Austin Trip Results In 'Excellent' Hearing

Elated over a "successful meeting" Tuesday with House Speaker Bill Clayton a bevy of East Texas county leaders headed by Tyler County Judge Allen Sturrock, Tyler County Commissioner Maxie Riley and Deep East Texas Council of Governments Executive Director Bill Langford came home pleased with "the excellent reception and hearing" they were given in seeking the House speaker's assistance in helping the area leaders try to build onto tax dollars for road and bridge maintenance and repair in rural East Texas.

Some 20 elected officials met with Clayton at 10 a.m. Tuesday and according to Council of Governments President Judge Allen Sturrock, "The speaker was real hospitable and seemed to be sympathetic toward our lateral road fund idea." Sturrock said that normally the county had been depending on some $28,900 annually for road fund use. Sturrock said, "that legislation got caught in the sunset law." Sturrock said that Governor Bill Clements had indicated some favoritism for the idea as long as it meets constitutional guidelines and has the proper legislative vehicle to deliver the funds. "Everybody seems to be in agreement."

According to Maxie Riley in a telephone interview Tuesday from Austin "We came here to make a little noise that Tyler County is needing relief and that the tax money either needs to be sent back or never taken away."

"They've indicated here that they're ready to help us," Riley said.

Freshman Representative-elect Larry Browder, who helped stage the meeting for the East Texas elected officials said, "The visit from these officials makes my job easier, especially when the people in my district come to Austin as a group to be heard."

Browder said his next step following the visit would be to draw up some bills which capture the needs of the East Texas group and then check them out with Clayton and see that they are ushered through.

One Council of Governments official said, "We were received very graciously. I was impressed with the reception. He welcomed us and listened to us."

Another request which the officials also brought to Austin concerned retention of license plate dollars which would enable the county to possibly capture $175,000 and under Rep. Haley's bill, Judge Sturrock said "would enable the county to qualify possibly for $350,000."

Sturrock said, "Billy was in sympathy with us even though he feels the one cent sales tax would be hard to pass because of the resulting duplicate tax condition which would prevail over cities."

(See Related Story Page 3-A)

"I'm a taxpayer too," said Clayton as he heard the East Texas delegation appeal to him to carry this legislation through into law. Clayton said, "There can't be a separation of taxes proposed by one entity over another... that's unconstitutional."

Representative-elect Browder characterized Clayton as a man basically from a farming background who talks direct and straight on one.

Clayton said, "The sales tax is the most equitable tax we've got."

APPEALS TO SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE—County Judge Allen Sturrock (R.) is shown appealing to House Speaker Billy Clayton (L.) in meeting Tuesday designed to inform Clayton of East Texas' need to retain tax dollars from lateral road funds and from license plate sales. Sturrock also proposed a one cent sales tax which he said would supplant revenue sharing dollars which are expected to be cut off soon.

Courthouse Elevator Bids Eyed

Tyler County Commissioners Court met Monday and accepted two bids for installation of an elevator in the County Courthouse, following months of dogged study on the project in accordance with Federal Revenue Sharing guidelines.

Bidders for the work included Thomas Fortenberry of Woodville with an overall bid of $89,595 and the Richard DeFee Construction Company of Livingston who submitted a price of $85,993.

Commissioners voted to table the bids so that Tyler County Architect

Don Cole could review the bids and make a recommendation for the Court within the 30 day consideration period.

In other bidding activity the commissioners also accepted bids from four vendors as the county considers purchasing a tractor and bushhog unit to be used for maintenance of the Tyler County Airport.

The four bids which will be considered for approval again this Friday were submitted from the following: Jo-Be Equipment of Woodville for a Massey Ferguson Tractor, $9,120; Oil City Tractors of Beaumont with a bid price of $8,601 for a Ford Tractor; Universal Tractor and Equipment of Beaumont with a Kubota Tractor at a price of $7,487. Another bid from Lovett's of Jasper totaling $10,000 was rejected due to nonconformance to county specifications.

In other court action the commissioners: approved the county extension agent's report; approved the county treasurer's report; approved the oath and bonding requirements for County Tax Assessor Collector Barbara Tolbert.

Mary Ann Kittell Buys Pines Theater

"You can say that we're going to breathe new life into the Pines Theater," said Mary Ann Kittell, of Colmesnell and Beaumont, as she acknowledged on Tuesday her acquisition of the Pines Theater, located behind the Tyler County Courthouse and next to the J.E. Wheat home, in Woodville.

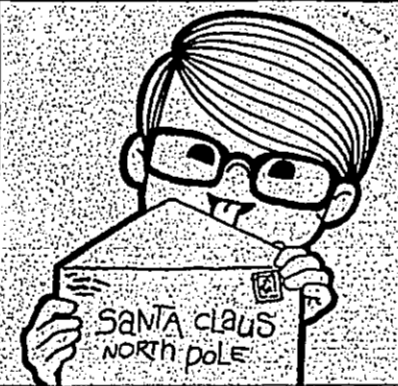

According to Kittell's sister, Fran Wyche, also of Colmesnell, the undertaking is "a family project" but "not strictly a movie house."

The new owner said that the building would be utilized for the benefit of Tyler County young people not ruling out, she said, anything such as a restaurant or just a place for kids to go. "Whatever the law allows," Mrs. Kittell said.

