Shivers Library To Receive PBS Videos

Allan Shivers Library announces the expedited arrival of more than 100 hours of PBS programming, including: "American Playhouse," "Planet Earth," "Nova," "The Jewel in the Crown," and Alistair Cooke's "America," on VHS videocassettes.

This award-winning collection was a gift from the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation Library Video Classics Project—a nationwide project to make the tapes available to public libraries. Libraries from Portland, Maine, to Wasila, Alaska, are participating in the project.

Temple Awards Computer Grants

LUFKIN, TEXAS—The trustees of the T.L.L. Temple Foundation at their meeting on November 2, adopted a $1,500,000 computer assistance program for the purpose of aiding 88 school districts in East Texas in their efforts to comply with the computer instruction requirements mandated by the state of Texas.

The Foundation trustees said the school districts covered by the program are located in 18 counties including — Anderson, Angelina, Cherokee, Hardin, Houston, Jasper, Liberty, Nacogdoches, Newton, Orange, Panola, Polk, Rusk, Sabine, San Augustine, Shelby, Trinity and Tyler.

"This program," said Foundation Chairman Arthur Temple, "recognizes the critical need that our high school graduates be computer literate. Tomorrow's entry level jobs are increasingly skilled positions," he continued. "Those without solid computer knowledge will not be able to compete. Our study of this situation also indicates that good classroom computer instruction has greatly improved the learning skills of students.

The computer assistance program will provide funding for instructional hardware and software and such furnishings as might be required. Foundation assistance may, in some instances, cover up to 75 percent of the unfunded cost of the various computer projects to bring each district into compliance with state-mandated computer curriculum requirements.

Each of the 88 school districts will receive a notification letter from the Foundation concerning the program, along with instructions and forms for making an application for a grant under the program.

Each district's application will be evaluated on a case by case basis, in accordance with strict guidelines and criteria which have been developed after a six-month study by the Foundation of the need for computer assistance in the East Texas area.

Phillip Leach, Foundation trustee, said, "The trustees realize the Foundation cannot fund all of the computer requirements of all the school districts within the 18-county area covered by this program."

He further stated, "All applications will not be approved, and some applications will be only partially approved and others will be approved for amounts which could be more or less than the 75 percent participation ration we envision, simply because some school districts will have a much greater financial need than others. "However," he continued, "it is the hope of the trustees that the commitment of this $1,500,000 will enable many of these East Texas school districts to offer a better and improved computer curriculum than would otherwise be the case."

Implementation of the program is scheduled for December 1, 1988, with funding available through November 30, 1991, or until the $1,500,000 is fully utilized.

The T.L.L. Temple Foundation makes grants to public nonprofit organizations and government agencies primarily in the East Texas timber belt. It was established by members of the Temple family in honor of T.L.L. Temple, the founder of Southern Pine Lumber Company.

John E. Corbally, President of the Foundation, stated: "Until now, most libraries could usually afford only moderately priced feature films. Our support is making the best programs in the arts, the sciences, and the humanities available to everyone with a library card."

The growth of libraries circulating videocassettes, the number of VCRs in America's homes, and negotiations with distributors for a volume purchase at a discount made this undertaking feasible.

A program guide to describe the offerings will be available on videos, and all series include complete public performance rights allow in-library and community group showings.

Other titles included in the series are: "American Short Story," "Civilisation," "Life on Earth," "Great Performances," and "The Story of English."

PERSONAL & FAMILY accent on tyler county

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

I have just returned from a 5900 mile trip into 20 states. Everywhere gas was cheaper than here in Tyler County. Sometimes Super-unleaded was $0.899 per gallon.

Why that is with those states so far from refineries and Tyler County so close? The gas is better maybe? E. E. George

A LITTLE LIGHT PLEASE!

By Sue Hendrick

"PUSH BUTTON APPLIES... An apple a day keeps the doctor away..." was a popular saying when I was a child. Apples were considered to be the magical fruit of good health. Even the dessert of an apple pie became a symbol for America. Apples were often polished and then given to teachers. The apple was a symbol of wholesomeness and good will.

It is interesting how time can change things. In the beginning, Sin was brought into the world by the eating of an apple. Through the temptation of Adam and Eve, the simple bite of an apple cost them their lives. God sent them out of the Garden of Eden and into the world to die a mortal death. Because of the sweet taste of an apple, all of mankind inherited the Sins committed by Adam and Eve under an apple tree.

Recently, the Food and Drug Administration issued a warning about apples. They said that, "apples might cause cancer". This warning came about after a study of the chemicals that are used to grow apples. It appears that if an apple has a healthy shiny peeling, it might not be wise to eat it. I suppose we could say that if the apple looks tempting, then we should always avoid eating it.

However, there is another kind of temptation that is far more dangerous to mankind. It also promises to make us wise in the world. It is the temptation of "apple" of television. By pushing a button, mankind can now learn all about anything. What was once "forbidden fruit" is now welcome into every home. "After all", the viewers think to himself, "who will know?"

It is funny that Adam and Eve thought the same thing. Feeling that they were quite alone, they ate of the fruit of the tree of knowledge. The television viewer also thinks that no one will know what they are viewing in the privacy of their own home. And so, many programs are allowed for family viewing that should be considered obscene. The temptation simply proves to be too available.

By pushing a button, one can view any subject and in any detail. It is no doubt that the television viewer is more "educated" and "experienced" than ever before. However, as in the case of Adam and Eve, one must consider if the "fruit" that is offered on the television screen is really worth having. Through the temptation of some of the experiences that are available on the television screen, a person could pay a high price for remote control.

The Guessing Game

Earnest Faircloth wanted to know where Harry Hughes was in the October 27 football contest. Said he would have asked his 42 if Harry had been getting lost closer in every contest than Earnest but slipped up that week. Harry lied with Marvin Faircloth and two other people for first place last week but in the Dallas-New York tie breaker game they weren't even close. Marvin did beat Harry but they were not close. The winner had one score correct and only missed the other by one point. The four top people only missed one game each.

HERITAGE VILLAGE MUSEUM

WOODVILLE, TEXAS 75979

NOVEMBER 10, 1988

Good Ol' Days Bring Spirit To Fall Festival

What a wonderful glorious autumn day it was.

The Village looked great, filled with one of the largest crowds ever to ascend on this unique collection of early Tyler County history.

People were milling everywhere, participating in craft demonstrations, visiting with the many volunteers who kept the vintage shops and buildings alive with activity, taking in the sites, the sounds, and the tastes of yesterday.

Sounds of the Village

The Village sounded great. The Pink Prancers brought the Village stage to life at 11 a.m. with their colorful routines. At 1 p.m., Ruth Houston gathered her Woodville High School Boys Choir on the porch of the Collier Store to sing folk songs.

