'Our Changing Rights'

BY KAY FREEMAN
Warren High School

When people talk about their rights what are they really talking about? People today, more so than ten years ago, are fighting for more personal freedom. Each individual feels like his rights should not be violated.

Since the establishing of the United States, the Bill of Rights has been used as a guide for individual rights. New laws have been added and old laws have been amended, but we still use these as the ten principal laws.

Rights can be termed in a lot of different ways. Most of the time we think of our civil rights as being for the individual. However, we have other rights besides our civil, unions, and business rights. Sometimes they have to go through court procedure to obtain and clarify these rights, but they do have rights just as the individual does.

If one really thinks about it, the people of the United States have progressed and achieved a lot. Slavery is a thing of the past now. At one time black people were treated like uncivilized human beings. Black people were forced to work for their owners, without pay. They received only their food, clothing and shelter. They went on for years until it was abolished in 1865 by the ratification of the Thirteenth Amendment.

I have often wondered what the United States would be like if people had no rights. It is really hard to imagine because if one has never been faced with a situation like that, it is hard to picture it in one's mind. People of our country know what it feels like to have all these rights. One can only guess what they would do if all of a sudden these rights were taken away.

Another question that is hard for me to answer is: Who can really be the judge and say what someone else's rights are? Where does one person's rights end and the other person's begin? If a man smokes a cigarette he has the right to smoke the cigarette. Now if a person comes along that does not smoke, does he have the right to ask the other person not to smoke? In that case two people's rights are involved. The person asking the man not to smoke has his rights because the cigarette smoke might be harmful to his health. The man smoking the cigarette has his rights because it is his body and he can harm it if he wishes.

When the Constitution of the United States was drawn up it was meant to give a person many rights and liberties in which the government could not deprive him. Since our government was formed by the people, therefore it is controlled by the people. People have changed and gained rights by carrying their cases to the Supreme Court. Then the Supreme Court decides upon it and what ever their decision, it stands.

Women have also come a long way in their fight for equal rights. Women were not even able to vote until the year 1920 when the Nineteenth Amendment was ratified. Today women have more rights than they ever thought about having. Women are now trying to get equal rights with men. They feel like they deserve the same wages as a man if they do the same work. This issue has been before the Congress for a couple of years. The Equal Rights Amendment would guarantee these rights.

Since women are trying to get equal rights, men feel like they should also have equal responsibility. A good example would be in the case of a divorce. If a man gets custody of the child, the woman should be required to pay child support the same as a man would.

There are a lot of rights people have that they are not aware of. In many instances people are taken advantage of because they do not know what rights they really have. A company or employer might treat its employees any way they wish if the employees are not aware of their rights. There is really no end to changing rights. People are always going to be dissatisfied with something and they are going to try and change things. Some changes need to be made while others might be for the best. Since people have different values, there will always be differences of opinion.

If the world had stayed like it was two thousand years ago, there would not be any need for changing rights. However, society progresses and changes have to occur to balance things out.

From slavery to women's rights one can see just how much of a change has occurred. People want to be individuals. They want their liberties back, white, red, man or woman. They are human beings and want to be treated as human beings.

Toxic Road Oil Said Shipped To County

Tyler County is one of seven Texas counties that received road oil from Browning-Ferris Industries (BFI) of Houston, that allegedly contains nitrobenzene and cyanide, two highly toxic substances, according to the Texas Department of Water Resources (TDWR).

A Port Arthur, Texas, newspaper released a report approximately two weeks ago, allegedly that roads in the Reiley Village Subdivision, near Corrigan were surfaced with road oil contaminated with the toxic substances. As a result of the allegations, the TDWR, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), and the Texas Department of Health (TDH) began an investigation.

In the investigation, the TDWR checked their industrial waste shipping control system, which revealed that seven East Texas counties, among them Tyler County, had received oil, reportedly over a period of years, from Browning-Ferris Industries. Other counties named in the TDWR report were Jefferson, Hardin, Newton, Polk, Orange and Jasper.