Wyche told the Booster Tuesday that the family has plans to open the theater around January 1. The property was purchased from J. Wood Fain of Woodville.

JUDGES ATTEND SEMINAR—Eighty-seven justices of the peace attended a 20-hour Texas Justice of the Peace Training Seminar Nov. 11-14 in Longview. The training center is based at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos. The seminars are held in compliance with article 5872, Section B, of the Texas Revised Civil Statutes. Among the judges attending were, left to right, Jimmy Davis of Colmesnell, Tyler County Precinct 3, and John S. Pankhanks of Woodville, Tyler County Precinct 1, Place 1. (SWT News Service Photo)

Retired Teachers To Meet

The Tyler Co. Retired Teachers Association will hold its Christmas meeting, Tuesday, Dec. 16 at 2:30 p.m. in the Allan Shivers Library meeting room. The vice president will be elected to fill a vacancy. All retired educators of Tyler County are invited and urged to be present.

Historical Commission To Meet

The Tyler Co. Historical Commission will have their regular monthly business meeting Thursday, Dec. 11 at 4 p.m. in the Allan Shivers Museum. The Board of Directors of The Tyler Co. Heritage Society will meet immediately following.

City Tables Truck Bids

A failure of the City of Woodville to publicly advertise a legal newspaper notice of the solicitation of bids for a needed new dump truck for the City may cause the bid process to be extended, according to Walt Davis, City Manager, who said "City might have to throw bids received Monday out and rebid in January."

Following an inquiry from A&M Motor Company Tuesday on whether the bids had been duly advertised it was discovered according to City Manager Davis that each automobile dealer in Tyler County had been delivered copies of the dump truck specifications but that the legal course of the bid process had not been followed exactly, possibly extending the bid procedure even though the matter was tabled, he said.

The bids submitted at the regular monthly meeting at City Hall showed Knapp Ford Sales to be low bidder with a bid of $14,822 with trade-in; Allison Chevrolet Inc., with a bid of $15,400 with trade-in; and A&M Motor Company with bid total of $17,432.83 with trade-in.

No date has been set as to when the council will consider the present bids for possible acceptance or whether the council will have to reopen the process at their next scheduled meeting or possibly in a called meeting to consider the item.

Tom Knapp of Knapp Ford Sales told the council that "It would be hard to hold those prices... we're getting price increases daily... we couldn't guarantee this price beyond more than a reasonable length of time."

January 1 would be a good time," said Robert Allison of Allison Chevrolet in Colmesnell.

In other action the council: approved the minutes of the previous meeting; accepted a resolution authorizing filing of a Community Development Block Grant Pre-application;

OK'd a lease for the Woodville School district for property near the Canada Gym at the cost of $1 a year on a year-to-year basis; passed a resolution allowing $10,000 to be budgeted towards Industrial Development in Woodville; and heard a report from City Manager Walt Davis about pending gas rate increases to take effect in January.

Contestants Sought

Miss Tyler County Contestants are asked to contact Dorothy Britnell for entry blanks and information. A contestant must be seventeen and a senior or no older than 26. They may also contact Lynn Hays, president of A.B.W.A., or Maggie Pryor for entry blanks. Barbara Brown, Lynn Hays and Martha Fitts will be working with the contestants before and during the pageant week of rehearsals.

The pageant will be held February

21. Any girl interested in being in the pageant should contact one of the above ladies and get signed up. They will be taking the contestants to some other local pageants soon. They will be going to the Miss Humble pageant on Jan. 3 and Beaumont pageant on Feb. 7. Junior Miss Contestants, age 14 through junior class in school, contact Carla Stewart at Citizens State Bank or call 283-5916.

Census Count—16,164

The bureau of the Census reported to County Judge Allen P. Barbera, director of the Bureau of Sturrock this week that the population of the County, Washington, D.C., count for Tyler County stands at 16,164. The preliminary housing count may be replaced later by final counts for the county is 8,432.

The Consumer Alert

AUSTIN — Merchants use many different means to encourage you to buy their products. While most businesses are honest and straightforward, a few engage in misleading tactics to get you to agree to a purchase. With the holiday buying season upon us, we all need to be aware of the various types of deceptive sales tactics to which we might fall victim.

Advertisements using price comparisons can help consumers make buying decisions. In such ads, current prices for goods or services are compared with previous prices, with future prices, or with other stated values in order to show price reductions, savings, or sales. Such ads might say "Regularly $50. Now on sale for $39.95" or "Buy one pair at regular price — get the second pair for 1/2 price."

Price comparison ads that accurately reflect current market value help consumers make buying decisions. But if such ads are based on inflated or arbitrary prices, they can be misleading.

A small number of merchants misuse price-comparison ads. They may raise the price of an item just before a sale and then offer "tremendous price reductions." The ad may say "compare at $102" or "reduced from manufacturer's suggested retail price," when, in fact, the product has never sold at the higher price.

If businesses want to advertise a reduction in price, the previous price must have been in effect for a reasonable length of time before the sale and must have been sold regularly at that price in order for the "sale" to be legitimate.

Another type of sales tactic which might be used to mislead you is the "free gift" or "contest winner" approach.

This usually involves a telephone call in which the consumer is told that by answering a question correctly a "free prize" will be won. Usually, the question is on the order of "Who is our current president?" As a result, almost everyone is a "winner." Unfortunately, such "prizes" almost always have strings attached.

