Ain't It Great!

By MIKE BURROW

Tyler County is a real gold mine for history buffs. All one has to do is be observant and a good listener and the facts of days gone by just simply come your way.

In the few weeks since I began this column in the Booster I have been enlightened by several individuals. Some of the short encounters I have already reported here, but believe me there have been several others I guess that is why I think it is really great that the Tyler County Historical Commission reorganized this past week.

Don Cole is the chairman of the new group and I really envy him. He will be exposed to more history about this county in the next few months than most of us realize exist. I hope he will share some of his discoveries with us.

I love old people. I consider them one of the most important natural resources in the United States today. Many of them don't realize it, but they carry with them each waking moment some of the most valuable information ever. They have in their minds memories—memories of different times and different places and different ways of doing things that young people today know nothing about, but should.

When an elderly person dies, I feel a definite loss. I feel the loss because they left this world without telling us what they knew, without sharing with us the simple things that maybe could have made some sense out of this confused world we live in.

If you haven't heard of the series of books entitled "Foxfire" you should definitely look into them. They take an approach to history that should be required in each school district in every city and hamlet in the nation.

The books are actually authored by high school students who took upon themselves the task of going out into the country and interviewing and photographing old people and recording in a book what they know about the various aspects of life.

The articles in the books (there are five volumes) are varied and cover most any subject you can imagine: old burial customs, how to construct a real log cabin, how to make your own tools, etc., etc. They also contain some good old tales about coon hunting and fishing and farming and how neighbors helped each other in the good old days. They are good reading, folks.

Wouldn't it be great if the high school English classes in this area of Texas took upon themselves a similar project this year. Not only would the kids learn about writing, but they would also enjoy it. I would love to write a feature article about such an effort by high school youngsters in Tyler County.

By the way, I received a letter from Bob Griswold of Colorado this past week. He's the author who was in Woodville a few weeks ago looking for some information about the Burr's Ferry, Brownell and Chester Railway.

He reports that he has located much of the material he needs about the railway, but he still lacks details about the depot and roundhouse in Rockland. He badly needs pictures of these two facilities.

If you have any information for Bob, please write to him at 2700 South Kearney St., Denver, Colo. 80222.

THE RACE IS ON—Motorists on Timberland Street in Woodville beware! These kids on "Big Wheels" will run you down, just as they almost did the photographer who took this picture. They were out in droves last Saturday for the "First Annual Big Wheels Race," which was prompted by some of the older kids in

Brings Focus To Woodville Sheltered Workshop

State ARC Head To Visit

The Tyler County Mental and Physical Handicap Association Inc. will be hosting this Thursday the State Association of the Texas Association for Retarded Citizens, Dr. Jack Blackstone.

Blackstone's visit to Woodville is to encourage the TCM&PHA's work in the development and establishment of a Sheltered Work Activity Center here for mentally handicapped persons.

Blackstone will be a guest of the Woodville Lions club that day to cite that clubs participation in TCM&PHA through its active support in joining last year as an entire block of members.

The TCM & PHA is currently in a renovation process of the old Tyler

County Fair Board and V.F.W. Hall located in the southeast quadrant of the city limits of Woodville.

According to TCM & PHA President John Morrison "Our organization has already installed fluorescent lighting and is renovating the building to adapt to Texas Rehabilitation standards to properly accommodate the mental or physically handicapped client."

"Our organization," Morrison said, "has identified a specific goal of creating a sheltered climate for this type of individual to work in freely, constructively and with dignity."

Morrison said he expected the workshop to hold some 10 to 15 clients in its first year of operation with a startup date anticipated some time in the next few months. The State Association President will speak to the Board of Directors of the organization about local advocacy for the workshop, fund raising techniques and membership initiatives in enlarging the scope of operation

Tyler County History Group Reorganizes

Nostalgia buffs, heritage conservationists, preservationists, genealogy and archeology enthusiasts, historians and media representatives answered Judge Allen Sturrock's call to meet Thursday, Sept. 13, at the Allan Shivers Museum to reorganize and reactivate the county's historical committee.

Attending were Judge Sturrock, Quaidie Sullivan, Ruth Gillespie, Phebe Armstrong, Harold Herrington, Dorothy Raybon, Delores Gibson, Jack and Mamie Whitmeyer, Arles and Ann Bingham, Don Cole, Ewel Wood and Mike Burrow.

Don Cole, a local architect (currently involved in some historic restoration work), was unanimously elected chairman, which confirmed by the Commissioners Court Friday (a procedure required by State regulations).

Phebe Armstrong was elected vice chairman and Ruth Gillespie was elected secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Gillespie held this position with the Tyler County Historical Survey Committee, which has been active intermittently over the past 25 years.

Garbage Fees Required

Effective Dec. 1, the City of Woodville and the commercial garbage haulers in Tyler County will be charged a fee to use the Tyler County Sanitary Landfill. The fee was the result of action taken last Friday by the Tyler County Commissioners Court.

