Contracts Extended At Warren I.S.D. Meet

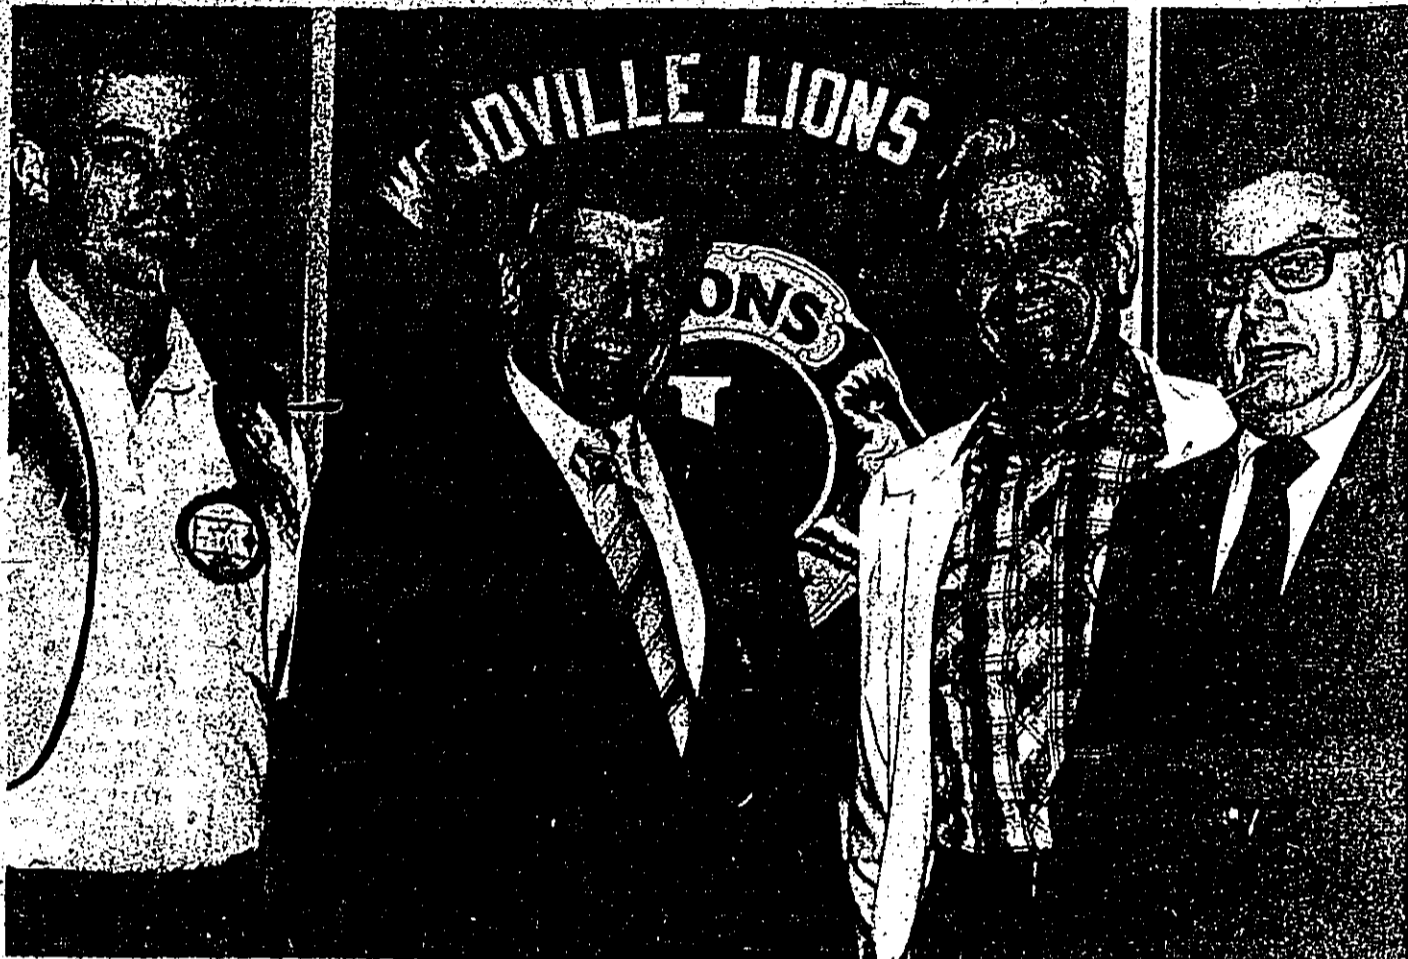

By Anna Beth Willis

The Warren School Board voted Tuesday night to extend the contracts of all four of the district's principals. Receiving one-year extensions were High School Principal Joe B. Woodland, Junior High School Principal C. J. Herliard and Fred Elementary School Principal Allen Mitchell. Warren Elementary Principal Neal Morgan received a two-year extension, thus putting him on the same basis as the other principals. Also receiving one-year extensions were Central Office Personnel LaVern Hutton, Gerthene Pierce, Ann Reese, Marguerite Duhon and Laurie Ann Ellis, Counselor Birdelle Baker and Curriculum Coordinator Dixie Weeks also received one-year extensions.

Marguerite Duhon presented a Homestead Exemption Report giving the Board several options to consider regarding the homestead exemptions. The Board will study these options and try to take some action on them at the next meeting. Mrs. Duhon reported that the people in the district have been very cooperative about going to Woodville to sign up for their homestead exemptions this year. The Board considered renewing the 10-year bond on the High School roof. Alvis Thigpen said that it was very unusual to have just a 10-year bond on a building and suggested that the specifications be examined regarding this. Luther Moya recommended we get the roof inspected before the March meeting and that we get a report on repairs needed and the cost of renewing the bond. Superintendent Hryhorchuk reported that the work on the building at Fred Elementary was completed. Board members Moya, Thigpen and Gregory had inspected the building and felt the work was satisfactory. The motion was approved to accept the building and pay the contractor in the amount of $24,051.00. Superintendent

