City condemns land for new sewer plant

By John Morrison
WOODVILLE — Woodville City Council voted Monday night to begin condemnation on three of seven tracts in the vicinity of the proposed 258-acre, $4.4 million sewer improvement plant located between the Southern Pacific Railroad track bed and Highway 69 near the south city limits.

One tract is currently owned by the city and three others are owned individually by Mrs. F.B. Sullivan, Texas Commerce Bank and Roy Baker. The three tracts voted to be condemned include those owned by Jack M. and Dorothy Abbott, Dorothy Feagin Abbott and Lois L. Stryker. Motions initiated by Councilman Larry Phillips, DVM, and Malcolm Radford, DDS, resulted in the unanimous vote. Councilman Tom Knapp was not present for the meeting.

The council held a work session meeting on Wednesday, June 8, and decided to have sewer plant engineer Bob Kyle move the levee portion of the new, innovative rock/reef sewer filtration plant to the west side of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Original cost estimates totaled $4.4 million with financing for the plant made up out of a $2 million Farmers Home Administration Grant and a $2.4 million loan to the city.

The city is being forced to solve the sewer capacity problem by federal and state mandate. The city's present capacity is 900,000 gallons per day but the new plant will allow for the treatment of up to 3 million gallons per day, "which is probably conservative when compared to Woodville's growth projections", said Engineer Kyle.

Kyle said, "I don't have a crystal ball" when trying to describe the expected life of the plant to which Mayor Billy Rose responded, "I expect 20 years...which means I'll be 74 years old."

The "sludge" word is the variable as far as maintenance and operation of the plant is concerned as expressed by Radford in earlier meetings. The constructed wetland, artificial marsh can also use rocks into which bull rushes are planted which then feed on the sewage that flows into the facility.

Commissioners eye tax attorney contract

-For delinquent tax collections-

By Greg Peak
Editor

WOODVILLE — The selection of a law firm to handle the collection of past-due taxes for Tyler County is scheduled to be made Friday when the commissioners court convenes at 8:30 a.m.

County commissioners received two proposals for the job during their regular meeting Monday, but elected to withhold action on the matter to give them time to study the offers.

Seeking the contract for the coming year is the county's current delinquent tax attorney, John Wofford or the Austin-based firm of Farmer, Archer, Young and Steen, as well as Duane Force, of the firm of Calame, Lineberger, Graham and Pena, also of Austin.

The county's cost to hire either law firm would basically be the same — nothing — since the fees the attorneys receive for collecting back taxes is born by the delinquent taxpayer. Under state law, a 15 percent fee is added to the back taxes once they are turned over to the attorneys for collection.

Because cost to the county is not at issue, discussion during Monday's meeting centered around which firm could provide the best service.

County Tax Assessor/Collector Sandra Harrison, who was present during Monday's discussion, told commissioners that she would make a recommendation regarding the selection of a tax attorney during Friday's session.

In his presentation, Force noted that while his law firm is based in Austin, it has 11 branch offices, including one in Lufkin that would be responsible for handling Tyler County. At present, Force's firm handles the collection of delinquent taxes for all Tyler County school districts under a contract with the Tyler County Appraisal District.

"Our current business in Tyler County will mesh really well with your needs," Force said. "It stands to reason that every time we lift a finger for the school districts here, it would benefit you."

Jeff McRae, the Lufkin area manager for the Calame firm, told the commissioners that based on his review of the collection statistics for the county, he projected that his firm could increase collection by as much as 25 percent next year if they were given the contract.

McRae said that during 1993, the county received $240,000 in delinquent taxes, adding that "I project that we could bring in $300,000 if we do the same job that we do for the schools."

When questioned as to whether it would be better to have the schools and the county all use the same delinquent tax attorneys, McRae said there were both yes and no answers to that.

"There can be an argument made that having competing firms working — one for the schools and one for the county — creates competition and a sort of watchdog effect with one firm keeping eye on what the other is doing," he said.

At the same time, he added, having a single law firm covering all local tax entities does reduce the cost of litigation to some degree. He noted that when his law firm files a tax suit in court on behalf of the school districts, the county's representative needs to join the lawsuit to recover money owed the county, or vice versa. Each time one firm files to join in the other's lawsuits, a $15 filing fee must be paid.

In his presentation, Wofford told the commissioners that his record for the county speaks for itself.

He noted that overall delinquent tax collections did not begin until February, March and April of this year, but noted that the problem came as a result of converting the county's tax, voter registration and automobile registration records to a new computer software system.

That problem has now been taken care of and collections picked up in May, he told the commissioners.