For example, you may win three years' worth of magazines for which you are required to pay just postage and handling. They may express this as "only 25 cents a week." It doesn't sound like much; however, it amounts to $39.00 worth of "free magazines."

To avoid falling victim to such sales tactics, our Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division attorneys suggest the following guidelines:

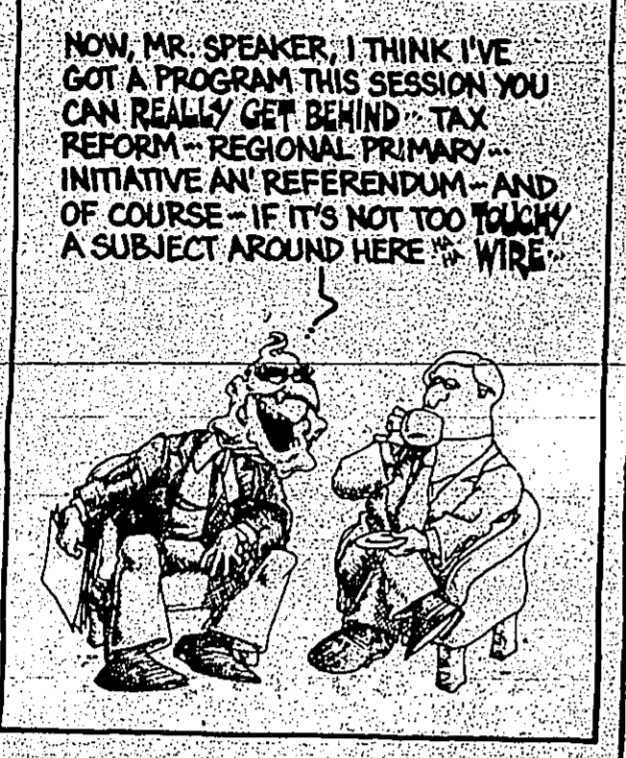

Shop around to see if the "reduced" price is actually a good price and a savings from what the product can be purchased for elsewhere.

If you are told that you have won a prize in a contest, ask if you will be obligated to listen to a sales pitch for a product or service. Many times to obtain your "free" prize you must endure an intense, high pressure sales pitch.

Find out what conditions are tied to getting the "free gift." Usually, it's not really free — it is likely you will have to buy something to get it, and you may end up paying more than you would for a similar item in a local store.

If you must buy something, shop around first to see how the cost you are quoted compares with the item without such a "gift." If the merchant tells you that you cannot have time to consider the offer, decline it.

If you have a consumer complaint about deceptive sales tactics, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division in Austin, Dallas, El Paso, Houston, Lubbock, McAllen, or San Antonio.

State Capital Highlights

AUSTIN — Members of the Legislature learned last week there is a chance they may have to wait a while to redraw political districts in Texas.

A federal court suit challenging census data for Detroit may hold up the receipt of census tabulations until after the 67th Legislature adjourns at the end of May, 1981. The census figures, previously not expected to reach the Legislature until late March or April, at best.

Meanwhile, the membership of legislative committees which will draw up the districts may be expanded. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said he wants to let the entire 31 Texas Senators act as a full committee to draw up the plan to make sure every member has input. House Speaker Bill Clayton wants to expand the House committee from 11 to 19 members for the same reason.

Clayton, regarded as a specialist in water rights before his election to the Speakership, also announced he will ask the Legislature to use the state's surplus revenue to create a trust fund for "developing" water resources.

Water shortages, already a problem in West Texas and the Panhandle, are expected to occur more frequently in the future, much like gasoline shortages in urban areas.

Clayton will propose creation of a permanent trust fund for deposit and investment of surplus state revenues. The permanent fund itself will never be spent, but the profits from its investment would be spent on water development projects. The money is to discourage potential candidates and to avoid a lame-duck image.

Among those thought to be considered a race for Hobby's post are three getting your attention when it was play the better.

Amid speculation he would run for governor in two years, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby announced last week he will seek a fourth term at his present office. A win in 1982 will give Hobby that a record 14-year tenure.

His announcement was timed, he said, to discourage potential candidates and to avoid a lame-duck image.

Among those thought to be considered a race for Hobby's post are three getting your attention when it was play the better.

The senator reportedly suffered two broken vertebrae in his neck, a concussion, a broken rib and two broken fingers. The driver, his brother-in-law, was killed. Meier is reported stable and recovering.

Meier was considered the most likely to challenge Hobby in light of the senator's remarks two weeks ago he was thinking about switching to the Republican Party to make the race.

Meier was expected to announce a decision on his party affiliation this month, but an unfortunate automobile accident over the Thanksgiving Holiday leaves his political future in doubt.

T-Wheeler

Molly's gone. For thirteen years, the T-Wheeler's four footed friend had been a lovable, frustrating, exasperating, and almost always unpredictable.

Her ancestry would not have qualified her for registration in the American Kennel Club. There was a lot of German Shepherd, some yellow hound and a bit of beagle. She apparently came from a long line of traveling Romanovs.

One car was in a near permanent laid back position, and the other one had a chunk torn out when she tried to take on a huge bulldog in her puppy years.

She had one great passion in life. Chasing rocks. No rubber bones or balls for Molly. Just rocks. And before old age caught up with her, the bigger the better.

