Cruse Promotes County

BY HERB BREVARD
Texas Ag Extension Service
A lifetime of dedication to serving the people of Tyler County is wrapped up in Lou Cruse's 87 years. Born and raised in Tyler County, Judge Cruse has been a farmer, rancher, businessman and public servant. His Dies Community farm has served as the birthplace of many agricultural innovations for the people of the area.

Improved agriculture and the Tyler County Hospital have been two of his outstanding contributions to Tyler County. As a young man, Judge Cruse experienced the establishment of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the county agent system of informal education. Since 1924, when Benny Gray was hired as the first county agent in Tyler County, Judge Cruse has been cooperating with all the agents who have worked in the county. One of the first Extension activities, he recalls, is when Gray conducted a beef canning demonstration at the Cruse home. All the neighbors were invited to participate. No electricity and very little refrigeration was available. Canning or drying were the only methods to preserve food. Judge Cruse remembers that the beef was cooked in a large barrel and that it was really good.

DOGWOOD PRINCESS—Representing the city of Chester, is pretty Sherry Morris, a junior who will be competing with four other Tyler County beauties for the title of Dogwood Festival Queen. Sherry reminds everyone that tickets for the pageant are on sale at: Jarratts Pharmacy, Bob's Prescription Shop, Sullivan's Hardware, Tyler County Chamber of Commerce Office and the Woodville Inn/Gift Shop.

Cruse Promotes County

Judge Cruse has seen Tyler County agriculture change from a row crop and timber industry to a beef cattle and timber economy. Cotton was grown on much of the black land area of the county. Up to one bale per acre could be produced without fertilizer and cotton gins were located throughout the county. After cotton, farmers began producing truck crops, primarily green-ripe tomatoes and sweet potatoes. A sweet potato grading and marketing shed was the center of activity. Labor, however, took its toll for the truck farmers. As the labor supply declined, truck farming gave way to other enterprises.

At one time, broiler production accounted for more income in the county than did the timber industry. Hard times fell on the broiler producers when efforts to locate a broiler processing plant in the county failed. Citizens voted down a bond issue to support the plant and the broiler industry became history. With approximately 86 percent of Tyler County covered with timber, farmers turned to beef cattle as a primary endeavor. Today, approximately 14,000 head of mother cows graze the pastures and forest of the county.

The Consumer Alert

by Mark White
Attorney General

AUSTIN—Unscrupulous home repair or improvement contractors can take unfair advantage of both consumers and of the legitimate business persons who compete with them.

Our Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division attorneys say that spring is a favorite time of year for these deceptive operators, and that numerous consumer complaints have been received about misrepresentation by home-improvement contractors.

You should be aware that a reputable contractor will not "low-ball" or give an unrealistically low estimate for an expensive job to get your business. He won't let you think he'll be through with the job in three weeks if he knows that it's likely to take six. He won't substitute cheaper materials and construct them in a way that you won't be aware of. And he won't guarantee his work if he's going to leave town following the job.

Cruse Promotes County

Throughout his farming career, Judge Cruse worked closely with county agents B.B. Martin, Morris Hyde, Press Goins and currently Clinton Currie. He conducted hundreds of demonstrations on his farm to show improved production methods.

Judge Cruse was one of the first producers in the county to have a hay baler. When coastal bermudagrass was first introduced, his farm had one of the first plantings.

When asked about the effect of the county agent program and the Agricultural Extension Service on the economy of the county, Judge Cruse said, "Extension has been a good investment in the county. People who have worked with the county agents and followed their recommendations have been the most prosperous and had the best lives."

Judge Cruse began his political career in Tyler County in 1934 when he was elected county commissioner. After two terms, he was elected county judge in 1938 and served in that position, except for one term, until his retirement in 1950.