Wofford noted that McRae's figures of $240,000 in 1993 collections did not include May's totals, which boosted the year-to-date total up to $279,807.

"And that is only for the first 11 months. We don't have June's totals in so the final figure will be even higher," Wofford said.

Wofford noted that of July 1, 1993, the date that 1992 taxes were turned over to his office for collection, the county was owed $1,161,937 in delinquent taxes — including 1992 and prior years. During the 11 months period of July to May, his office has collected $279,807 of that total or 24.08 percent.

In comparison, Wofford said that the

'Whispers' drama opens Friday

WOODVILLE — The history of Tyler County will once again come to life during the last two weekends in June when the Heritage Village Museum presents its sixth annual staging of "Whispers In The Wind."

Based on actual events that occurred between 1835 and 1888, this original historical drama will be held at 8 p.m. on four nights, June 17-18 and June 24-25. The Friday and Saturday night performances will be played out in the midst of a quaint, little pioneer village that typifies an early East Texas farming community.

Tickets prices for all performances will be $5 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12. Reservations would be appreciated.

Written by Woodville author and playwright Aloha Freeland and directed by Cindy Alexander, "Whispers" tells its story through the lives of the fictional Wilson and Collins families, who shared the joys and the sorrows of life and death, youth and old age.

The story, which is laced with original music and song, follows Tyler County's colorful history from its earliest settlements along the Neches River through the Texas Revolution and the Civil War until the first rail cars rumbled into the piney woods of Deep East Texas.

Heritage Village Museum, located on U.S. Highway 190 a mile west of Woodville, is owned and operated in the public trust by the Tyler County

'Lock-up' benefits MDA

WOODVILLE — Some of Woodville's most notorious residents will be locked up for "good" on Friday, June 24, between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. to help raise funds for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The "jail" will be located at the Woodville Brookshire Brothers Grocery Store and the public is invited to visit the prisoners and contribute funds toward their release.

According to Judge Earnest Mean, a descendant of Judge Roy Bean, the Meanest Judge East of the Pecos, "I want to put these residents of Woodville behind bars for 'good'!"

Bread and water, as well as a few extras, will be provided at the jail.

The funds raised through the Woodville Lock-Up will help improve the quality of life for more than 200 children and adults in the Woodville area who are served by MDA. These services include monthly clinics, support groups, therapy, orthopedic equipment, genetic counseling and youth summer camp for children ages 6-21.

Persons who would like to see their co-workers, boss or friends behind bars should contact the MDA office at (409) 838-4545.

At the Village
By Dottie Johnson

The Louvre has nothing on Heritage Village. That's a stretch, of course. The Louvre has the Mona Lisa, the Pietra and thousands of other pieces of priceless art filling its halls.

But last week, it was the day after all the awe-inspiring D-Day coverage, all the media biggies were in Paris for a day or two, and so it was inevitable that someone should cover the Louvre.

Well, one item in that coverage concerned the museum's educational programs for children that provided hands-on learning experiences as to how things were done long ago, things like rope making.

I started to call Jack Whitmyer right then and there, and I nearly spilled the beans when I saw him showing 200 youngsters from Jasper and Kountze whose rope was made last Friday at the Village, but I thought I'd wait and let him read it here.

Village art is created by people who

how well behaved these youngsters were. They felt privileged to have shared the experience. Others came in from the Picket House where wife after wife of young people ate their lunch, again impressed with their manners.

While giving full credit to the teachers and parents, we must reserve a bit for ourselves. From all reports, we made their visit interesting. The lady who organized the tour from Jasper returned to the office after everyone was on the bus to tell us how meaningful the day had been, how much the children and their teachers had enjoyed it.

More from Kountze

And then there were the 20 youngsters from Jasper County that Mary C. Johnston of Kountze brought for a very special tour of their own. Mrs. Johnston, whose many books of poetry and music are available at the Museum Store, caught the fancy of the EPA, who gave her a grant to organize this exciting camp that spent six days traveling through the Big Thicket to learn first-hand about the Biological Crossroads in which we live.

With Park Rangers Irene Hamel and Leslie Dube at her side, Mrs. Johnston and her aides led her groups through the Village, down the hiking trails and up the pole barn, where Max Williams of the Alabama/Coushatta Reservation spoke to them and demonstrated the art of flint knapping as he does each October during the Village's Harvest Festival.

Atcher's Junior High School Spanish and special education in the Kountze ISD, Mrs. Johnston's program caught the fancy of the media as well as the Village, described by it with two wonderful segments on Channel 6's early and late news and a mention in a front-page picture story in Saturday's Business Enterprise.

