Jim Browder Report

This is the second in a series of articles on the implementation of the Tax Relief Amendment. In my last report we looked at the general provisions of HJR 1 as it was passed by the voters in November 1978. In this article I would like to look at some of the specific provisions and share with you my thoughts on them.

In evaluating the effect of HJR 1, it is important to keep in mind the interrelationship of the parts. HJR 1 contains nine separate provisions relating to a variety of tax matters for various classes of taxpayers all of which are interrelated. Each individual provision of HJR 1 offers important tax relief to a different group of taxpayers. All of the provisions are needed and support efforts to provide some degree of relief to as many people as possible.

One of the major provisions of the Tax Relief Amendment removes intangible taxes, annuities, personal property, patent rights, and other paper evidence of wealth from the list of property that must be taxed. Prior to the adoption of HJR 1 the Texas Constitution required that all property not specifically exempted and that the laws of Texas are not in conflict with the constitution be taxed. In 1978, except the taxes on bank stocks and transfers, all property was taxable. At the same time, the federal judges have ruled that all property must be taxed according to the constitutional requirements and that intangible taxes are unconstitutional.

T-Wheeler

By Alan Miller

You probably caught the story in the news this past week. The lengths a Dallas businessman went to to "rescue" two of his employees who had been driven to jail in Iran, as a part of the general chaos and upheaval over there.

Ross Perot, of EDS Inc., apparently felt he had good cause to question the effort American officials were making to get a fair hearing for his people.

Inquiries to the U.S. Embassy in Teheran were fruitless. The State Department in Washington, D.C., said there was nothing they could do. Personal inquiries to the Iranian led nowhere.

So from thousands of miles away, Perot literally put together a "combat team" of EDS employees, led by a retired Green Beret Colonel, and literally blew the Iranian air force out of the sky.

"Somehow," this doesn't smack of Yankee imperialism. The very definition of "imperialism" has been thrown at the United States for so long, maybe we are beginning to believe it.

Perhaps Perot felt that the Iranian air force was a threat to his people. After all, groups of armed troops, Marxist or otherwise, had stormed the U.S. Embassy, holding dozens of Americans hostage.

The American Ambassador of Afghanistan had been kidnapped and killed. The same might happen to the U.S. Embassy in Teheran.

Turkey had refused to use their air space, landing strips to stage-its

Conservationists Win Victory

Four conservation groups have won a preliminary victory in their legal battle to keep 20,000 acres of wooded wetlands in Louisiana. The U.S. District Court at Alexandria, La., also ordered a 60-day halt on clearing, destruction of vegetation, or filling on 10,000 acres of the tract where clearing has not yet begun.

The preliminary injunction and order were issued in response to a suit brought by the National Wildlife Federation, the Environmental Defense Fund, and the Louisiana Audubon Society. The suit was filed in December, 1978. The environmental groups argued that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' plan to clear and convert to farmland within 45 days was unconstitutional and violated the National Wetlands Act.

The U.S. District Court at Alexandria, La., also ordered a 60-day halt on clearing, destruction of vegetation, or filling on 10,000 acres of the tract where clearing has not yet begun.

The Consumer Alert

by Mark White, Attorney General

ATTENTION - Your next telephone call could be all yours. To avoid the hazards that can be hidden in a telephone sales pitch, our attorneys suggest that you follow these guidelines:

Never agree immediately to allow a salesperson to come to your home. Ask the salesperson to call you the following day or to give you a telephone number where you may call. This gives you a chance to consider the offer.

If you are told that you have won a prize in a contest, ask if you will be obligated to listen to a sales pitch for a product or service. Many times, to accept a "prize" is to leave yourself open to an intense high pressure sales pitch.

Find out what conditions are attached to getting the "free" item. Usually it's not really free; you likely will have to buy something to get it, and often you may be charged more than you would pay for a similar item in a local store.

If you must buy something in order to get the "gift" or "prize," the caller you are dealing with is usually trying to determine how the cost you are charged compares with the item without such a "gift." In general, the cost of the "free" item is made up on the other end.