John Scroggins Hurling For McNeese

LAKE CHARLES, La. — A month into the 1979 baseball season and John Scroggins is being hailed as a different pitcher from the one he had a year ago at the same time. At this time last season the McNeese State freshman was 2-0. There's a big difference, however, in the Scroggins of 1979 and the Scroggins of 1978. Cowboy coach Johnny Sudam knows it, the players know it, and more important, Scroggins himself knows it. After running last year's record to 3-0, Scroggins didn't win again, finishing with a 3-3 record. "John is an entirely different pitcher this year," Sudam said. "Last year he relied on his fast ball and it got him into trouble with opposing teams during the season. This year he's working his curve in and he's leading the ball low."

During our fall practice, Coach Hoyer helped me a lot with my pitching, standing behind me during practice and telling me when to throw it and when to throw it hard. I've received some very valuable tips from Coach Hoyer. Last year I was a thrower, now I like to think that I'm a pitcher. In his two starting assignments this season, Scroggins has been in control all the way. He's given up only three runs, three earned runs, and three hits in 14 innings. He's pitched four innings and allowed one run. He struck out 2-3 and had a 6.59 ERA. This season he's got a curve and a sometimes knuckleball to go with his fast ball and he appears to be working on his way to giving the Cowboys another outstanding lefty.

Scroggins said, "I found out that you have more than a fast ball in college," he said. His rookie season with the Pokes he was 1-2 with a 4.66 ERA and last year he was 3-3 and had a 6.59 ERA. This season he's got a curve and a sometimes knuckleball to go with his fast ball and he appears to be working on his way to giving the Cowboys another outstanding lefty.

Yellowjackets Over Hornets. GOODRICH-The Chester Yellowjackets pounded the Goodrich Hornets for the second time in the young 1979 baseball season, this time by the score of 13 to 3. The game was played on March 6. Chester jumped to an early lead in the first inning, scoring three runs across the plate. Goodrich narrowed the margin to 5 to 4 in the second inning. Chester put the game away in the third, as they scored three runs, and then added five more in the seventh inning, to increase their lead to 13 to 4. The Hornets staged a come back in the last inning, but they could only score two runs. Julius Johnson picked up the win, as he pitched the first five innings. Kent Botley worked the last two innings in relief. They combined to strike out three and walked six. Johnson and Botley also led the Yellowjacket hitting, as each went two for five. Chester's season record is 2-0. Chester coach Raymond Wallace said, "The team looked a whole lot better. The pitching was better, although it seemed like Goodrich swung at a lot of bad balls. We didn't have many walks. Toward the end of the game we made some mental errors, but on the whole we played a good game."

Jim Browder Report

The Constitution of 1876 contained a provision exempting from taxation $250 worth of "household and kitchen furniture." This provision was removed by the Tax Relief Amendment and in its place the Legislature is directed to exempt household goods and personal effects not held or used for the production of income.

In practice, household goods and personal effects are not assessed. Although a few taxing jurisdictions value such property by assuming it to be a uniform percentage of the value placed on the residence of the owner, it is really impractical for assessors to enter every residence and actually enumerate and value such property. None of the local school districts in our legislative district currently tax household goods.

It is now up to the Legislature to pass a statute to define what is to be included in "household goods," "personal effects," and "held or used for the production of income."

The Tax Relief Amendment added a new provision to the Constitution which would permit the Legislature to exempt all or part of the personal property of a family or single adult and defining "personal property" to mean that personal property exempt from taxation by law from forced sale for debt.

The items included in the term "personal property" are defined in the statutes. This definition covers some of the same types of property that are addressed in the provisions of HJR 1 relating to intangibles, household goods, and personal effects. The really significant additional property eligible for exemption under this provision would seem to be individually owned motor vehicles such as automobiles, trucks and motorcycles. Presently, some local jurisdictions tax such motor vehicles, but they are not assessed.

The Tax Relief Amendment directs the Legislature to enact legislation providing for the valuation of open-space land devoted to farming or catching for purposes of property taxation on the basis of its productive capacity. It permits the Legislature to enact similar laws for the valuation of land devoted to timber production. It additionally provides that the Legislature may limit eligibility for such valuation and impose sanctions.

Presently, this land is assessed value. As of January 1, 1979, they are to be expressed in terms of market value. The option was also extended to include exemptions for the disabled. Effective with January 1, 1979, tax rolls each school district must provide an exemption for every residence homesteaded in the amount of $5,000 of market value. This provision applies only to school districts.