At 3 p.m. the newly formed Heritage Village Band gave a rousing debut performance, playing a medley of good old time marches, hoe-downs, and patriotic songs. Meanwhile, the Blacksmith Shop gave off its own special sounds, as a dozen or more budding blacksmiths, attending the second session of the Blacksmith Workshop, hammered away at the anvil, their pings at times adding to the rhythm section of the Village Band.

But, the surprise performance of the day occurred at 4 p.m. when Eldrich Creech started working that fiddle of his. First thing you know, Eva Duncan was doing a little dance. Then up came P.C. Bettis, who was quickly urged up on stage where he showed some really fine old mountain clogging. The crowd cried for more, and P.C. kicked off his boots and obliged.

Old Time Cookin' Too

The Village smelled great too. Throughout the day, Chuckwagon experts Dr. Booster Stevenson and Tooter Haynes kept the Village filled with the wonderful aroma of pinto beans a-cookin' on one fire, a cauldron of the best stew you ever did taste a-simmerin' on another, and a dutch oven filled with mouth water sour dough biscuits baking up plump and light on a third.

Folks lined up all day long for just a nibble. They were lined up too at the Tolar Cabin, where Clara Gallier and Darlene Robinson were welcoming visitors, much as the Tolar sisters did, giving out their cracklin' and sweet corn bread, black-eyed peas, individual pecan pies, spiced muffins and nut cake. You would have thought the cabin was still lived in, what with Ed Kirkland on the porch and Christine Gazzaway ready to give a helping hand.

Craft Demonstrations

Around the Village, visitors saw woodsman Neal Wright splitting cedar shingles by hand, Pat Barton, Bill Clark and their wives from Nacogdoches, demonstrating woodcrafting and fish net weaving, and Roscoe Buffington showing the folks how they used to make lye soap.

In front of the bandstand, folklorist Bill Brett sat down, not only to autograph his books of tales set in the Big Thicket, which are on sale in the Museum Store, but to demonstrate horse hair weaving, at which he is an expert. As he showed samples of his work, he invited on-lookers to try a hand at what resulted in a keepsake bookmark to take home with them.

And, on the mall through the Village, folks stopped to have their likenesses drawn in caricature by Beaumont artist Ken Ellis.

Village Adoptees Participate

Village adoptees John and Sherrill Reed and their children were on hand at the Apothecary Shop, Debbie Hennigan was at the Sheriff's Office, Tillman Johnson at the Post Office, Grover Dies and Ewell Wood at the Little Red School House, Dr. Gayle and Peggy Burton at the Physician's Office, the Starks, the Beards and Joseph Gerriets at the Seamstress Shop and Paul Walker and his grandson, Lee Phipps, at the Dinner Bell Shop.

And Junior Historians, David Morse, Laura Best and Heather Clamon were everywhere, giving a group of Boy Scouts from Beaumont a tour of the Village, manning the Collier Store, answering questions, running errands and generally doing so well at what they trained for this past summer.

Judge Regales Visitors

And, taller than life and twice as entertaining, was retired Woodville City

Noted Regional Author Bill Brett gives a young village visitor pointers on braiding horsehair quirts.

Judge T.E. Phillips, flashing his badge and tipping his high hat, as he regaled visitors with stories of his days with the Border Patrol when he was in many a face to face gun battle, followed spies to South America and was involved in the arrest of Bonnie and Clyde. All in all it was a wonderfully exciting day, filled with people enjoying a glimpse of what yesterday was really all about, as seen through the eyes of Heritage Village Museum.

Join The Tyler County Heritage Society

Since the Tyler County Heritage Society represents the past and the future of the entire county, doesn't it only seem right that every citizen of that county should be a voting, participating, active dues-paying member?

Sure it does, but it just doesn't seem to be working out that way.

But the Membership Committee of the Heritage Society is working on it, the goal being to double the society's membership prior to the annual meeting in January.

Individual memberships are just $10 a year; family memberships $20, and they allow free entrance to Heritage Village, whenever you bring your guests out to show them how your county is preserving its precious heritage.

So, next time you say "I've been meaning to pay my dues and become a member of the Tyler County Heritage Society", don't just say it, do it. Make out your check and mail it to the Tyler County Heritage Society, PO Box 888, Woodville, TX 75979.

Or better yet, drop your check off at Heritage Village and see what the Society is doing on your behalf, and ask how you can help by giving some of your time, your ideas, your talent as well as your dollars.

Dear Editor,
The 17th Annual Texas Folklife Festival was really one for the record books, with excellent weather, our second biggest crowd ever, and even more to see and do than usual.

Announcements and coverage provided by the WOODSMAN contributed greatly to the Festival's success, and we appreciate your efforts to inform the people of your community about this annual celebration of Texas history and heritage.

Now that the 1988 Festival is behind us, we are moving on to others projects. Through December 11 we will be exhibiting "Sweden and America 1638-1988: A History Celebrated," which documents the contributions Swedish immigrants and Swedish Americans have made to this country and explores the relationship between Sweden and America.

This will be our last exhibit for the year, as we will close our doors January 2 for six weeks to complete the renovations and remodeling begun this year.

We are scheduled to reopen February 14. Announcements about our six-week closure, and a schedule for the reopening and next year's exhibits will follow soon.

Thank you again for your continued support of the Institute of Texas Cultures and the Texas Folklife Festival.

Please do not hesitate to call or write if we can be of any assistance in the future. We welcome your questions and suggestions and are happy to help in any way possible.

Cordially,

NOVA RAY HARRISON

Croonin' With Nova— Strummin' At The Village

Nova Ray Harrison has come home again, home to the Woodville of her childhood, bringing with her the fruits and the experiences of the past 20 years, during which she expanded on the guitar lessons received from her late father, teaching, teaching and performing.

A singer first, who learned to accompany herself on the guitar, Nova of one time hosted her own radio shows in Oklahoma and Arkansas. In Illinois she operated a guitar shop, gave guitar lessons and performed for civic organizations, private parties and benefits.

In Woodville, those of the area who are interested in her album "Love and Sensation" were invited to a concert.

And, during all this time, Nova, always playing, recording, teaching, Nova Ray Harrison, the greatest 20-year-old

J.D. Michaux, following her lead as a student in music composition at the Berkley School of Music in Boston and 22-year-old William Michaux is studying to become an aerospace engineer at the University of Texas.

During the week, Nova Ray is employed as a health inspector for the City of Woodville, but, on weekends, Nova Ray is at Heritage Village Museum, singing, her songs, mostly country and folk, playing her guitar and getting ready to teach again.

Beginning in January, Nova will start a 10-week course in guitar for beginners, classes to be determined later. Cost for the course will be $30. Interested persons should call Heritage Village at 283-2272 and speak to the manager, Marjorie Schuler.