If you feel you have been the victim of a deceptive telephone sales pitch, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division in Austin, Houston, Dallas, San Antonio, El Paso, Lubbock, or McAllen. Or call your district or county attorney.

To Be Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thornton of Houston are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathy, to Cody Risten, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Risten, also of Houston. Kathy is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. T.T. Thornton and Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Nash, all of Charles, Texas.

Kathy is completing her senior year at Baylor University. Cody is a member of the Phi Beta Phi National Women's Fraternity.

The wedding will be held at the First Baptist Church in Houston, Texas, on Saturday, March 3, 1979. The bride will be escorted by her brother, Phil. The groom will be escorted by his brother, Phil.

Students participating in Youth Government Day took their parts seriously, many exhibiting the natural talents of attorneys trying his first case. Above, Bubba Gomez, prosecution attorney, consults with Terry Brown and Karen Durdin, during a short recess.

Students enter the Tyler County Courthouse, District Courtroom, as Youth Government Day begins. Held in conjunction with their study of county government, nearly 100 seniors from Kirby High participated in a mock County and District trial and a Commissioners Court session.

Youth Government Day

Although both cases tried by the students on Youth Government Day were well rehearsed by witnesses and attorneys, the outcome was determined by jurors who had no prior knowledge of the case. Shirley Mack (left), lawyer for the defense, listens intently as the witness (right) has just questioned responds. Also pictured (right) is Roger Kattiff, the defendant.

Seniors Learn By Doing

It had been a fast moving trial; the testimonies from witnesses, although there were many, had been brief and direct; as were the final summations delivered to the jury. For a murder case, deliberation by the jury was impressively fast, not more than 20 minutes, at most. Silence gripped the courtroom as the head juror rose to give the verdict... "Not guilty."

The scene just described was recently enacted at the Tyler County Courthouse District Courtroom, by seniors participating in Youth Government Day. Although not a real case, it was a very real learning experience for the nearly 100 students involved.

Youth Government Day, held for its second year in Woodville, teaches students by their direct participation in the workings of county government. The students stage a commissioners court meeting, District court trial and county court trial.

The day of activity is held in conjunction with seniors' study of county government. Preparation, which begins in the fall, includes a primary runoff and general election. Students running for office campaign with posters and in class speeches.

Once at the courthouse, students are welcomed by county officials and given a brief description of the workings and responsibilities of each office.

The day is then over.

Preparation for Youth Government Day began in the fall, when seniors held a primary runoff and general election to elect their own county officials. The learning experience, according to students, was not only valuable in teaching them the mechanics of elections, but it also made them aware of candidate qualifications as well. Above, student Judge Lloyd Darr and Court reporters Melvin Iron (left) and Cindy Durham (right) are shown during one of 3 cases tried by the students.

Students, above, who participated in the mock Commissioners Court meeting on Youth Government Day, got some special tutoring a week earlier when they were invited to a regular scheduled meeting of Commissioners Court. Their agenda, patterned from the meeting they observed, included approving the County Treasurer's report and accepting the Auditor's monthly report.

The action in the courtroom builds as attorneys Ander Mitchell (left) and Tom Mason (right) are called to the bench by Judge Glen Andrus for a reprimand. Direct participation, according to students, is not only fun but a valuable learning experience as well.

Nacogdoches Woman Convicted Jan. 25, 1979

Harris C. Biggs, Mar. 1 agent of the Lydon Social Security Office, announced the recent conviction of a Nacogdoches woman.

Biggs stated that Mrs. Minnie Hester, 56, was convicted on January 25, 1979, in the U.S. District Court at Tyler, Texas, for two charges of concealing material facts in order to draw Social Security benefits to which she was not entitled.

Mrs. Hester was indicted for unlawfully drawing mother's and child's benefits by concealing the marriage of her minor daughter. The law states that a child's entitlement to benefits must end when the child marries. In this case, Mrs. Hester failed to disclose the marriage of her daughter to Social Security officials in order to draw Social Security benefits.

Mrs. Hester was sentenced to one year in jail and a fine of $1,000 on each charge, with the sentences to run consecutively. Both sentences were suspended and she was placed on probation for a period of five years. She was ordered to make restitution in the amount of $4,200.