In addition, this amendment authorizes the Legislature to provide up to $10,000 in additional residence homesteaded exemptions for the elderly. These exemptions, if granted, will apply to school district taxes only. They must be in addition to the mandatory $5,000 exemption. The House Ways and Means Committee has voted to extend this exemption to all of the elderly and the disabled. The cost of determining economic eligibility would be great. The Tax Relief Amendment exempts all elderly and disabled persons receiving an exemption under this provision will also be protected from any future increases in school taxes on that property.

The Tax Relief Amendment states that the Legislature shall provide for formulae to be used to determine eligibility. Administratively, it would be extremely difficult to distinguish between individuals and corporations. For this and other reasons, I am inclined to favor tax relief for all open space land.

The Tax Relief Amendment "changed" the Constitution on local option homestead exemptions for the elderly. Up to now, these have been expressed in terms of assessed value.

Under a 1966 constitutional amendment, farmers and ranchers are able to qualify their land for valuation based on certain stringent restrictions of eligibility. Relatively few farmers and ranchers have been able to qualify. In 1975, a general statute was passed which set forth a productivity valuation method for agricultural land, but it was unconstitutional because the proposed constitutional amendment did not pass.

The rapid growth on the fringes of urban areas has increased the market values of surrounding land well above its value for agricultural use. Even in rural areas, the increased demand for local revenues has caused higher assessment levels and thus higher taxes. An additional consideration applies to timberland. Under existing law, timber is not considered a crop or farm product, and standing timber is valued as real property separately from the value of the land. As a result, the annual growth of the timber is taxed every year until harvested. This is an unfair tax burden on timberland and has the potential for being a deterrent to timber production.

There is serious debate as to what requirements should be used to determine eligibility. Administratively, it would be extremely difficult to distinguish between individuals and corporations. For this and other reasons, I am inclined to favor tax relief for all open space land.

Focus On Fred

VIRGINIA ARCADE
On Monday night, March 5, the Fred Elementary School opened its doors to parents and interested persons to visit and confer with teachers. In observance of Texas Public School Week, a visual at Fred, there was a large gathering of mothers and fathers, as well as a host of children and friends, visiting teachers, and each other. Everyone enjoyed a first hand view of art on display in the halls. First, Second, and Third grade ribbons were awarded to those pictures that depicted a "touch" of a young artist at thought. Those attending the Open House were also treated to displays of talent, as well as art. The old auditorium (dressed with new drapes) was a sight to behold. Under casting law, Mr. and Mrs. Fred, sang their favorite Country Western tunes. Two young Westerners did precious individual dance routines. And there were pantomime shows; Marilyn, Linda, Carol Robinson, straight out of an old Red Skelton T.V. sketch. There were also several poetry readings as the young students practiced on the stage before going to J.L. contests. The evening concluded with homemade cookies.

As school talk was over, heard up and down the halls. I could not help but think of the School Board elections coming up April 7. There are two positions on the Warren ISD up for election this year: position 6, current holder, Kenneth Gregory of Fred, and position 7, currently occupied by Mrs. Marvin Fannin. Both incumbents are unopposed in the April 7 election. As I talked with Mr. Gregory concerning a school board member, he stated his feelings as "a member of a local school board of education is entrusted with one of the most important jobs that can be assigned to any citizen - that of planning and directing the education of the youth in the local community." A school board member in Texas, sitting on a local board of education serves as a state official, joining over 8,000 other men and women in guiding a statewide school system which spends over $2 billion annually and serves approximately 2.5 million children. Board members receive no pay for this service except the satisfaction which comes from redefining and indispensable public service. One of the most important duties of a school board member is to join in setting policy for the school system. A board member is expected to make decisions on a wide range of problems and therefore should be a skilled decision maker. "Problems facing the board member include: adoption of the school district budget; setting the district tax rate; hiring and firing personnel; approving bills and accounts; and many other problems that arise in the day-to-day operation of a public school system." A school board member should always remember that their first and greatest concern must be the educational welfare of the students attending the public schools in their school district.

