Dear Editor:

A couple of weeks past you printed a very nice article regarding what a beautiful place our city is and how each citizen should try to keep it that way by cleaning up and improving the city and county.

At the same time our Chamber of Commerce had about the same kind of article and of course I thought they meant to try and do something about the clean-up deal but after two trips to the office I have decided that all they meant to do was write the letter and we were to do the work. I am enclosing some pictures for publication which were made last week, just after the clean-up campaign was started. I was standing inside the city limits when I made the pictures. You probably wonder why I have not reported this condition, or done something about it, but who am I to protest to or what can I do as I have reported-this-condition-to-the-county health officer twice and both times an inspector came out and assured me that the conditions he found could not exist in Tyler County and that he would see that it would be changed and it was for about a week. I called the City health officer twice and was told that she was interested only in places to eat. I should have invited her out for a cook-out on our patio and helped her brush the green flies away so she could eat. I have tried to get someone interested in the water polution problem as a small stream runs from the place, lake. Somehow I can't find the right one to complain to. So, Mr. Editor, you are my last, and only, hope. If you care to come out and investigate, take pictures, or whatever I will be glad to act as your

Spring Break Plans

I asked some students about their plans for Spring Break. The most common answer I received was, "Sleep" the week after Spring Break. A few I talked to were making plans for going to the beach. It looks like their plans most common answer I received was, "Sleep late and take it easy! Some students replied that they had to work during the break. For those of you planning to take it easy, think about the track and tennis players. They are going to the break it easy think about the track and tennis players. They are going to the beach. It looks like their plans are going to be ruined if it doesn't get warmer. A few people are planning on visiting with relatives. Several commented that if Lake Ivanhoe ever "thaws" they'll be out there water skiing. Whatever your plans for your one week break, have a good time and enjoy yourself.
