a myocardial infarction."

Symptoms of heart attack vary, but these are the usual warning signs: (1) Prolonged, oppressive pain or unusual discomfort in the center of the chest, behind the breastbone. (2) Pain may radiate to the shoulder, arm, neck or jaw. (3) The pain or discomfort is accompanied by sweating, nausea, vomiting and shortness of breath may also occur. (4) Sometimes these symptoms subside and then return.

"Major cardiovascular deaths are preventable," says Dr. Allen. "Take heart attacks, for example. Each year about 10,000 Americans die needlessly from heart attack because they don't seek medical attention early enough, according to the American Heart Association. The average person waits three hours from the time of the first symptoms before seeking medical attention. The first few hours are critical. If each person would place himself under competent medical surveillance, within one hour after the onset of symptoms, needless deaths could be prevented."

Dr. Allen says "prevention" is a word often heard today in the medical discussion of heart attack. There are things that can be done—starting early in life—to help prevent heart attacks in later years. These may be related to exercise, proper diet and proper rest.

Extensive clinical and statistical studies of family medical history, physical conditions and life styles have identified several factors associated with an increased risk of heart attack and stroke. Among these factors are heredity, sex, age, race, cigarette smoking, high blood pressure, elevated blood cholesterol, diabetes, stress and lack of exercise, said Dr. Allen.

Studies have documented the significance of the major risk factors in heart attack and stroke. They also have shown that the danger increases with the number and severity of risk factors—the more risk factors present or the greater the degree of abnormality of any factor, the greater the risk.

Emphasis in the past few years—from state and national levels—have been placed on high blood pressure, which is a silent, mysterious killer with no characteristic symptoms. More often than not the cause may remain unknown although in most cases high blood pressure can be controlled.

"High blood pressure adds to the workload of the heart and arteries," says Dr. Allen. "If it continues for a long time, there is increased risk of stroke, heart failure, kidney failure and heart attack."

Schools To Get Food Cost Help

WASHINGTON—Schools that contract for food services will get help from new regulations to hold down costs and maintain food quality, according to Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman.

The regulations announced today will protect schools by setting new controls over the terms and performance of contracts. In addition, Foreman said, the rules require such contracts, as well as all local food service procurement to comply with federal standards now in effect for state agencies.

Because local school boards expressed a strong desire to continue to write and approve their own contracts, the regulations set minimum standards school boards are to meet. The rules will be based on a 21-day menu cycle. Payment will be made only for food that meets specifications listed in the contract. Other contract provisions will detail record keeping and health certification requirements.

The new rules will limit the duration of food service contracts to one year. Because of the new provisions, two-year renewals and cancellations upon notice by either party.

States are responsible for assuring that local contracts comply with the new regulations and for providing assistance on request to local schools. The regulations appear in today's Federal Register.

Consumer Buys This Week

COLLEGE STATION—Buyers, especially large ones, are among this week's budget buyers," reports Gwendolyn Chast, a consumer marketing information specialist.

Also, chicken livers are on special, some fresh fruits and vegetables, and canned tomatoes and corn.

Mrs. Chast is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

This week's price-and-quality trends are the following:

POULTRY—Egg prices remain stable, although severe winter weather could slow production, cut supplies and raise prices.

FRYER—Chicken prices are slightly higher, although some have thrifty price tags in some markets.

FRESH FRUITS—Reasonable prices appear on three-pound size bags of apples.

Grapefruit crops suffered some winter losses, but fruit now on the market has excellent quality. Prices on Temple oranges and tangelos are lower, with good quality.

FRESH VEGETABLES—Cabbage is still a budget item in spite of slightly higher prices. Other economical vegetables are potatoes, carrots, broccoli, eggplant, sweet potatoes and rutabagas.

DAIRY—Look for budget prices on yogurt, cheeses and milk.

GROCERY MARKET AIDS—Some canned vegetables make economical stand-ins for higher-priced fresh ones. These include tomatoes, tomato products and corn.

Public Meetings Set March 1 On Food Stamps

Public meetings to explain the new food stamp regulations which go into effect March 1 in Texas, will be held in Beaumont and Lufkin this month.

The meetings are being sponsored by Region 10 of the Texas Department of Human Resources which covers 15 East and Southeast Texas counties.

The new food stamp act, which was passed by Congress and signed into law by President Carter, is the first new food stamp legislation to be implemented since the program was first approved in the early 1960's.

It will mean changes in income eligibility, income deductions, allowable resources and exemptions.

The Beaumont meetings will be held February 20, from 1:30 P.M. to 3:30 P.M. and from 6:30 P.M. to 8:00 P.M. in the new downtown Beaumont Civic Center.

The Lufkin meetings will be held February 21, from 1:30 P.M. to 3:30 P.M. and from 6:30 P.M. to 8:00 P.M. in the Lufkin Civic Center.

Afternoon and evening meetings are being held at both locations to give as many persons as possible a chance to attend. Interpreters for the deaf will be present.

June Klein, DHR regional administrator, said the public meetings should be of particular interest to families who are now receiving food stamps and who will continue to receive them under the new program.

She also invited representatives of groups and organizations who provide services to the young, the handicapped, the elderly and low income families in the 15 counties served by Region 10.

One of the biggest changes in the food stamp program—elimination of the purchase requirement—was implemented in Texas last December 1.