The Warren ISD is scattered geographically and many interests must be considered. Educating in our district includes a great deal of transporting kids. The educational process does not begin with the tardy bell and end with the evening bus recess, so parents - show your support of your local public school and your local school board members by exercising your right to vote in the election of school trustees.

Sheffield Earns $275

E. Glen Sheffield of Edwille wrestled a calf over the finish line at the March 3 evening performance of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo to earn a $275 calf purchase certificate.

The certificate, donated by Husc, Chiropractic Office, will enable Glen to purchase a beef or dairy heifer which will feed and groom during the coming year, under the relief, these proposals tend to limit local spending. By using the sales tax to reimburse the younger set will return with his calf to compete in special show ring competition in raising a calf.

The rough and tumble calf scramble takes place at each of the 15 rodeo arenas. Twelve calves and 24 youngsters are turned loose who must break and manage to halter a calf and drag it across the finish line. Each contestant who manages to halter a calf and drag it across the finish line receives a purchase certificate donated by Husc, Chiropractic Office. The certificate, donated by Husc, Chiropractic Office, will enable Glen to purchase a beef or dairy heifer which will feed and groom during the coming year, under the relief, these proposals tend to limit local spending. TP&W In Wildlife Experiment

AUSTIN-The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission on Feb. 21, voted to allow the Parks and Wildlife Department to engage in a game management experiment which would have far-reaching effects on the future of hunting in the state.

The commission approved a contract between the department and Temple-Eastex, Inc. for the department to manage up to 17,800 acres of privately owned timberland in Anderson and Houston Counties for game management purposes including public hunting.

This represents a new concept for the department, since all game management and public hunting in the past have been confined primarily to state and publicly owned management areas.

Blake Would Abolish 'Grievance Committee'

AUSTIN-Senate Bill 782 was introduced in the Texas Senate today by Senator Roy Blake of Nacogdoches. The bill would abolish county grievance committees. The county grievance committee was established to hear complaints of elected county officials who were aggrieved with their salaries or allowances as set by the county commissioners court.

By a two-thirds vote of the members of the committee the commissioners would be obligated to reconsider salaries and allowances. By unanimous vote, the decision of the grievance committee would be binding without further action by the court.

There have been numerous cases involving a grievance committee hearing its own grievances and raising their own salaries. "There is some merit to grievance processes in some cases but it borders on the ridiculous when they are used to hear their own grievances and raise their own salaries," Blake stated.

Clean Up Operation Watched

BEAUMONT—The effectiveness of clean-up operations following the recent oil spill in the Neches River will be monitored with $5,250 grants awarded to Dr. Richard C. Harrell, associate professor of Biology at Lamar University.

The grant from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) will allow unique investigations into the effectiveness of oil cleanup operations in salt marshes, according to Harrell, who documented, in published reports on the impact of different cleanup methods on the marsh.

A meeting held at Lamar following the oil spill of approximately 500 barrels of light Arabian crude near Port Neches in February, was attended by representatives from industry and national, state and local government agencies to discuss strategies for the cleanup operations. Three possible methods of cleaning up the marsh are available, following the standard procedure of applying straw like absorbent materials and a low pressure washing, Harrell said.

An area of vegetation may be burned off, or can be flushed with the ground with a weed-eater type of cutter and the vegetation burned away, leaving the sediments regenerate, or the area can be left alone to be cleaned by nature. The latter study will determine which method offers the greatest regeneration of marsh vegetation.

"Coastal marshes on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, with their high salt water, are mostly made up of salt grass," Harrell said. "These marshes have high production and are important nursery grounds for shrimp and many types of fish and snails, and are the habitat of birds, fish, bearing animals and alligators."

According to Harrell the spill happened just before the growing season in March and until now, there has never been a study that measured oil spill effects on a year's growth of vegetation.

Accordingly, three salt marsh areas affected by oil in the Neches River marsh on the Neches River were marked off in a grid pattern, after absorbent straw and gentle washing were applied to the vegetation. One area was burned off, another area was left alone, and the last was marked off, treated the same way, and will be measured carefully for growth development this year.