Heritage Village Is Available For Commercials

(At A Reasonable Fee, Of Course)

Lights. Camera. Action. Might sound a bit theatrical, but there's a lot of that kind of action still going on about us, especially for television commercials.

And, always, the agencies who create these mini movies of 30 seconds or less are on the look out for a unique setting, quite often one with historic overtones. Well, where better than Heritage Village?

Many a movie, a commercial and an in-house training film has been shot at The Village in the past. But, unfortunately, it has been a long time, a long time companies that decide such things have thought to check out the film and video taping possibilities of this unique collection of pioneer East Texas buildings and artifacts.

If you're looking for such a place, as a representative of an advertising agency, television station or company, which produces its own promotion pieces, give Heritage Village a call.

Manager Marjorie Schultz will be happy to make The Village available to your camera crews and work with you in every way possible.

For more information on using Heritage Village as a setting for your next film or video tape project, call Mrs. Schultz at (409) 283-2272 or write Heritage Village, P.O. Box 888, Woodville, Texas 75797.

Folk Artist Provides Unique Gifts At Store

Getting a jump on Christmas, Erlene McManis of Spurger brought the first of her unique hand-painted decorative items to the Village Museum Store with a promise of more to help you with your own holiday decorating.

A native of Port Arthur where she was trained as a beautician, Erlene fell in love with folk art some 15 years ago when she and her husband were living in League City, south of Houston.

After taking all of the classes she could and finding a market for her art, she turned to teaching.

Since moving to Tyler County nine years ago, she has continued teaching and painting just about anything she can get her hands on, from mail boxes to bird houses, creating one of a kind jewelry, t-shirts, sweat shirts and a variety of novelty items, all of which are sold exclusively at the Village Museum Store.

Pecans And The Holidays

Serious cooks know it's not coincidence that the beginning of the holiday season and the pecan season coincide. No one ingredient is more essential to foods we in the South associate with good eating and good times.

Mammie Billingsley's Persimmon Cookies

1 cup sugar 1/2 tsp. nutmeg
1/2 cup shortening 1 tsp. soda
1 egg 1/2 tsp. salt
2 cups flour 1 cup persimmon pulp
1 tsp. cinnamon 1 cup chopped nuts

Cream shortening and sugar. Add egg. Beat well. Add persimmon, flour, salt, soda and spices. Add nuts and raisins. Mix well. Dough will be thin. Drop by teaspoon on greased cookie sheet. Bake at 300 degrees about 15 minutes or until done.

Joan Shield's Spicy Fondant Coating

chopped; 1 lb. dates, chopped; 1 lb. white raisins.

Pole Barn Finds A Home At Village Museum

By Dee Gibson

"In the good ole days," a term that really means selective memory recall of the past, is not a completely true description of the pioneer days in East Texas.

Did you ever wonder how our ancestors managed to survive the hardships of the 1800's as they settled East-Texas? How did great granddad build a house or barn without numbered, step-by-step instructions? What kind of tools did he use and where did he buy them without a Sullivan's Hardware or how did he keep them sharp without Durham's Saw Shop? And however did he manage without guarantees and insurance to replace defective tools or cover crop failure?

Let us take a trip back in time to the summer of 1850 at Peachtree Village and explore some "good ole days" as we "observe" John T. Kirby building a barn.

He and his wife and three children arrive and claim a few acres near a settlement of Alabama Indians located in the northwest corner of Tyler County called Peachtree Village. The village contains a trading post, saloon, post office, grist mill, school, and church. A blacksmith shop and cotton gin are being built as the population continues to increase. Some of the earlier settlers neighboring the Kirby place include Dr. S.P. Wilson & family, the Cauble & Burch families, the James Barnes family, the McQueens, and the Priests.

The land gently rolls and is covered with trees of many kinds, hickory, oak, walnut, cypress, and a variety of pines. The soil is rich but must be cleared of tangled vines and other vegetation and stones. A creek runs near the farm providing water.

The whole family shares the work. Kirby is anxious to start building the barn. He has selected a site after considering weather elements such as water runoff and prevailing winds.

The children begin clearing the area and stacking stones as Kirby and his wife clear off undergrowth and trees.

Now he is ready to begin the actual building process.

Kirby selects pine timber and fells the trees with a cross-cut saw and axe. The bark must be peeled so resin can seep out and seal exposed wood like a varnish.

Using a team of oxen, the weathered logs are skidded into position and stones are stacked and fitted to form the foundation. In later years and moves, squared chunks of "rich lighter pine" were used for foundation blocks.

A "pig pen" or alternating method is used for tying the logs using a broadaxe to flatten the sides. A handaxe is used to saddle notch ends for a close fit.

By building four solid walls and then cutting openings, Kirby has a much stronger barn.

Having decided to build a loft with a very wide 10 foot overhang on each side and a 3 foot overhang on each end, Kirby hitches up the oxen with poles and ropes and skids the upper timbers into position.

Rough-sawed timber is used to construct the rafters and Kirby uses an auger to make holes for the wooden pegs which hold them together.

Using bolts of cypress and a froe and mallet, shakes are hand-riven to cover the gable roof.

Inside, the flooring is made of rough hewed 2 x heavies. Square nails are used sparingly since they are hand-made by the blacksmith and expensive. Half of the bottom floor is wooden while the other half is earthen.

The "little log barn," complete and ready for use will protect the wagon and animals from extreme and weather conditions.

A cypress tree, apparently struck by lightning is just right for a feed trough. It is skidded to the barn under one side and hollowed out using an axe and adze. Finished, it measures thirty feet long and three feet in diameter at the butt end.

Taking a time jump to the present, we meet Harold Lewis who lived about one mile from the Kirby farm in the early 1900's. As a youngster, he enjoyed riding by horseback to visit the Kirby family. Lewis recalls watching as many as 40 mules, in from the fields, snub their noses at the loose corn because mules like their corn on the cob. Marks are still visible where the mules gnawed on the side of the cypress trough. The split rail fence around the barnyard corralled the animals when not working.

Lewis recalls fodder stored in the loft while corn and grain were stored below. All varieties of potatoes and beans were grown for food as well as squash and pumpkins. Peanuts were grown for hog feed. The major cash crop was cotton until the early 1900's. Tobacco was grown for personal use.

Rodeos were a popular and exciting social event at the village. After crops were in and chores done, everyone gathered for the fun and thrills much as today. Even the Indians living nearby participated.

John T. Kirby and wife added to their family four more children in the 1850's. The youngest, born November, 1860, was named John Henry. He grew up at Peachtree and attended school in the summer. From home to Woodville and further education; then on to opportunities unlimited, John Henry excelled in the lumber business. He gradually added many acres to his parents meager homestead until they numbered 5000. The "big barn" was built in the 1930's which over-shadowed the original "little log barn".