The amount to be charged the city and commercial haulers was not set at the meeting. It will be decided later after an average load has been determined by the commissioners.

The commissioners pointed out during the meeting that it was essential for the continued operation of the dump for the fee to be charged. Walt Davis, city manager for Woodville, was in attendance at the Friday meeting and told the commissioners that the commercial haulers in the county should have to pay a fee if the City of Woodville was to be required to.

In other business C. C. Haygood and Sons of Warren was awarded the contract to clean and paint the courthouse. Haygood bid a total of $28,100 for the work and was the low bidder.

The commissioners also approved the appointment of the following persons to the Tyler County Historical Commission for 1979-80: Don R. Cole, chairman; Ruth Gillespie, Phebe Armstrong, Ewel T. Wood, Jack Whitmeyer, Mamie Whitmeyer, Arles Bingham, Ann Bingham, Dorothy Raybon, Quaidie Sullivan, Mike Burrow, Harold Herrington, Delores Gibson and Allen Sturrock.

Youngster Returns Home

A Woodville youngster who had been reported as missing early last week returned home safely according to her father J.W. Jones.

The 14-year old girl turned up missing on Monday but returned home to the relief of her parents who reside in the Platt's Trailer Park located behind the South Magnolia Drive Inn Grocery.

The 'BOOSTER' had cooperated with local police in an effort to communicate the fact that the girl had been absent from her home and that her parents were extremely worried about her safety. "Because people do horrible things these days to other people."

Mrs. Dolly Sturrock Active Lady At 80

Mrs. Dolly Sturrock is an active lady and perhaps one of the best known women in Woodville today. She has her own real estate business here and rarely misses a day from work, and that is saying a lot for a woman who just turned 80.

Mrs. Sturrock's birthday was Wednesday and she observed it in a typical fashion for her. She put in a day at the office with little celebration or fanfare. After all, she has a business to run.

Birthdays seem to stand out in Mrs. Sturrock's life, as she moved to Tyler County on Sept. 19, 1927—on her birthday. When she first came to Woodville, she took over the responsibilities of running the train depot here. "I was the whole shebang," she said. "I pulled off my cotton strap and went to work at the depot. I was like a blind dog in a meat house."

It didn't take her long, though, to learn the duties of a depot manager and she remained in that position for five years.

A native of Trinity County, Mrs.

Sturrock was raised in Weldon in Houston County. Her father was a farmer and owned a gin at Weldon. She married the late John Scott Sturrock, a Tyler County farmer, rancher, in 1929.

She received her real estate license in November, 1958. "I just love real estate," she commented. It is obvious that she enjoys meeting people and helping newcomers find homes in Tyler County.

When asked what she considered her most outstanding memories during the past 80 years, she grinned and stated, "I can remember when coffee was 25 cents a pound and eggs were 10 cents a dozen."

"I saw my first car in 1914. Fourteen cars were coming through the county, and we (a group of kids) ran up the road and waited for them to pass. I thought the people who had them were the richest people in the world."

Mrs. Sturrock was quick to point out that she remembers when gasoline sold for 13 cents a gallon. She bought her first car in 1929. It was a 1929 Chevrolet Sedan and cost $729.

She has one son, James Basil Goodrum, an investor in Los Angeles, California. Her granddaughter, Karen Twitchell, is a teacher in the Cy-Fair Independent School District in Northwest Houston.

Tyler County Cancer Fund Drive Slated

The Tyler County Unit of the American Cancer Society will begin their 1979 educational fund-raising Cancer Crusade in October.

Through our professional volunteers all over Tyler County will be contacting their friends, neighbors and business associates to offer practical and helpful information about cancer. They will be part of a team of some two million ACS volunteers nationwide who will use facts to help save lives.

The purpose of the Crusade is to prevent cancer. The group will distribute a new leaflet with the headline "You Do Make A Difference." Thirteen million copies of this leaflet will be given away this year. It tells how life style and health care can influence the outcome of cancer.

We certainly know that we could save thousands of cancer patients with the knowledge we have today if everyone understood the importance of actually preventing some cancers. We're starting treatment early when the chance of success is greatest," according to Jean West.

The Crusade also will raise funds needed to support the many ACS programs. One-quarter of the money goes to the support of cancer research.

Through our professional education program we help all kinds of medical personnel—physicians, nurses, dentists—to keep abreast of new developments in cancer diagnosis and management. Our service and rehabilitation programs help cancer patients and their families.

Mrs. West said.

President's Employment-Training Report

WASHINGTON—The Department of Labor and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced today that President Jimmy Carter's second employment and training report transmitted to the Congress focuses on ways to ward off high unemployment while at the same time making progress on the fight against inflation.