Social Security officials have a continuing program to assure that beneficiaries of social security and recipients of Supplemental Security Income report events which will terminate, suspend or reduce payments when required by the law. Deliberate actions to circumvent the law to get payments to which a person is not entitled are considered for prosecution.

Improving Your Timber Through Timber Stand Improvement

LIVINGSTON - Landowners in Polk and Tyler Counties with existing stands of timber that are interested in growing trees for timber production should consider timber stand improvement. Timber stand improvement is a term used to identify forest management practices designed to improve the growth rate, composition, productivity and quality of forest stands.

Don Staples, district forester with the Texas Forest Service, stated, "In this area, timber stand improvement is usually oriented toward improving the growth of pines. Hardwoods that overtop or compete with pines are killed off, usually by injection with chemicals. At times, alternate methods are used such as mechanical spraying and prescribed burning."

Pines released from hardwood competition will grow faster and produce marketable timber crops more quickly. This results in a greater commercial value than most hardwoods, except for oaks.

For information on this and other landowner assistance programs, call the Texas Forest Service at (713) 227-4142 or go by office at 508 Pan American Drive in Livingston. A Service Forester will be glad to assist you.

Pioneer Day Artists Ready For Benefit

The fee will be $10 (donation) per exhibitor for a 2x10 foot space with a covered apron going on the first of five bulk carloads scheduled to go to the County Fair Grounds. The Fair Grounds will be the location of all future Pioneer Day events as well as the County Fair and so on. The need for major improvements was raised that benefited the San Jacinto County Medical Clinic which is now under construction in Coldspring, Texas. Coldspring is located 50 miles north of Houston on the Southern tip of Lake Livingston.

The Art Show in 1978 was one of the many events that contributed to the success of Pioneer Day and local artists are already planning and painting towards that day.

This year plans are to expand to include crafts and covered spaces are already reserved at the Fair Grounds for these exhibits. Over 30 artists participate last year. And the crowds were huge.

For more information regarding the Arts and Crafts Show and Sale on Pioneer Day or to reserve your exhibit space, please contact Barbara Johnson at 683-4445 or 683-2211 or mail to P.O. Box 127, Coldspring, Texas 77331.

Austin-Hernann Hospital, located in the Texas Medical Center in June will be expanding its present three helicopter service to include a patient transport fixed wing aircraft.

William F. Smith, executive director of Hermann, made the announcement today after Governor William P. Clements signed the proclamation for "Life Flight Over Texas Week" March 26 through April 1.

With the addition of the fixed wing aircraft, critically ill or injured patients at that Texas and the surrounding regions now will have access to transportation which is part of Hermann's already established air ambulance service. As with the three helicopters, the Life Flight fixed wing will be at all times be fully equipped for medical emergencies. Smith said during the announcement.

The Life Flight program began in August of 1976 with one helicopter to serve an emergency vehicle for the critically ill and injured. Two more helicopters have been added to the program due to the increased need of such service within the Houston and surrounding 30-county area.

The Life Flight helicopters will continue to serve a 130-mile radius from Hermann Hospital as an airborne emergency vehicle complete with a physician and a registered nurse on-board each flight. Smith said. However, the fixed wing aircraft will be used mainly for the transportation of the critically ill outside the 130-mile radius.

"But the fixed wing aircraft will be available as an emergency backup for our three helicopters in times of need," he added. It could be possible for the hospital in conjunction with the faculty at The University of Texas Medical School at Houston, to transport disaster teams, comprised of surgical and medical physicians, to major disasters which occur within the fixed wing's air travel range.

The addition of the plane, a Merlin II-A turbo jet, will expand the 130-mile radius of the Life Flight service to a 15-state area, Mexico, Central America and South America. The aircraft is capable of traveling 1,200 miles without refueling and cruises at 300 miles per hour.

The plane has the capability of carrying three patients and two medical team members in addition to a crew of four. A co-pilot will also be on long distance flights and will be an aircraft mechanic.

A registered nurse, specially trained in complete eye emergency care and with flight nursing experience, will be on-board each flight. A physician will also be available to the patients if needed or requested for a physician.