Vegetation density, percent cover, regeneration and net above-ground productivity will be determined on the marked land plots. In addition, soil samples and insect and other small animal life, populations will be analyzed, as well as soil samples of organisms on the vegetation. Also, signs of larger animals that will be noted.

All the data will be tested statistically to determine if significant differences exist within and between oil-affected and unaffected plots of ground.

At monthly intervals, from March through September in the growing season, all plots in the sample area of ground will be identified and counted, their stems measured for diameter, height and monthly regeneration.

SS Warning Given To Students

Social Security students beneficiaries were warned today that their monthly checks will stop if they stop attending school.

Beneficiaries were notified by mail and return a required school enrollment report.

Travis C. Briggs, social security district manager in Lufkin, said reporting forms are being mailed to students. If a student who receives a monthly social security check, school officials are being asked to verify on the form that the student is enrolled on a full-time basis.

If a student fails to return the form, or the form comes back without the necessary school certification, student's monthly checks will be stopped, Briggs said.

Students who do not qualify for social security payments if a parent is receiving retirement or disability benefits or has died. Those students are required to report on their school enrollment status twice a year.

"Any student who needs help in completing the form or has questions about it should contact any social security office."

Rhodes Wrestles Calf

Leslie Elton Rhodes of Warren wrestled a calf over the finish line at the March 3 evening performance of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo to earn a $275 calf purchase certificate.

The certificate, donated by Blue Ribbon Packing Co., will enable Leslie to purchase a beef or dairy heifer which he will feed and groom during the coming year under the direction of Clinton Currie. At next year's Livestock Show the youngster will return with his calf to compete in special showing competition.

The rough and tumble calf scramble takes place at each of the 15 rodeo performances. Twelve calves and 24 youngsters are turned loose. Each contestant who manages to hold the calf and drag it across the finish line receives a purchase certificate donated by Houston area business and individuals.

While the viewing public sees only the scramble and judging events, the heart of the calf scramble program is the knowledge the scramble winners gain in the intervening year. Closely supervised by a Vocational Agricultural Teacher or County Extension Agent, each youngster keeps accurate records and performs other obligations designed to underscore the responsibility involved in raising a calf.

The Calf Scramble is only one of many events of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo's commitment to the youth of Texas, and the benefits of this event alone are considerable. Many heifers purchased with these certificates form the nucleus for future cattle herds. Since the calf scramble program began, more than 200 animals valued at more than $1.5 million have been donated to Texas youngsters.

Each year the show awards some 200 purchase certificates worth $1,500 to scramble winners.

The popular Calf Scramble event is only one of many exciting events which take place during the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo. The show, which runs February 22 through March 2, draws first-rate professional cowboys who compete for the world's largest rodeo purse of more than $150,000 and features top names in entertainment.

Thicket Retreat Set

SARATOGA-Geraldine Watson, Big Thicket authority, William Cribbs of NACA and Blair Pittman, Big Thicket photographer, will be evening program participants for the Big Thicket annual retreat to be held April 26, 7 and 8, at Big Thicket Association headquarters and museum. Both programs will begin at 7:30.

Two others, Hays Boh Armstrong, land commissioner, the Han Pearce Johnson, Chairman, Parks and Wildlife Commission, have also been invited to speak, but their replies have not been received.

Both Mrs. Watson and Mr. Cribbs will be in Friday evening programs. Mrs. Watson will give a slide presentation, surveying Thicket diversity. This is an introduction to the Thicket.

Cribbs' presentation will be a "Survey of the Higher Fungi of the Big Thicket." He is conducting research on fungi for the preserve.

Blair Pittman's Saturday presentation will be "Natural World Expanded", in slide-lecture. A bon fire will follow, as will authentic Indian dances by University of Houston graduate students.

Camping on the grounds will be encouraged for Friday and Saturday nights.

Twenty guided trips are planned into the Thicket on Saturday and Sunday. Two of these are bus trips to canoe trips on Turkey creek and Village Creek are also on the agenda.