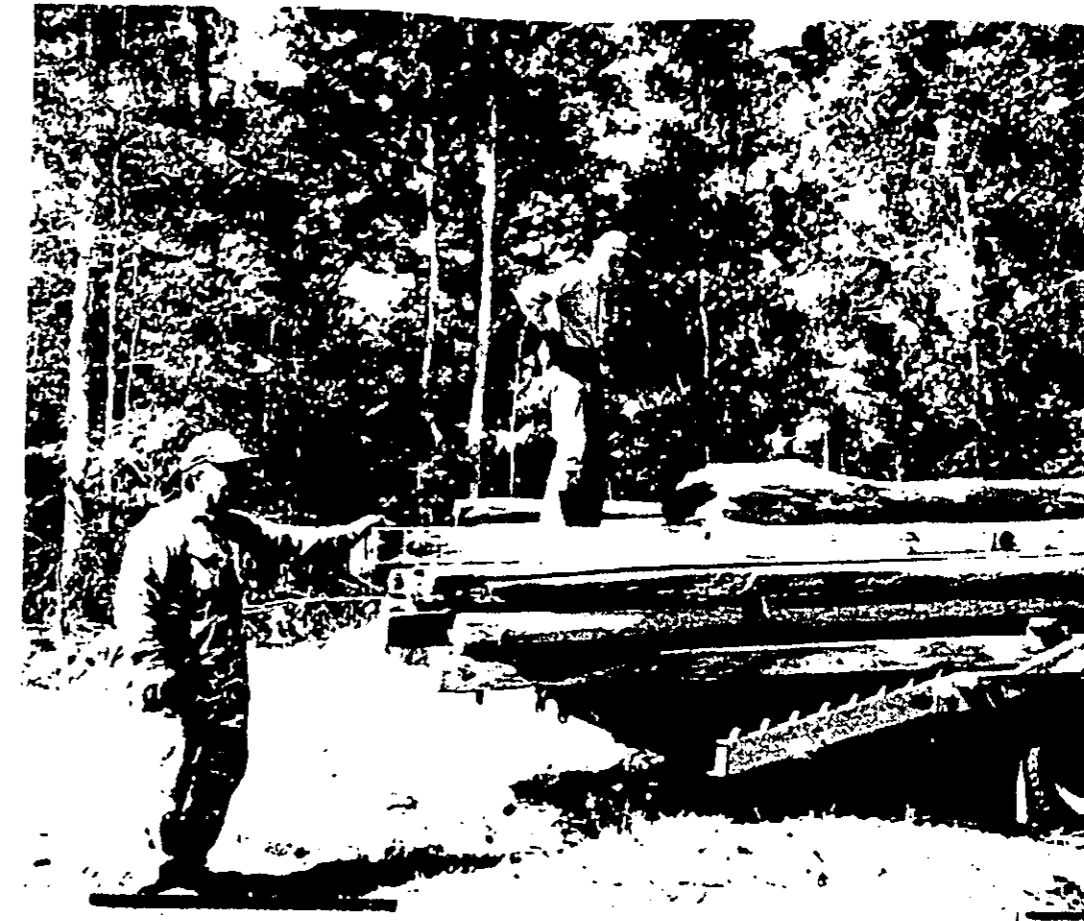

Years have come and gone with the deed to the great plantation changing owners several times. The "little log barn" has sometimes been used for various purposes but more often neglected. Then one day in January, 1988, negotiations and plans began to relocate the old barn to Heritage Village located west of Woodville.

Retired engineers Herb Fouts and Jack Whitmeyer with Gene Toby began work and sketches and photos were made. Each log and board was numbered and the "little log barn" which took days to build by the hands of John Henry Kirby in 1850 was quickly dismantled in one day in October, 1988, by the use of a front loader.

County Commissioner Pete Barnes provided equipment and personnel for the dismantling and the materials were transported by low-boy to Heritage Village by C.C. "Sonny" Hicks and Bob Payne. Ed Cotton, a village blacksmith, and Carl Mueller also assisted in the unloading at the village. Land for a new access road to the site was donated by Louisiana-Pacific.

A few replacement logs have been cut with chain saw and transported to the new barn location by Robert Greenwood.

Heritage Village Museum Features a Unique Collection of Pioneer Artifacts

1.—PARKING LOT for visitors to Heritage Village & Museum Store, Pickett House and Big Woods Nature Trails.

2.—PICKETT HOUSE: Country Cooking served Boarding House style in the quaint atmosphere of an old time school house. Open daily March thru. August from 11 am to 8 pm.

3.—MUSEUM STORE: Entrance to The Village is through the Village Museum Store, where you'll find a unique collection of gift items in keeping with the historical, educational and ecological themes presented in The Village.

4.—JEWELRY SHOP: Custom jewelry designer John Killam will demonstrate his artistry in silver, karat gold, precious and semi-precious stone to Village visitors during regular hours. He will also be open to the general public by appointment through a separate entrance from the parking lot.

5.—JUSTICE OF THE PEACE: In the old days, the Justice of the Peace held a very important post. His duties included assaying minerals as well as performing marriage ceremonies and handing out punishment to criminals. The JP office is housed in a building, donated by the Bert Hensarling family of Woodville, which once stood behind the old Raney Hotel, serving at various times as a drummer's showroom and a hotel laundry.

6.—BAND STAND: This is a miniature copy of the old band stand that once graced the square of almost every small town. Here, townspeople gathered on a summer's evening to hear the local band perform or a politician test his oratorical skills. Next to the bandstand is Woodville's first piece of fire-fighting equipment, donated by the Woodville Volunteer Fire Department. It was chemical in action and pulled by the fire fighters themselves.

7.—PAWN SHOP: The old-time mechanical money banks in the window only hint at the artifacts within. On the right is a wagon pantry, the forerunner of the Chuck Wagon, which has spaces for flour, sugar, salt, coffee, just about everything a family needed moving West. The stage coach money box and old-time hard-hat diving equipment are among the hundreds of interesting objects in the shop.

8.—TEXAS DINNER BELLS: In the old days, a blacksmith might not have been able to cast a bell, but he could always forge a triangle. Consequently, the triangle rang out across pioneer lands both as an alarm and as a "Come and git it" at chow time. Once again, these reminders of a past era are being made and sold at Heritage Village. They are also being wholesaled to other tourist attractions throughout the state.

9.—POST OFFICE: Willie Reinhardt was the last postmaster of this authentic Post Office, which was moved from Pluck, Texas, once located off Hwy. 287 near Corrigan. Of special interest is the Spencerian script on the wall, a common style of writing in the old days, using a split-nib pen, that is impossible to duplicate with today's ball point pen.

