The Countrymen well known in the area for their tremendous talent both in composing and singing traditional southern gospel songs.

Harold Smith began singing bass at age 12 in church and school choirs. He was offered a college music scholarship during high school. Kent Houp began singing and playing the clarinet and piano at age seven. At age 14, he sang tenor with the Temple Teens and later sang bass with the Cavaliers Quartet out of Fort Jerry Maxwell. The Countrymen's first tenor, is an ordained minister and has been singing gospel music since he was 15. He pastored a church for several years before entering to the music ministry. Keith Morgan plays bass guitar and sings lead for The Countrymen. He since he was nine.
