PROPOSED RESERVOIRS

DEEP EAST TEXAS

Lake Rockland Multipurpose: Water Supply, Recreation, Flood Cornol and Energy

Lake Rockland, unlike Lakes Livingston, Conroe and Houston, is designed as a multi-purpose lake.

multi-purpose lake.

According to Dan Jones of the Public Works Department of the City of Houston, the purpose of Lakes Houston. Conroc., and Livingston is to supply water to the city and industries of Houston. Lake Houston is regarded as a "large holding tank" for water from the other two lakes.

According to Jones, "Those bonds used for Lake Livingston were not dedicated to water skiing." The city of Houston is entitled to 902,000 acre-feel or 70 percent of the 1,750,000 acre-feel of water Lake Livingston holds. After completion of the Luce Bayou water canal in approximately 1992, the city of Houston will begin to draw that entitlement.

"Where Lake Livingston and the Trinity River Authority gets the water to keep Lake Livingston rull—ask them." Jones said in a Booster interview Monday. These impoundments are seen as sources of drinking water and industrial water. Jones said further that the City of Houston's current water needs have already pulled the water level Conroe lake down two feet.

Lake Rockland was conceived by the United States Arthy Corps of Engineers as a multi-purpose reservoir and not only as a source of water but as a way of controlling flood damage in the areas below the proposed dam. Also, this reservoir is seeman as a source of electric power, for area unities to use during times of please demands. Finally, Lake Rockland, as presently concluded, all be managed for the said of the potential recreational lass are seen as part of the lakes future.

Houston City Water Needs OK

TELL 'EM YOU SAW IT IN THE TYLER COUNTY BOOSTER October 21, 1982 Page 5-A

Planning through the year 2010 has pretty well taken care of city of Hous-ton water supply needs through the three lakes Conroe Livingston and Houston, according to Dan Jones, of the Houston Water Department in an interview at Houston City Hall Annex Monday. "In the future," Jones said,"the city of Houston will not be looking at creating new lakes. But will probably be looking for a third party supplier after the year 2010. If-the third party contacts us and says 'If we build it will you buy it?'....we would then probably be involved in some complicated, dis-

Beyond the year 2010, Jones suggested, that if you look at what water sources are north and east of the city. then they would be "covetously" looking at them.

'With Lake Houston, Conroe and Livingston," said Jones, "we are in good shape till 2010. It is difficult to project exactly what our growth will be. The city of Houston currently uses an average of 370 million gallons of water a day and it is projected to increase to 520 million gallons per day by the year 2000. But our growth rate has changed greatly over the past twenty years and we assume that our rate of growth over the next twenty years will not be what it is today. I may be greater or lesser."

For the next ten years or so, the Luce Bayou project which will enable the city of Houston to draw its "entitlement" of water which is 70 percent of the water of Lake Livingston is the major water project quenching the city of Houston's thirst. The Luce Bayou project is still in the acquisition of right-of-way stage and it will be 1992 before the city of Houston begins to draw water through the Luce Bayou

Small Business More than 600,000 Texans are out

Small Business is the comerstone of the American economy. Yet, the rate of bankrupcies is higher than any time during the past forty years. As one of the Senate's overseas and has encouraged the leading authorities on economi issues. Senator Bentsen helped new jobs. He helped save the Texas write the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981. Under this legislation cut in history. This will increase competitiveness in foreign trade and stimulate growth

Agriculture Senator Lloyd Bentsen know: first-hand the economic proble onfronting American agriculture le has fought to increase agriculture exports and to remov oreign trade barriers. He success ully prevented the elimination of the Rural Electrification Admintax relief for the next five years will istration, and won the fight to exceed $150 billion, the largest tax increase agricultural research which has helped make the American farmer the most productive in the world.

Reports

AUSTIN - In the last two reports, I have discussed the weaknesses of the Texas DWI laws and some changes that will probably be proposed in the next session of the Legislature. Even though many good ideas are presented to the Legislature, there is never any guarantee that they will become law. There is considerable opposition to mandatory sentences. Groups like the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) generally oppose changes in laws which might nfringe on the civil rights of violators. The ACLU avows to be as concerned with crime as the average citizen but is generally opposed to speedy conviction and to strict penalties which they argue do not deter crime. Without becoming embroiled in philosophical arguments, something must be done to keep drunken people from driving automobiles if we are to reduce the death toll on Texas highways. The people are the most powerful lobbyists in this state. Last session, we passed the strongest package of anti-crime, anti-drug and antipornography laws of any state in the nation. The people demanded passage of these laws, and they were passed in spite of the objection of various people demand passage of stronger DWI laws, they will be Without strong public support, efforts to strengthen the laws may not be successful.

·A criticism-I very often hear of our court system is that justice is not meted out in a standard manner. Similar crimes do not result in similar sentences. There is too much pleabargaining that results in criminal offenders being left on the street. I hear all of these criticisms frequently, but probably criticism of plea bargaining most often.

It is easy to criticize, but there are circumstances involved that make our criminal justice system cumbersome and slow. Most of our courts have a log iam of cases on their dockets. Most district attorneys do not have enough staff members to prepare good cases against people who are charged with crimes. District attorneys and assistant district attorneys are not compensated as well as attorneys in private practice. It's

These circumstances increase the practice of plea bargaining. If a D.A. can get a plea bargain, this results in a certain conviction that might not occur if the case went to trial. Less time is needed to prepare avease and the trial process is less expensive. If probation is granted, the offender is given another chance and society is spared the cost of supporting another prison inmate. If the probationer does not satisfy the terms of the probation, a revocation of probation is much simpler to achieve than proving guilt in an original trial.

Just as now, declining interest rates seemed to indicate a return to health for our economy. Then, in December of last year, the Federal Reserve Board abruptly halted the decline in interest rates by stopping the growth in our money supply. The Fed's action was puzzling. Had in-