10.—BARBER SHOP: If you had stopped in at this Barber Shop in 1888, you would have had your choice of two chairs, both of which could be laid back and revolved, but not raised and lowered. You could have enjoyed looking at the pin-up girls decorating the walls - these are originals from old Coca Cola calendars - and, if you really thought it was necessary, you could have gone a step farther than a shave and a haircut and taken a bath in the 1836 copper tub in the back room, which once belonged to a famous Jefferson, Texas, blacksmith, and was donated to the Village by Arledge Coleman.

11.—SHERIFF'S OFFICE AND JAIL: Every town had one of these, of course, but this one was built especially for children and picture taking. You're even invited to write your name on the wall.

12.—BLACKSMITH SHOP: This shop, donated by the Milton Durhams of Woodville, was in use in Colmesneil, Texas, in the late 1800's. Today, it is one of the major attractions in The Village, as one of the three active Village Blacksmiths can most always be seen, working at the forge and anvil to create an array of decorative items, which can be purchased in the Museum Store. Heading the group is Charles Schultz, a third generation blacksmith with a masters degree in metallurgy. Joining him are Ed Cotten, whose entire life revolves around his work as a smithy and teacher, and Mark Hester, who shoes horses for a living and blacksmiths for the fun of it.

13.—WAGON SHED, CANE GRINDER AND SYRUP MILL: By the walkway behind the shed, the cane grinder and syrup mill bring back sweet memories of cane being fed into the mill, the juice being extracted, as a horse went around and around turning the grinders, then the slow process of cooking it just right to produce a delectable syrup. The Wagon Shed was a catch-all for everything from horse collars to hen's nests. The wagon, donated by the J. Wood Fains, was used for freight from Beaumont to Woodville. The buggy, donated by Allan Shivers, boasted a luggage rack and a lantern that could be carried or hung on the back.

14.—TOLAR KITCHEN: Built by Robert Tolar as his first home in Tyler County in 1866 and donated by his ancestors, the Tolar Kitchen is the only structure in The Village to be awarded the medallion by the Texas Historical Commission. Except for the chimney, the kitchen was moved intact from Hillister, where the Tolar family used the kitchen into the 1950's, providing sumptuous meals, prepared over the open fire, for any traveler who stopped along the old road from Woodville to Beaumont. The bedroom, featuring an antique bed with rope springs, shuck mattress and feather mattress, was used as a pantry after the main house was built. The quilt chest is handmade with no nails in it and, of course, every bedroom had a chamber-pot for those cold winter nights. The Smoke Room off the back porch was used to store meats and to prepare foods for canning.

15.—BIG HOUSE: Here you'll find a variety of larger articles: washing machines such as the old hand operated 'rocker' which sloshed clothes back and forth, an antique loom with string heddles and four harnesses, set up by Catherine Morony of Woodville, a spinning wheel donated by Dr. Howell Grimes, and a complete 1886 newspaper print shop, donated by the Garner and Watson families of Florence, Texas, where the Florence Vidette was once hand set and run on the old flat bed press.

16.—RAILROAD STATION: The materials for the depot came from the 1890 Hillister, Texas, Station. Most of the artifacts inside were donated by Millard F. Martin of Houston, others by C. H. Hartwell and J. A. Summers. The loop hanging on the wall held the Order Stick. When a train came through without stopping, the station manager would hold out the Order Stick so the conductor could pick up his orders without slowing down. These orders would provide information such as any work being done on the tracks before the next station, such information coming in over the 'wireless.' Any outgoing mail would also be attached to this order stick. Incoming mail was thrown onto the station platform from the moving train. The colors of the railroad lanterns on display in the Museum Shop speak for themselves, except that a red lantern also meant 'hands off,' and that one could not be touched until the lantern was removed.

17.—Z.C. COLLIER STORE: Much of the original materials and furnishings are included in this reconstruction of the Collier store, which was built in Town Bluff in 1863 by Zacharia Cowart Collier and catered to the needs of travelers up and down the Neches as well as to the growing number of families crossing the river into Tyler County by way of the Collier Ferry. This historic general store, which also served as post office, bank and pharmacy was rebuilt at Heritage Village by Virginia Collier Howell and her husband, Charles A. Howell, as a tribute to her grandfather, Mrs. B.C. Richardson, a member of the Barlow family who purchased the store from the Colliers, contributed many artifacts, as did David Collier of Woodville, and Joseph Barlow, who lives on the site originally occupied by the Collier home, donated timbers and bricks that were part of the original store.

18.—COTTON GIN: The principle of this miniature cotton gin, donated by the Jerry Tolar family of Doucette, is the same as a large one. Only the purpose is different, and at one time it was an important local industry. Cotton filled mattresses, which had become soiled and lumpy, were brought to the company, which owned this machine, to have them cleaned. The cotton would be removed, reginned to clean it and make it soft again, then covered again with new ticking.

The Seed Separating Machine hanging on the wall was used to separate various sizes of grain or to cleanse corn, beans or what-have-you from dirt before sending it to market.

19.—APOTHECARY: Here, in an old time drugstore without the extras, only prescriptions and home remedy materials were sold. The paneling on the left was contributed by the Woodville Methodist Church, and the glass for the prescription counter, from a drug store in Rockland, was donated by the late Dr. and Mrs. Kuebler of Port Arthur. The 'electric shock' machine, which was supposed to cure everything, actually was a quack remedy and did nothing at all.

20.—DOCTOR'S OFFICE: A tribute to the many doctors, who have contributed to the health and welfare of Tyler County residents over the past 130 years or more, this typical doctor's office is a composite collection of many, including Dr. John Shivers of Woodville and Dr. N. E. Laidacker of China. The Woodville Medical Community, headed by Dr. Gayle Burton, is making plans to renovate this office.

21.—CHAIR FACTORY: Until 1964, this chair factory was in operation at Burkeville by Dallas Miller, who was not only ingenious in fabricating machinery but was considered the best chair maker in this part of the country. To be noted are the lathe on which Mr. Miller turned the chair legs, the hole puncher for his hides and the drying racks for his chair backs. The factory, which Mr. Miller built almost entirely of wood, was donated to Heritage Village by members of his family.

22.—MUSIC SHOP: Much of the musical history memorabilia to be found in this shop came from the Bubba Ross collection. Old sheet music was contributed by the Fred Bennett family. One of the very first phonographs can be seen in the window.

23.—SEAMSTRESS SHOP: Many a young woman, who learned to sew a fine seam at her mother's knee, found that a seamstress shop was a genteel business by which to make a living. In this collection you'll find many of the tools of the trade, including old pattern books, sewing machines and trimming materials.