Hryhorchuk presented a request by the Little League regarding putting a fence around the baseball field at Fred Elementary School. Board Member Kenneth Gregory explained that the fence will be temporary and will be removed after baseball season. He also said they would like to put signs requesting people to stay off the fence and fill in some holes in the field. The request was granted. Superintendent Hryhorchuk reported that the school had been audited by the Texas Education Agency and had received a very favorable report with no deficiencies. Hryhorchuk complimented Principal Woodland and the staff for the excellent job they had done with their record keeping. In other Board action, the budget was amended, the May meeting was changed to May 24, and the Substitute Teacher List was approved. Also receiving approval was the Student Council request to attend the Student Council Convention in Austin April 29 through May 1, 1982. The motion was approved that any summer courses taken by students for make-up work at Lufkin Learning Center be transferable to Warren High School provided Lufkin Learning Center meets the requirements of the Texas Education Agency. Following Executive Session, the Board accepted the resignation of Fred Elementary School teacher Carlton Stewart effective May 29, 1982. The March 24 Board Meeting will be held at Fred Elementary School.

Lawlis Seeks Re-election

Woodville Judge Monte D. Lawlis announced that he will seek re-election as Judge of the 1-A District Court. Lawlis has served as Judge of that court since September 1, 1977 following his appointment by the former Governor, Dolph Briscoe. He was elected to a full term in the 1978 elections.

