Not Economically Feasible

Sunday Edition Ceases

"The Tyler County Booster" has ceased publication of its Sunday edition.

According to "Booster" Publisher John Morrison, "Market conditions which appeared to be economically feasible several months ago have quickly proven that it would be unprofitable for the "Booster" to sustain its current expansion of a twice-weekly newspaper for Tyler County."

The "Booster" Sunday edition was initiated January 1 with a clear goal of addressing expanded news coverage to the community, said Morrison. He added that "We still intend to accomplish this, through features, news stories and ads in the Thursday paper."

Since being introduced to Tyler County in December, 1931, the "Booster" has continued to be the dominant news and advertising source in Tyler County," said Morrison. "Our news staff is dedicated to presenting the news fairly, accurately and professionally to our readers and we'll continue to present a strong Thursday product filled with interesting and balanced news coverage."

Subscribers should note that the current subscription rate for the newspaper is $12.75 for in-county residents, said Morrison. "This rate is in line with other Deep East Texas weekly newspapers."

Petitions Urging Board Not To Close Schools

The Warren Independent School District Board of Trustees recent consideration of possibly relocating Warren Junior High School has prompted some residents in that district to circulate petitions asking that that school or Fred Elementary not be closed.

According to Ed Killam and S.E. Duff, two of the district's residents, the petitions will be circulated before an upcoming special meeting that Superintendent Bettie Rae Yates said would be called soon to discuss the possibility of relocating the junior high school.

In a recent interview, Yates said that "We are considering several things in order to save revenues and generate revenues in the district." She also said that one of the options being considered is the relocation of Warren Junior High students.

Under this plan, seventh and eighth graders would be sent to the high school and sixth graders to the elementary schools.

Yates said in a telephone interview Tuesday that she had recently given the board four or five proposals on how to save money for the district. She added that final decisions on the proposals would be made by the board in open session.

Both Killam and Duff said that they are opposed to the move because they feel the school district is presently taxing at the maximum allowable rate, and that taxpayers there can't afford additional schools in the future which they feel will result from such a move.

"In the future, it's going to cost the taxpayers more money to build buildings to house the students in one area," said Duff.

Killam said that the petitions will state that signers are opposed to the closing of either Warren Junior High or Fred Elementary. He added that these petitions will be circulated within the Warren school district.

Stevenson On Industry Council

Don Stevenson, manager of radio station KVLL-AM in Woodville, has been appointed as the Tyler County representative for the Deep East Texas Private Industry Council.

The council is comprised of business and community leaders from the 12-county Deep East Texas region.

Members are nominated by the local chamber of commerce, then approved by the chief elected official for the council. They are then appointed by the governor.

The PIC is responsible for governing the administration of the Job Training Partnership Act. The JTPA program is currently operated by the Deep East Texas Council of Governments on an annual budget of $5 million.

Since its inception in 1983, $15 million of JTPA funds have been expended in the region, according to a news release from DETCOG.

ON COUNCIL-Floyd Clark of Coldspring, chairman of the Private Industry Council, congratulates Don Stevenson on his appointment to the board.

Leaky Toilet Maddening

What's the loudest sound you ever heard in your life? A leaky toilet bowl in the middle of the night, right?

The one in the Miller house has a little bit more perversity in its nature, and that is the basis for this tale.

Old TB was usually quiet during the daylight hours. Just sat there in all its porcelain splendor. A gleaming monument to man's inventive genius. (True, it is scorned by some environmental groups as a waste of water, but to my knowledge they haven't come up with a reasonable substitute.)

Its time clock for malfunction was set up by the state of my somnolence. Just when drowsiness sets in, and the last sleep had jumped over the fence, Old TB flipped his float.

And up I'd get, stumble through a dark bedroom, lift off the lid, and drop a package of talcum powder in the water bowl. Holy cow, isn't there any way to make this darn thing shut your life? Bend the float bar. Twist the float to another angle. Check the chain on the ball. Flush. Flush. Flush.

After a couple of weeks of this bawling, pulling, checking and flushing, you easy, and when it does, and you're just drifting off-Zap-Old TB's at it again.

By the time, the door, he tells the wife, "I hadn't heard from you in a long time. Thought maybe you and the mister had moved."

Is Old TB acting up? Nope. The only thing is, I lay there at night, wide awake, just waiting for him to malfunction. And yes, I bought a new box of talcum powder.

By the way, just got a phone call from home. Nan dropped her toothbrush down the bathroom sink.