And then there was Saturday

On Saturday, it was time for the educators to be educated with a group of middle and high school science and history teachers from Huntsville, who came to see how they could use the museum's resources for their own classes.

And, once more, we must reserve a bit for ourselves. From all reports, we made their visit interesting. The lady who organized the tour from Jasper returned to the office after everyone was on the bus to tell us how meaningful the day had been, how much the children and their teachers had enjoyed it.

Drought humor sought

Dear Editor:

From 1950 to 1957 Texans in all walks of life experienced the worst drought in the state's history, a phenomenon whose effects surpassed those of even the Great Depression and the dustbowl. I'm sure many years while weeping my miseries and doctoral degrees, I have studied those years and have increasingly come to appreciate the unique ability of Texans to cope with such environmental disasters.

Our best coping mechanism is laughter. Growing up in Jackson, Texas on the edge of the Hill Country, I've heard the stories that circulate the local cafes, feed stores, mo tracks, and rodeo arenas. Where ever Texans gather someone has a joke. The laughter those jokes bring helps us deal with life in a state that has known extremes of climate and the norm.

Now I'm collecting drought humor to preserve this special aspect of our Texas character and culture. I'm asking your readers to help by sharing with me their own drought jokes or funny real-life anecdotes. All contribute to appreciate the unique ability of Texans to cope with such environmental disasters.

Park service makes payments

Dear Editor:

In this response to your front page article on taxes and timberland values in Tyler County, The National Park Service, as the managing agency of Big Thicket National Preserve, makes payments in lieu of taxes annually to local governments on the lands set aside for the preserve. This program, Payment in Lieu of Taxes (PILT), was enacted by Federal legislation October 1976, and reauthorized in September 1982. Federal agencies managing land base are obligated to follow this legislation. There are two types of payments addressed in the PILT legislation:

- 1) For the first five years immediately following land acquisition, payments are computed at a rate of 10 percent of what was paid for the properties (the rate may not exceed the taxes paid the year prior to acquisition).
- 2) In addition to the above five year schedule of payments, all future payments are computed using a rate of .75 cents per acre, less any specific deductions set forth in PILT legislation, or .10 cents per acre, whichever is greater. There is a limitation based on population that sets a maximum of $1 million that can be paid to any county.

Therefore, annual tax payments are paid to local governments and used to continue land management. The National Park Service has made an estimated payment through Fiscal Year 1992 to Tyler County (school district) payments to be distributed by the County) for lands under the jurisdiction of Big Thicket National Preserve in the amount of $428,894.82.

Whispers this weekend

They're not exactly old-time hymns but you'll be hearing as you witness this year's production of "Whisper In The Wind", but rest assured that the original music, written by director Cindy Alexander and Whitney Garity will have the flavor of Tyler County's most poignant yesterdays.

These wonderful new songs sung by a talented cast are just another part of the many subtle changes to Alohla Freeland's original outdoor drama that keep the presentation fresh and exciting every time.

Returning in the starring roles as Elizabeth Wilson and Steven Kolbas, Ma and Pa Wilson will be played by Kristin and Michael Kolbas. Directed by Van Derburg as Piety Cruise, Troy Taylor doubling as Peter Ellis Bean and Bronson Cooper, Morgan Tucker as young Caroline Wilson meet their Blanche as a young John Wilson. Crystal McKee plays Anne Collins, the daughter of Elizabeth and Steven. Rev. Bill Gentry will narrate.

Early Learning "STOP" for learning

By Darby Keith

Remember coin rubbings? Put a leaf under a piece of paper, rub the paper gently with the flat edge of a crayon, and as if by magic, the leaf surface begins to show on the paper. A "Leaf Book" collection can be made by putting the pages from many different rubbings together with a cover. Use broad, yam or a loose-leaf binder to hold pages so new ones can be added each time you do another.

Another "STOP" along our hike taught us to use our sense of smell in identifying leaves. The Ranger crushed a leaf from two different trees, putting each into a separate small container (like small medicine or film containers). After a time for us to sniff each and become familiar with its odor, we closed our eyes and tried to identify which one was held to our nose. We increased our abilities to think and speak clearly as we described the odor of each. Words such as sharp and pungent, sweet, nasty, yuck and yum were used, along with "green". We pronounced "green" as "green" as we stood with eyes closed in an unfamiliar place. We learned to listen and to follow directions. We learned about our sense of smell as we became a "Tree" to feel it; to put our faces against the trunk, to describe the bark (rough, smooth, thick, thin, brown, gray, black), and to consider how we use trees in our lives. Bark plots made by placing paper against the trunk and rubbing with a crayon produced not only pretty pictures but also chances to talk about each tree's uses in the patterns: like lying on your back and watching for shapes in cloud formations.