Browning-Ferris Industries is a Houston based firm charged with mixing toxic chemicals obtained from Dupont with road oil which was supplied to various area counties and individuals. The Bess-Tyler County area confirmed as having used oil from BFI was Ivanhoe Estates, located approximately six miles south of Woodville on Hwy. 69. Bill Weeks, spokesman for Ivanhoe, said that they "had used oil obtained from the company, but," he said further he felt "there was no problem with the oil."

According to Weeks, he personally sat on the back of the truck while the oil was being spread, and had been covered with it, breathing the fumes for 10 hours each day, with no apparent ill effects. Weeks added that Bill Adist of the TDWR came out on Tuesday, May 1, and took samples of the Ivanhoe road for testing. The results of these tests were not available at press time.

Tyler County Judge Allen Sturrock, when asked about the use of the BFI oil on the county roads, stated that the county obtains their oil from Hindon, a Beaumont hauler, and that "the county has gotten no oil from Browning-Ferris." Sturrock added that he is "completely satisfied that none of the oil used by the county is contaminated." "The county," he said, "has to obtain permission from the railroad commission to use the oil, which is tested before we receive it."

Congressman Charles Wilson made an on-site inspection of the Corrigan location on Saturday, and has promised a full Congressional investigation into the matter, according to Maria Zannies, a spokesman in Wilson's Washington office. As a result of the investigations by the TDWR to date, the unauthorized disposal of hazardous materials by Browning-Ferris has been referred to the Attorney General of Texas for litigation. The Texas Water Commission has also ordered BFI to remove the toxic road materials from the Reiley Village roads. BFI has agreed to comply with the order, and will resurface the involved roads at their expense.

According to a spokesman for the Texas Department of Health, no illnesses related to the road oil have been reported in Tyler County, or in any of the other counties suspected of being involved.

County Road Commissioner Marie Riley has been in contact with Bill Adist for the TDWR, and investigation into the situation in Tyler County continues. Results from the tests made on county roads are not expected for another week.

Suspect At Large

A 50 year old man who allegedly held a home in Barlow Hills Estates Sunday morning and attempted to set fire to it, is still at large. Sheriff's Deputy Otis Powell said Monday.

Powell, aided by Woodville Police Officer J.C. Coon and Special Investigator B.J. Vardeman, answered a report of a robbery at the home of Mittie Thompson at house #10 in Barlow Hills at about 3 a.m. Sunday morning.

According to Powell, Sam Brown drove up to the Thompson residence in a 1975 Red Ford LTD. He allegedly had either a 38 Special or 357 revolver and a shotgun in the car.

Powell said that he took from the residence an electric heater, a black and white portable T.V. and various articles of clothing. The man then attempted to burn the house. The investigators found kerosene poured over the floor and a charred brown paper sack.

It was reported that the case is similar to one that occurred recently in Woodville, and a connection between the two cases is suspected. A search is being made for the suspect.

Lamar University has an orientation each year to acquaint new comers to the college campus and to the area. This year the orientation effort is made to ease the tension that something college will bring to the new student.

This year the Fred Feb Graders were given a similar orientation and essentially for the same purpose. Last Wednesday, May 9, the Fred graders boarded the buses bound for Warren, just as they will do every morning come next school term. They were a very excited bunch of kids and they had every right to be. They knew that the orientation trip was a "first" for the school.

This orientation trip could be a pilot program for future graders and the success of the trip was partially on their shoulders.

Mr. H. H. Herd had another "first" to begin their tour of duty with the Texas Education Agency. Mr. Herd began at Fred Elementary back in 1973. Miss Christine Holt, from Silsbee, is her first assignment as a teacher. She gave this group a terrific start (As the same time, she gave her a terrific start. Below is a picture of the new staff of kindergarten at Fred in 1973.

As the students arrived at Warren, they were welcomed by Mr. C. L. Herd, Principal of Warren Jr. High, also a former principal at Fred Elementary. Mr. Herd had worked and planned with Mr. Mitchell, principal at Fred, and had a full day's schedule planned. The kids were carried through a mini-schedule so that they could be familiarized with the buildings, room numbers, lunch room, restrooms, etc. They were met by all the teachers, coaches, and band director. The Warren 6th graders were most gracious young hosts and hostesses as they assisted their new friends through a "normal" day at Warren Jr. High. The Warren 6th grade band students played a tune or two for the visitors. Several Fred students think they want to try an instrument next year.