MONTE LAWLIS

Judge Lawlis said, "I believe that I hold the office of Judge as a trust. I have sought to the best of my ability to serve the people in recognition of this trust. I ask for the opportunity to continue to serve. Each citizen is entitled to be treated equally and fairly by the law. This requires that those who serve in the Judiciary recognize that they must function within the law and not above it. They must conduct themselves at all times in a manner that promotes public confidence in the integrity and impartiality of the Judiciary. I believe that judges must be faithful to the law and maintain professional competence in it. Judges must be unwavering by partisan interest, public opinion or fear of criticism. Yet judges must be attuned to the reasonable demands of those they serve. A judge should recognize the limits of judicial power and the virtues of judicial restraint. I have done my best to carry these beliefs to the extension of this office. I desire that I will continue to administer this office in a fair and impartial way. Lawlis is 44 years old and is a resident of Jasper, Texas. Before his appointment as judge, Lawlis served as the Assistant District Attorney for the First Judicial District of Texas for approximately one and a half years. He was in the active practice of law for over 17 years. Three of those years were spent as a Judge Advocate in the United States Air Force. Lawlis has maintained his reserve status in the Air Force and was recently selected for promotion to Colonel. Judge Lawlis and his wife, Lynette and their two children, Tod and Terri, are members of the First Baptist church of Jasper where he serves as a deacon and adult Sunday School teacher. He is a graduate of Baylor University and Baylor Law School. He is a member of a special committee of the State Bar of Texas evaluating the tenure and selection of State Judges. He is a director in the Southeast Texas Hospice, an organization concerned with the care of terminally ill. He is a merit badge counselor for Boy Scouts. Lawlis has participated in various programs of continuing legal education offered by the State Bar, the Judicial Section of the State Bar and the Texas College of the Judiciary.

Alan Miller's T-WHEELER
 You know it hasn't been that long ago that you could buy one of the Big Three's automobiles as either a standard or deluxe model.

The latter had more chrome, better seat cushions and a radio. Pretty simple, you only had to decide if you liked General Motors, Ford or Chrysler.

It ain't that simple anymore. Now you can buy an "X" Buick, a "G" Buick or an "A" Buick. What's the difference? Now that's where it gets a little tricky. You see it takes about four years for the engineers to design a totally new car. In that four year...

That was a pretty good selling point for awhile. Out comes the "X" car to meet the demand. All of a sudden gasoline prices start down, pumps are open seven days a week. Gas station attendants have a smile on their face when you drive in. They clean your windshield. They check your oil. Happy days are here again. We get tired of riding around in these little bitty things, with seats so cramped our knees are under our chin.

Senator Lloyd Bentsen Watching Washington

Public opinion surveys indicate that, as the recession deepens, fear of unemployment is gradually becoming a major concern about inflation in the minds of the American people.
 But down the road, as we move further into the decade of the 1980s, the major economic concern will be the shortage of jobs for workers, especially skilled workers.
 It's ironic that, at a time when millions of Americans are losing their jobs, a minimum of 250,000 skilled labor jobs have gone begging each year since 1973.
 Labor Department projections for the period 1978-90 show there will be a yearly shortage of 37,500 industrial machinery repairmen, 28,000 computer operators, 21,300 machinists and 19,000 inspectors facing the most critical shortages during this period, the number of trained workers will fall short of demand by some 2.5 million.
 Our skilled labor shortage is forcing American firms to spend billions of dollars annually for stop-gap, in-house, on-the-job training. This shadow educational system is a patchwork quilt conceivably rivaling our entire higher education system in size.
 According to studies I've worked on with the Joint Economic Committee, robots will help ease the skilled labor shortage that our country faces. But increased use of robots will also cause some additional problems.
 Right now, Japan leads the world in the manufacture and use of robots—they have 11,000, over half of the world's supply. Our country has about 4,000 robots.
 Whether we like it or not, the robot revolution is coming. We have not counted over that we're being pulled into robot production because of competition from other countries.
 Robots can help to raise productivity, and do the dirty, dangerous, repetitive jobs. But we must also keep in mind that increased use of robots can be expected to have some harmful consequences and we must work to diminish their impact.
 We must, for example, make sure that there are enough skilled workers to build and maintain these robots. And we must by all means take steps to provide the vocational education, the training that will be needed by workers who are displaced from their jobs by robots.