Grilling outdoors - safely

By Sherry Jeanes
County Extension Agent

The summer season brings out the backyard chef in all of us. However, cooking out requires an extra measure of care to prevent foodborne illness. Grilling carefully also can prevent excessive smoke and charring that may be unhealthy. To keep your cookouts both safe and fun, follow these simple tips about proper food preparation and grilling.

Food preparation:

- Select high quality fresh meats. Any type or seafood products for the best results in outdoor grilling.
- Maintain meat process at 40 degrees F or less (refrigerated) until immediately before grilling. This frozen meat at room temperature. The outer layers of meat may reach a temperature that promotes bacterial growth before the inner layers are thawed.
- Avoid cross-contamination of meats. Do not use leftover meat. Marinate in a sauce on cooked meat. Marinate may contain bacteria from raw meat that could contaminate cooked meat.
- Always wash your hands before and after working with raw meat or poultry. Wash hands and cutting boards separately.
- Wash work surfaces and cutting boards thoroughly with hot, soapy water before and after use. Rinse with clean water. Sanitize. Clean with a solution of 1 1/2 to 2 teaspoons of bleach per quart of water. Use a different brush and cloth for each surface.
- After you place the meat on the grill, avoid touching and patting with your hands. Use tongs to turn the meat. Cooking kills bacteria, but cooking with hands can re-contaminate the meat.

State budget shortfall impacts school books

By Lynsall Williams

TEXAS Press Association

AUSTIN — Some Texas public school children might have to make do with last year's textbooks and some might have to share books with fellow students, because of a $100 million funding shortfall.

Texas' Education Commissioner spokeswoman Delta May Moore said reportedly did not take into account the $100 million funding shortfall when she set the $100 million budget for the state's public schools each year.

Also, texts for reading, business law and some vocational courses will be the same as last year's.

Moore said the state's $100 million deficit is the largest in the state's history. She said the deficit is the result of a 1993-94 school year, creating the $100 million shortfall.

Bicycle thefts increase

WOODVILLE — A warning to lockup bicycles and "other lost items" which might be a target for youth thieves was issued this week by Woodville Police Chief Scott Yosko.

"Now that school is out, we have some juveniles out there who don't mind being thieves, so we are asking area residents to be on guard and lock up items that might be attractive to these youngsters."

Yosko said that since June 6, six or seven bicycles have been reported stolen in Woodville.

"I guess you could say we're having a miniature wave involving juveniles in the theft of bicycles," he said.

The round of bicycles thefts apparently began on June 6 when the Tony Greer residence of Cobb Mills Road was broken into and two bicycles were stolen.

On June 10, a Woodville officer spotted three juveniles ranging in age from 12-16 on two bikes, one of which matched the description of one stolen from the Greer residence. Upon subsequent investigation, both of the stolen bicycles were recovered.

"That was just one incident. We had two more bicycles reported stolen yesterday and one so far today," Yosko reported Tuesday morning.

A Father's Day tribute

The most precious gifts

By Theresa Bevan

We all receive gifts as we grow up. Some stand out in our minds more than others, and some we don't realize the value of when we receive them. Then there are some gifts that we take for granted and we don't realize how precious they are until they are gone and we find that they are irreplaceable. The most precious gift I ever received is one I want to recognize before God calls him home.

Like all children, I was born with a mother and father, and like a lot of children, they were not able to raise me themselves. I was only a few years old when my momma and daddy adopted me. Every time I think of my momma and daddy, I'm reminded of how much I love them. I mean I know I had another mother and father, and I even grew up knowing my biological mother. All I cared about was the feeling of belonging I knew I had with Momma and Daddy. I've discovered since I've become an adult that there are some people who don't understand the love that exists between us. I was always DADDY'S LITTLE GIRL, and I always will be, but you know what? I wouldn't want it any other way.

I realize how lucky I am to even have my parents, but the bond that I had with Momma and Daddy, I've discovered since I've become an adult that there are some people who don't understand the love that exists between us. I was always DADDY'S LITTLE GIRL, and I always will be, but you know what? I wouldn't want it any other way.

Daddy retired from the Southern Pacific Railroad and for as long as I can remember he also worked in the public. He had his own business, "Jack Bunn Real Estate," until his health failed him. He retired in January of 1991 and then later on that same year he was diagnosed with Leukemia. They cannot treat the cancer for fear of him having another stroke, or possibly a heart attack, and he can't recover from his stroke because the Leukemia keeps him so weak. It's so hard seeing someone you love in his condition, but even now the love and feelings of security abound every time I see him or even think of him. The gift he has given me is one I know I shall carry forever, and I realize how truly fortunate I am to know that I have one person who loves me without any stipulations.

