Atom Smasher May Be Key to Economic Recovery in Texas

By Governor William P. Clements, Jr.

AUSTIN-Words like oil, rig, tool pusher and gusher are familiar to most Texans: They are terms frequently heard in the Texas oil fields, the mainstay of our economy for much of the 20th cen-

Less familiar to Texans are words like quarks and leptons. They may well be he basic building blocks of the atom,and they may well be the foundation for +the revival of our sluggish Texas econ-

Texas is a leading contender for what well may be the largest research project for the remainder of this century. The name of the project—the Superconducting Supercollider—sounds as though it s straight out of the pages of a Buck Rogers script.

That research effort-prized by scientists and now supported by the Reagan administration—will, in brief, explore the basic components of the atom. The effort involves the construction of a circular, 52-mile-long underground tunnel. Atoms, propelled by gargantuan magnets, will be sent racing inside the tunnel at opposite directions and at a pace approaching the speed of light:

The atoms eventually will be steered on a collision path. Scientists hope that the particles that result from that collision will provide insights into the fundamental nature of matter, and perhaps even the origin of the universe.

Federal officials indicate the project will have an annual operating budget of $200 million, and that the research facility will employ up to 3,000 workers. The facility could cost as much as $6 million to construct, providing jobs for thousands of workers. The number of and colleges is mind-boggling.

Now that I have summarized the work of the project, let me summarize my feelings about it: Texas wants that project located in Texas. Texas needs that project located in Texas. Texas deserves that project.

I spent four days in Washington. D.C. during the latter part of Pebruary I met with President Reagan, Vice Presi dent George Bush, top Cabinet officers and leaders of our state's congressional delegation. At each meeting this important project was discussed.

They now know, I assure you, where I stand on this important subject. Texas, by all accounts, is one of the three frontrunners for the project. Unlike the other top contenders, our state does not have a major federal research facility. That point was hammered continually during my trip to the nation's capital.

The Texas National Research Laboratory Commission, established during the 1985 Legislature, will coordinate the search for Texas land suitable for this machine. The nine-member committee, which failed during 1986 to have a single productive session, is now being given new life, new membership and new instructions to work diligently. We, as Texans, need to pull together to offer the federal government an attractive package that will ensure our selection as the site for the Superconducting Supercollider.

It does not matter whether the research facility finds a home in West Texas, East Texas or elsewhere. What matters is that we get the project, and do the legwork necessary to see that we reach our goal.

No matter how well planned and manicured a garden or landscape, it can always be accentuated and improved by a bird bath, statue, bench, or other garden accessory. Besides adding aesthetic appeal, these features are often useful. Bird baths attract insect eating birds; benches can turn an uninviting

Always choose accessories that are appropriate for the particular garden setting. Remember that they are focal points and should enhance, not distract. Plants are often replaced each year; fixtures are permanent so select items that are well made and of good quality. Fixtures are especially attractive in small gardens where they easily catch the eye. They are also always appropriate in formal setting, whether Usually one carefully chosen and placed accessory

Birds feed on insects and are therefore, beneficial to the garden. One of the best ways to attract them there, especially in hot weather, is by providing water. And, one of the most attractive ways to provide water is in a bird bath.

Where cats are present, position these popular garden accessories in an open area. Otherwise, tuck them in a sheltered nook and surround them with lush, moisture-loving plants and ferns. For the small garden the average height should be 21/2

Keep bird baths spotlessly clean and full of fresh cool water. Shop for your bird bath at B & M Nursery is

Warren or at Wal-Mart in Woodville, Nesting sites, or bird houses, also encourage birds to the garden. Each kind of bird has specific nesting box requirements so make sure you select a box suitable for birds in your area

Bird houses are available at B & M Nursery in Feeding stations are another way to attract birds. Place them out of the reach of cats, squiffels, and other enemies. When secured to poles, position a collar of tin several feet above the ground. Keep the feeders stocked with sunflower and other seeds, sliced apple, and other favorite foods. Feeders are available at B & M Nursery in Warren. Freeman's True Value in Colmesneil and at Sullivans. Farmers Feed and Hardware, Whispering Pines Nursery, and Wal-Mart in Woodville.