The Kitchen Sink is something else. One of those new fangled jobs that finally decide, the heck with it—this is what plumbers are for.

By this time, half the plumbing in the house is falling apart. Filters on the bathroom faucets, a leak in the kitchen sink. He shows up, and fixes TB in about four seconds. Just needed a new rubber stopper.

By this time, your hands are cold, with all the pushing and shoving on the thingamabobs in the tank, with water up to your elbows. Sleep doesn't come

Beware Of Low Cholesterol Eggs

You've read all the claims on various food product labels—low, salt, low fat, low cholesterol. Yet another product is surfacing—low cholesterol eggs—and buyers need to be cautious.

"Course not," he says. "Takes a special tool to get these off."

Out to his truck he goes and comes back in with a Rube Goldberg looking item with four claws that retract around the faucet knob, and pop it off.

I'm thinking by this time, the bill is going to be astronomical, 'cause somebody is going to pay for that $400 tool, and with my luck it will be me.

As he walks out the door, he tells the wife, "I hadn't heard from you in a long time. Thought maybe you and the mister had moved."

Deep Fried Turkey

1 Turkey
Salt
Ground Cayenne Pepper
Peanut Oil (enough to cover turkey)

Turkey should be clean and dry, inside and out. Using salt shaker cover inside and outside with salt, shake on cayenne pepper in same manner.

Put the peanut oil in a large deep pot and heat to 325 or 350 degrees. Pot must be large enough for turkey to fit in and oil must cover entire bird completely.

Make sure the oil won't overflow, when bird is placed in pot, slowly being careful not to splash hot oil.

Put bird in hot oil and fry four or five minutes to the pound.

Small birds cook more quickly, larger birds take longer.

Test for doneness in the thigh joint. The meat is moist and does not get dry like most cooked turkeys do. Once you try this, your oven will get cobwebs at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

But, you'll have turkey often cooked this way.

Surprise your friends and invite them to try your Deep Fried Turkey.

Jacket Jive

It was very warm this past weekend in the "Jacket Jive" contest. The Chester 4-H Chapter was the winner of the contest.

The number of fans that came out to support the boys' basketball team was proof that the people of Chester support our school all the way in every way.

The boys were victorious over Avery on Friday night but was unable to come away with a win over New Summerfield on Saturday morning.

Coch Enis and the boys represented our school and community with the kind of pride and sportsmanship that only true winners are capable of.

The Chester F.F.A. Chapter was represented by Junior, Louie Thompson, at the Houston Livestock Show on Friday and Saturday. Louie showed his Polled Hereford heifer. He did not place but he enjoyed the experience very much.

Louie's brother Richard represented the Chester 4-H Chapter on Saturday.

He placed a calf and was awarded a certificate that he will use to purchase a dairy or beef heifer. He will take care of this calf and will take the heifer to next year's Livestock Show in Houston. Richard is in the seventh grade.

The Chester 4-H Chapter will meet on Thursday, March 9th in the Ag shop after school.

On March 11, three seasons will be kicked off on Tuesday, March 14th in Corrigan at 4:30 p.m.

46th Annual Dogwood Festival April 1

It all started 49 years ago, when a small group of dedicated Tyler County citizens presented the first Dogwood Festival for an audience of about 300 people on the Woodville School grounds.

But, actually, the idea to celebrate the beauty of Tyler County in Spring with its profusion of dogwood, came about in 1938, when the late James E. Wheat brought some of the state's leading citizens to Tyler County to enlist their help in getting U.S. Hwy. 190 completed through Woodville, across the Neches River to Jasper.

So impressed were these visitors with the natural beauty of the area that Mr. Wheat, whose ancestor, Josiah Wheat, deeded 200 acres for the town of Woodville as the county seat, that he encouraged his fellow citizens to celebrate the fact for all to see and enjoy.

From its initial beginnings in 1940, the Dogwood Festival has grown into an annual event that spans two weekends, involves hundred of people in its production and brings thousands of visitors to Woodville to share in the festivities and the beauty of the area.

Western Weekend - March 25

Tyler County's 23rd annual Western Weekend promises to be even bigger and better this year with two rip-roaring Rodeo performances, March 24 and 25, an Arts and Crafts Fair all day Saturday, March 25, and over 20 trailrides converging on Woodville for the annual Western Weekend Parade Saturday afternoon.

The fun starts with Friday night's Rodeo, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the FFA/4-H Arena, 2 miles West of Woodville, off Hwy. 190. Tickets at the gate are $5 for adults, $3 for children under 12. Trailriders with proper identification will be admitted to this performance for just $1.