Thank you Daddy for choosing me to be your daughter and for giving me enough love to carry me through this life.

Happy Father's Day, Daddy!

VisionQuest wagon train provides learning experience

By John Morrison
WOODVILLE — An alternative to juvenile detention, the VisionQuest wagon train, called "Double-T" for Texas Train, now rolling through Tyler County is also known as a high school on wheels.

The six-month, "high impact" experience and journey is a proven way to help troubled youth learn how to make right decisions based on their experiences with the train and in caring for the animals. This group is headed for Arizona.

The youth get up at 6 a.m. and go to bed at 8 p.m. They go to bed tired and sleep about 10 hours in an Indian-style tent.

The group of about 45 youth passing through Tyler County circled up at Lake Tejas Saturday night then traveled on to Vanhook, where they arrived at the Doucette for a Sunday night stay before moving on to the Tyler County 4-H and FFA Rodeo Arena for a couple more days. They will travel only 15 or 20 miles per day and are now looking for camp locations along their route to Beaumont.

deal with the often confusing values that result from fragmented families and communities.

According to staff member Mark Clements, "These puppy-eyed, abandoned kids from abusive homes just need a little instruction and caring. We try to teach them to be a little less manipulative. That's where the training with the animals becomes important."

One student in the program, 16-year-old Derek (who's last name can't be used) had trouble making eye contact while being interviewed.

"I have trouble with that," he said, "but I'm learning."

Derek said he never knew his Dad but his Mom lives in California. He calls her from time to time to let her know how he's doing.

Derek is the head of the team on the train, acts as a scout and stops or slows cars down when the train is moving. He also fixes wagons, waters and feeds the animals, repairs lack, sews the canvas and helps the wrangler. It's a lot of work.

"I've cut (run away) twice but I've learned that when I was running away to was no where. I've learned that," he said.

"Circle Up!" bark Chief Deputy and Master of Operations Dale Neighbors, who directs everything on the train. The entire camp comes alive with the commands "circle up" about 10 minutes each forming a circle in front of each tent for a camp.

This help the staff to know where everyone is at all times. Then Camp Director Neighbors yells "Go!" and the entire group of youngsters races across the center of the camp to the other side and forms up again.

On a regimen on Sunday that preceded the mandatory classroom study. One class was learning about longitude and latitude. Others dealt with math and history.

The staff uses the word "consequences" rather than discipline. It's the lack of the youth determine their own "consequences" when they get out of line. They come up with their own work projects to work off the problem.

A election regarding the creation of District 5 will be called following the July 5 hearing.

"Whispers in the Wind" is just one of the on-going efforts of the society to present this history to the public through a series of programs, special tours and historical writings. The Village is open seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and offers a museum store filled with hand crafted items, a selection of books on East Texas history as well as a genealogy library for historical research.

Included in the Village complex is the Tichenor House Restaurant, famed for its boarding house country fare, and 11.5 acres of picturesque "Big Woods Hiking Trails."

Bell deployed near Africa

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Navy Seaman Recruit Allen W. Bell, a 1992 graduate of the Marine Corps, is currently off the East Coast of Africa aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Peleliu, homeported in San Diego, Calif. Bell was deployed in the evacuation of Americans from Rwanda.

In response to the outbreak of fighting in the Great Lakes region, Bell was ordered off the coast of Somalia to participate in the evacuation of United States citizens who had left Rwanda. Sixteen Navy personnel and 312 Marines from the 11th Marine Expeditionary Unit, assigned to the USS Peleliu (Amphibious Ready Group, Fleet Marine Force 26), were deployed to Burundi. Designed to operate over seas and to respond swiftly, the Navy and Marine Corps team delivered assistance quickly in this evacuation effort. He joined the Navy in July 1992.

overall tax rate for the county's school districts is roughly twice that of the county so the overall delinquent taxes owed to the districts is roughly twice that of the county's total.

"We have stopped the appraisal district's bid, to use the vanguard," Wofford said, "comparing the delinquent tax collection totals."

He told the commissioners that the base delinquent taxes owed to the school districts of July 1, 1993 - including 1992 and prior year taxes - totaled $2,031,608. During the following 11-month period, a total of $405,477 was collected, or 19.96 percent.

"The county collected almost 20 percent of its delinquent taxes while the appraisal district collected only 20 percent," Wofford added.

