Use Caution With Fireworks On 4th

Every year at this time, area fire fighting organizations grow increasingly anxious. The upcoming Independence Day holiday brings with it an increased likelihood of fires; the culprit—fireworks.

Texas Forest Service officials in Livingston are among those who have expressed concern over the added fire danger. The TFS is responsible for fire detection and suppression on private lands in this area.

Charles "Boo" Walker, district forester in Livingston, indicated that TFS crews have had to fight some fireworks-caused wildfires every year, although the majority of fires fought by TFS crews each year have been caused by careless brush and debris burning.

"Fireworks traditionally have been a significant fire cause at this time of year," said Walker.

Many people think that wet spring weather has eliminated wildfire danger. Most fields and woods look green and fireproof. According to the TFS spokesman, this is not necessarily true.

"Current fire danger in the woods is low to moderate, but certainly not nonexistent," said Walker. "The recent fair weather we've had has reduced fuel moisture levels of pine straw and leaves to flammable levels, particularly in areas not hit by the scattered thundershowers we've had lately. Continued absence of significant widespread precipitation could increase fire danger right when fireworks activity is at its peak."

"I'm certain that all city and rural fire departments share our concern to exercise extreme caution when using fireworks. Fireworks safety can pay big dividends."

Anderson Airs Platform

By LYNDLE WILLIAMS
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN — Seeking 40,000 signatures needed by July 4 to put his name on the Texas presidential ballot, Illinois Congressman John Anderson brought his independent presidential campaign to Austin last week.

Anderson supporters in this state say he is going to make the deadline and is gaining support. Following the gathering of the signatures, Anderson is sure to face a tough fight validating them. Attorney General Mark White and Texas Secretary of State George Strake have issued conflicting rulings regarding who is eligible to sign the petition.

During his speech Thursday, Anderson blasted both opponents, President Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan, and outlined his energy solutions — under blue skies and 100 degrees heat.

He would levy a 50 cent per gallon tax on gasoline and give half the revenues to cut Social Security taxes. He would delay building nuclear power plants until existing operations and waste disposal systems are proven safe.

He would stress conservation and development of alternate energy sources.

Congressional Newsletter

By CONGRESS CHARLES WILSON
2nd Congressional District

Both Congress and the White House have discovered this year that balancing the federal budget is a complex and ingenious proposition.

Congress is deeply committed to eliminating deficit spending, but recession has taken over the economy so quickly it appears likely we may not accomplish that goal in fiscal year 1981.

The reason is clear: higher unemployment always accompanies recession, and every one percent increase in the unemployment rate adds at least $20 billion to the deficit, because unemployment and other social welfare costs go up at the same time, while tax revenues decline. Some pessimists on Capitol Hill are even predicting that if unemployment hits nine percent and stays there, the deficit could be in the $30 to $40 billion range.

President Carter is not blind to these very real possibilities, and has in fact proposed to Congress certain revenue-raising measures to keep the deficit down.

Some of his proposals would allow the government to withhold income taxes at a rate of 15 percent on savings account interest and stock dividends, bring an additional $3.4 billion into the U.S. Treasury.

As much as I want to see a balanced budget, I cannot agree with Mr. Carter's way to do it. Our national economic policy ought to be directed at finding ways to encourage savings and investment, and that means more jobs.

The rate of savings in this country is at a record low right now — 3.4 percent of personal income — and withholding taxes on that amount is certainly not the way to reverse the trend.

I would argue three main points that should compel Congress to reject President Carter's proposal:

First, a 15 percent withholding tax on interest would harm the individual saver by decreasing his real rate of

T-Wheeler

By Alan Miller

Congressman Charles Wilson had an article in last week's Free Press that really put our runaway government spending into focus.

Charlie says every American puts $2750 into the kitty every year to pay for everything from food stamps to foreign aid for Bangladesh.

The dollar amounts Charlie identified for all of our contributions weren't detailed enough, since we never see the money we pay in federal taxes, except at the end of the year when we get our W-2 forms.

So we broke it down a little differently and tried to identify how many days we contribute our full salary to pay a part of the $500 billion dollar national budget we're looking at today.

To make the computations easy, we multiply the daily totals we identify here by the total number of people in your family. That's when it gets a little scary.

For easy arithmetic, we're assuming an income of $200 a week. So right off the top, you work the first 70 days of every year just to pay your federal taxes.