We ran into Molly at an apartment complex in Lutkin. When the contractors left, there were dozens of bricks left on the site, and apparently that's where Molly's love affair with rocks began. She'd spend hours digging them up, and carry them to the patio door, waiting for you to come out and play.

She had an interesting way of getting your attention when it was play time. She'd scour the yard looking for just the right rock, carry it into the garage, and fling it at the wall.

The ricochet-off-the-car-fenders and the garage wall was always sure to get your attention.

We made the mistake of trying to interest her in frisbee chasing, or even a tennis ball. But it never took Molly it was just rocks.

She always looked forward to a visit from Nan's parents, because Nick always brought a coffee can of rocks. We still can see Molly running out to their car, impatiently waiting for the trunk to be opened, and a chance to sample the new rock collection.

Molly's good points were there too. It was always Nan's face, she licked in the middle of the night when nature called.

She had a running battle with anything in a uniform. Garbage men, mail carriers, policemen all raised the hair on the back of her neck, and set her barking up a storm.

She had a few dog friends. One little bitty one in the neighborhood had a fenced in yard. But when Molly wanted to play, she'd just nudge open the latch with her nose, and the two of them would go about their business. Drove Florence crazy trying to figure out how a ten pound dog could open a forty pound gate.

If Molly had a second love next to rocks, it had to be riding in Nan's car. Those daily trips to the post office were high on her list of things to do. The minute you reached for the car keys she was poised at the car door rarin' to go.

Molly wasn't a hunter. Every wild thing was a friend. Her aloofness at times would drive you to distraction. She was a master at getting her own way.

Speaker Reports

By Bill Clayton

AUSTIN — The Crime Victims Compensation Act is a new program created by the 66th Legislature to provide restitution for those persons who are injured while trying to prevent a crime from occurring.

Historically speaking, the concept of providing assistance to crime victims is not a novel idea. Ancient Babylonian custom provided that when a man was robbed or murdered, the city or governor in which the crime was committed should compensate the victim or his heirs for their losses.

Under the present-day Crime Victims Compensation Act, victims are compensated by monies from additional court costs imposed on persons convicted of felonies ($15) and Class A misdemeanors ($10). These funds are collected by county and deposited monthly with the state comptroller's office.

However, there currently exists a tremendous shortage of funds for tragic circumstances.

press there has "always been a certain amount of political play between the comptroller and revenue estimates," but he told Bullock of his intentions as the two flew from Austin to Dallas.

NEW TAX CODE — State Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, told an Austin audience last week he believes the courts would have forced Texas to reform the property code had the Legislature failed to adopt reforms in 1979. Without uniform property taxes, the state aid formula to public education would be unconstitutional.

Jones co-sponsored the Pevo Act, with Rep. Wayne Pevo of Orange, which set up numerous tax reforms.

There are four kinds of law, an attorney explained to his audience. "There's the law we (the Legislature) think we passed, the public thinks we passed, the administrative agencies think we passed, and the law the courts tell all of us we passed."

There has been no war. As yet, it is clear that hopes for fundamental change in Soviet goals are ill-founded and that efforts at unilateral restraint do not elicit reciprocity. In sum, the post-war relations between nation states, I am both proud and humbled by our stewardship over the past 35 years, and the enormity of the agenda before us.

For a generation we have labored collectively and individually toward fashioning an international structure for peaceful intercourse among sovereign states under the ever-present shadow of conflict — conflict which could involve the destruction of all mankind.

Today, however, such pride as we may take from having forestalled nuclear holocaust, must be tempered by the sobering recognition that the fundamental ideological cleavage which separates east from west makes the threat of conflict an enduring fact of life.

In the decade of the '70s we have pursued with care and good will a determined policy which sought to engage opposing states in a peaceful dialogue through which both sides could relieve tensions and lower the risk of war through miscalculation.

and to get on with the firm promotion of our values and the unhesitating defense of free-world interests.

In recent years a certain ambiguity has developed within the international community as to just what United States interests were. Thus as a matter of first priority, it is imperative that we in the United States restate those interests so that there will be no doubt as to our purposes and goals.

In my judgment they are as follows:

First, we must protect the United States against military attack; this is our first and foremost national interest.

Second, we must assure our secure access to resources and overseas markets which make possible our continued economic prosperity.

Third, we have a basic interest in the security of other like-minded nations — our allies.

As one who has served in public life during a period in which the United States was offered the opportunity — indeed the mandate — to design and manage a framework for post-war relations between nation states, I am both proud and humbled by our stewardship over the past 35 years, and the enormity of the agenda before us.

They won't be young forever and now is the time that they need a pull in the direction toward God. Now is the time that you can lead and share in the joy of their worship. Take your children to Church.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for men and of His demand for men to respond to that love by loving His neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society of men can be built. The Church is the freedom which we hold so dear will be evitably perished. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it helps him to live as a child of God.