Following Wofford's presentation, Force noted that he took exception to his competitor's remarks. "When you talk about the appraisal district, you're talking about us because we're the ones who collect the taxes."

Following the meeting, Wofford said that after the two firms completed their presentations, he met briefly with Force and gave him a copy of the statistics he quoted to the commissioners. "I asked him to look them over and point out where I am in error."

I don't think I made a mistake but I want to give him an opportunity to look at the numbers I used."

Wofford said that if his figures are wrong, he would correct them and report back to the commissioners during Friday's meeting.

At the Village

By Dottie Johnson

The Louvre has nothing on Heritage Village. That's a stretch, of course. The Louvre has the Mona Lisa, the Pietra and thousands of other pieces of priceless art filling its halls. But last week, it was the day after all the awe-inspiring D-Day coverage, all the media biggies were in Paris for a day or two, and so it was inevitable that someone should cover the Louvre.

Students and teachers experience history hands-on at the Village

have lived with the beauty of an old barn nestled among the wild haws of East Texas, a porch where the whole family gathers to shell a mess of blackpeas or shuck a wagonload of corn. Folks like Leroy McCortney, who learned his craft riding the back roads of Tyler County for the Ma Bell, a craft visitor to Heritage Village enjoy in progress and children marvel over as the finest art they've ever seen. And our rock making for student groups puts youngsters into the middle of doing the twisting and turning that Jack Whitmeyer shows them how to do, the finished rope the teacher takes back to hang in the classroom.

While giving full credit to the teachers and parents, we must reserve a bit for ourselves. From all reports, we made their visit interesting. The lady who organized the tour from Jasper returned to the office after everyone was on the bus to tell us how meaningful the day had been, how much the children and their teachers had enjoyed it.

More from Kountze And then there were the 20 youngsters from Hardin County that Mary C. Johnston of Kountze brought for a very special tour of "Whisper the Wind", but rest assured that the original music written by director Cindy Alexander and Whitney Garity will be on the shelves in all ages in the Tyler County Museum's most poignant yesterday.

Bicycle thefts increase

WOODVILLE — A warning to lock bicycles and "other lock items," which might be a target for youth thieves was issued this week by Woodville Police Chief Scott Yosko.

"Now that school is out, we have some juveniles out there who don't mind being thieves, so we are asking area residents to be on guard and lock up items that might be attractive to these youngsters."

Yosko said that since June 6, six or seven bicycles have been reported stolen in Woodville.

"I guess you could say we're having a mini-crime wave involving juveniles," the chief said.

The round of bicycle thefts apparently began on June 6 when the Tony Greer residence of Cobb Mills Road was broken into and two bicycles were stolen.

On June 10, a Woodville officer spotted three juveniles riding bicycles from 12-16 on two bikes, one of which matched the description of one stolen from the Greer residence.

Subsequent investigation of the two stolen bicycles were recovered from the Greer residence.

"That was just one incident. We had two bicycles reported stolen yesterday and one so far today," Yosko reported Tuesday morning.

Local school students win B&PW scholarships

WOODVILLE — The Business and Professional Women's Club of Woodville awarded college scholarships to students in each of Tyler County's five school districts at the end of the 1993-94 school term.

Money for the scholarships was raised by the club members through the sponsorship of the craft fair during the Tyler County Dogwood Festival.

Recipients of the scholarships included Christiana Davis, Beckie Spurger High School, Kallina Rae Rawls of Colmesneil High School, Mandy Michelle Carter of Warren High School, Adrienne Lynn McCasland of Chester High School and Jill Louise Brooks of Woodville High School.

"I want to enter into a field where I can help others maintain a healthy physical and emotional body and work with people of all ages. I began exploring the field of medicine, particularly rehabilitation. After doing in-depth study into the many branches of rehabilitation medicine, I became focused on occupational therapy," she said.

"I am undecided on my course of study," she said. "I plan to make this decision during my first year of college."

Carter is the daughter of Steven and Donna Carter and lists law and medicine as avenues for possible careers.

"Lawyers and doctors interact directly with people," the Warren scholar winner said. "Being of service to the public is important to me because it is an outlet for my desire to help people. The careers I have chosen offer leadership that can make a difference in the future of America."

McCasland is the daughter of Jerry Oscar and Delores Dene Swearingen. The Chester High School graduate plans to begin her study of business at Angelo State University in San Angelo.

"I want to pursue a career in business because the most successful jobs in America today are dealing with business, striving all that I can about this field will also let me understand and adjust to the constant changes in the economy," she said.