Saturday at 2:00 p.m. over 1000 trailriders from as far away as Baytown will meet on Hwy. 69 North of town and head South to Hwy. 190, then East through downtown Woodville for a parade that is second in numbers only to the Houston Live Stock Show. Parade Marshal will be the 1988 Western Weekend Sweetheart, Charlotte Kahla of Jasper. At 3:30, the second phase for selection of this year's Western Weekend Sweetheart will take place at the Rodeo Arena, where each contestant will be judged on her horsemanship. The second performance of the Rodeo, during which the 1989 Sweetheart will be announced, will begin at 4:00 p.m. Again, tickets at the gate, $5 adults, $3 children under 12.

Western Weekend in Woodville came about in 1967, when the trailriders who had, since 1958, been Dogwood Festival will once again play host to visitors from near and far, starting with a 5K Fun Run at 8:30 a.m., an all-day Arts & Crafts Fair, sponsored by the Woodville Chapter of Business & Professional Women, a 2:00 p.m. parade of approximately 50 entries through downtown Woodville and an evening pageant following the crowning of the Dogwood Queen.

The longest running outdoor historical pageant in the South, this year's production will be based on the "Life and Times of John Henry Kirby," a native son who went on to become one of the giants of the timber and oil industry.

Tickets for the Pageant may be purchased at Jarrett's Drugs Store, Sullivan's Hardware, Bob's Prescription Shop and other local businesses as well as at the gate. Ticket prices are $6 and $4.50. The free Dogwood Souvenir Booklet will also be available, beginning March 21.

part of the annual Dogwood Festival Parade, organized to expand the festivities to a second weekend with all activities based on a western theme.

This year, for the first time, the annual Arts and Crafts Fair, sponsored by the Woodville Chapter of Business & Professional Women, has also been expanded to include Western weekend, and will be held in downtown Woodville on Saturday, March 25, beginning at 9 a.m.

Legend of The Dogwood

(AUTHOR UNKNOWN)

At the time of the Crucifixion the dogwood attained the size of the oak and other forest trees. So strong and firm was the wood of it that it was chosen for the timber of the Cross. To be thus used for such a cruel purpose greatly distressed the tree, and Jesus smiled upon it, sensed this, and, in His gentle pity for sorrow, said to it:

"Because of your regret and pity for my suffering, I make this promise: Never again shall the dogwood tree grow big enough to be used for a cross. Henceforth it shall be slender and bent and twisted, and its blossoms shall be in the form of a cross—two long petals and two short petals—and in the center of the outer edge of each petal will be nail prints, brown with rust and stained with blood. And in the center of the flower there shall be an image of the crown of thorns and all who see it will remember that it was upon a dogwood tree that I was crucified, and this tree shall not be mutilated or destroyed, but cherished as a reminder of my death upon the cross."

Life and Times of John Henry Kirby Is '89 Dogwood Festival Theme

So much, and yet so little, has been written about the legendary John Henry Kirby, whose life and times from the cotton patches of Northern Tyler County to leadership of the vast Kirby timber and oil holdings will be heralded during the 46th Annual

John Henry Kirby

Dogwood Pageant in Woodville on April 1.

Much has been written about this heroic figure, who could barely read or write at age 19, when Woodville lawyer and later Texas legislator and U.S. Congressman Bronson Cooper uncovered his natural genius and spurred him on to greatness.

Born in 1860, youngest of the seven children of John Thomas and Sarah Payne Kirby, who came to Texas in 1850, Kirby's early education consisted of a few months of school in the summer and the lessons he learned at his mother's knee on the family farm at Peachtree, near the present town of Chester.

From the moment he laid eyes on young Kirby, Cooper was fascinated by the qualities of leadership he saw in him, and he persuaded the young man to come to Woodville to attend school.

The rest is history, and much has been written about John Henry Kirby, who attended Georgetown University for a short time until his funds ran out, served as Deputy Sheriff and Tax Collector, read law under his mentor, Bronson Cooper, passed the bar at 25, and in 1883 married the daughter of one of Woodville's leading merchants, against her parents' wishes, of course. But, what about Kirby, the man who after moving to Houston in 1890 and making his millions in oil and timber, continued to return to his beloved Tyler County to visit relatives, held huge barbecues for friends and neighbors at Peach Tree, and corresponded frequently with Cooper, reminiscing about the good old days under the magnolia trees in Woodville.