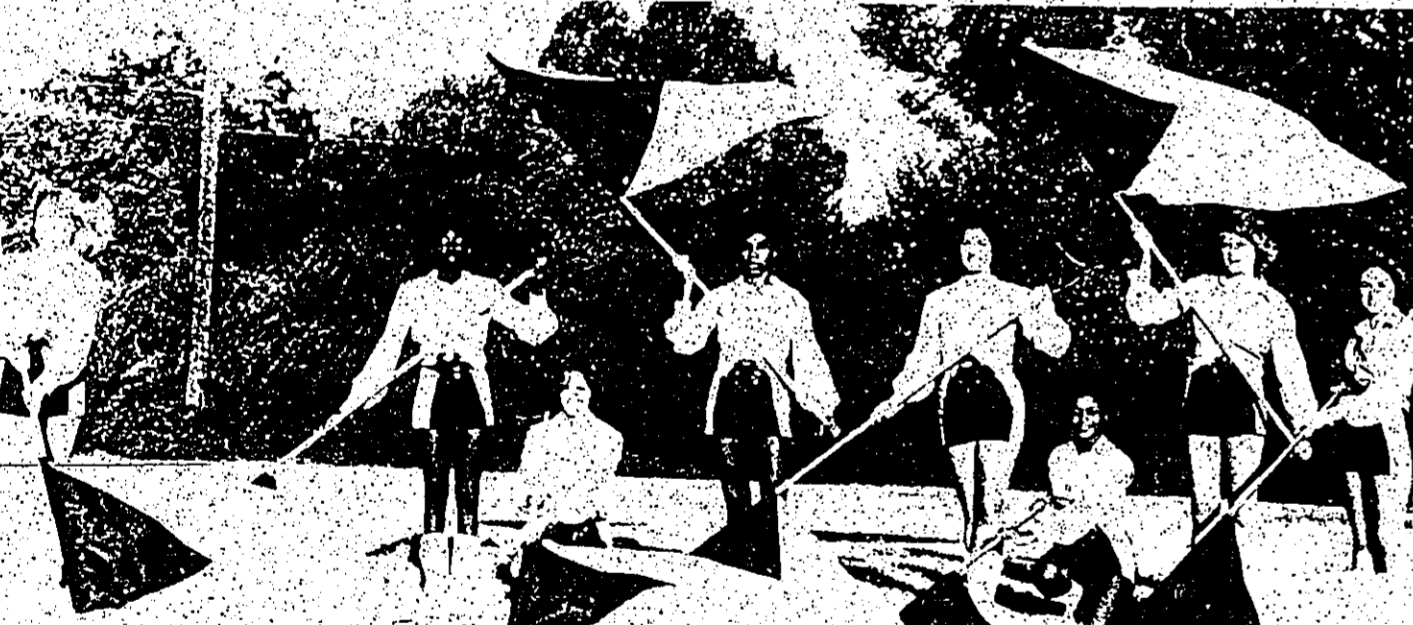

The 7th annual Employment and Training Report of the President was prepared by the Department of Labor and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. It is called for coordinated action over the next four years in these key policy areas:

- Complementary fiscal and monetary policies to maintain employment at the highest level consistent with long-term stability and balanced growth.
- Selective employment matching programs designed to overcome problems of structural unemployment.
- An anti-inflation policy that deals with the structural aspects of the inflationary process and rejects the high unemployment approach to the problem.
- An international economic policy designed to help achieve global full employment and a system of fair trading relations among nations.
- Marshall pointed out that the prime target of government job training programs over the next four years will be workers who lack skills, education, and work orientation.