One highlight of the day was "Cherished Memories". Three 6th grade girls from Fred - Thula Goslin, Tanya Melms and Roby Moore - were named for the positions. After the votes were cast and the ballots counted, this was the outcome: Sonia Moore, Lisa Hutto, and Tanya Melms from Fred and Gwendolyn Bonnie Clay and Diane Roberts from Warren won the honors. Tommie Hawthorne from Warren will be an alternate.

Many thanks and our sincere appreciation to Mr. Mitchell, Mr. Herd, the coaches, teachers, band director for their help in accomplishing a very successful day.

KHS Receives Top Rating

The Woodville Kirby High School Band received a top rating in the AA division during the 1979 State Band Festival in Arlington on Sunday, May 6.

The University Band directors judged the band very well.

Dr. Richard Strange, Director of Bands and Professor of Music at Arizona State University said, "Very good and very pleasing."

Dr. Donald McConis, Director of Bands at Ohio State University said, "I like your sound. I like the expressiveness of the lines, good connections, good legato."

Dr. Edward Kruth, Co-Director of Instrumental Music and Director of Bands at San Francisco University said, "You all played a most observable consciousness of balance and awareness to what is going on in the rest of the band which reflects good teaching is concerned."

The next performance of the Kirby High School Band will be performing at this year's Spring Concert.

Squirrel Season Now Open

Southeast Texas sportsmen will get the opportunity for extra hunting recreation when the squirrel hunting season for squirrels opens May 1 and runs through to the end of the month.

In most southeast Texas counties, the squirrel season will be the first ever, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department wildlife biologist Gary Spencer.

As in the regular fall squirrel hunting season, the spring tag limit will be 20 squirrels per day with a 20 squirrel possession limit in the regulatory counties.

The season hunting dates have been set to come well after squirrels have passed their peak spring breeding period and have weaned their young.

"Normally, hunters could expect the spring population of squirrels to be 20 to 50 percent lower than in the fall," but recent surveys indicate the squirrel numbers in spring areas to be higher than expected, Spencer advised.

The higher squirrel population can be attributed to good reproduction combined with a fine recent crop last fall.

In fact, there are still some good acorns on the ground, and the squirrels are still feeding on them, Spencer said.

Accordingly, spring hunters can look for the bushy tails in the same areas they normally find them in the fall, especially those areas with den trees.

Besides acorns, the squirrels will be feeding on berries and buds and mushrooms which are available.

While last spring vegetation and recent rains will make the hunting more challenging than usual, the hunter can expect less competition from other hunters, Spencer concluded.

Mother's Day cards aren't just for Mom

You don't have to be a mother—or even a woman—to receive a Mother's Day card.

More than 120 million cards will be exchanged for Mother's Day this year, but only about 50 percent will be titled "To Mother."

Says Gary O'Neal of Hallmark Cards:

"There is a large group of titles for female relatives other than mother," O'Neal says. The group includes sister, daughter, niece, aunt, grandmother, great-grandmother and granddaughter cards.

It doesn't stop there. Another group of titles includes non-relatives such as Mother-In-Law, Other Mother, Like A Mother, Friend's Mother, Godmother, Mother of Someone Dear and Secret Pal, to name a few.

Wife cards make up about 10 percent of our line," O'Neal says, "and we've even got one for expectant mothers. Not to mention a card entitled 'To Father on Mother's Day'."

Lamanite Generation At Sundown Theatre

The Lamanite Generation, a musical group consisting of 40 singers, dancers and musicians, and representing some 20 different Indian tribes and nationalities, performed in the Sundown Amphitheatre Friday and Saturday, May 4 and 5, at the Alabama-Coushatta Reservation.

The group was created in 1971 when Janie Thompson, current director of the Lamanite Generation, envisioned an Indian performing group presenting traditional dances and songs in colorful native costumes, combined with contemporary original songs.

The Lamanite Generation show ranges from the traditional war and hoop dance to other numbers more contemporary in style. In fact, nearly every song performed by the group is an original composition created by members of the Lamanite Generation.

Members of the group believe that Native Americans, Polynesians and Latins are distantly related. For this reason, the group chose the name "Lamanite," a book of Mormon term which refers to this common ancestry.