24.—LEATHER SHOP: Whether you needed a fine leather saddle, a pair of leather boots or a pair of ladies leather shoes, you would have looked for a shop such as this. The machine used was made especially for leather, and the leather maker made use of his scraps for belts and whips and other small goods.

25.—LITTLE RED SCHOOL HOUSE: This is a typical one-room school, where all grades were taught by one teacher. The plantation bell outside was for calling students to class.

26.—THE BIG WOODS: This 11.5 acres of woods and hiking trails, recently donated by Jack and Mamie Whitmeyer of Colmesneil, offers all the delights of the Big Thicket on a smaller scale to Heritage Village and Pickett House visitors.

Trail Of Tears Lives On in Woodville

By John Yearwood

WOODVILLE—Five generations and one hundred and fifty years have not dimmed the memory of the infamous Cherokee Trail of Tears for a Woodville woman.

Ruth Stanford is the great great granddaughter of Major Ridge, the man who led the Cherokee Nation to swap its ancestral lands in Georgia for new federal territories in Oklahoma and Arkansas. Those troubled times have lived on in family lore, she says, including tales of the assassination of Ridge and other male members of his family, after the Indians arrived in the new territories, and the subsequent survival of Ridge's daughter to become one of the founding pioneers of Smith's Point in Chambers County, Texas, and a Nineteenth Century woman of property.

Among the first to emigrate to the new territories west of the Mississippi, the Ridge family avoided the tragedy that lay in wait for much of the Cherokee Nation the following year when U.S. Calvary put 16,000 men, women and children out of their homes on a forced march to the new territories.

The year was 1838, and more than 4,000 Indians—over 25 percent—died of hardship, exposure and starvation along the route that year.

But Major Ridge had known that a tragedy of this sort or worse had lain in wait for his people if they stayed in Georgia. According to Stanford's family lore, collected in a monograph titled A Brief Biography of the Indian Princess Sarah Ridge, "There were incessant demands for the Indian Lands from the white settlers, culminating in Georgia's lottery of the Cherokee homes." Because the traditional lands were fertile, Georgia's settlers wanted them for their own, and Georgia's courts and local governments had refused to defend the Cherokee claims.

As time went on, Ridge became more and more clearly aware that his people could not stay on. To remain would be to face murder and dispossession. To remove into western territories would be to have a chance to live at peace. To Ridge the choice was clear. The Cherokee would have to move.

Yet Ridge was also keenly aware that his own fate hung in the balance. Once dispossessed of their traditional lands for ever, there were Cherokee who would never forgive the man who organized the swap. He knew he was sacrificing his own life, therefore, when he signed the Treaty of New Echota.

That treaty, signed by elected Indians at the end of 1835 and ratified by the U.S. Senate in May, 1836, exchanged millions of acres of unsettled land in the Oklahoma and Arkansas territories for the cultivated and settled land of the Cherokee. It also paid the Cherokee damages and gave to each family a moving expense. The U.S. Calvary was assigned to assist in the move, by offering protection for the families moving west and by allowing them to gather their worldly possessions for the trek.

"When it finally dawned on Major Ridge . . . and others of the Cherokee Nation that there was absolutely no way they could hold on to their lands, they tried to obtain the best bargain they could from the United States Government. The government agreed to pay for their improvements, and exchange their eastern lands for land west of the Mississippi which would be theirs 'as long as grass grows and water flows.' Not even these men could foresee that those who had gone before. Cynically an Indian later wrote, 'They ploughed up the grass and dammed up the streams and the land which was ours, is theirs, it seems.' The proposal divided the Cherokee Nation into bitter enemies, the Treaty Party who could see what was happening and felt removal was the only solution, and those who simply could not believe their homes would be taken from them. One of those who signed the Treaty of New Echota, accepting the U.S. proposal on December 29, 1835, was Major Ridge who is reported to have said, 'I have signed my death warrant.'"

No one could foresee in 1836 that the young government of the United States would be too weak in coming years to protect the Cherokee in their resettlement attempts. The pattern of land grabbing and disenfranchisement by white governments and courts continued in the new territories. It was, in fact, worse, for outright murder was accepted, and raiding parties of white settlers expanding into the territories systematically burned and pillaged Cherokee villages.

In Tyler County, a memory of the Cherokee migration remains in the old name, "Cherokee Village," which was attributed to a palisaded settlement between Woodville and Chester near where FM 256 intersects U.S. 287 today. In 1839, the Cherokee Village was a settlement of approximately 150 Cherokee, who paused in Tyler County in their migration towards the Western lands.

The Cherokee did not stay here, largely because the second president of the Republic of Texas, Mirabeau B. Lamar, instituted a policy of forcing the Cherokee to complete their migration into Arkansas. White settlers, attracted to the settled lands and cultivated fields, settled nearby and have kept the name alive for almost 150 years.

Ridge, his son John and his cousins Elias Budinot and Stand Waitie, were all murdered in 1840 by survivors of the Trail of Tears. But Ridge's fierce determination and clear foresight had passed on to his daughter, Sarah Ridge, who survived the ambush and massacre of her father and family.

In the long run, the tale of the Trail of Tears is a tale of survival against odds, a tale of the coming through a bitter time to better times elsewhere. Sarah Ridge, daughter of an Indian princess and descendant of a line of rulers who once held sway over lands that stretched from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico and from the eastern seaboard of the Atlantic to the floods of the Mississippi, inherited that spirit.

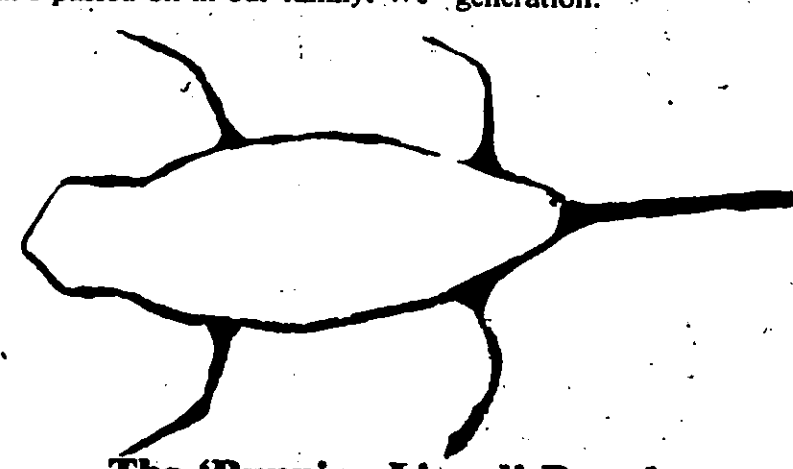

She survived the Trail of Tears, survived the murders, survived the loss of their new homes in the Western territories, and went on to found a very successful cattle barony in western Liberty County (now Chambers County). She became a commanding presence in the social world of Galveston during the 1850's, regularly entertaining Sam Houston and other Texas founders in her home. Later, following her divorce from her first husband, she remarried to Charles C. Sisson Pix (ironically, at Mirabeau Lamar's home in Richmond, Texas). Later, they settled at Smith's Point across the bay from Galveston, where she became very successful at raising cattle on the coastal plains.