Thanks For Shopping Tyler County!

ts-A Labor Of Love

Delta Epsilon Chapter members of the Delta Epsilon Chapter, Gamma-Sigma and Gamma-Sigma were busy in their homes, offices and other places, making Christmas ornaments. Most of the ornaments are made of styrofoam, covered with scraps of material, sequins and tiny beads. "Due to an illness, Boots must spend most of her time in bed, where she works on her decorations all year except during the hottest days of summer. When she isn't doing something artistic, Boots does cleanup work by phone. The Brashers are members of the Hillister Baptist Church, where Bruce is a deacon. Not all of Boots' creations are in her own home; she gives her extra ornaments to the Holiday Pines nursing home. Although many people have offered to buy her ornaments, Boots says she doesn't want to sell them. Making the decorations is her labor of love, and she doesn't want it to become a business. Before they retired, the Brashers' Christmas tree was always the same; the only decorations were blue glass balls. Now each ornament is different and all are handcrafted with loving care.

ORNAMENTS GALORE! Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Brasher of Hillister are shown in the living room with their Christmas Tree laden with many years of ornament creativity.

Heritage Civic Club Ladies Hold Meeting

Away with seriousness and on with the fun! was the theme of the Heritage Civic Club's December 8th meeting. In keeping with the mood, Barbara Cole gave a rendering of an updated version of "Twas the Night Before Christmas." Then, the annual "choose and exchange" of Christmas gifts caused a lot of laughter and merriment. Members were treated to a table filled with all kinds of holiday "goodies". The centerpiece, which attracted a lot of attention, was a freshly baked gingerbread house made by Jean Knight, whose home was galley decorated for the meeting. The other hostesses that provided such an enjoyable evening were Kennel Satterwhite, Sharon Spear and Della Marsh.

SLIDING DOORS
Though all sliding doors operate basically the same way, regardless of their purpose, the variety of their hardware is almost unlimited. The major difference in installation is that some are hung from the top rail, while others are hung from the bottom rail. Light weight, close doors, and extremely heavy garage doors tend to hang from the top rail. Most other moderate to heavy doors (patio doors, etc.) hang from the bottom rail. A guide to help you choose the right door is to look for the source of difficulty may be an obstruction in the track or may be a missing pin. Doors that bind may be running in dirt; or, bent tracks or may be pressed too tightly by a guide.

Page 2-B TELL 'EM YOU SAW IT IN THE TYLER COUNTY BOOSTER THURSDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1980

you and the LAW

PRESENTED BY THE STATE BAR OF TEXAS
 Q: I am applying for a mortgage to buy a home. Am I required to purchase homeowners insurance?

A: You will be required by your mortgage company to maintain certain minimum coverages to protect its interest in the property. Although the lender may require certain financial standards of the company from which you purchase insurance, it cannot require that you buy this coverage from a certain agent or company. However, many times the mortgage insurance on the property that you purchase homeowners insurance. The mortgage company, however, may require the insurance coverage to be provided by a certain agent or company.

Q: I purchased half a lot several years ago. The fence which divides the property is not centered and cuts five feet off my half. Can I legally move the fence to get my land back? Who must pay to move the fence? The owner of the other half of the property originally built the fence.

A: If the fence is on your property you may have it removed, but if it was there when you bought the land, you must pay for the removal. If your neighbor built the fence after your purchase, he should pay to move it, although you may have to bring a lawsuit to force payment. Before removing or moving the fence, you must be certain that it is wholly on your property. This will require a surveyor at your expense.

Q: I've heard that a person can lose ownership of his property if he "splits" his property. Is this true? After our divorce, the house was awarded to us equally, but my wife retains possession. If my wife lives there for several years, running, do I lose my half-ownership?

A: It appears that some form of joint ownership interest, with possibly a lifetime estate in your favor, was awarded in the divorce decree. Therefore, it is unlikely that you could lose your interest in the house because of your wife's occupancy. If you have any doubts, ask your attorney to review the divorce decree and to determine your exact interest.

Q: My husband and I were injured in a hit-and-run accident. Our medical bills totaled almost $30,000, and we lost six months work. The man who hit us was apprehended and tried and was ordered to pay our accident-related bills plus $325 a month for seven years. He paid for a few months and skipped town. Efforts have been made to find him but to no avail. Since he is retired, military, why can't they trace him through his retirement check?

A: I cannot tell from the information you furnished whether this is a civil or a criminal matter. If this is civil, the Federal government is in some cases allowing garnishment against certain pension funds. If the order was made under a probated criminal sentence, a Motion to Revoke should be filed. A warrant of arrest will be issued, and the State would begin procedures to locate him.

Children Should Be Seen / Not Hurt

By Christmas Toys

Children should be seen and NOT HURT by their new Christmas toys. A few months, or a year or two in a child's development can make quite a difference in his or her ability to cope with toys, explains Harold Ray, Director of the Product Safety Division of the Texas Department of Health.

Toys that might be safe for older children can be extremely dangerous in the hands of little ones, he said.

For this reason, manufacturers are required by the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission to place age recommendations and precautionary labeling on toys. Testing is done for the different age groups of children. These age levels are 18 months and less, more than 18 months but not more than 36 months, and 36 months to not more than eight years of age.

Learn to be a label reader, Ray advises. "A label warns that a toy is too advanced for your child, look for something else. Make sure that all instructions are clear to you, and more importantly, to the child."

Ray said to look for safety labeling including "non-toxic" on painted toys, "flame retardant/flame resistant" on fabric products, and "washable/hygienic materials" on stuffed toys and dolls.

Ray says parents should be aware of how well a toy is built. Toys of brittle plastic can be broken into sharp, dangerous, sharp cutting edges. Wooden, metal and plastic toys sometimes have sharp edges due to poor construction, he said.