Despite the threatening rain, a large crowd turned out at the theatre to see the performance.

AUSTRALIAN BOLO DANCE (bottom left) is a traditional Austrian dance, where the sound of the bolos in the air stimulate the wings of birds.

THE LAMANITE GENERATION (bottom right) is a performing group from Utah made up of people from over 20 tribes and nationalities.

THE INDIAN HOOP DANCE (center right) is a very difficult dance. The men start with one hoop and end up manipulating over 23.

THE FAMOUS WAR DANCE (top right) done traditionally by the braves before going into battle.

New Industry Offers Community Benefits, Costs

COLLEGE STATION. When a new industry locates in a rural community, there are both benefits and costs, according to a recent Texas A.M. University study.

The usual case is that community leaders tend to overestimate industrial benefits, while underestimating additional public expenditures needed to serve the industry and its employees. This is the conclusion of three economists who researched the impact of industrialization on rural communities in Texas.

All in all, total community net gains averaged about $300,000. In the private sector, some net benefits were direct income, such as wages and salaries, and increased household expenditures made in the community due to increased salaries.

Some costs for this sector have been tabbed by proponents as a means of improving employment and income, as well as a means of reducing a community's tax burden by broadening the local tax base. However, net community benefits may be lower than expected because some of the payroll leaves the community through commuters, residents, tend to consume outside the community, local governments is unable to convert economic growth into tax revenues, and local government services are too many concessions to new industry.

The researchers concluded that industrialization's effect on reducing taxes is minimal. Nine plants in six rural Texas communities were investigated in 1975 and 1976 to evaluate their net economic impact. Four of the communities were in East Texas and two in South Central Texas. All communities were at one time predominantly dependent upon agriculture or natural resources-based economies. Their populations ranged from 1,200 to 10,000 based on 1973 census estimates. Annual employment of the plants ranged from 20 to 152 employees, and annual payrolls ranged from $144,000 to $1,090,000.

Benefits and costs attributed to each plant were estimated and reported for private, municipal government and school district sectors. Direct indirect and induced effects were also estimated, with benefits and costs determined net economic impact.

Mississippi State University, Dr. Lonnie L. Jones, a Texas Agricultural Experiment Station research economist, and Dr. Richard Floyd, a Texas Agricultural Extension Service economist, in real estate, conducted the study.

Some costs for this sector have been tabbed by proponents as a means of improving employment and income, as well as a means of reducing a community's tax burden by broadening the local tax base. However, net community benefits may be lower than expected because some of the payroll leaves the community through commuters, residents, tend to consume outside the community, local governments is unable to convert economic growth into tax revenues, and local government services are too many concessions to new industry.

Lamanite Generation Pleases Crowd At Reservation

Cowboy and Indian matched forces again recently outside Livingston, Texas, and this time the Indians won. This spoof reviving American history was part of the return engagement performance of the Lamanite Generation, an internationally acclaimed Indian performing troupe from Brigham Young University.

The troupe appeared in the Sundown Amphitheatre on the Alabama-Coushatta Indian Reservation between Livingston and Woodville, Texas on U.S. 190, under the direction of its founder, Janie Thompson, the highly lauded musical director.

Through combine efforts of a professional cast, director Roger Hall, composer Frank Lewis, costume designer Robert Locke, and choreographer, known simply as "Luka," BEYOND THE SUNDOWN is a blend of historical authenticity and modern professional theatre.

BEYOND THE SUNDOWN will be presented Monday through Saturday, June 3 through August 25 at 8:30 p.m. in the Sundown Theatre of the Alabama-Coushatta Indian Reservation. Texas-style barbecue is served in the Pine Forest picnic area before the performance, and group discounts are available. LIVINGSTON - FOREST MANAGEMENT ASSISTANCE OFFERED TO LANDOWNERS. In addition to being responsible for controlling wildfires on one million acres in the area the Texas Forest Service also provides to landowners, without charge, forest management assistance. Don Staples, district forester in Livingston, states that a Service forester is available to come out and make a forest management plan, and recommendations, to landowners about how they can manage their timberlands, or establish a timber stand. All that is needed is a phone call or a letter to the local Texas Forest Service office. Forest management literature is also available to landowners for the asking that will answer many questions about problems landowners face when trying to manage their timberlands. For more information and/or assistance contact the Texas Forest Service at 327-4832 or go by their office at 508 Pan American Drive. A Service Forester will be glad to assist you. 113-043079-LP Official Texas Forest Service Photo