M.L. Bingham of Spurger can tell you something about that man. He remembers when Kirby came to visit his mother, Meta Collier Bingham, in the 1920's. Kirby never wanted to sleep inside, Bingham says, "bringing with him a cot so he could sleep out in the open, under the big Hickory trees in the same front yard, where Bingham and his wife, Jo, live today. Madison Lane Collier, Meta's father, was a first cousin of Lelia Stewart Kirby, and when his first wife died, the Kirby's took Meta and her sister Eva into their home, until Collier remarried.

Bingham also remembers Kirby coming to Spurger to attend family reunions of the Jordans and Colliers and going to Woodville with his family, when he was a boy of 8, to hear Kirby dedicate the new Kirby High School, which he had funded.

And what about that man who, when his own fortunes were on the down turn, still asked the Woodville City Fathers what they needed and responded with $30,000, to build a much needed High School. Kirby's wife and daughter donated the land, where the Stewart family home once stood.

During the summer of 1928, Kirby invited 13 High School boys from the various school districts in Tyler County, to come to Houston as his guests during the National Democratic Convention, which some say he single handedly brought to Houston. In an article, which appeared in the Cracker Barrel Journal some time back, Bower Johnston, who was one of those boys and was in the first graduating class at Kirby High School in 1919, told of attending the Convention and Al Smith's victory parade, of going to the Kirby Theatre downtown for a movie and vaudeville, to the Rodeo at Rice Stadium and to a baseball game, and of meeting Franklin Delano Roosevelt at a reception held at the Kirby mansion, little realizing that he was meeting a future president of the United States.

And, what about the man, who never forgot his parents, who from his earliest earning years started buying up the land surrounding their meagre farm holdings, until he had put together a farm of 5,000 acres, which provided a livelihood for 400 families.

In 1912, Kirby built a gothic chapel at Peach Tree in memory of his parents, a chapel which now belongs to Tyler County.

John Henry Kirby knew and was honored by the greats of the world. Towns, buildings, streets, museums, theatres and forests are named after him. And even though the depression was said to be the cause of his diminishing fortunes, it is known that he never turned his back on a friend, often borrowing to give to others, giving when he could no longer afford to do so, but remembering always that Tyler County was his home.

PEACHTREE GOTHIC—Serving as the background for the Chester High School Princess's float in the 1987 Dogwood parade is a replica of the gothic chapel, which John H. Kirby built at Peach Tree Village in 1912 in memory of his parents.

Herbs Bring Fragrant Beauty To Home Gardens

By Diane Morey Sittion

Herbs are among the most useful plants known to man. Down through the ages their fragrant, oil-rich leaves have been used to deodorize, disinfect and preserve. Likewise, herbs have been used to flavor, medicate and adorn. With so many practical uses it is no wonder that herbs are as popular today as ever.

The versatility of herbs is not the only quality which makes them popular. Most herbs are easy to grow and thrive if their basic requirements are met.

The first step in planning an herb garden is to determine which herbs you want to grow based on your own interests. Culinary gardens often contain such classic favorites as basil, dill, fennel, mint, rosemary, sage and thyme, all of which can be grown successfully in Tyler County. Include scented geraniums, lemon balm and lemon basil for a fragrance garden. Harvest the sweet-scented leaves for potpourri and sachets. Grow rue, tansy and yarrow in the color garden for the beauty of their blooms. When dried, craft them with other herbs and flowers into wreaths, garlands and posies.

Study the herbs you select. Note their heights, growing habits and requirements. Plan to locate tall herbs, like fennel and yarrow, in the back of the garden where they won't shade out lower growing varieties. Separate mint and other aggressive herbs by sinking vertical partitions between them and their neighbors. Note the life cycle of each plant. Annuals, such as basil and dill, must be sown each year. Rosemary and other perennials live indefinitely. Give them permanent positions, where they don't require transplanting.

The majority of herbs favor full sun and well-drained soil. Enrich poor, sandy soil by adding compost. Loosen heavy, dense soils by adding compost and sand. In areas with clay soils, construct raised beds to improve drainage. Most herbs grow well in a soil with a neutral pH.

Herbs can be incorporated into the flower or vegetable garden or grown in pots on the patio. Where space is plentiful, set them aside in their own bed, following one of the old European forms.