Statues, Figures and Vases

Statues, either human or animal, add an imaginative and welcoming charm to the garden. They should be selected carefully to evoke a particular mood or theme. Place large figures at the end of a vista or near a wall. Place small figures, such as dogs, near entryways. Place cats on walls or terraces. Ducks and birds rest appropriately near pools or fountains.

Large vases can be permanent or movable. Use them to highlight a gate or pair them beside a doorway. Fill them with geraniums or other flowering annuals. Shop for garden sculpture at B & M Nursery in Warren. According to Mrs. Dorls Best, owner, several concrete sculptures are available including deer, dogs, cats, ducks, and birds. She also offers concrete flowers pots and planters.

Paths and Walkways

Paths and walks link parts of the garden together or make the garden more accessible to the house. They add to the overall design of the garden and accentuate the plants along their edges.

Paths and walks can be straight or curved or they can meander throughout the garden. What-ever their form they should be inviting.

In full sun where there is little traffic, grass makes an attractive walk. Paths can also be made from brick, flagstones, concrete, gravel, pine needles, or wood

Stepping stones are appropriate in formal or informal settings.
Place them in straight lines or let them curve and wind through the garden landscape. Stepping stones can be made from smooth a pebbles or concrete. They should ays have a smooth upper surface and should not be smaller than 1 to 1 1/2 feet fdiameter. Space the stones approximately 18 inches apart at regular intervals. Set them, this thin layer of sand underneath so they will be stable. Press soil around

My husband and I also are one of the many families who chose to move to the Woodville area, to finish raising our family and to retire. We built our home ourselves and love the beauty around us. We can not see where putting a Prison unit in Tyler County will de grade the beauty here. Look around you, the beauty of East Texas is all around, if one takes the time to look and see it. Beauty is as beauty was, but beauty does not bring new jobs to the area. Woodville NEEDS something to help it grow. help it grow.
As has been stated in other letters, without something to create jobs, the young people of Tyler County will go elsewhere to find jobs. After all, our future lies in the hands of our younger generation. With out them, we have no future for Woodville. Mr. & Mrs. Donald E. Railey

Dear Editor:

Those of us who reside in the Woodville area often feel that when illness strikes, we must hasten to Beaumont or Houston for expert medical care. Too often, we disregard the fact that, close at home, we have a facility of which few small towns can boasta fine hospital with expert doctors and a conscientious and caring staff.

During the recent illness of my mother, I could not have asked for better treatment for her or for a more concerned medical staff than I encountered at Tyler County Hospital. If I mentioned the names of the wonderful personnel who cared for my mother, I would surely miss one, so I will not attempt to do so-they were all simply wonderful to her and to those of us who ministered to her in her final hours. Dr. Hallmark was, as always, a wonderfully compassionate Christian doctor, and we are grateful to him, also.

While I am "handing our bouquets," the Riley
Funeral Home certainly deserves one as well.
Their service was expertly executed, with finesse and impeccable taste, and it was with great relief that I observed no evidence of the weeks of pain and suffering which my mother had endured before her passing. The staff at Riley's is to be commended for this highly exacting tast so expertly executed.

In this small town of Woodville, we are fortunate to have, at our disposal, the facilities which we have, in every area of endeavor. We, so often, fail to recognize this--or, if we do recognize it, we fall to let others know that we have many special things, here in Tyler County, which rival our neighboring Gourmet Peanut Butter The group offers seven line as: "Savory Cinna- varieties of candies and Kenn and I wish to thank not only the Tyler County Hospital, the Riley Funeral Home, and the Woodville Convalescent Center and their staffs, but, also, the many other people of the community who showed, in so many ways, that they cared.