Natural Resources Committee Approves Nuke Storage Bill
AUSTIN - The Natural Resources Committee of the Texas Senate by a vote of 6-2, today approved a bill to require private approval of any site for long term permanent storage of nuclear waste materials in Texas. Those voting for the bill were Senators Swartz, Trahan, Valle, Farabee, Price and Pannan. The bill had been considered previously but by a vote of 5-5 had not received approval for consideration by the full Senate.

Blakes Bill Falls Short By 3

AUSTIN - Senate Bill 22 by Senator Blake, of Mackinac, fell three votes shy of receiving the two-thirds vote necessary for it to be considered by the full Senate. The actual vote was 18 for and thirteen against, bringing the bill up for consideration.

Blake's bill would have denied benefits to those individuals who quit their jobs without good cause, or who were discharged for embezzling, gross misappropriation of employer's property, or gross misconduct.

The burden of unemployment compensation has through the years been borne by business and industry, but in January of 1978 the State of Texas counties, cities, and school districts were covered under the law. Most of the non-business entities elected to become reimbursing employers and pay dollar for dollar and benefits awarded by I.E.C.

Leprosy Still Public Health Problem In Texas

Immersed in myths and nurtured by half-truths and misconceptions, an age-old affliction—Hansen's Disease, or leprosy—still remains a public health problem today in Texas.

Last year, 28 new cases were reported in the state, according to Dr. R. Ratard, Hansen's Disease consultant with the Texas Department of Health in Dallas.

Dr. Ratard, who carries out statewide epidemiology and education efforts, says about 60 Texans reside at the US Public Health Service Hospital in Carville, La., and 380 victims of the disease reside at their homes in Texas.

Of the new cases found in Texas, about half were infected in the state where they were infected.

Dr. Ratard believes that the Texas cases of Hansen's Disease brought down to zero with extensive case-finding activities, treatment and education.

All physicians need to be aware of the symptoms of the disease and the availability of Texas Department of

of the public health nurse in the education of early symptoms of Hansen's Disease. Education of the patient, victims and their families, as well as physicians, need education on the treatment of Hansen's Disease (HD) and its spread, he says.

Hansen's Disease, says Dr. Ratard, has been brought into Texas by settlers of different origins. It spreads very slowly from the places where it is first spread and these areas are still the main foci of HD nowadays. Some of these foci, such as San Antonio and Galveston, are disappearing. But others, he said, such as the Lower Rio Grande Valley and Southern Gulf Coast, are still active.

The Health Department is coordinating services available to HD patients and their families. It is directly providing the services.

Diagnosis of Hansen's Disease usually is made by a family physician or dermatologist in confirmation with assistance from the State Health Department or the hospital at Carville.

Dr. Ratard says the role of the public health nurse is to educate the patient, victims and their families, as well as physicians, on the treatment of Hansen's Disease (HD) and its spread, he says.

need for long and regular treatment. Symptoms usually first appear as skin lesions, and the best diagnosis is best confirmed by a biopsy, he said.

Basically, there are two main forms of leprosy. In one, says Dr. Ratard, the skin becomes thickened and is covered by patches and large nodules (lepromatous type). The second type invades the nerves causing loss of feeling in the skin, paralysis and later deformities of the limbs (tuberculoid type). The disease begins with the indeterminate type and progresses to the tuberculoid type or the lepromatous type.

The prognosis of HD is dependent upon the disease type, the time of diagnosis and the course of therapy. Indeterminate and Tuberculoid types usually need a three-year treatment. Lepromatous types need a life-long treatment. The disease usually is cured in five to 10 years, but treatment is continued in order to prevent any relapse.

The disease is an infectious ailment caused by a bacterium, but only a small percentage of people exposed to the germ acquire leprosy. Evidence suggests many more are infected, but their immune systems prevent disease development, said Dr. Ratard.