Write A Letter To The Editor

The President's budget proposal for the next fiscal year reflects two basic commitments — to control and where possible reduce the amount of federal spending, and to increase our national defense capability to a level which will enable us to defend our vital interests in the world.

The defense portion of the fiscal year 1983 budget is undeniably large, with spending projected to be $21.9 billion. But its merit should not be judged merely on its size. The salidity of the budget proposal must be determined by the contribution it makes to our nation's ability to meet its defense needs, and the extent to which it increases the taxpayer's money efficiency.

Clearly our defense needs are great. We are forced to increase the level of spending for national defense now because we neglected that area in favor of domestic programs in past years. During that period, the Soviet Union increased its military investment. Thus, our capability relative to that of the Soviet Union deteriorated to an alarming degree. We began last year to redress these deficiencies, but must continue that effort this year and for the next few years.

Yet, even the magnitude of our needs does not give the military a blank check. Our dollars are finite, and our validated requirements are many. That means that we in Congress, and the Administration, have a special obligation to make certain that every dollar spent contributes the maximum amount possible to our defense.

The Defense Department has made an excellent start in this regard. During the past year, it has initiated a series of programs and actions to improve efficiency and management in the department.

These include a reform of the strategic planning, programming and budget process; reform of the process by which weapons systems are acquired; a major attack on fraud, waste and abuse; economies and efficiencies in a number of internal management operations; and creation of a Management Improvement Council.

Thus, the budget which has been presented to us reflects new efficiencies. It also reflects the Defense Department's determination to budget realistically to reflect actual cost and inflation factors. This approach in some cases provides higher figures now, but these amounts are much less likely to be subject to cost overruns later.

I am confident that the budget the Administration has sent to the Congress reflects its officials' best efforts to use each dollar wisely. However, Congress still has an obligation to scrutinize each aspect of the budget.

As the Armed Services Committee begins examining the defense request, we will not approve programs which are not cost-effective. This has been the case in past years, and we will be especially vigilant this year. We also will be looking very closely at the procedures and management systems embodied in the proposal, provide maximum efficiency.

On behalf of the committee, I already have requested the Government Accounting Office to audit several of the Defense Department's money-saving programs. I also have requested GAO to review compliance on cost overruns reports.

In addition, I have asked the GAO comptroller-general and his staff to provide further suggestion to the Armed Services Committee that will assist us in our scrutiny of the budget.

BAROMETER for the FUTURE

Webster says that a barometer is an instrument measuring the weight or pressure of the atmosphere, forecasting and measuring changes of weather and altitude.

Let God be true, a barometer on our lives would be like lukewarm, or fire for the Lord. The past we can not change. The future is up to us.

... what doth the Lord thy God require of thee, but to fear the Lord thy God, to walk in all his ways, and to love Him, and to serve the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul? ATTEND CHURCH REGULARLY

THE CHURCH IS GOD'S appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of his love for man and for his demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without that growing in the love of God, no government or society of any life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish.

The vitality of the Church, however, is not a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family, and participate in the Church because it fills the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free in life or in a life of God.

Social Security And The Budget

Very few issues are as important to so many millions of Americans as the fate of the Social Security system. Recognizing that, we devoted our September newsletter exclusively to Social Security, its problems and possible solutions.

Needless to say, this is a politically sensitive area, and we still have not come up with permanent solutions that will guarantee the solvency of the federal retirement program. I am still convinced, however, that Congress will never allow the system to go under.

An update since the September newsletter: fundamental reform is still imperative. Even if we allow interfund borrowing, expanding the Social Security Administration's authority to reallocate money from one trust fund to another, we can only buy a little extra time.

In the meantime, I have co-signed legislation which will help pave the way toward a long-term solution to the crisis.

One of the reasons that solution has been so difficult to find is the natural skepticism of various interests. The tax rate itself went up from 6.65 percent to the current 6.7 percent. FYI: I'm sure you are aware of the Social Security tax increase that became effective Jan. 1. For most of us, the tax now applies to income, up from $29,700 to $32,000.