"Tiny toys and toys with small, removable parts can sometimes be swallowed by small children, or become lodged in their windpipes, ears or nose. Pins and staples on doll clothes, hair and accessories can easily injure an unsuspecting child. Even a teddy bear can have barbed eyes or wired limbs which can cut or stab."

Ray advises parents to avoid toys that produce extremely loud noises. The law requires the following label on boxes of caps producing noise above a certain level: "WARNING - Do not fire missiles and similar flying objects into or around the ear. Do not use indoors."

Electrical toys — improperly constructed or misused — can shock or burn. These toys must meet mandatory requirements for maximum surface temperatures, electrical construction and prominent warning labels. Electrical toys with heating elements are recommended only for children over eight years old.

Select Christmas Tree With Care

COLLEGE STATION — Selecting your Christmas tree wisely and giving it proper care will help it last throughout the holiday season.

First, consider the tree species, says Dr. Michael Walterscheid, forestry specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Common species grown in Michigan, Minnesota and Oregon and sold in Texas include Scotch pine and Douglas fir. There are also some spruce, noble fir and concolor fir. All make acceptable Christmas trees. They are cut in October, then stored and shipped south as Christmas approaches. Generally, these trees are in good condition when they arrive in Texas.

Recently, producers in southern states have started growing Virginia pines in plantations for Christmas trees. Walterscheid, Virginia pines make desirable Christmas trees because of their pleasing fragrance, relatively short needles and can be pruned readily to a desirable shape.

Texas growers, too, have established plantations of Virginia pines. More Virginia pines will be available within two to three years and will have an advantage of freshness over trees shipped in from other states.

Buy your Christmas tree early so you can select the type of tree you want. Check for signs of needle shedding, which indicates that the tree is becoming too dry. If a tree is too dry when purchased, it will continue to dry out even though it is set in water. Generally, trees available on stands in Texas are fresh and can be expected to remain usable in the home throughout the Christmas season.

"When you get the tree home, cut one to two inches off its base on a slant. Stand the tree in water and store in shaded area until you're ready to bring it inside. Keep water in the stand at all times and your tree will remain fresh."

In the home, place the tree away from all heat sources, such as fireplace or heating unit, cautions Walterscheid. Check the water level often; a tree may use as much as a pint of water a day. Keep your lighting system in good order by inspecting and discarding frayed insulation, broken sockets and loose connections. Use only lights and cords that carry the safety seal of Underwriters Laboratories.

As a final reminder, Walterscheid advises removing gift wrappings and packing materials from around the tree once you have opened Christmas packages.

By selecting a fresh tree and following a few safety rules, everyone can have a safe and happy holiday season.

Defense Budget Biggest Ever

CONGRESSMAN CHARLES WILSON and Congressional District

In spite of both Democratic and Republican commitments to federal spending, the Pentagon will spend more money in fiscal 1981 than ever before.

House-Senate conference committee in Washington.

As one of the conferees who served on that defense conference committee, it is gratifying to see my colleagues taking serious note of the gaps that exist in our defense capabilities.

National defense has always been one of my highest priorities. It is only within the last year, however, that I have seen my point of view become the majority point of view in Washington.

Security numbers, incorrect billings by IRS, or mistakes by the taxpayer. This year, PRP has already been handled about 6,000 taxpayers. I am informed of the case's progress in the IRS.

Robert M. McKeever, IRS district director for Southern Texas, said, "The most common problem brought to the PRP office are complaints about missing refunds, mixed up Social Security numbers, incorrect billings by IRS, or mistakes by the taxpayer. This year, PRP has already been handled about 6,000 taxpayers. I am informed of the case's progress in the IRS."

Besides solving taxpayer problems, McKeever said that PRP also helps in the discovery of tax evasion. For example, PRP has cut by three-fourths the time it takes to trace lost or stolen money.

"Problem Resolution should not be used as a substitute for normal procedures," he said. "We believe that about 99% of all problems can be resolved before they ever get to PRP."

Taxpayers can contact PRP by calling the IRS district office, or by mail. For example, telephone book and asking for Problem Resolution.

IRS Office Solves Problem

AUSTIN, Texas — Taxpayers who meet with IRS district director Robert M. McKeever in the PRP office to help solve their tax problems, are often surprised by the speed with which their problems are resolved.

McKeever said that PRP also helps in the discovery of tax evasion. For example, PRP has cut by three-fourths the time it takes to trace lost or stolen money.

Don't Gamble On Fertilizer

ANTON R. CURRIE, county Extension Agent

Farming is enough of a gamble, so don't gamble on fertilizer. The best time for testing and testing soil samples is right now, after harvest season. That way you can determine your fertilizer needs and order supplies early before the busy spring season.

A soil test provides information about the nutrient status of soil as well as lime requirements in areas of acid soil. With fertilizer costs then mix them, all that care about the soft soil-nutrients, also in a pint to the soft testing creases. Thus, efficient and profitable fertilization depends on a good evaluation of the nutrient-supplying capacity of soil.

The first step to a good soil test is to take a good sample. Get a composite sample from each field by collecting a slice or core of soil from 10 to 15 different spots. Then mix them, all that care about the soft soil-nutrients, also in a pint to the soft testing creases. Thus, efficient and profitable fertilization depends on a good evaluation of the nutrient-supplying capacity of soil.