The aircraft will be fully equipped with emergency equipment, such as cardiac monitors, oxygen, suction, intravenous fluids, splinting equipment, mechanical ventilators, and complete emergency medications. A pressurized cabin in the aircraft will allow the transportation of cardiac patients.

The Life Flight aircraft will be stationed at William P. Hobby Airport in Houston. The plane will have complete radio equipment and will be in contact with the hospital at all times.

Any physician hospital in a private individual may request the use of the fixed wing aircraft. Patients can be transported from a location to any area which has proper landing sites. Fees for the use of the Life Flight fixed wing will be $100 take-off fee, $15 per mile, and a $35 per hour charge for the registered nurse. Physician fees will vary and the patients will be billed separately for such fees.

As the population increases in the cities of Texas and the rest of the nation, emergency medical services will continue to be paramount. Smith said.

The addition of the fixed wing aircraft denotes a trend in emergency treatment of all Texas and persons within the range of an ambulance service. He concluded.

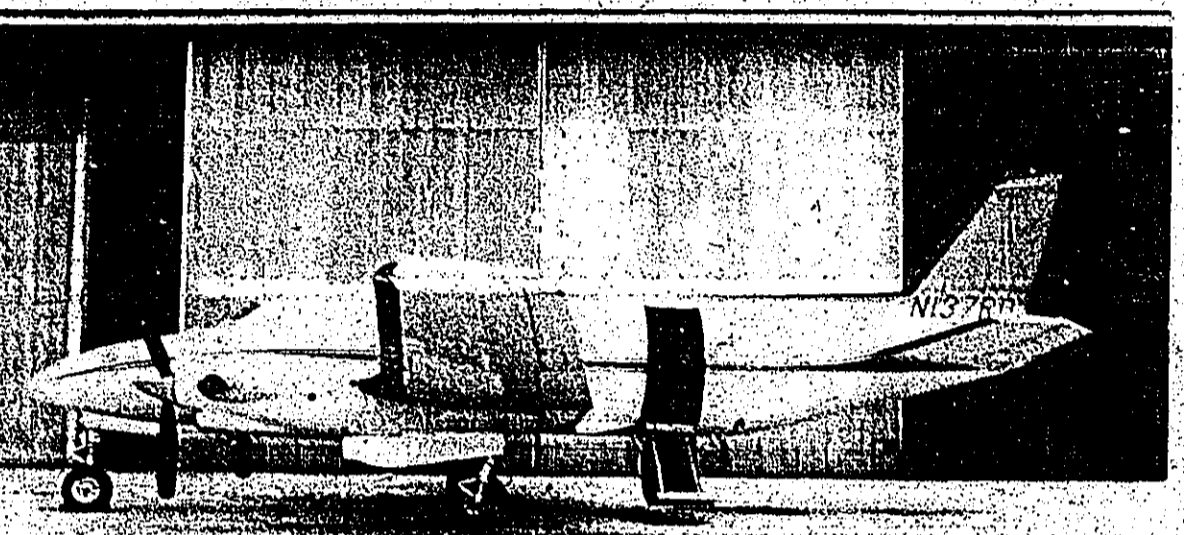

Hermann Hospital, a private not-profit institution founded in 1925, is the primary teaching hospital for the University of Texas Medical School at Houston located in the Texas Medical Center.

Disking Improves Bird-Hunt

COLLEGE STATION.—Disking a disk over weedy areas on pastures and ranges will help establish a weed crop this spring and summer that will provide an abundant food supply for game birds. A little effort in developing food plots will make bird hunting more predictable next fall, says Charles Ramsey, wildlife specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. It will also increase the chances of winter survival for quail and other game birds.

Disking and allowing plowed land to fallow is a cheap method to increase the quail food supply. It reduces grass competition and grows weeds, a comparative stable attribute of weed seed is their resistance to deterioration. Many weed seeds will lie dormant in the soil for years until a soil disturbance causes them to germinate. Disking simply takes advantage of a quail food crop which is already planted. "Disking to a four-inch depth is all that is required," explains Ramsey. "Any pattern of the 'weed' that is within eight inches of the fourth mule of a good cover. One of the simplest patterns is to work long strips at least 20 feet wide along the edge of the cover. About one-half mile of strips within a cover's range is adequate. Since plowed strips usually produce for at least two years, plow now strips the second year. When grass begins to suppress food plants, begin to rework old strips."