Brooks is the daughter of Calvin Brooks and the late Mary Brooks and plans to pursue a career as an occupational therapist.

"I want to enter into a field where I can help others maintain a healthy physical and emotional body and work with people of all ages. I began exploring the field of medicine, particularly rehabilitation. The most precious gifts

By Theresa Bunn

We all receive gifts as we grow up. Some stand out in our minds more than others, and some we don't realize the value of when we receive them. Then there are some gifts that we take for granted and we don't realize how precious they are until they are gone and we find that they are irreplaceable.

The most precious gift I ever received is one I want to recognize before God calls him home. Like all children, I was born with a mother and father, and like a lot of children, they were not able to raise me themselves. I was only a few years old when my momma and daddy adopted me. Everyone around us knew I was adopted but I never realized what it meant. I mean I knew I had another mother and father, and I even grew up knowing my biological mother. All I cared about was the feeling of belonging. I knew I had with Momma and Daddy. I've discovered since I've become an adult that there are some people who don't understand the love that exists between us. I was always DADDY'S LITTLE GIRL and I always will be, but you know what? I wouldn't want any other woman to be like my momma and daddy. I've discovered since I've become an adult that there are some people who don't understand the love that exists between us. I was always DADDY'S LITTLE GIRL and I always will be, but you know what? I wouldn't want any other woman to be like my momma and daddy. Jackson leaving Woodville

WOODVILLE — Donald Jackson, who has served as a varsity and middle school coach at Woodville for the past six years, will take over as head basketball coach at Alvarado High School beginning in August.

Alvarado High School is a 30A school south of Fort Worth.

"I enjoyed my years at Woodville," said Jackson. "The hardest thing is to leave the kids. I have always had a goal to become a head basketball coach, and the opportunity came."

Jackson served as middle school football and basketball coach before taking over as a varsity line coach and a junior varsity basketball coach at Woodville.

He joins former Woodville coach Buck Silvey at Alvarado. Silvey left Woodville last year to coach at Livingston before being hired as the defensive coordinator at Alvarado in the spring.

Woodville was Jackson's first coaching job after graduating from Stephen F. Austin University. He is married to his wife, Darlene, and has one child, Kristen.

Lake Tejas featured in Texas Highways

FUN IN THE SUN — A group of youngsters enjoy their summer school break at Lake Tejas near Colmesneil this week. The lake, owned and operated by the Colmesneil Independent School District, is featured in this month's edition of Texas Monthly Magazine in a story written by Howard Peacock of Woodville. (Photo by Don Stevenson)

COLMESNEIL — Thanks to Woodville author Howard Peacock, Tyler County is again featured in Texas Highways, a travel magazine of Texas. Peacock's "The Joys of Summer" in the June edition of Texas Highways features Lake Tejas in Colmesneil. The story encompasses four pages, and includes five pictures and a map.

Woodville's Darby Keenan, a Red Cross certified swimming and diving instructor, is featured in the story, as are Tejas managers Wanda and Mike Robinson of Colmesneil.

The story includes the history of Lake Tejas and how it came into being back in the 30's.

Also included in the article are segments on what type of fish are in the lake, a visit by a staff member of the Swiss consulate in Houston, and how money is used from the profits of the lake.

Said Peacock of the Tejas article, "I like to help Tyler County enjoy the influx of new visitors. Lake Tejas is a beautiful 'ol swimming hole."

The Lake Tejas story has already received responses from readers across the state. John Crews, formerly of Tyler County and now living in Victoria, wrote Texas Highways to congratulate the magazine on finding the hidden treasures of Lake Tejas.

Letters have also been received from Carol Bartington, former president of the Society of American Travel Writers, and Downs Matthews, a former editor of Exton USA.

Peacock's Lake Tejas story for Texas Highways is one of many that he has written for the magazine over the past years. The freelance writer edited a book in 1990 entitled The Nature of Texas. It is a book compiled of Texas Highways articles written by various authors across Texas. There are five stories in the book written by Peacock, including one he co-wrote with Anne Gamers of Woodville.

Later this summer another Peacock book will hit the bookstores. Nature Lover's Guide to the Big Thicket, published by Texas A&M University Press, will be sent out later this month or the first of July.

The June edition of Texas Highways can be found in various newsstands throughout the area, including Brookshire Brothers supermarket in Woodville.

VisionQuest wagon train provides learning experience

By John Morrison
WOODVILLE — An alternative to juvenile detention, the VisionQuest wagon train, now rolling through Tyler County is also known as a high school on wheels.