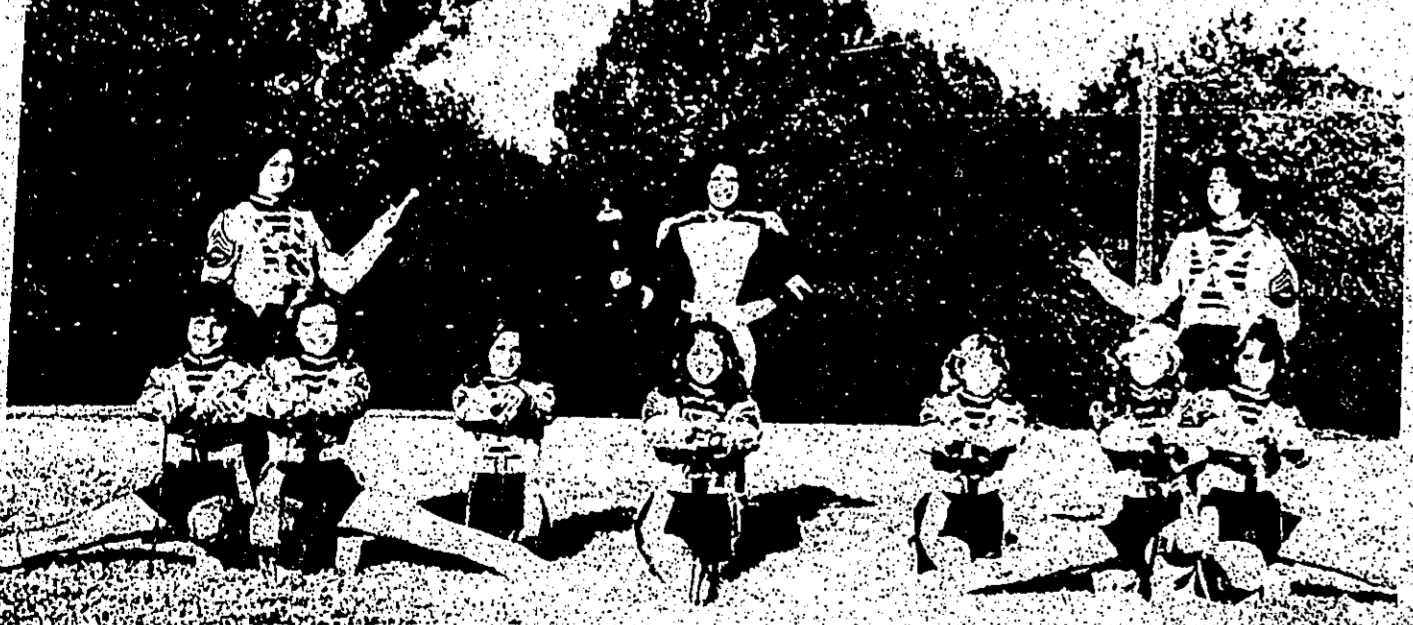

Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall said the President's report to Congress dealt with overcoming international barriers to full employment. He said reducing unemployment will make a major contribution to achieving

Diboll Whips Warren 21-0 In Grid Action

DEJECTED COACH—Warren's head football coach, Jack Powell, and three unhappy Warriors watch from the sidelines as Warren fell to defeat to the Diboll Lumberjacks. The final score was 21-0. Warren has an open date this Friday.

The Diboll Lumberjacks axed their way through the Warren Warrior defense Friday night and came up with a 21-0 victory. From the instant of the first quarter kickoff by Warren's Howard Wise, things just never did come together for the Warriors. The first quarter was scoreless and was dominated by fumbles by both teams. In the second quarter, however, the tide turned for the Lumberjacks as their offense took on a new, more determined form.

The confident Lumberjacks were spurred on by the first touchdown of the game which came in the second quarter by Jimmy Teal. Diboll's Gregg Spivey kicked the extra point, putting the score at 7-0. With only a few minutes to go in the second quarter, Diboll scored again with a freak play. A Warrior pass from Clint Hatten to Paul Staggs was intercepted by Diboll's Jimmy Teal on the 33-yard line. Teal ran the ball to the Lumberjack 2-yard line and then fumbled the ball over the goal. Diboll's Dionicio Guerrero was considerable quick on the response and fell on the ball for a second touchdown. The field goal was made. Gregg Spivey kicked the extra point, putting the score at 14-0 lead at halftime. Warren was looking fumbled the ball and the third quarter ended with the score still 14-0. Surprises were in store for the Warriors in the fourth quarter. The Lumberjacks also touched down. The Warriors and fumbled. The third quarter quarter, the Lumberjacks ran in for another minutes of the game. The Warriors' victory over the Warriors.

Doctors Attack Salt Consumption

Doctors are mounting an assault on one of society's strongest, most dangerous eating habits: excess salt. Physicians are educating people about this problem in an effort to prevent health problems including high blood pressure, a common disease many researchers believe is linked to salt. Since salt often shows up in many seemingly unsalty foods such as pudding and breakfast cereals, excesses can be tough to avoid, especially if people do not know how much is in the products, the Texas Medical Association (TMA) said.

Family Life Very Important

A youngster's family life can be the major factor that insulates the child from drug abuse. Solid family relationships far outweigh peer pressure and other forces that might encourage drug problems, according to the San Antonio doctor who works with addicts. Studies show that families with a low risk of drug abuse stress obedience, respect, love of parents, self-control and belief in God. Other research indicates that good family relationships can give a person a sense of belonging, respect for others, and long-range goals. These factors can be stronger than bad forces outside the family. Family relationships are so important that an addict's whole family needs to be counseled in order to help the addict and themselves. Writing in September, the Texas Medical Association's monthly journal, Ernest Gregory, Jr., M.D., said drug abuse to a family affair that may have roots in insulations that may cause personality traits common to drug abusers and other forces that might encourage drug problems, according to the San Antonio doctor who works with addicts. Studies show that families with a low risk of drug abuse stress obedience, respect, love of parents, self-control and belief in alcohol. Not all families of drug abusers have these problems; but all abusers and their families are stuck in a situation that hurts both the addict and the family. Family relationships are so important that an addict's whole family needs to be counseled in order to help the addict and themselves. Writing in September, the Texas Medical Association's monthly journal, Ernest Gregory, Jr., M.D., said drug abuse to a family affair