All new cases should be reported to the Bureau of Communicable Diseases, Services of the Texas Department of Health, which has maintained a "Case Register" since 1920. More than 1,010 cases have been reported since then.

Although many patients still are unwell, the future looks bright, says Dr. Ratard. One bright spot is that most specialists agree that 85 percent of the world's population has natural immunity to the disease.

Tower Pulls Defense Bill

WASHINGTON—Declaring the Congress as without vision and unwilling to accept its responsibility to respond to the sentiment of the country in maintaining the United States as a world leader, Senator John Tower Wednesday night withdrew an amendment he had offered to the Senate's Budget Resolution which would have strengthened the spending for national defense.

What we respond to in Congress is well-organized, highly vocal, well-disciplined pressure groups that have political clout and their clout in the aggregate, exceeds that of the general public. So I have no faith that we are going to respond to the popular will that we maintain the United States of America in a No. 1 position in national defense capability because we will not discipline ourselves to establish an order of priorities and make our spending cuts in the lower priority items.

Tower said during a late-night Senate session: "Tower's amendment, which would have increased the spending for national defense, is well-organized, highly vocal, well-disciplined pressure groups that have political clout and their clout in the aggregate, exceeds that of the general public. So I have no faith that we are going to respond to the popular will that we maintain the United States of America in a No. 1 position in national defense capability because we will not discipline ourselves to establish an order of priorities and make our spending cuts in the lower priority items."

Scale Insects Attack East Texas Oak

BY CLINTON R. CURRIE
County Extension Agent

Several reports of oak lecanium have been received throughout East Texas. The scale insect is first noticed as small, round, brown colored balls on limbs on the tree, usually last year's growth. As the insect matures, eggs are laid under the scale part of the insect. As the eggs hatch, the nymphs crawl to the new growth and begin feeding. With this particular species of scale, only oak trees are involved. Most of the scale has been found on oaks, but other oaks are susceptible. The possible damage to the tree depends on a great extent on the vitality of the tree. On young healthy trees, the scale insect may cause a few limbs to die and retard this year's growth. Older trees, vigorous trees could receive more damage if the insect is not controlled. Control of the scale is difficult, especially with trees more than 20 feet tall. A sprayer capable of developing 200 to 300 pounds of pressure will be required to reach the upper branches. Therefore, the homeowner may be caught in a situation where chemical control will be impossible unless a professional applicator is hired.

T.S.T.A. Blasts Clements About Teacher Salaries

AUSTIN—Texas teachers are headed for poverty level federal subsidies if Governor Clements has his way about proposed salary increases, a Texas State Teachers Association leader said Tuesday.

Persons filing 1978 income tax returns could receive federal credits up to $400 if their income fell below $8,000, TSTA Exec. Secy. Callye W. Smith pointed out.

Beginning June 30, 1979, income under the $10,000 level will qualify for this carried income credit. The "Milec Sam-even in advance, according to Circular E Supplement, Internal Revenue Tax Guide" from Internal Revenue Service.

To qualify, such persons must maintain a household, whether married or unmarried, and have a child living with them full time.

This indicates that the federal government recognizes the inflation problem and has increased the level for earned income credit by 25 percent, from $8,000 to $10,000.

Some 29,000 Texas teachers this year are on the state minimum salary schedule which begins at $8,400, a TSTA survey last fall revealed.

Because of experience and additional education, not all are at $8,540, Smith explained.

The 5.1 percent increase proposed by Clements for teachers—which would mean increases already earned.

Youngster Sought For Eyesight Poster

The Texas Society to Prevent Blindness is seeking a bright-eyed youngster between the ages of 3-7 to be its 1979 poster child. To qualify as "Little Miss (or Mister) Prevent Blindness," the child's bright eyes must be sparkling behind glasses or a "lary eye" patch, as do Kristian Peterson's in the picture above. The child's vision problem, moreover, must have been detected, as was Kristian's, by one of TSPB's volunteer vision screening teams or by use of the Society's Free Home Eye Test for Preschoolers.

