New School Program Costs Questioned

"My viewpoint on the $674,300 in added state aid dollars to the Wood-Independent School District is that I' femain skeptical," says Woodville School Superintendent Dorman Jackson, Monday afternoon.

"And before changing my mind, I'll have to know what the hidden costs of this will be."

"I expect the added money will be spent just meeting the requirehients of the reform. bill, ' Jackson said.

The new W.I.S.D. top man will attend a meeting in Austin July 28. where the requirements of the Reform Bill will be explained to admini-

Representative Allen Hightower the final bill grants Woodville School District an added $674,300 in state aid of which $212,500 is earmarked for teacher pay raises. Warren schools will receive $379,700 with $147,500 for teacher pay; Colmesneil $178,700 with $110,000 for teacher pay increase; Spurger $296,500 with $50,000 for teacher pay; and Chester with a $237,600 increase and

LIGHTING THE WAY - How many of you remember pierced-paper lamp shades? They were popular many years ago. Recently; they've been making a comeback and hands of local artist Bob Woods,

Bob says he got interested in the art form through a magazine article. After mastering the basic technique, he began adding special touches of his own. His lamps, which he des-cribes as cut and pierced, and sculptured, are now available at Dayspring Christian Center, 1103 West Bluff. To enhance the heirloom designs of his shades, Bob uses pewter, brass and ceramic bases. The shades themselves are made of heavy watercolor paper, which has been pierced with a needle, delicately painted and, in some cases, layered for a three dimen sional effect. Each is original and signed by the artist. One, in particular, appeals especially to Tyler County residents. The shade, which is off-white, features a fragile dogwood design. The centers of the flowers are tinted soft gold; the leaves, moss green. The lamp. stands approximately 12 inches high. BUILDING ON TRADITION - Sometime around 1750, according to historical