A barbecue supper will be served on Saturday evening.

All information about the three day retreat is available by calling Big Thicket Museum, or writing: Box 198, Saratoga, 77585, 713-274-2971. The retreat is limited to 450; all applications must be in by March 23.

Workshop Set On Park Services

DALLAS—Taxpayer demands for efficiency and effectiveness in the delivery of public services, such as those dealing with park and recreation facilities is one reason for a two-day workshop on "Marketing of Leisure Services" here March 12-13.

The workshop, to be held at the Texas A&M University Research and Extension Center, is one of eight being sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas Recreation and Park Society. The workshop will focus on techniques and tools that have proven successful in business to increase efficiency and effectiveness, points out Carson Watt, Extension Specialist in Parks and Recreation. Dr. John Compton and Dr. Charles Lamb of the Department of Recreation and Parks and Department of Marketing respectively, Texas A&M University, will lead workshop discussions.

Compton said: "To many people concerned with the delivery of public services, marketing is an activity that is only appropriate in commercial profit-making enterprises. It is not distinguished from aggressive selling, suggesting exploitation and forcing of unwanted goods on unsuspecting people; the superficial glitter of billboards and neon signs; commercials on television; or exposure to aggressive salesmen. What's at stake in marketing, we don't have this mind" at all. "We're concerned with finding what services citizens want most and the most effective way to deliver them. That's what marketing is really all about."

Main workshop topics will deal with methods of finding out the most wanted leisure services in a particular community; ways of organizing and identifying similar wants in groups of people and methods of selecting and managing recreation and park programs. There will also be discussions on user pricing objectives, price demands, alternate ways of determining appropriate user prices, and effective communications with various client groups.

The schedule of remaining workshops is as follows: Lubbock, March 29-30; Corpus Christi, April 6-7; San Antonio, April 12-13; Westaco, April 20-21; and El Paso, May 1-2.

USDA Proposes Handicap Regs

WASHINGTON—Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland today proposed regulations that would prohibit discrimination on the basis of handicap in programs receiving financial assistance from the department. The proposed regulations are patterned after similar guidelines issued by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

Bergland said the HEW regulations were selected as a model because the Department of Agriculture and HEW have many common recipients of federal assistance.

The regulations specifically address employment practices, program accessibility, education programs and social services of state governments, public and private institutions and others who receive assistance from the department. They would further require department agencies to work with other appropriate federal agencies in enforcing regulations which require buildings to be accessible and prohibit employment discrimination against handicapped people.

Fortenberry Earns $275

By Fortenberry of Woodville, Texas, wrestled a call over the finish line at the February 27, 1979 performance of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo to earn $275 call purchase certificate.

The certificate, donated by Mrs. Doran V. Jones, will enable Bruce to purchase a beef or dairy heifer which he will feed and groom during the coming year under the direction of Joe Glasscock. At next year's Livestock Show, the youngster will return with his call to compete in special showing competition.

The rough and tumble call scramble takes place at each of the 15 Rodeo performances. Twelve calves and 24 youngsters are turned loose. Each contestant who manages to halter a calf and drag it across the finish line receives a purchase certificate donated by Houston-area businesses and individuals.

While the viewing public sees only the scramble and judging events, the heart of the Call Scramble program is the knowledge the participants gain in the intervening year. Closely supervised by a Vocational Agricultural Teacher by County Extension Agent, each youth keeps accurate records and performs other obligations designed to underscore the responsibilities involved in raising a calf.

The Call Scramble is only one example of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo's commitment to the youth of Texas, and the benefits of this one event alone are considerable. Many heifers purchased with these certificates form the basis for future cattle herds. Since the call scramble program began, more than 9000 animals valued at more than $1.5 million have been donated to Texas youngsters. Each year the show awards some 260 purchase certificates worth $71,500 to scramble winners.

The popular Call Scramble event is one of many exciting events which take place during the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo. The show, which runs February 24 through March 6, draws first-rate professional cowboys who compete for the world's largest rodeo purse of more than $150,000 and features top names in entertainment.