Disking can be done anytime between the first frost in the fall and the following May, although the best time is January through March. One-half to one acre of disked strips per cover is sufficient, depending upon amount of seed produced, notes the Texas A&M University System specialist.

The usual critical food period for game birds is from mid-winter into early spring, before the fall seed supply is depleted and before green vegetation and insects are available with warmer weather, notes Ramsey.

Bobwhite cat mounds kinds of seeds, ranging in size from that of a pinhead such as a variegated to those of the size of an acorn, from about 100 kinds of plants in Texas produce food for quail, most of them being weeds.

Most of the quail needs, providing a variety of plants is the key to producing a dependable food supply throughout the year, contends the wildlife specialist.

"The most dependable food development results come from encouraging those food plants already present rather than introducing new ones," says Ramsey. "Strips of patches of good quality native weeds should be preserved where existing or creating pastures. If grass cover is heavy, limited diskings to encourage weeds to decrease grass competition with food plants."

A first step in food development is to determine which food plants are present. Although quail eat seeds from many species of plants, only a few furnish the bulk of the diet at a given location. These important species should be identified and developed.

Weeds that are an important food source for Texas quail include ragweed, dove-weed or gooseweed, burdock, pigweed, bundleflower, sensitive brier, wild-bean, southern sunflower, partridge pea, snow-on-the-mountain, paspalum grass, dayflower, broomweed, sumpweed or marshmallow, blue-stem, pricklypoppy, Stevens sandily, Western indigo, tick trefoil, panic grass, lespedeza, crotonopsis, nutrush, knotweed, queen-of-the-night and Mesquite.

Water Board Rule Changes

AUSTIN.—The Texas Water Development Board Tuesday approved several rule changes concerning definitions applying to the Texas Department of Water Resources (DWR) jurisdiction of reclamation projects including levee drainage works, and landfills.

The action by the six-member citizen board removed from Department jurisdiction by definition specific structures and activities, including authorized dams, certain drainage works, projects which affect runoff from an area of less than five square miles, levees and landfills within the 100 year flood fringe encompassing less than two acres, and others, said a DWR spokesman.

The board is the policy making body for the Texas Department of Water Resources and as such adopts substantive rules, and procedures governing operation of the department.

State Representative John Sharp of Pecos, representing Victoria and Calhoun Counties, was highly complimentary of the board's action. Rep. Sharp said "This board and the Department are to be complimented for amending their rules to enable local governmental entities and citizens to handle and solve problems of strictly a local nature where the waters of the 'age' aren't jeopardized or compromised," Sharp said. Executive Director Harvey Doss and other staff members have been very helpful and cooperative on this matter. The rule changes also set up a procedure whereby Department staff will determine jurisdiction within 30 days of receipt of a completed application, and if jurisdiction is not found, provide the applicant with the option of having the Texas Water Commission (the judicial arm of the department) dismiss the application.

Also removed from jurisdiction are bridges, culverts and roads not designed or built with the primary purpose of affecting the waters of a stream, drainage works which do not directly connect to a stream, fences, and cutting, clearing or removing vegetation. Copies of the amended rules may be obtained from the department's public information office, P.O. Box 13087, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

Fabric Selection Important

COLLEGE STATION—Selecting quality fabric is the first step in creating a professional-looking garment, a clothing specialist, Becky Culp, says.

With proper care, quality fabric will remain attractive and useable for the desired life of the garment. Even the simplest and fastest techniques are not worthwhile for damaged or inferior fabric, the specialist points out.

Ms. Culp is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

To help obtain a quality fabric, perform the following moisture tests before buying fabric, she suggests.

WRINKLE RESISTANCE. Crum a corner of the fabric and hold tightly for several seconds, then release. Look for wrinkles.

If the fabric wrinkles now, it will also wrinkle during wear and require extra care.