Accent On Health

Even if you have all your teeth and dentures, it's still important to see a dentist regularly. Texas dental health pilot project administered in the Denture Clinic, dental hygienist advised people who wear dentures during World War II, and hadn't seen a dentist since then, she said.

"Many senior citizens don't know that where the mandible, or jaw hinges in the skull. These parts of the body can change with age, so it's good common sense to see a dentist no matter how old you are, she said.

Since the incidence of oral cancer increases with age, the 750 participants were taught self-examination procedures for detecting the early warning signs of cancer. Patients also learned how to care for their natural teeth. "When most of these people were growing up, they were probably instructed to brush with a hard toothbrush," Mrs. Zauser explained. "Now we encourage everyone to brush with a soft toothbrush and to brush both gums and teeth. Soft bristle won't irritate the gums, which need to be brushed to combat periodontal (gum) disease."

Older people sometimes experience changes in their taste sensations, and this can lead to other health problems. As their tastes change, they might need more salt, and this could influence high blood pressure, Mrs. Zauser said. "Or they might use an increased amount of sugar which, of course, would encourage tooth decay."

Another dental problem associated with the elderly is the reduction of salivary flow caused by medication, or a change in the salivary glands. This can result in saliva not functioning as a cleaning agent.

Dr. Carlos Lozano, Director of the TD Bureau of Dental Health says most people don't realize that their teeth are supposed to last a lifetime. He said about half the people in the country lose their natural teeth by age 55. Dr. Lozano said about 20 million Americans have lost teeth and could benefit from a dentist only for pain.

Waterfowl Cooking 'Care' Book Available Now

For best flavor, eye appeal and high quality waterfowl needs special care in field dressing and storage.

Hunters need to know how to field dress, pluck and prepare waterfowl for eating.

PROPER FIELD CARE
Dress duck and goose immediately since proper field care will prevent spoilage and off flavors.

Dress birds completely as soon as possible.

Remove the entrails by cutting a slit just below the breastbone, down and across the vent, remove all the contents.

Avoid breaking the gall bladder side on the liver. Bile from it will alter the meat flavor.

Save the gizzard, heart and liver for eating. Place giblets in a plastic bag. Cut near the neck base and remove the crop.

Wipe the body cavity clean with a moist cloth. Moisture spreads bacteria which cause spoilage.

Most hunters remove the two oil glands found on the upper surface of the tail—or they remove the entire tail structure.

Cool the bird by hanging air to circulate in the body cavity. Insert a small stick in the cavity to help hold it open and speed cooling.

Moisten the feathers by placing birds in a cooler—if the outdoor temperature is not cold.

AGING DUCK AND GOOSE
Aging waterfowl will remove much of the gamey flavor and help develop tenderness.

To age a field dressed unplucked bird, hang it at a temperature of 40-45 degrees F. for three to four days.

REMOVING FEATHERS
Leaving the skin intact—and plucking it—will result in more moisture and better flavor of waterfowl, although skinning may be easier.

To pluck, remove the wings at the joint nearest the body. Cut off the feet at the first joint above them. Remove the head and down on the neck occasionally to make plucking easier.

Use the thumb and index finger, holding the bird firmly with the other hand.

After "rough picking" the down feathers will come off by "sanding" or rubbing across the bird during the cooking process.

Freeze duck and goose immediately after packaging. Keep at 0 degrees F. or lower until it is used.

Quality meat—correctly prepared waterfowl—frozen in a freezer, wrapped in freezer paper, will keep at this temperature from 10 months to a year.

For other recipes on preparing waterfowl, ask the County Extension Office for a copy of "Waterfowl Cooking, Serves six."

Frost Causes Prussic Poison

Frost will be hitting Tyler County before long and this could lead to prussic acid poisoning in livestock grazing pasture grasses and forages.

Although many plants contain the toxic material that causes poisoning, those causing the highest mortality in livestock when grazed after they have been frozen and wilted are Johnson and Sudan grasses and sorghum hybrids of these species. The most dangerous time as far as the grazing of these plants is concerned is following frost when the material begins to wilt. Livestock should not be allowed access to the wilted material until it has dried completely. This usually takes three to four days of good sunlight. New plant growth usually becomes non-toxic and can be grazed within 10 days to two weeks following a rain.

As far as prussic acid poisoning is concerned, the poison acts rapidly and can kill animals within minutes after eating toxic material and can die in two to three minutes. Symptoms may include a brief period of stimulation followed by depression and paralysis. Signs of colic may be present. Stupor, loss of sensibility, difficult breathing and frequent convulsions may result. Death is caused by suffocation since oxygen remains in the blood and is not exchanged to the tissues. This also causes the blood to appear bright red.

To prevent prussic acid poisoning in livestock follow these steps:

1. Allow plant material to be grazed before grazing. This may require a week or more of sunlight.
2. Feed animals hay or a supplement before turning them in on plants that may contain prussic acid. Animals that are not hungry will not be affected as seriously by toxic material since their intake will be limited.
3. Remove all animals from the pasture if one animal in the herd shows any signs of poisoning.
4. Call a veterinarian immediately if an animal appears to be poisoned. An antidote to treat affected animals is highly effective if given early. This product is available from veterinarians.
5. Have suspect plant material checked by the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratories at College Station or Amarillo. Local veterinarians will be happy to submit samples for you.