You put in 17 days of that total to maintain our armed services, things like submarines and helicopters, and pensions, and retirement pay.

You spent another three weeks on the job to pay for your own retirement through Social Security. The number of days you toil in this regard will increase of course in the years ahead as your individual and employer contributions increase.

You spend eight days on the job just paying the interest on the national debt. (Charlie made a good point in this area when those back when he said the windfall profits tax on oil should go toward retirement of the national debt.)

If his figures are right, you could knock off eight days of working for the government every year, instead of having some bureaucrats who spend their money on by many of the other prisoners and bosses, but are true to the Lord regardless. They need your prayers and support.

We read and hear preachers say about a return to the Bible is needed, but the same overlook prisoners. Why?

Washington News

Lloyd Bentsen

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Senate Finance Committee on Wednesday approved legislation sponsored by Senator Lloyd Bentsen to provide relief to small royalty owners, but by the so-called "windfall profit" tax.

Bentsen said the measure is targeted at the smaller royalty owners, those who can least afford the reductions in their income caused by the imposition of the so-called "windfall profit" tax, which is in reality a excise tax on oil production.

Bentsen said that the committee gave unanimous approval to the amendment.

"This change will provide some help, but the millions of royalty owners in this country — 60,000 to 650,000 in Texas — will still be paying billions of dollars under the 'windfall profit' tax."

Numerous Factors Cause Pecan Shedding

By CLINTON CURRIE, County Extension Agent. Pecans often start shedding prematurely during the spring and summer due to a number of factors, points out a horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Dancers -- A New Custom

The rhythmic beating of the drums begins the 25-minute program by the colorfully dressed Indian dancers. These are the Alabama-Coushattas of Polk County, Texas. They were once people of the woods and in some ways still retain those early traits necessary to conquer one of the unique areas of the world -- the Big Thicket of East Texas.

The dancers are colorful in appearance. Their feathers and beadwork are unlike any other tribe's with a mixture of Northern Siouans of the Dakotas to the Creek Indian "stomp dancers" of Oklahoma. These comparisons are appropriate made because the Alabama-Coushattas have taken in some of the ways of these people. Residing on the 4,600-acre Indian Reservation in the midst of the Big Thicket area between Livingston and Woodville, these piney wood Indians were once descendants of the Creek Indians. Shortly after the mass migration in the late 1700's from the southern states, the Alabama-Coushattas eventually moved to Texas. For the new generation of Alabama-Coushattas, it was a struggle to maintain their ways in the woodlands. Early missionaries steered their attention to a different religion from those of their pagan-like customs which included Indian dances. The missionaries' attempts were thwarted when the church, painstakingly built, was burnt in protest.

The second church built in 1886 survived and now serves as a focal point in the lives of the people. However, two other missions were established in the early 1900's with almost an equitable distribution of the Indian population in these three churches today.

The Indian dances, miraculously retained into the 1960's, were frowned upon by elders of the churches and eventually abandoned for a time until a reawakening was begun in the late 60's. By that time, some relationship had already been established with the Plains Indians of Oklahoma and other states. Participating in Indian festivals, the Alabama-Coushattas had a glimpse of other Indians -- and learned their Indian dances as well as teaching their own to others.

The colorful past especially during the latter era, are well entrenched in the Alabama-Coushattas. An intermixture of various Indian dances are performed for the visitors seated in the traditional four-sided dance arbors similar to those used over

Album To Be Released

The Story Never Grows Old will be presented as a new audio cassette recording to "spread the Word" with the release of their newest and second Gold Street album.

Primarily known for their unique blend of harmonies in the Country/Southern style of gospel music, the Gibsons is a brother-sister team, James and Robbie. Their first Gold Street release, "Melodies From the Heart," brought them to the attention of many across the nation with the song "Won't Need 'Em Any More," a southern gospel hit.

The Gibsons are traveling to the other end of the country, making use of several electronic keyboards and stringed instruments. Performing in churches, auditoriums, and for benefits and civic functions, the Gibsons perform around many of the country.

James and Robbie use enough equipment to supply a six-piece band. Quite often, people under estimate the appeal of the Gibsons simply because they're a two-man band.

With the release of their new album, "The Story Never Grows Old," the Gibsons will be entering a new area of the gospel music spectrum.