Her brand, a lizard, was adapted from one used by her father and Cherokee forebears, and for decades was a well known brand in the western Liberty County region. The brand was lost from the saddle of a slave during the Civil War, but unearthed by a plow in 1925 and returned to Sarah Ridge's descendants. Today, this very brand is in the possession of Ruth Stanford, who is pictured with this article holding it.

"When I hold this brand, I remember Sarah Ridge and the times she lived through," Stanford says. But the brand has had its practical uses, too, riding for years in the trunk of her car and being used on occasion as a jack handle for flat tires.

That practical, utilitarian use of a relic is what Sarah Ridge would like most about her great great granddaughter. "It was horrible what she had to go through," Stanford says, "but she went through it. She was a survivor, and it's a trait that's passed on in our family. We

Colors In The Big Thicket Are Various, Beautiful

Can you name the various species of evergreen in this composition?

One of the species pictured is an evergreen and really belongs to the Holly family. The Yaupon Holly who's Latin name is Ilex vomitoria was used many years ago by the Alabama and Coushatta Indians during a ceremony celebrating the new year. A cleansing drink was made from this plant to cleanse the body in the spirit in preparation for the new year.

The Yaupon Holly represents one of many evergreen plants that grow abundantly in the Big Thicket area. The pine, cedar, magnolia, American Holly and even Christmas Fern play a very special role in enhancing the beauty of the fall leaves. It is this back drop of rich dark green that makes our fall color spectacular and different in character from other parts of the country.

The great variety of vines, shrubs, and trees creates a wilder beauty than Colorado and New England. A few of the more colorful varieties are represented in this drawing. There is the brilliant flaming red of Sumac (Anacardiaceae) which grows as a poisonous and non-poisonous plant. Some of the many varieties of Sumac were used in the tanning of leather. Poison Ivy and Poison Oak belong to the Sumac family.

The Black Gum tree, sometimes called the Black Tupelo, is in the Dogwood family. Its most brilliantly colored leaves show off; its dark berries. There are several different varieties of maple (Aceraceae) as well as the ever present Sweet Gum which is not pictured. The Dogwood is in the Witch Hazel family. Don't overlook the beauty of the Dogwood tree in the fall as well as the spring.

The Tyler County Heritage Society invites you to view these beautiful changing colors with an easy walk on our newly developed hiking trail at Heritage Village Museum. We have chosen the name of one of Laura Ingell Wilder's "Little House" books, "The Big Woods," as the name for our woodland area. Bring your friends and share the abundant beauty of Southeast Texas. One admission charge allows you to enjoy all the activities at the Village including the hiking trail. We have an opportunity to develop one of the most spectacular and accessible hiking trails in East Texas. Come share this land of enchantment with your family and friends.

Rebuilding will be done by the use of the front loader and a tin roof will most likely replace the original shakes.

Modern equipment and technology have replaced pioneer methods of building but they seldom match the beauty and character created by hand on the original log barn.

The future sounds exciting for the "little log barn" under the auspices of the Tyler County Heritage Society Inc. at Heritage Village.

One day visitors may be able to observe animals feeding at the original cypress trough, examine old tools displayed, and smell the grain stored inside the barn.

For a bonus, a visitor might also catch a glimpse of a cat and mouse chase through the little log barn built in the good ole days.

PICKETT HOUSE

Thanks to my 82-year old grandmother and just in time for the Good Ol' Days, our weekend staff is now dressing in period costume, in keeping with the good ol' country cookin' we serve every day at our restaurant.

My sweet little grandmother has also made period costumes, including coordinating collars and matching bonnets, which are for sale in the restaurant. We have them attractively displayed so you can see the fine workmanship she put into these garments. Take a look, when you come in. You can't miss them.

And, speaking of old fashioned traditions, don't forget the Pickett House will be open on Thanksgiving Day with holiday hours of 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. That's right. We'll be right here at Heritage Village, ready to serve you a heart-warming traditional Thanksgiving dinner right down to the cranberry sauce, giblet gravy and pumpkin pie.

When we were participating in the Taste of Beaumont Festival recently, I found some old fashioned chicken-type Christmas decorations (now what could be more appropriate) for the Pickett House. Right after Thanksgiving, we'll be hard at work decorating our restaurant, inside and out, with a look as traditional as the country fare we serve. We sure hope you don't forget that we're open daily throughout the Holiday season, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday thru Friday, 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Saturday and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday. We close only on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. Nice to know we're cookin' up a storm for you, when you're too busy, or too tired, to cook at home.

We were honored recently to have 72 guests from various municipalities throughout East Texas, representing their respective water districts. These folks were here for their annual meeting in Woodville. They always come out to the Pickett House for a meal, and it's good to see so many old friends.

Of course, one of the things these folks, like so many others, ask about are our crisp little yellow cucumber pickles.

Well, we call them Cucumber Nuggets, and they're made from our own over-ripe cucumbers. First we peel them and core them, then we add our own secret mix of spices and let them sit for a couple of weeks until the bitterness disappears. Then we can them and keep them on hand to serve as our own special Cucumber Nuggets. We often laugh at the fact that most people wouldn't think these little yellow cukes would be worth saving before we get at them. But they are, and our customers seem to enjoy guessing what fruit or vegetable these tasty little nuggets come from. We get all sorts of answers, squash, zucchini and more. But one thing they all agree on is that like Lay's potato chips, you can't eat just one.

Luckily, we put up a lot of 'em this past year, because one of our customers recently bought a case of Nuggets to use as stocking stuffers and gifts for hard-to-buy-for friends.

