Shopping With Diane

This week we've previewed a special once-a-year shopping opportunity at the home of Bob and Virgie Frazier. We've also visited a new Tyler County business. Let's go see.

SOMETHING WORTH REPEATING - After months of preparation, on Friday, October 18, the doors will swing open at Bob and Virgle Frazier's home and the 5th Annual Harvest Sale will begin. Indications are that this will be the biggest and best ever.

Over the past four years, the sale has earned a following. "We now have regular customers from Beaumont, Houston and Lufkin," says

Country decorating has never been bigger and this is one of the reasons the sale is a "must" with regular folk along with antique lovers and

This year the Frazier's will offer a Shaker seed display box of walnut and maple, dated near the turn of the century. They will also offer a Shaker

Other items include wooden grogery boxes, antique china, black tin, old silver and pewter, nostalgic linens and quiits. Assorted baskets, wooden decoys, a maple sugar bucket, an English ship latern and a coffee mill are also offered.

The Fraziers will again offer a selection of artistically crafted herbal and dried flower wreaths and arrangements. Many include herbs raised in the Frazier's own garden. All are delicately scented and ideal for holiday decorating or gift giving. Many include sea lavender, autumn mint, statice, broom, and one of the many varieties of East Texas goldenrod. The Harvest Sale begins Friday, October 18, and continues through Friday, October 25. Drive south on Highway 69/287 to Seneca Road. Turr

QUESTION

"Why are GSU's residential rates higher in Texas than in Louisiana? What is the company doing about it?"

ANSWER

 \square answer the last question first. I GSU filed a Louisiana rate case on Sept. 30 that proposes to increase Louisiana residential rates by 30 per cent in 1986 and another 16 percent in 1987. By 1987. Louisiana residents would be paying more for electricity than GSU's Texas customers.

5.5 percent increase for residential customers in 1986 and another 9.6 percent hike in the following year. But even the 5.5 percent increase will not be felt next summer if GSU is granted its request to eliminate the traditional seasonal rates. When the 5.5 percent increase is coupled with the abolition of the old seasonal rates, residential customers in Texas will not be paying any more next summer than they did this summer.

One reason that Louisiana's residential rates are lower is that the Public Service Commission makes Louisiana industry pick up part of the residential tab. Although there is a difference in residential rates between the two states, industrial rates are almost the same and, in some cases. Louisiana's are higher.

Another major reason for the residential rate difference has to do with the River Bend nuclear power plant. The rate cases mentioned earlier were filed because that plant is finished and about to begin low-power testing. While the plant was under construction. the Texas and Louisiana utility commissions took different approaches to handling carrying costs associated with plant construction. Texas residents have been paying some of the financing charges as the plant was being built a kind of "pay as you go" policy. Louisiana consumers, meanwhile, were paying virtually none of the carrying costs. The Texas approach is now paying off in the form of very modest