The new album will reflect their ability to adjust to any gospel format. The Gibsons will take on a musical journey from one end of the country to the other.

Upon immediate release, "The Story Never Grows Old" will be available through record stores in Texas and Louisiana, as well as at performance and musical small order from Gold Street Records, Box 124, Kirbyville, TX 75556. The album is slated for release in July, and arrangements are being made for National Distribution of all Gold Street's products.

Rev. A.J. Gibson, the Singing Gibsons' father, is Pastor of the United Pentecostal Church in Spurger.

Art Contest Winner Announced

LIVINGSTON -- monies for Kermit Hunter's "Beyond the Sundown". The outdoor-historical drama is produced annually by the Alabama-Coushattas of Polk County, Texas. He is currently residing with his wife Sherry in Kenner, Louisiana near New Orleans.

His graphic designs have received exceptional notice throughout the world. His work is slated for publication this year in no less than three international art journals including Art Direction '80 and Communication Arts Annual.

An encircled motif of an abstract Indian headpiece with each of three feathers representing the combined nationalities of Texas, Indian, Mexican and American. The artist's winning concept, "Warrior's Bonnet," forms a stylized sun.

David A. DeLong, publicity director for Sundown Theatre, explained the reasons behind the judges' selection of Segura's winning concept. "The design submitted by Carlos was by far the most original and creative of all the entries we received." He also pointed out the "flexibility" of Segura's logo.

Sundown Awarded ARCO Grant

LIVINGSTON -- "Beyond the Sundown," the outdoor historical drama of the Alabama-Coushattas, has been awarded a $15,000 grant from Atlantic Richfield Foundation according to Sundown Theatre producer Marlon N. Waggoner.

Director of Public Affairs in Houston, presented the funding check to Chief Fulton Battise at opening night ceremonies June 20 on the Indian Reservation in Livingston.

"We want to compliment you for your good leadership and enthusiasm," Battise stated. "Waggoner has headed up the theatre since 1965. He has done a great job of building a new lake and campground. Realizing the need for good campgrounds in this area, he has been successful in securing an ARCO monies are granted to support endeavors of significant cultural and civic merit."

Levingston To Build New Drilling Rig

Ed Paden, President of Levingston Shipbuilding Company of Orange, Texas has announced plans to build a Levingston Class 111-C jack-up drilling rig for Noble Drilling Corporation of Ardmore, Oklahoma. Noble Drilling, a leading domestic drilling contracting firm, formed in 1921 as a wholly owned subsidiary of Noble Affiliates, Inc.

It owns seven platform rigs; three shallow water mobile rigs; three inland barge rigs and 34 land rigs. Overall dimensions of the triangular-shaped rig are 200' x 186' x 23'. The 414' long four chord square truss legs allow the vessel to drill in water depths of 300' and to a maximum well depth of 25,000 feet. Design criteria of the cantilevered unit makes it capable of operating under the harshest weather conditions. The unnamed jack-up will be able to withstand winds of up to 109 knots and seas of 50 feet. Accommodations will be provided for a crew of 54. This is the third in a series of jack-up rigs to be built at Levingston. They provide further continuity in our plan to equally divided yard efforts between conventional shipbuilding and offshore projects. We at Levingston are optimistic about additional offshore business as well as continuation of our successful bulk carrier program.

The approximate cost of this rig is $37 million. Completion is scheduled for October 1981 and the rig will operate in the Gulf of Mexico.

Guests at the Baptist Church Sunday were Jeff Allen of Texas City, Janet Robinette of Lafayette, La. and Jim Oliver of Zavalla. We appreciated Sharon Lawson filling in for yours truly at the piano while I flew to Oregon to be with my grandkids. We also appreciated Roy Tompkins filling in for J.B. Dean during his recovery from a recent illness. Also, this church will be in revival July 9-13 at 7:30 p.m. each evening. The song leader is Elmo Gibbs, the pianist is yours truly and the preacher is Bro. Kenn. We would love to see you.

The G.A.s from the Baptist Church had a great week at camp at the East Texas Baptist Encampment at Newton. The girls attending were Carol Bassett, Candy Lawson, Michelle Moffett, Amy Tompkins, Janet Robinette visiting from Lafayette, La. and Angela Brown visiting from Colmesneil.