The six-month, "high impact" experience and journey is a proven way to help troubled young men learn how to make right decisions based on their experiences with the train and in caring for the animals. This group is headed for Arizona.

The youth get up at 6 a.m. and go to bed at 8 p.m. They go to bed tired and sleep about 10 hours in an Indian-style tepee.

The group of about 45 youth passing through Tyler County circled up at Lake Tejas Saturday night then traveled on to Varnay Durham's ranch west of Doucette for a Sunday night stay before moving on to Tyler County 4-H and FFA Rodeo Arena for a couple more days. They will travel only 15 to 20 miles per day and are now looking for camp locations along their route to Beaumont.

"I've cut (run away) twice but I've learned that where I was running away to was no where. I've learned that," he said.

Derek said he never knew his Dad but his Mom lives in California. He calls her from time to time to let her know how he's doing.

Derek is the head teamster on the train, acts as a scout and stops or slows cars down when the train is moving. He also fixes wagons, waters and feeds the animals, repairs tack, sews canvas and helps the wrangler. It's a lot of work.

"I've cut (run away) twice but I've learned that where I was running away to was no where. I've learned that," he said.

"Circle Up!" barks Chief Deputy and Master of Operations Dale Neighbors, who directs everything on the train. The entire camp comes alive with this command with about 10 youth each forming a circle in front of each tepee... for a count.

This helps the staff to know where everyone is at all times. Then Camp Director Neighbors yells "Go!" and the entire group of youngsters races across the center of the camp to the other side and forms up again. It's a regimen on Sunday that preceded the mandatory class room study. One class was learning about longitude and latitude. Others dealt with math and history.

The staff uses the word "consequences" rather than discipline. They let the youth determine their own "consequences" when they get out of line. They come up with their own work projects to work off the problem.

"All I really want to say about that is that the percentages recited to the court are incorrect," Force added. "Collection percentages can be computed differently with depending on how you want them to look."

Following the meeting, Wofford said that after the two firms completed their presentations, he met briefly with Force and gave him a copy of the statistics he quoted to the commissioners. "I asked him to look them over and point out where I am in error. I don't think I made a mistake but I want to give him an opportunity to look at the numbers I used."

Wofford said that if his figures are wrong, he would correct them and report back to the commissioners during Friday's meeting.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Navy Seaman Recruit Allen W. Bell, a 1992 graduate of Warren High School, is currently off the East Coast of Africa aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Peleliu, homeported in San Diego, and was recently involved in the evacuation of Americans from Rwanda.

In response to the announcement of fighting in that country, Bell's ship was ordered off the coast of Somalia to participate in the evacuation of United States citizens who had left Rwanda. Sixteen Navy personnel and 312 Marines from the 11th Marine Expeditionary Unit, assigned to the USS Peleliu (Amphibious Ready Group, Fleet Marine Force 1, Camp Lejeune, N.C.), were dispatched to the area to assist in the evacuation of Americans from Rwanda.

Fire district hearing scheduled for July 5

WOODVILLE — A public hearing on the creation of Rural Fire Prevention District No. 5 in the Dam B area has been scheduled for 8:30 a.m. July 5 in the commissioners' courtroom of Tyler County Courthouse in Woodville.

The hearing was called by the Tyler County Commissioners during their meeting Monday after they formally accepted the petition asking the county to call an election to establish a tax collecting fire district.

County Judge Jerome Owens noted that 126 signatures on the petition had been certified by Tax Assessor-Collector Sandra Harrison. "They only need 100 signatures and it's obvious that they have more than enough," he added.

The fire prevention district's boundaries cover about 100 miles around the Dam B, Vohmer Fire Department's fire station and connect with the lines of larger fire districts in the area.

A decision regarding the creation of District 5 will be called following the July 5 hearing.

In other business during Monday's meeting, the commissioners voted to hire the engineering firm of Cowdin and Lassiter to prepare the final closing of the county landfill located east of Woodville. The county closed the landfill in January 1993. The contract was awarded to Cowdin and Lassiter for $14,000. The contract will award the firm to oversee the formal closing of the old dump site to insure that all state and federal regulations are met. Commissioners also accepted a bid of $50 from J.W. Ross of Rockland on the sale of scrap iron owned by Road and Bridge Precinct 2.

County Extension Agent Sherry Barnes was also on hand to present Commissioners Marie Riley, Pete Barnes and Henry Earl Sawyer continuing education certificates for attending the 36th annual County Judges and Commissioners Conference. Harrison also was presented with a certificate for attending the 11th Annual Tax Assessor-Collector Seminar.

Commissioners also approved a bond for Len Foxworth as a deputy district clerk.