The 1979 poster child, who will represent the Society at official functions during this the International Year of the Child, will be selected at the Prevent Blindness semi-annual meeting in Fort Worth on July 29. "Announced TSPB president Clymer L. Wright, Jr., "We encourage parents whose children's vision problems were detected through our programs to submit by May 15, 1979, a picture of the child through their local volunteer screening agent, or a photograph of a Prevent Blindness eye examination."

"Little Miss (or Mister) Prevent Blindness" will help TSPB educate the public to the importance of an early childhood eye examination. Wright added, "TSPB," he said, "has long emphasized the need through its state-wide screening programs, in which fast-track teams visit 30,000 children each year, to free 15,000 screening tests. "Most parents, unfortunately, are unaware their child might have an eye problem," said Wright. "If a child can't see properly, he believes blurred vision is normal vision and so does not complain. And parents see nothing wrong about it, either, with the exception of crossed eyes, eye problems seldom have a visual effect."

"The result is that many children do not get a vision test until it is too late to correct the eye problem."

Fortunately, however, Kristian and several hundred other children in Texas, had a vision test last year. When they failed, their parents were notified the child needed a professional eye examination. Kristian's problem was then diagnosed as amblyopia, or "lazy eye," a condition which, if not treated in time, can result in loss of all functional sight in that eye. It was also a condition of which his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arden Peterson of Houston, were not aware of until Kristian failed the screening test.

TSPB will send a free Home Eye Test for Preschoolers to "help father, parents, detect their children's eye problem." Write: Prevent Blindness, 701 Box 13400, Houston, Texas 77013.

Warns About G.I. Bill

Congressman Charles Wilson (D-Texas) warned today that more than one-half million Texas veterans may be in danger of forfeiting their veterans "G.I. Bill" education benefits if they do not take immediate action.

"Veterans can use this bill for education and training only within 10 years from the date of leaving the active military service," said Congressman Wilson. "Any veteran who left military service during or prior to May, 1969, has already waited too long to take advantage of these benefits."

More than 20,000 Texas Vietnam Era veterans still have not applied under the G.I. Bill for the $14,000 to $20,000 in educational benefits that are potentially available for them. A statement released by the Veterans Administration said approximately 295,000 Texas Vietnam Era veterans have taken advantage of the bill's benefits.

"I urge veterans who have questions to write to the VA Regional Office in Houston or call on the toll-free telephone service available statewide," said Congressman Wilson. "The toll-free number is 800-337-2200."

Clean Ashes, Soot From Fireplaces

LUFKIN-It's time to clean ashes and soot from woodstoves and fireplaces, according to the Texas Forest Service.

"Ashes should be cleaned from stove and fireplace grates at the end of the heating season to keep grates from rusting and corroding," states Dewayne Weldon, head of the Texas Forest Service Forest Products Laboratory in Lufkin.

"Soot, another combustion by-product, should also be cleaned from chimneys and stovepipes," Weldon added. "Accumulations of soot will cause poor air draft, which can make fire-starting difficult. Poor drafting can also cause smoke to spread through the house instead of out through the flue."

"Accumulated soot can best be cleaned from chimneys and stovepipes with a wire brush and 'elbow grease,'" said Weldon, "but this method calls for a lot of hard work. A less strenuous way to clean a chimney is to hire a professional chimney sweep, if one is in the area."

'Ich' A Problem

In Ponds

COLLEGE STATION. A tiny parasite the size of a pinhead can infest large numbers of catfish in Texas ponds if left unattended. The parasite, called Ichthyophthirius or "Ich," is mainly a problem in the spring and fall of the year and can wipe out entire stocks of catfish, points out Dr. Ken Johnson, fish disease specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

According to the Texas A&M University System specialist, the Ich parasite lodges just beneath the surface of the fish's skin and appears as a whitish to brownish spot. "Hundreds of the parasites will cause the fish's outer skin to swell and slough off," explains Johnson. "Infested fish will lie motionless in shallow water along the pond shore or will swim about slowly at the water surface."

What can be done about Ich infestations?

"With a few precautions, a pond can be kept Ich-free," points out Johnson. "The key thing is to avoid introducing the parasite into a pond."

Since the parasite is passed from fish to fish, live-minnows or perch should not be used as bait in catfish ponds, cautions the specialist. Also, precautions should be taken to avoid introducing wild fish into a pond from creeks and upspillways. A spillway with a four-foot drop will send wild fish from entering a pond via this route.