Communication-Key To Leadership

COLLEGE STA. — listening. TION — Communication "Yes, effective of the keys to listening is difficult." effective leadership, points out Dr. David And communication is heavily on good Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "The average person speaks at a rate of 125 to 150 words per minute. And the human mind is capable of conscious thought at a rate much faster than that—at least four or five times faster than is normally spoken. The problem is that 75 percent of the average person's mind is not occupied by the speaker's words. "The average person listens with only about 25 percent effectiveness," notes Ruesink, a sociologist. "The mind is continually groping for something to fill the gaps. This time differential offers the listener the opportunity to make periodic mental summaries to tie main ideas together, or to wander off on mental tangents. "How can we train ourselves to become more effective and efficient listeners? Ruesink offers these suggestions: —Be interested in the speaker. In his mind he is the most important person on earth and what he has to say is the most important topic at the time. —Accept the person as he is. To permit a person's mannerism, speech, habits or dress to distract from what he is saying is essentially your loss. —Hear the person out before judging his ideas. When he uses emotionally laden words or when he tramples on some of your pet convictions, remember that he is using only those words he understands. —Listen to learn. When a person uses words and presents ideas that you do not understand, draw the person out by saying, "That's interesting. I didn't know that." "That's something I have often wondered about," or "Would you explain that to me?" —Extract the main idea. Facts make sense only if they support

Moped Riders Need To Be Cautious

The increasing use of mopeds call for cautions form-moped riders and other motorists. Auto drivers should be glad to take precautions because it means more gas for them, the Texas Medical Association (TMA) said. Even if riders wear the brightest clothes, the MAA urges riders to think of themselves as invisible and take appropriate precautions. Other tips for safe moped riding include: —ride close to the right side of the road, but not too close to parked cars in case doors open suddenly; —ride single file on the right side of the road when in a group of mopeds; —if riding parallel to railroads tracks, cross them at a 45 degree angle or more; —handle a parking dog by keeping a steady hand and not kicking at it if you have to dismount; keep the moped between you and the animal. Yelling "no!" in a firm voice often will deter a dog since most dogs understand that command.

Pasture Tips

COLLEGE STATION — Utilizer applied will help warm-season grasses next spring.

Need is the determining factor when deciding between sod-seeding and prepared seedbed winter pasture, believes the forage specialist.

Stocker calf operations need fall and winter grazing, so the producer is almost forced to pick the prepared seedbed winter pasture. Spring-sowing grass to provide winter and spring grazing.

Before deciding to sod-seed, carefully consider the disadvantages and advantages. Sod-seed, allow the warm-season grass to mature early September growth, but don't fertilize. Advise Doster. In late September, graze or closely cut the grass so sunlight can reach the soil.

Plant in late September-early October. While specially designed equipment is preferred, a standard drill can be used. The most popular method, disk, is the least effective, contends the specialist.

Ryegrass at 10-20 pounds per acre can be seeded alone, overlaid, or seeded in a legume mixture. Seed oats, wheat, barley or rice at 100 pounds per acre.

Fertilizer is the key to successful sod-seeding. Emphasize Doster. Determine nutrient needs by a soil test and apply nitrogen only after the grass is up.

Lastly, allow the sod-seeded pasture to grow five or six inches before grazing it.

Food Handling Key To Health

COLLEGE STATION — The rising AVOID cross-contamination between cooked and uncooked meats and poultry, cautions camping means more opportunity for food mishandling.

However, food spoilage and foodborne illness should not be impossible, maintain chilled foods below 40 degrees F. and hot foods used, emphasizes Dr. James H. Denton, poultry marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, separate containers, Texas A&M University System.

When preparing food, provide plenty of clean, working space. It is to be used for food, storage, clean containers, wash your hands thoroughly with soap and hot water.

If there is a question about safe handling facility following preparation, he suggests, adequately cook foods at the proper food temperature. If possible question about its cook food immediately safety.

Agri Forcast

East Texas remains basically dry although scattered showers have been received. Rainfall in most areas was extremely light. Rain is needed in most sections to keep forage growing and to have adequate soil moisture for planting winter pastures.

Dr. George Philley, Extension area plant pathologist, suggests that before gardeners enter their plant local county Extension agents. Eight classes of root-knot galls. These are included in the event.

Additional activities at the show include which should be carefully judged. contests, numerous exhibits of hay handling equipment and educational programs. The public is invited to the event.

Hello, from Rockland and here's the news for this week. We are happy to hear that Bro. Lawson is scheduled to come home from the hospital in Houston this Friday, the 21st. He will continue therapy at home. Our prayers will continue to be with you, Bro. Lawson.

Mrs. Kitty Dalton Wallace spent last week in St. Louis, Missouri at a National Pilgrimage for the Stanley Home Products, Inc. where she attended a ball game between the Pittsburgh Pirates and the St. Louis Cardinals. The Pirates won 7 to 5!