STRETCH RECOVERY. Measure a small amount of fabric against a ruler. Stretch from their release. Compare to original measurement.

Test both lengthwise and crosswise.

Stretch recovery is important in keeping garments shape and preventing unpopularity performance such as "baggy knees."

EVENNESS OF DYES. Unroll the needed amount from the bolt. Examine fabric from both sides for evenness of color and design.

EVENNESS OF FIBERS. To check for evenness or flaws, draw an weave or knit, unroll needed amount from bolt.

Hold fabric up to light and examine. Avoid buying fabrics with holes, light areas or heavy stains not intended as part of design.

COLORFAST TO CROCKING. To check for crocking, rubbing off, rub fabric against skin or light colored fabric.

Look for and avoid buying fabrics that color rubs off.

TEMPORARY SIZING OR STARCH. Rub fabric together briskly. Avoid buying those which wring fabric off.

PILLING OR BALLING UP. Rub fabric together briskly. Avoid buying if small balls or pills form on right side of fabric.

BONDING OR LAMINATING DURABILITY. Examine cut edge and avoid those which separate easily.

QUALITY QUILTING. Examine for durable and strong quilting threads and a durable backing fabric.

ODOR. Although, chemical finishing odors usually are removed by the first laundering, it is wise to avoid fabrics with strong odors.

Consumer Food News

COLLEGE STATION—Best buys at Texas grocery markets this week include potatoes, poultry and processed fruits and vegetables. Also, specials on rice, pasta and some beef and pork cuts, says Greenwood.

Mrs. Cyatt is a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

This week's price-quality trends are the following: FRESH VEGETABLES—Potatoes have three things going for them this week: low prices, abundant supplies and high nutrition. Consumers should go for them.

Other economical 'vegetables' are carrots, sweet potatoes, eggplant, cucumbers, rutabagas and squash. Cabbage prices are slightly higher, while lettuce prices and quality vary due to west coast California weather.

POULTRY—Fryer chickens still have attractive prices in spite of general price increases. Low prices appear on turkey-10 pounds and up—and turkey parts. Eggs are an economical protein choice.

GROCERY MARKET AISLES—Processed fruits and vegetables offer shoppers real opportunities for savings. Also look for features on rice and pasta products. Budget prices appear on some frozen vegetables and on frozen grapefruit juice.

BEEF—Features include blade, chuck roast, ground beef with soy protein, round steak, ground beef and liver.

PORK—Features are scattered among various markets, but good values will appear on quarter pork loins, some brands of bacon, frankfurters, liver and Boston butts.

FRESH FRUITS—Most economical choices are apples, bananas, oranges, pears, pineapple and grapefruit "by-the-bag."

CONSUMER WATCHWORDS—Two budget-easy items are fish (look for specials in frozen-food sections) and cooked whole-grain cereal, such as oatmeal and whole wheat.

Check Insulation R-Value

COLLEGE STATION—Always compare and buy insulation by R-value, a housing and home furnishings specialist, Pat Scaman, stresses.

R-value stands for the resistance of heat moving through insulation, she says. Mrs. Scaman is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

WHY R-VALUE? Heat always moves to cold. During cold weather, insulation keeps warm air inside the house, and in hot weather, insulation keeps warm air outside.

R-value actually measures the number of hours it takes one BTU of heat to travel through a certain thickness of insulation.

So for insulation with an R-11 rating, it takes 11 hours. The higher the R-value, the longer it takes for heat loss or gain to occur through the insulation.

COMPARE R-VALUES NOT INCHES. It is important to compare and buy insulation by R-value—not inches. Different compositions and density of materials result in different R-values per inch.

DOUBLE THICKNESS NOT DOUBLE RESISTANCE. In addition, remember that installing double thicknesses of insulation does not mean an exact double resistance to heat loss or gain. However, it does increase resistance to some extent.

Before adding another thickness of insulation to the ceiling, for example, carefully consider the expense versus the energy savings. Make sure the addition is really worth the money it will cost.

If not, consider insulating windows and caulking, as well as weatherstripping doors and windows—which are also major problem areas of heat loss or gain.