Elimination of the purchase requirement means that persons who receive food stamps no longer have to pay cash for the stamps they receive, even though the amount of stamps they now receive may be less than when they paid for them.

Agricultural Stabilization Accomplishments Listed

The Tyler County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service has announced the 1978 conservation accomplishments. Each year Tyler County is allocated federal funds to cost share with eligible farmers and ranchers on practices designed to conserve soil, water and air, stated Kathy D. Harrison, Tyler County Executive Director.

In 1978, the ASCS shared the cost of conservation with 210 Tyler County farmers on 2400 acres of land for a total of $88,307.00. These funds were used for practices such as establishment of permanent vegetative cover, improvement of current permanent vegetative cover, control of erosion by gully shaping, use of limestone, only with a soil test, and construction of water impoundment reservoirs. These practices help to conserve soil, water and air by preventing erosion.

The program is administered by county committees, which are elected by Tyler County AR producers on a yearly basis. Those serving on the 1978 committee were: Harry Stafford, chairman; Lawrence Rainey, vice-chairman; and Cecil Riley, member.

The County Committee, in cooperation with the Soil Conservation Service, Texas Forest Service and County Extension Service, select the conservation practices best suited for Tyler County.

The 1979 Agricultural Conservation Program for Tyler County is being developed and will be announced soon.

Museum Tours Will Begin

Saturday tours of the Big Thicket area sponsored by the Big Thicket Museum at Saratoga, Texas, will begin March 3, and will continue each Saturday through May.

Tours will begin at 9:00 a.m. each Saturday at the Big Thicket Museum and continue until 5:00 p.m. A 40-minute slide presentation about the area will begin the trip, then the participants will be taken on a tour of the Thicket. The first stop is Rosier Park near the Museum where a trail has been made and trees are identified. Other flora and fauna will be identified by the guide.

At some other locations a short hike into the woods will be made. A dutch treat sack lunch will be held at noon. During the afternoon other units will be visited and longer hikes taken.

Spring tours are particularly enjoyable because of the great number of variety of plants in bloom.

Guides will be Geraldine Watson of Silsbee and Dr. Phil Malnessy of the Lamar University biology department. Both are authorities on Thicket plant life.

Notice

Warren Independent School District

The Warren I.S.D. Tax Office gives notice to persons who own their residential homesteads.

SJR-1, an amendment to the State Constitution as passed by the voters in November of 1978, provided for a Homestead Exemption of $5,000.00 based on the 100% value of a resident homestead. This amounts to $64.50 in money based on the Warren I.S.D. 1978 values and 1978 Tax Rate.

Everyone is eligible for this exemption regardless of age or marital status. Resident Mobile Home owners also qualify for this exemption.

The only requirement to obtain this exemption is that the property designated as the homestead was owned and was the resident homestead of the property owner as of January 1, 1979. An applicant cannot have claimed a resident homestead on any other property. An application/affidavit for this exemption should be submitted to the School Tax Office prior to April 30th.

Submitting a false affidavit shall subject the maker to the perjury laws of the State of Texas.

Blake Offers Bill

AUSTIN—Senator Roy Blake of Nacogdoches introduced Senate Bill 372 in the Texas Senate today. Blake's bill would allow counties, at their option, to purchase items through the State Board of Control.

Although no figures are available with regard to the exact savings that could be realized by purchasing through the Board, many county officials feel that the savings will be significant.

In order to participate in the program, counties would be required each year to submit to the Board a resolution adopted by the Commissioners Court requesting that they be allowed to participate. Counties would be required to purchase through Board contracts except in cases of emergency and would be responsible for direct payment to the vendor.

"Many counties in Texas are suffering from a weak tax base that may be further weakened by enabling legislation of the Property Tax Relief Amendment, and this is one area in which they could receive some real help," Senator Blake commented.

"Participation in the program would be optional, and if for some reason a county did not choose to participate, it certainly would not be required to do so," he concluded.

Sign Up For Grain

Farmers can sign up for the 1979 wheat and feed grain programs beginning February 15th, according to Harry Stafford, chairperson of the Tyler County Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation (ASC) committee.

Provisions of the corn and sorghum set-aside program include a 10 percent set-aside and a 10 percent diversion. The wheat and barley program contains a 20 percent set-aside requirement.

Participation in the program is voluntary. Mr. Stafford said, however, producers must file their intentions to participate during the sign-up period to be eligible for program benefits. All farmers planting feed grain and/or wheat for harvest in 1979 are eligible to participate.

Program participants will be eligible for price support loans, deficiency payments and disaster payments for barley, corn, sorghum or wheat on the participating farm, and on other normal crop acreage (NCA) grown on the farm. They will also be eligible to use the grain reserve.

Mr. Stafford said farmers may also sign up for voluntary diversion payments on corn and sorghum. However, there will be no advance voluntary diversion payment for 1979 crops.

Producers who sign up agree to take out of production one acre for every acre planted in 1979 to corn and sorghum; two acres for every ten planted to wheat and barley for grain; and reduce the acreage of NCA crops by this set-aside amount.

"By participating in the set-aside program, farmers help to prevent an excessive buildup of wheat and feed grain stocks which causes low farm prices," Mr. Stafford said.

More program details may be obtained from the local ASCS office. The sign-up period will be conducted until April 16th.