If you are self-employed, your Social Security tax rate went from 8.3 percent to 9.35 percent this year, and the maximum tax you can pay jumped to $3,029.40.

Also, the maximum earnings a beneficiary under 65 can earn without losing benefits is now $4,440, and the idea never would have occurred to anyone because Social Security was an off-budget item separated from the operating budget. But in the federal trust fund consolidated receipts and outlays, our September newsletter was not to help him make the deficit from the Vietnam War seem smaller.

Ever so, the federal government has never been able to use Social Security revenues for its purposes. It is so important that we dispel any notions to the contrary that I am cosponsoring legislation to require the Social Security system from the unified budget.

When the Social Security system is dice again an entirely separate entity, we can perhaps, eliminate some of the suspicious various factions have toward each other and get down to the very necessary brass tacks of solving the system's financial problems.

For example, last year the Reagan Administration was proposing cuts in Social Security benefits in order to apply any savings toward the financial stability of the system. But critics of the idea feared that Office of Management and Budget Director David Stockman intended to use any savings in Social Security expenditures to make the budget deficit look better.

Until 1969, such an idea never would have occurred to anyone because Social Security

Overcrowding Jails In State A Major Problem

College Station-Jail overcrowding is becoming a major problem in Texas because of the state's growing population and a general increase in crime (50 percent since 1979), according to an official in jail standards.

That's why alternatives and options are needed to reduce this overcrowding, pointed out Bob Viterna, executive director of the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

Viterna discussed a number of pre-trial and post-trial alternatives to jailing at the recent 24th annual County Judges and Commissioners Conference.

He listed pre-trial alternatives as a central intake facility, a continuous magistrate service and daily bail call. "In many cases these procedures could eliminate incarceration of up to 40 percent of offenders and expand the bonding procedure.

Viterna also noted other alternatives to jailing, including field citations, release on own recognizance, third party release, conditional release, monitored release and supervised release.

These options keep people out of your jails and reduce your costs," he told the judges and commissioners. "And these are good ways to deal with people who have committed minor offenses. For instance, less than 4 percent of the people who are released on their own recognizance fail to show up for their trials. That's a pretty good record."

Viterna also called for elimination of incarceration for public intoxication. He said that this practice alone could reduce jail numbers by 25 percent or so.

He emphasized that mentally ill people have no business in jail.

To further relieve overcrowding in jails, the official suggested regular deliveries of convicted offenders to the Texas Department of Corrections, partial confinement such as weekend and work release sentences, probation, various treatment programs, halfway houses and community services work.

"To increase incarceration means constructing more and bigger jails, and that's expensive," emphasized Viterna.

Lufkin's Nell Hensley Cops $10,000 In Brookshire Bros Gold Giveaway Drawing

Nell Hensley of Lufkin is the winner of the $10,000 in the first Instant Gold Giveaway drawing at Brookshire Bros. and her name was drawn at the North Timberland store in Lufkin on Feb. 23, only a few blocks from where she lives. Mrs. Hensley first learned that she was the winner from a co-worker at the Lufkin Police Department when her name was announced over radio station KYKS during a remote broadcast from the store. The co-worker was even more excited than she was, said Mrs. Hensley, who immediately called the manager of the store who was trying to contact her at that very moment. With an escort of two city policemen in the car, Mrs. Hensley went to the store right away to give her a big round of applause, which, added to the big smile on her face when she arrived at the store with her escort, qualified for the drawing. Mrs. Hensley has been a customer at Brookshire Bros. for many years and her name was drawn at the very store where she had shopped for the drawing. She had two entries in the drawing. All the entries in the drawing were eligible for the second drawing. Mrs. Hensley always participated in the Brookshire Bros. but until now she has only received after Feb. 23. Mrs. Hensley said that she has always had a great deal of fun in the drawing. She has her plans for the money. When asked about the money, she said she will relax and see if her luck will hold out for a second time. She is still remaining for the second drawing.