The overall key to preventing prussic acid poisoning in livestock is to be aware of plant materials that may cause poisoning and then to keep cattle from grazing such plants until a safe period has passed.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Crop And Livestock Reports Needed

From mid-November to early January, thousands of Texas farmers and ranchers will receive a crop or livestock questionnaire from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service or will be personally interviewed by the Service's field staff. The information gathered through the questionnaires and interviews provides the basis for determining the final acreage, yield, and production of crops and end-of-the-year livestock and poultry numbers for the state of Texas and for each county.

All of the estimates published by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service are based on the data provided by Texas farmers and ranchers. County Extension Agents, ASCS offices, and many other offices in agriculture. This cooperation provides the necessary data which is, in turn, returned to farmers and ranchers and others in the form of accurate estimates.

Sexual Abuse Seminar Dec. 10-11

A sexual abuse seminar will be held December 10 and 11 in the Lufkin Civic Center. The training seminar, sponsored jointly by East Texas Police Academy and the Texas Department of Human Resources, is designed to improve service delivery to sexual abusive families from TDHR staff, local law enforcement agencies, and prosecutors.

The objective of the seminar is to provide a method by which all agencies that deal with sexual abusive families can more effectively share information and resources. The implementation of the team effort in the investigation, adjudication, and follow-up services will improve the effectiveness of each agency.

Guest speakers for the seminar include Dr. Joan Hebel, Assistant Professor of Pediatrics at UT Medical Branch in Galveston; Dan Norton, Criminal Investigator with the District Attorney's office in Nacogdoches County; Bill McMillion, East Texas Police Academy; Lt. Doug Colard of the Tyler Police Department; Ernie Scholl, TDHR in Austin; Dr. Wayne Duehn, University of Texas at Arlington; and David Askins with the Investigations Division of the Texas Department of Human Resources.

Some topics to be discussed include Investigative Guidelines, the Texas Family Code Relating to Child Abuse or Neglect, the Physician's Role in Detection and Reporting of Physical Abuse and/or Neglect, and Alternative Treatment Programs.

Christmas Bird Count To Start

Big Thicket National Preserve, in cooperation with the Sabine Audubon Society, will conduct two annual bird counts. The selected dates are December 22 for the Beech Creek Count, and December 26 for the Turkey Creek Count. These censuses are part of the annual Christmas Bird Count, and are similar to 1,360 other counts taken from Hawaii to Labrador, and from Alaska to Venezuela, during the period December 20-January 4.

This year marks the 81st anniversary of the original Christmas Bird Count, taken on Christmas Day, 1900, by an intrepid group of strollers in 25 locations, mostly around major northeastern cities. Since then the annual event has grown from its original 25 to its present 1,360, and the total participants from 27 to an estimated 34,000. This year every Canadian province, every American state, many Central American countries, and numerous West Indies islands will submit their results to the National Audubon Society, which supervises the affair, and publishes all the counts in its journal, American Birds.

The count itself is undoubtedly the big birding event of the year, and for some groups, it means days and weeks of strategy, planning, and logistics in trying to amass, in a single calendar day, the biggest possible list of birds in the designated area. By tradition, that "count area" is a circle (which cannot overlap another count circle) of 15-mile diameter, or roughly 177 square miles.

Within this circle of land and water, count organizers attempt to field as many competent birders as they can, who are grouped into "parties," each with a section of the circle, or points on the map, which they alone will search. There is no limit to the number of participants; last year

There seems almost no limit, either, to the numbers of birds Christmas counters can find in their designated circles. Obviously, at the Christmas season, the warmer climates hold an enormous advantage, as do all counts near salt water. In 1979, the count in the Atlantic area of the Panama Canal Zone scored highest with 320 species; the highest U.S. counts in 1979 were Freeport, Texas, and San Diego, California, tied with 217. By contrast, Bethel, Alaska at 26 degrees F. temperature, found only 4 species. No less than 55 of 1,152 counts in the U.S. listed 150 or more species, almost all of them in the balmy climes of California, Texas, and Florida.

All this information will be gathered, edited, and published in the July 1981 issue of American Birds ($7.50 ppd), whose editors organize and run the annual "extravaganza." All counts are open to competent birders; for as a social, sporting, and competitive event, contact annual count sheds much light on the early winter distribution of different species of our native birds: where they

Blue Shelled Eggs No Different

COLLEGE STATION —Despite some claims, "blue shelled" eggs are no more nutritious and are no lower in cholesterol than ordinary white or brown shelled eggs. The myths originated mainly with the Araucana breed of chickens in Chile, says Dr. Dave Mellor, poultry marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Texas A&M University are usually more expensive to produce than commercial table eggs, notes Mellor. People are willing to pay a high price for these eggs that the Texas Egg Law requires that all eggs be graded, have a clean, sound shell and other universities, blue shelled eggs have always had as much or more cholesterol than commercial table eggs or any other egg for that matter, points out Mellor. Actually, in one Texas A&M test, Araucana, quail, pheasant and White Leghorn eggs all had the same cholesterol content based on amount of cholesterol per unit weight of egg. Blue shelled eggs are usually more expensive to produce than commercial table eggs, notes Mellor. People are willing to pay a high price for these eggs that the Texas Egg Law requires that all eggs be graded, have a clean, sound shell and