Circle gardens are patterned after 19th century wheel gardens. These nostalgic favorites were made from old discarded wagon wheels laid flat on the ground. The wooden hoops created a strong instant border. The spokes marked separate planting areas for herbs and flowers. Make small gardens from old wheels. Create larger circle gardens by driving a stake into the ground at the center of the garden site. Attach a string, then mark off the outer circle. Create a focal point, such as a small birdbath, in the center of the circle. Divide the planting areas like slices of pie.

Squares, another favorite traditional form, are divided into four equal planting areas. Allow for a border, then add a circle in the center.

Ladder gardens are ideal along walkways. Use bricks, rocks or wooden beams to form the borders and crosspieces. Fill these gardens with low growers such as parsley and shives.

Editor's Note: Diane Morey Sittion will be guest speaker at Heritage Village Museum on Saturday, January 18, at 2:00 p.m. Author of "Texas Gardener's Guide To Growing and Using Herbs," which is available at the Museum Store, Mrs. Sittion will present a slide show, after which Connie Howell of B&M Nursery in Warren will demonstrate herb potting techniques. Mrs. Howell will also have herb plants and seeds for sale.

The Creation Of Tyler County

By Stephenie Yearwood

Reprinted from her Sesquicentennial Series, published in the Woodsman in 1986

In April of 1846, the brand-new legislature of the brand-new state of Texas saw that it had erred. And being men of good will, they hastened to correct the mistake of not yet having created a county West of the Neches. So they waved their legislative wand over the forests, and lo! they created Tyler County.

This act made the pioneers living in these forests glow with anticipation, for they, too, wanted to get in on the act. Now it would be their turn to do what they loved to do so much: start something new. For where there is a county, there must be a county seat and a courthouse and committees and commissioners and clerks and a sheriff.

So, they went to work and between 1846 and 1850, Tyler County was not only created, but the county seat was selected and created out of a wilderness, the county government was put in place, streets were cut, lots sold, houses and courthouse built, schools established and churches organized. By 1851 or so, the creators were weary, so they rested.

But it was frantic while it lasted. Across the river in Jasper County, where there had "always" been county government, they must have watched in some amusement as, every few months, Tyler County lurched a bit closer to full participation in the luxuries of a democratic society.

The creation happened on April 3 of 1846. In July, elections were held to select the interim county officials. The officials, in turn, appointed a committee to study where the permanent county seat should be located. [Town Bluff was, of course, the temporary location]. In August, the committee recommended three sites as possibilities: Town Bluff, a spot on a ridge above Wolfe Creek in the Northeast quadrant of the county, and a spot in the forks of Turkey Creek near the center of the county. And lo! on the third day the voters waved their ballots over the boxes and they created Woodville.

Meanwhile, on the fourth day law came into being—the lawyers and judges springing up like mushrooms around the seat of justice. The second Monday of October, 1846, was the first day of court in Tyler County. Convening at Town Bluff under District Judge John B. Jones and District Attorney Samuel D. Hay, the court finally managed (after some legal difficulties) to assemble prospective jurors. The three civil cases which were called were all dismissed. At the same time, the Grand Jury was meeting, and at the conclusion of the deliberations, it issued the first two criminal indictments. William Gray and William McClelland were indicted for an "affray."

Gray became the first person tried on criminal charges in Tyler County and was found innocent. McClelland had apparently left the territory and never came to trial.

In November a second election was held for local officials to serve a full term. William P. Samson was elected Chief Justice of the County; James Sapp, Sheriff; George W. Van Vleck, District Clerk; E. L. Parsons, County Clerk; and James Barclay, Tax Assessor-Collector. Frantic activity culminated on January 1, 1847 (the sixth day), when Josiah Wheat deeded 200 acres on the forks of Turkey Creek to the county for public use. In the months to come, the new town was surveyed off into lots, which were sold at public auction, the money going into the judicial coffers.

By 1848 Tyler County had indicted its first murderer and organized a school, the Woodville Academy. And on the seventh day, the creators all rested. I'm sure they needed to.

Heritage Society Seeking Corporate Memberships

At the suggestion of a local business man, the Board of Directors of the Tyler County Heritage Society, at their last meeting, voted to establish an annual non-voting Corporate Membership of $500, with recognition via an Honor Roll to be published monthly in the East Texas Echo.

This membership would not only be of great benefit to the Heritage Society in its efforts to preserve Tyler County History, enhance the quality of life and encourage tourism, but it would place, in the public eye, those companies and businesses, which support these efforts and recognize their importance to the community and East Texas as a whole.

Checks, made out to the Tyler County Heritage Society, may be sent to P.O. Box 888, Woodville, Texas 75979.