Heritage Society Helps Fund Raising At Allan Shivers Library And Museum

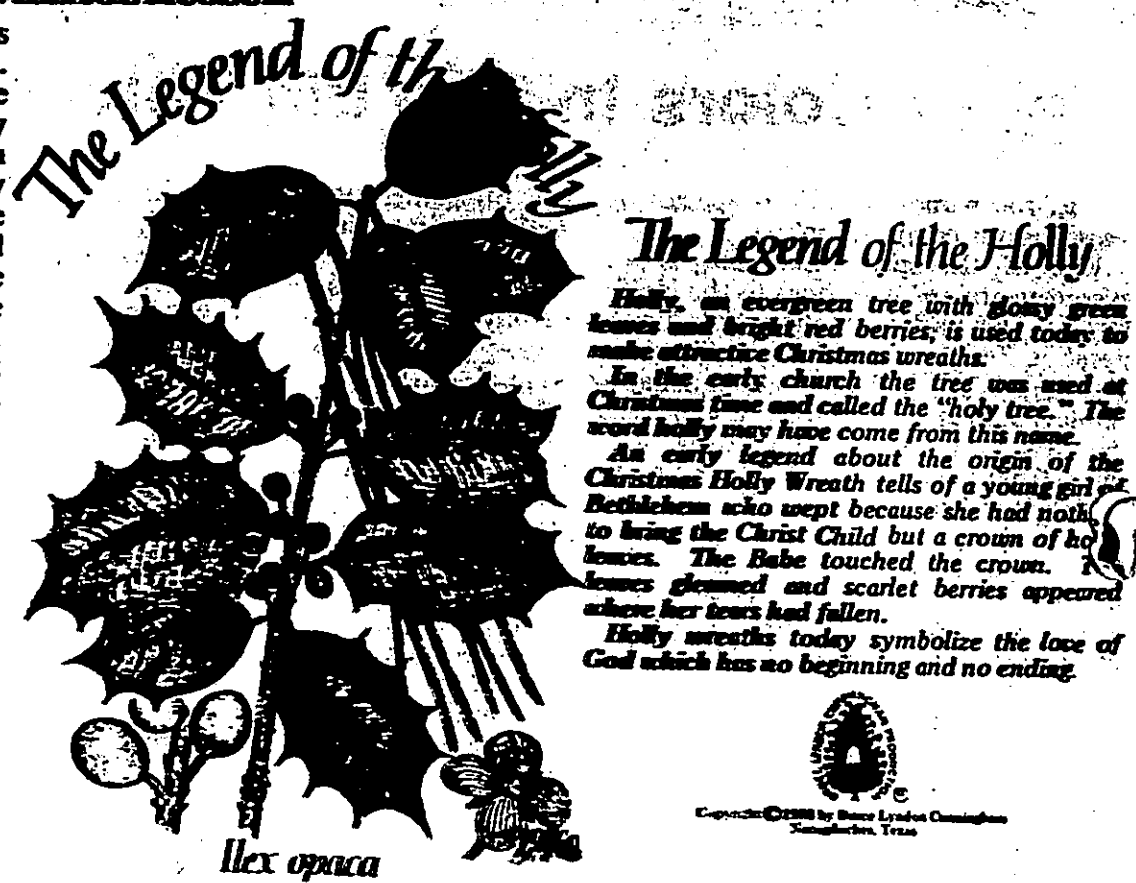

The Tyler County Heritage Society has donated their share of the proceeds from the recently held Vintage Variety Talent Show to the Allan Shivers Library Foundation.

"It is our desire with this contribution to this special fund to show our enthusiasm for this new Tyler County project," Heritage Society president, Christine Sanders stated.

"The plans of the foundation in their interest in expanding the library facility is one that we strongly support," Sanders continued. "We have many programs, specifically our oral history program, that will be greatly benefitted by proper storage of the original tapes and an accessible area for the transcripts."

"Having a strong and financially sound library will be good for our community," Sanders said. "We support their endeavor."

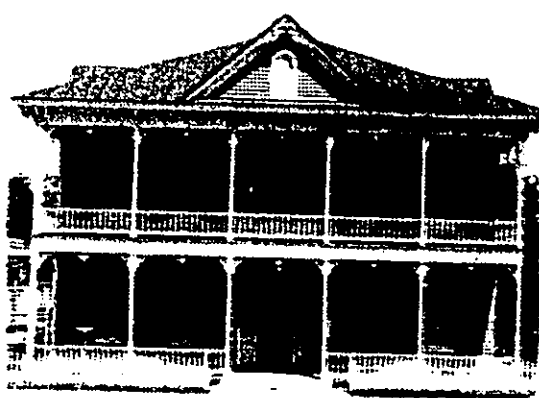

The Legend of the Holly

Holly, an evergreen tree with dark green leaves and bright red berries, is used today to make attractive Christmas wreaths. In the early church the tree was used at Christmas time and called the "holy tree." The word holly may have come from this name. An early legend about the origin of the Christmas Holly Wreath tells of a young girl, Rebekah, who wept because she had nothing to bring the Christ Child but a crown of holly leaves. The Babe touched the crown, leaves dropped and scarlet berries appeared where her tears had fallen. Holly wreaths today symbolize the love of God which has no beginning and no ending.

Allan Shivers Library And Museum NEWS

Allan Shivers Library announces the anticipated arrival of more than 100 hours of PBS programming, including: "American Playhouse," "Planet Earth," "Nova," "The Jewel in the Crown," and Alistair Cooke's "America," on VHS videocassettes.

This award-winning collection was a gift from the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation Library Video Classics Project—a nationwide project to make the tapes available to public libraries. Libraries from Portland, Maine, to Wasilla, Alaska, are participating in the project.

John E. Corbally, President of the Foundation, states, "Until now, most libraries could usually afford only one-way video feature films. Our support is making the best programs in the arts, the sciences, and the humanities available to everyone with a library card."

The growth of libraries circulating videocassettes, the number of VCRs in America's homes, and negotiations with distributors for a volume purchase as a discount made this undertaking feasible.

A program guide to describe the offerings will accompany the videos, and all series include complete public performance rights to allow in-library and community group showings.

Other titles included in the series are: "American Short Story," "Civilization," "Life On Earth," "Great Performances," and "The Story of English." Among topics included in these series are programs on acid rain, the first forest, inventing a nation, The smile of reason, the solar sea, and 117 other titles.

The cassettes will be available for loan to library patrons as well as to local schools and teachers. For those who don't have a VCR on their own, a viewing room is available at the library.

Decorate The Village, Tra-La, Tra-La!

Mark your calendar now for the last Sunday in November.

That's Sunday, November 27, when all good members of the Tyler County Heritage Society, their friends, their neighbors, their Thanksgiving guests and even folks they don't fancy that much are invited to come to Heritage Village and help deck the halls with boughs of holly and get the Village fancied up for the holiday season.

What we've got going here is an old fashioned Christmas decorating party, with everyone getting into the act. All you have to do is bring along some traditional Christmas greenery, a bauble or two and a good helping of Christmas spirit and help do the job that must be done before we open up our Christmas face to the outside world.

So, whether you're a dues paying member of the Heritage Society or not, even a non-believing Scrooge, plan to have some good old fashioned fun at the Village on Sunday afternoon, November 27, and get into the spirit of things. Come to Heritage Village and help us deck the halls with boughs of holly, and tra-la-la-la-la-la-la-la-la.
