TRUTH OR CREED?

3:3. when he says, "Can two walk together, except they be agreed?"

In Isalah 44:9-20, the prophet takes a blistering look at the silliness of a man who cuts a tree for a man who cuts a tree for finewood, and then uses wood from the same tree to create an idol god for his worship. The point is one which seems to be lost upon the religious world at large today as well.

Truth cannot be "de nominationalized" in the chosen and adhered to in its entirity. Truth cannot be "de nominationalized" in the dictionary sense of the word, else it would be no truth at all. It was much more convenient and certainly more political to bash industry for heir pollution misdemeanors. And for a lot of major cities, there was a river or an ocean front next door. Why worry? The federal tax dollars will pay for sewers. We don't have to spend our hard-carned taxes. We'll get it from

Well, we've got news for you up there . in Washington. Those of us who live in: mmunities in East Texas who have floated bond issues to pay for our sewage treatment systems think it's a raw deal that our tax dollars are being ised to clean up New York Harbor. Of course for the House and the Senate, it was a chance to rub Reagan's ose in it. Override a veto just so they could show him who's boss. Maybe we shouldn't be upset though: At least they weren't spending the money to build another marble edifice to office

Italian Chow Mein Noodles I invariably cook more spagnetti noodles than I need. "But finally, rocalling the legend that Marco Polo brought spagnetti to Italy from China, I improvised an excellent way to recycle the unsauced strands of pasts, I drain the unused noodles thoroughly and then french fry them. This makes the crispiest chow mein noodles I've ever had. And not only are those improvised Oriental noodles free (since I would have tossed out the leftover spaghetti from which they're madel, they re also tastier than the canned variety.

Support Hose We have a canister vacuum, the kind you pull around as you clean with the wand and bester bar. With all that tugging on the hose, it started to rupture (the hose is sold only as part of a replacement unit), and I tried various types of tape with poor results. Then I found the solution: the IV-inch tape athletes use to support their anklos and wrists. It makes a sturdy, long-lasting repair, and the color blends well with out off-white tank, An even better idea, would be to reinforce the hose before a split can occur. - Alvin G. Juggling Jugs

The cooling system in my car takes a mix of half permanent antifreeze and half water. I maintain the proper blend by having a premixed solution on hand when the radiator needs topping off. Every time I buy one gallon of antifreeze, I pour half of it into an empty one gallon jug and add a half-gallon of wate to each container. These are marked "50/50" and set in a safe place till needed

Free Laundry Service

Here in Minnesota we love our woolen blankets... especially the soft, decorative ones with the colorful stripes. But these lighter-colored covers need clean ing at times, and when we washed ours, even after following the recommended laundering instructions, they didn't have the original resilient feel we came to be so comfortable with. A winter snowstorm gave us the opportunity to try a different cleaning method altogether. We bung the blankets on our clothesline during the blizzard, and each came out beautifully clean, with the spring and feel of a new blanket. -Ed Everts, Battle Lake, Minnesoti

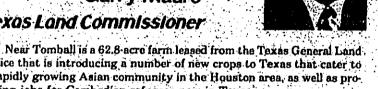

I've solved the problem of how to remove a shattered light bulb from the socket. Most people use pliers, but this tool tends to break more glass, and can be dangerous if you're not sure the electric power is off. I use a large cork that I wedge into the base of the bulb. A few twists and the base will be free. Another possibility, though not as safe, is to insert a new light bulb into the base of the broken one and unscrew it that way.

Office that is introducing a number of new crops to Texas that cater to a rapidly growing Asian community in the Houston area, as well as providing jobs for Cambodian refugees now in Texas. The two-year-old lease, arranged by State Rep. Senfronia Thompson. the Texas Agriculture Department and the Land Office, has provided jobs for Cambodian refugees, who were primarily farmers in their homeland. And the lease has put to work the surface of a state oil lease near Tomball. Called Cambodian Gardens, this non-profit corporate project is bringing new crops like lamon grass, bok choy, bitter melon, Chinese long beans, luffa, fuzzy squash, tamaric and finger hot peppers, among others, a dozencrops in all. They also grow a number of spices and seven varieties of mint. The farm is completely organic-no chemical fertilizers or pesticides are used-and all work is done by hand, although they have just obtained Houston's Asian population has grown from 51,000 in 1980 to an estimated 185,000; and demand for these crops has grown steadily. Cambodian Gardens delivered about 500 pounds a week last year and this year is delivering about 2,500 pounds of produce a week to Houston area grocery stores and one Chinese wholesaler on a year-round basis.

Leasing this land for the use of Cambodian refugees has served the people of the area well, providing jobs for Cambodians with more planned in the future, providing new crops for the state and bringing in money for the state from a little used place of state land.