County Government 'All Right'

College Station There are a lot of things that are good about county government, according to a professor who spends much of his time studying and teaching about the subject. The problem is that county officials are too modest and don't involve the news media enough in telling about the many good things they are doing.

That opinion came from Dr. Willard B. Stouffer, professor of political science at Southwest Texas State University, during an address at the recent 24th annual County Judges and Commissioners Conference here. Stouffer outlined seven major points that

1. County government is run by patient, dedicated and dependable people.
2. County government in Texas works.
3. It adapts to changing situations and conditions.
4. County government is run by professionals who take their jobs seriously.
5. County government is flexible to deal with issues and situations according to the needs of people.
6. It offers a wide range of services depending on needs and capabilities.
7. County government is only beginning to realize its vast potential. It must learn to deal with such major issues as urban sprawl and new federalism in the years ahead. As far as letting the public know about the good things that county government is involved in, Stouffer urged judges and commissioners to work closely with local newspapers and other media to report to the public about the valuable services they are performing. "We have not been doing a good job in telling people about county government," Stouffer said. "We need to show people that county government works. It's especially important to help young people understand county government. County officials are often so modest and polite that all the good things that are going on are a secret." Stouffer also downplayed the recent concern about the indictment of several county officials over the state. "When less than 4 percent of elected officials are indicted, we don't need to get hysterical," he emphasized. "We have no business judging a whole barrel of apples just because a few of them are bad." The annual conference for county judges and commissioners was sponsored by the V.G. Young Institute of County Government of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, a part of the Texas A&M University System.

Prevent Mold & Mildew

Moving your appliances? Take special care by cleaning and drying them to prevent mold and mildew from growing—and to keep grease from turning rancid, says Linda McCormack, a family resource management specialist. McCormack is with the home economic staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Trim Up Fashions

College Station Trim up your fashions expertly with just a few guidelines, says Alma Fonseca, a clothing specialist.

Trims are everywhere—on pants, skirts and jackets, she notes.

Fonseca is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Since many of today's new metallic trims are bulkier than most lace trims and cannot be applied easily by machine, overcast them in place with matching metallic thread or invisible thread, she recommends.

Apply cement glue to the ends of metallic trims to avoid raveling.

Then work the ends into appropriate seams by hand stitching for a professional finish.

Here are some ideas for using today's trims: Necklines and cuffs come alive with the application of wide pre-gathered lace, metallic braids, cording, piping or soutache (a type of braid).

Flat metallic trim can be woven through lace trims that have eyelet centers. Hemlines accented by several rows of metallic braid, cording, soutache or flat trim gain new attention with a border effect. Try creating a pattern by varying the spacing of the trims and mixing a few different styles.

You can transform a plain bodice front into a work of art with vertical rows of pre-gathered lace, metallic braids, rick-rack or soutache.

A bodice with a button placket can have lace on either side or rows of trim on both sides of the placket.

To outline yokes, stitch thinner cording rick-rack or metallic piping in the seam.

To outline the entire edge of a jacket, sweater or wrap you can use metallic piping, braid or cording. These are also great for outlining the edge of patch pockets and slant pockets or western pockets.

Sewing metallic trims by hand gives cleaning and fashion advantages. They can be easily removed before dry cleaning tarnishes and stains the garment, and they give your fashion versatility—as they'll come off as easily as you put them on.

Delicious Dieting

Dieting can be delicious, says Annette Reddell Hegen, a seafood consumer education specialist.

Try adding seafood—fish is a good one—to your next low-calorie diet plan.

Hegen is on the marine advisory staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

By using fish, you can plan a variety of meals for you and your family, the specialist adds.

Fish is a protein-packed food which provides maximum nutrition with only a few calories, she notes.

In fact, a three and one-half ounce serving of fish can have as few as 100 calories, she says.

Fish contains lots of protein which builds and replaces body tissues, Hegen adds.

In addition, the seafood has an array of vitamins and minerals that are necessary for proper functioning of the body, the specialist points out.