Johnson also suggests checking fingerlings or stock fish for Ich infestations at stocking time.

"Once a pond is infested with Ich parasites, it's difficult to correct the situation," notes Johnson. "He recommends harvesting infested catfish of large size. The parasites present no health hazard to human consumption."

Visit Nursing Home And 'Light Up A Life'

An invitation to "Light Up a Life" next week through a visit to a nursing home has been issued by two superstars of the entertainment world on behalf of more than 100,000 residents in the 1,020 licensed facilities across Texas.

Pat Boone and his daughter, Debby, are donating their influence as Celebrity Hosts for National Nursing Home Week which begins Sunday, Mother's Day, May 13.

"Lots of wonderful people live in nursing homes because they require the kind of care that they receive there," says Pat Boone.

"But they need even more than that," says Debby, "something extra that only you can give. Your visit is certain to light up their lives."

most will be your own," adds Pat. The Boones, who are currently riding an unprecedented crest of popularity, were recipients of the Better Life Award bestowed by the American Health Care Association for their generous sponsorship of the national "week" in ceremonies at Birmingham, Alabama, where they were performing on Sunday, April 22.

Nursing Home Week has become a tradition in Texas, and has been officially proclaimed by Governor Bill Clements. Member homes of the Texas Nursing Home Association celebrate with a variety of activities beginning with Open House on Mother's Day followed by a full schedule of events running through the following Sunday, May 20.

JUDGES ATTEND STATE-WIDE SEMINAR—Fifty-nine justices of the peace from across the state of Texas attended a 20-hour Texas Justice of the Peace Training Seminar recently in Austin. The training center is based at Southwest Texas State University. Among the judges attending were (left to right) Judge Frank S. Grimes, Tyler County, Precinct 3, Place 1; and Judge I.B. Carrell, Liberty County, Precinct 1.

Moody Grants Enable 'Sundowns' Fifth Opening

Through recent grants from the Moody Foundation and the S.W. Richardson Foundation, BEYOND THE SUNDOWN, the moving outdoor drama of the Alabama-Coushatta Indian Tribes, will open its fifth season June 22nd in the Resurgents Sundown Amphitheatre.

The Moody Foundation was established in 1942 by the late Mr. and Mrs. William Moody, Jr. for the perpetual benefit of the people of Texas. The Foundation provides grants for programs serving to improve the quality of life, especially in small communities and rural areas.

BEYOND THE SUNDOWN was deemed to serve that purpose due to its efforts to preserve the cultural heritage of the Alabama-Coushatta Tribes of East Texas in an historically accurate, artistically meritorious manner.

The S.W. Richardson Foundation, of Fort Worth, created the Sundown Theatre as

A good place for a family to enjoy themselves stepping out of the fast pace of today into the tribes fascinating past history.

Written by acclaimed Dallas playwright, Kermit Hunter, BEYOND THE SUNDOWN dramatizes the moral dilemma that faced the traditionally peaceful Alabama-Coushatta Indians during the Texas struggle for independence from Mexico. The Tribes' decision whether to fight or to remain neutral and the choice of which "white men" to believe would affect the course of Texas history. The drama also depicts the timeless conflict between the zealous passion of youth and the staid wisdom of their elders.

BEYOND THE SUNDOWN features exciting choreography representing the ritual dances of the Alabama-Coushatta, an original score with the haunting flavor of the traditional Tribal music and vivid historically correct costumes. This emphasis on historical accuracy is combined with a professional cast, carefully selected from throughout the United States, a modern 4-channel sound system and myriad special effects against the backdrop of East Texas pines to provide the experience both culturally enlightening and theatrically entertaining.

BEYOND THE SUNDOWN will be presented Monday through Saturday, June 22 through August 25, in the Sundown Theatre on the Alabama-Coushatta Indian Reservation between Livingston and Woodville, Texas on U.S. 190. Each evening Texas-style barbecue will be served from 6-8 p.m. in the Pine Forest picnic area surrounding the theatre. For information and reservations, call 713-563-4777 or toll free in the State of Texas after June 1st, 1-800-392-8355.