Focus On Fred

BY VIRGINIA ARCENEUX
 Dreams Of An Everyday Housewife - a trip to Singapore with four kids. Well, maybe not the average dream. But Virginia Stanley was such a wife and the exciting adventure took place last summer. Jim Stanley, who works for Mobil, took a position in Indonesia and after a trip home was postponed by a blow out at a well. Virginia and the kids found themselves with shots, passports and airline tickets for a trip to visit Daddy. I visited Virginia recently and she relayed the story to me, something like this.

The trip began normally enough, with confirmed reservations for a 10:05 a.m. flight by a phone call at 9:00 a.m. on a Thursday in July. Next came no hotel reservations in Honolulu at 12:10 a.m. (Is that very early in the morning or very late at night)? But the next morning all was made well with a swim at a Hawaiian beach.

The troupe continued on and arrived in Singapore, Virginia with fever from her smallpox vaccination and Teri (daughter) with no luggage. The Texas tourists visited with their husbands and Dad for a month, and enjoyed seeing another part of the world. They toured the many markets with wares of every sort for sale, including food and flies. They visited Malaysia and did some fishing there. While visiting some schools, the teenage boys decided that they preferred finishing high school in the good ole U.S.A.

Their rides on small motorcycles were exciting to hear about. There were no taxis, also no red lights in the streets. First brave soul daring enough to dart out is the one in the lead. But if the native people there can ride six at the time, and sometimes cause roofing shingles piled up high, why couldn't the Stanleys try it? And they did. Virginia said she just had to trust the driver that he was taking her where she wanted to go.

Before they left for home, the Stanleys made acquaintances with some folks from Louisiana that were in Singapore, and enjoyed having supper with them in the foreign setting.

Wow, what an exciting summer! What could top that and smooth over the memories of being monkey bit while across the continent? The Stanleys have moved to Fred, Texas. They have bought a not-so-new house, (probably over 100 years old), and Virginia already has planted her spring garden. Four kinds of potatoes, onions and twelve rows of English Peas! The family plans to build a new home, which Virginia hopes to be in before next winter. They have certainly chosen a beautiful spot, among the huge cedars, mulberry and pecan trees. On behalf of the Fred Community, I would like to welcome the Stanleys and hope that they will be very happy in the country. Virginia said that all the way across the world, that their youngest son, Curtis, never met a stranger, and got to know everybody in the airline waiting rooms. After visiting with the family, I found all of them to be very friendly and we are glad that they have chosen to be a part of the Fred Community.

The Stanleys are only one of many new families that have recently moved to Fred. If you are a newcomer to Fred, whether by accident, incident, or extraordinary circumstances, please give me a call. I would like to get to know you. 429-3170.

Blake Introduces Bill

AUSTIN--Senator Roy Blake of Nacogdoches introduced Senate Bill 664 in the Texas Senate today, that would require approval of both Houses of the Texas Legislature before any long term or permanent storage facility for nuclear waste materials can be constructed in the State of Texas. Long-term is over 20 years.

Blake's bill would cover only those nuclear waste materials, the storage of which requires licensing by the United States Nuclear Regulatory Commission. It would not include those low level wastes that are presently supervised by the Texas State Department of Health.

His bill would establish a review process by which the Texas Natural Resources Council would be a part of any feasibility or specific site study conducted by the federal government. The Council would examine each step in the study, and would give its recommendations to a legislative committee appointed by the Governor. The committee would report to the Governor and both Houses of the Legislature prior to each regular session of the Legislature.

Even though Secretary Schlesinger of the Department of Energy gave us his word that the federal government would recognize a state veto, the N.R.C. and the Comptroller General state very emphatically that he exceeded his authority in making such a statement, Senator Blake commented.

"The NRC is the agency that would license the facility and they have indicated that they want active state participation. They are long on the process of consultation and concurrence and that is what we are giving them: by using the Natural Resources Council to monitor and independently evaluate their study," he continued.

By using this type of "good faith" approach, I believe that we would avoid the exercise of the preemptive power by the federal government, and at the same time retain the right of state action. Blake concluded.