Also, the 10,000 member Stanley family was entertained by both home with its beautiful new windows shining in the sun to help Mrs. W.C. celebrate her birthday. Mr. and Mrs. Buck

"It's their attitude."

I liked it. They know what they're talking about. And when they talk to me I can tell they're interested in my first savings account with Jasper Federal 10 years ago. They've always paid good interest, and being a widow I appreciate their personal concern in my welfare.

We pay top interest on savings and we pay particular attention to the service of our customers. It's the only way we know how to do business.

Mail Fraud Hits American Consumers

American consumers lost more than $489 million to mail fraud and misrepresentation by mail over each of the last five years, Woodville Postmaster Bruce Latiolais said today.

September 24-29 has been designated the fourth annual Postal Consumer Protection Week by Postmaster General William F. Bolger to heighten public awareness of the problem.

Latiolais emphasized that the majority of companies who are really unbelievable claims and get-rich-quick schemes. The Postal Inspection Service actively investigates mail fraud and false representation by mail, and assists with mail-order and service problems.

Scams aimed at consumer are limited only by the imagination of the con artist," Latiolais said, "because they are trying to protect their savings from the effects of inflation."

Latiolais urged consumers to ask companies to back up their claims if an offer sounds unbelievable and too good to be true. "That's the best way to protect yourself," he said. "But if you feel you've lost money to a fraud, or have received merchandise you ordered, contact your post office or a postal inspector."

Latiolais reminded customer that whenever they have a problem with their mail service, to fill out a postal Consumer Service Card, available at post offices and from letter carriers.

"We need as much information as possible to help someone with a mail problem and the easy-to-complete card assures prompt action on our part," he said.

About 35 percent of all food shoppers begin their shopping at supermarkets, reports a family resource management specialist, Eugene Chenoweth, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Only one in three starts buying ever complete the set, she adds.

Working Mothers' Myths Dispelled

COLLEGE STATION — "Working mothers" are "real mothers," too, says a family life education specialist, Diane Welch. Families often benefit from a mother's outside employment, the quality of child care during the mother's absence, management of household responsibilities and the character of time spent in family interaction.

Mrs. Welch is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

According to recent studies, a "working mother" provides her family with several major benefits directly related to her outside employment.

In addition to material benefits, families in many cases become closer as they share responsibilities.

Also, family members' abilities to think through and make independent decisions are often increased.

Researchers found other factors that tend to dispel "myths" about "working mothers."

Here are a few:

1) The divorce rate is no higher among "working mother" families than in other families.

2) When women are working by choice, both spouses report significantly fewer marital tensions and greater levels of marital satisfaction.

3) Amounts of "quality time" or "latchkey time" spent with children is about the same as working mothers' as it is for full-time-homemaker mothers.

4) No constant differences appear in the behavior of "working mother" families or other families concerning school grades, social adjustment, intellectual achievement or delinquency.

However, there are several factors which proven medical value, do influence the ability and work-at-home individual members to adjust and adapt to outside employment of the mother. Among these are the attitudes of the mother and other family members regarding her outside employment, the quality of child care during the mother's absence, management of household responsibilities and the character of time spent in family interaction.

In general, the studies conclude that "real mothers" are found at home and in the work force, Mrs. Welch says.

Their presence in either place is not key to their effective ness as a parent, she adds.

To soothe feet consider changing shoe during the day an evening, suggest Becky Culp, a cloth specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Hunting Guide Now Available

Lufkin, Texas—A hunting guide to more than 43,000 acres of East Texas forestland that will be open for free public hunting this autumn and winter has been released here by St. Regis Paper Company.

The lands-holdings owned by Southland Paper Mills before its merger with St. Regis will be open to deer, squirrel and game fowl hunters.

The guide includes maps to tracts in Polk County, Trinity County, San Jacinto County, Newton County, Houston County, Cherokee County, Panola County, Nacogdoches County, Angelina County and Walker County.

"While most of St. Regis forestlands in Texas are open to the public for a variety of uses including hiking, fishing and camping, much of the land is composed of tracts too small for hunting or too remote for easy access," said J.B. Wadsworth,

Texas Regional Manager of the St. Regis Southern Timberlands Division. "Therefore, with the hunter in mind, we've selected the 43,000 acres in the hunting guide for ease of accessibility and adequate size to permit hunting," he said.

Wadsworth said hunters will find varying types of habitat on the tracts in the 10 counties. Some lands have been harvested of trees recently, others have been replanted, and some have not been cut in recent years.

As a result, he said hunters should find different types of game, including quail, dove, squirrel, deer, rabbit and other wildlife.

Hunters may obtain copies of the guide by sending their names and addresses, along with one dollar to cover postage and handling costs, to: Hunting Guide, St. Regis, Texas Timberlands, P.O. Box 149, Lufkin, Texas 75901.

Some Ways To Cure Insomnia

This article could put you to sleep—hopefully not right away. But these tips on fighting insomnia may help when the time comes to go to bed.

If you never have trouble sleeping, read on anyway. An estimate 10 percent to 50 percent of the population will have sleep problems sometime in their lives.

Luckily most sleep problems do not last very long. Some doctors recommend seeking medical help only in the last several weeks, the Texas Medical Association says. Often anxiety or minor health problems that disturb sleep will go away by that time.

But there is no lying in the dark or a sleepless night waiting for time to rescue you. There are several things to do that can encourage sleep.

Techniques include exercising during the day and relaxing at night, avoiding heavy meals before bed, drinking milder milk at bedtime, going to bed at a regular time, changing sexual activity to a time when it will not interfere with sleep and sleeping in a quiet, comfortable place.

Avoiding long daytime naps and not drinking coffee, tea, soft drinks or excess alcohol also will help promote undisturbed sleep.

Sometimes even the best efforts fail. When that happens, experts say not to worry about not sleeping. Doing that can increase tension and actually hinder sleep. Instead do something useful or enjoyable such as read, listen to music, take a warm bath, even clean house.

At times physical or emotional problems may be necessary to determine the best efforts to go to sleep. So a visit to a physician may be necessary to determine the best efforts to go to sleep. Several diseases directly affect sleeping and can be treated several ways.

Some people try to second-guess a doctor and take drugs on their own to combat a sleep problem. Many such drugs range from ineffective to addictive, so it is best to get a doctor's recommendation

Bentson Seeking Legislation

WASHINGTON—Sen. Lloyd Bentson recently urged a House subcommittee to approve legislation that would ease the rail car shortage in this country by suspending a tariff on cars imported from Mexico.

Bentson testified before the House Subcommittee on International Trade in favor of legislation that would suspend for two years an 18 percent tariff on Mexican rail cars.

"The Senate passed a similar bill last year, a similar bill that we can pass this bill again on the Senate side," Bentson said.

There can no longer be any doubt that there is a freight car shortage of alarming dimensions in this country. When we first proposed this legislation last year, there was a manufacturing backlog of some 75,000 units. Today the figure has increased to over 120,000.

"The freight car shortage is a matter of very real and pressing concern to our farmers, businessmen, consumers and exporters. I had a call just the other day from a Texas firm that has an opportunity to sell steel billets to Mexico but can't close the deal because they can't get cars to ship the goods."

"The impact of the shortage is felt particularly by the farmers of this country who work hard to produce a beautiful harvest and then can't find the means to get it to market."

Phony 'Seals' Cause Problems

Prompted by a current epidemic of phony Notary seals, the National Notary Association is urging greater caution on the part of agencies and firms accepting notarized documents and stricter accountability on the part of seal manufacturers.

Phony seals—either counterfeit or duplicating valid Notary seals or seals acquired using false names—have proliferated in recent months, according to reports from agencies across the nation and Notary-commissioning authorities in several states.

Most often, the phony seals are imprinted on fraudulent property grant deeds, on which a swindler has forged the signatures of the property owners and listed himself as a purchaser. He then sells the property to an unsuspecting mortgage company or uses the property as collateral to obtain a loan.

"Phony Notary seals are a way of bypassing the vital screening agency of the Notary Public," said NNA Vice President/Executive Director Milton G. Valera.

"The Notary has the duty of identifying the signers of important documents and thereby screening for frauds. By eliminating the Notary, a swindler will eliminate the most important deterrent to document fraud."

Valera pointed out that normally, only the public may call the NNA's special "Notary Consumer Watch" hotline at (213) 347-2186 or write to "Notary Consumer Watch," National Notary Association, Consumer Affairs Division, 23012 Ventura Blvd., Woodland Hills, CA 91364.

Bullcock Expands Efforts

AUSTIN, TEX.—State Comptroller Bob Bullcock Friday said 82 ex-teachers are the latest targets in his efforts to collect overdue college loans.

Bullcock said he has expanded his collection efforts to include everyone receiving money from the state.

He said the school teachers who quit teaching and requested refunds of their contributions in the teacher retirement program will not receive them until they settle up their education debts.

"These loans aren't scholarships and must be repaid to keep the program going," Bullcock said.

Bullcock, who last month refused to pay state workers who have defaulted on student loans, said a computer cross-check identified at least 150 or more persons who owe the state more than $200,000 in delinquent student loans.

He said payments to five business operators who have defaulted on the state debt held until 5/2/79 by student loan liabilities are individual pressing settled.

State law prohibits anyone owing the state debt from receiving state payments.

Bullcock also identified 50 persons who are receiving welfare benefits as loan defaulters.

Valera suggested several steps firms might take in checking the validity of a questioned notary seal:

- Contact the clerk of the county printed on the Notary seal in question. In many states, all Notaries must file oaths of office and bonds with their county clerks; this registration is a public record.
- If the county clerk has no record of a Notary, the notarial seal may have been manufactured for a non-commissioned person using a false name. To determine if a commission has actually been issued to a given name, the office of the governor, secretary of state, or other commissioning authority should be contacted.
- Contact the Notary himself. If the Notary has no record of a document in question, a counterfeit seal may have been used.

To deter fraud, Valera suggested firms should thoroughly inspect the personal identification of any loan applicant presenting a notarized and recorded deed or other document as a bank loan security.

Such firms, he added, might even consider requiring welfare beneficiaries to leave a fingerprint beside his signature on any document; few criminals want to leave a fingerprint as evidence of a crime.

The NNA executive also urged rubber stamp companies that manufacture Notary seals to consider a police stamping procedure that a customer has been issued a notarial commission.

"A manufacturer might ask to see the customer's personal identification. This would pose an additional deterrent to a person contemplating a document fraud."

"In lieu of state manufacture of Notary seals," he continued, "the state might consider issuing special seal authorization certificates to newly commissioned Notaries, while forbidding production of seals by private firms without requiring these certificates from customers."

Greater caution by agencies and firms accepting notarized documents, and, perhaps, greater impetus for accountability from officials and legislators are needed to wipe out the epidemic of phony seals, Valera concluded.

Moisture Needed

With the winter pasturing season at hand, moisture is needed in most parts of East Texas. Dr. Robert Nelson, forage geneticist for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Overton, is in the process of planting small grain plots. In an area which was fallowed for about two months, he is finding moisture at a depth of about 120 inches. This is a good indication that following the methods used by Extension specialists to help conserve moisture as well as help control disease infestations so weeds and grass. Cong. Collins Introduces Bill

A bill that would prevent IRS and the Treasury Department from issuing administrative regulations that would include employee benefits as taxable income has been introduced by Congressman Jim Collins of Texas.

The purpose of the bill is to inform the IRS that they cannot put these taxes on the employee's fringe benefits. It will save American taxpayers billions of dollars in additional taxes. It will also help business and labor in negotiating future contracts by requiring the IRS to define exactly what taxable income is. Collins said. The bill, H.R. 5156, would permanently prohibit the issuance of regulations on the taxation of fringe benefits. The IRS is considering a variety of fringe benefits to be counted as taxable gross income including: price discounts for store clerks; free tuition for spouses and children of university faculty members and other college employees; free or discounted trips for airline, railroad and bus line personnel; and free parking on employer's premises.

Many of the current tax-exempt benefits which the IRS will determine tax policy in the United States. American taxpayers do not want more and more taxes. They rightly blame the high rate of inflation on too much government spending and regulations. They are tired of having to pay for the federal government's overbudgeted programs with their tax money, Collins said.

Help cushion the impact of high prices by becoming an informed shopper.

Consider the purchase of a new refrigerator or a microwave oven.

This may seem simple until the search begins through the multicolored world of no-frost refrigerators and the variable power touch-control microwave appliances.

Most consumers know little about refrigerators, much less microwave ovens, since they are bought only two or three times in a lifetime.

Reliable information about these products is the key to being a smart shopper. Before making a major purchase, consider the four types of information available: assistance from government agencies of consumer groups, casual information from friends and relatives, your own personal judgment and advertiser's claims.

Advertisers of name-brand goods can help if their information is really informative, but advertising can be more persuasive than accurate.

Word-of-mouth information can be revealing and is an important source of information, but may need further investigation. The most valuable and objective source of information is from government and consumer groups. Consult your local county Extension agent, Consumer Reports and Consumers' Research Magazine.

The magazines are available in any public library, and your county Extension agent has a multitude of informative fact sheets on buying refrigerators and microwave ovens.

Informed personal judgment is probably the best guide in choosing a product. Searching for information is costly in terms of money, time and energy, but the consequences are rewarding.

For example, you can increase your purchasing power, you may realize considerable savings and finally you may avoid making a costly mistake. Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, or national origin.

Judging will be held at Parkdale Mall on Saturday, Oct. 6. Entries should be delivered to the Mall by 8:00 a.m. that morning. Winners will be announced at approximately 1:00 p.m. that same day.

In addition to the Junior and Senior Divisions, there will be two entry categories in the contest: General public & GSU employees, excluding children of the company's Consumer Service Department personnel.

There will be 5 winners in each division, with an overall grand prize winner in each category. The grand prize winners will receive $150 in savings bonds, and they will have their projects displayed at the South Texas State Fair. The 1st and 2nd prize winners in each division will also have their projects displayed at the South Texas State Fair in October.

The other savings bond prizes will be as follows, in both the Junior and Senior Divisions: 1st Place, $100; 2nd Place, $75; 3rd Place, $50; 4th Place, $25; 5th Place, $25.
